Mr Butler.
Mr Bottomley

As he spent a night in town he can have (and rightly, I think, be given) 10/- detention allowance. Taxi-fares are not admissible especially when by dint of a little enquiry he could have got from Paddington to Harley Street by tube for a few pence (this claim of 5/- for the taxi-fare each way is in any case absurdly excessive).

I propose to tell him that as he spent a night in London the 10/- can be given (being an exception) to cover him 10/-
