myself might be possible or either the Government of India or myself be committed to any opinion on the Bill without previously ascertaining the views of that Government. The Government of India will, I hope, proceed to the appointment of the Committee as soon as they have consulted Sir in regard to it on his arrival in India at the end of this month, but it seems impossible that the Committee can be appointed and assemble in London before January at the earliest.

It certainly cannot be taken for the Bill as unobjectionable from the point of view of Indian interests, and it would clearly be easier to incorporate any reasonable suggestions surely appreciated locally that the case is different from that of the franchise, which they are passed during the lifetime of the present Council. As regards the immigration laws on the other hand, I should have thought that the advantages were all on the side of postponing their consideration by the Legislative Council until the July decision.

to draft with full explanation of bond to cover cost of repatriation where appeal makes the difference to a landing fee. In other cases consider that there should be a definite fee moderate in amount and repayable if appeal successful. That would sufficiently discourage frivolous appeals.

XVII Not clearly understood but if it is intended to cover cases of arrival at other places than Mombasa I agree.

XVIII New Ordinance should be complete statement of law and not merely amendment of existing law.

When you submit Bill please inform me what provision is intended for accommodation of persons detained for investigation under the Ordinance or awaiting repatriation.
