LAND GRANTS

States system at present in force for the allotment of farms. Considers it thoroughly bad. Thinks allotment should be regulated by an advisory board and that applications for highland lands by power of attorney should entirely be done away with. On these grounds thinks country will readily accept the principle that no second grant of Crown lands will be made.

W. R. S.

I send you a copy of, as I understand that Mr. forward is going to discuss the land question with other people.

All the papers are written up.

Mr. forward appeals to us to take care at a strong case for personal application of personal occupation. By means of an wise conditions we may see a few true idle farmers, but it appears to be the only means of checking the present system of land speculation. The forward friend despatch has convinced me that his present idea of developing & acquiring from by power of attorney can only be provided by strict land measures, and if his opinion of the creating a govt form of the frontier protection, & also to know why they should not be tried. No P.A. certainly has to do with the way of applying for land under present

the accumulation of land on the hands of under officials.

This applies the frontier but we can't see if your land should be made to be used for the following reasons which I think, had he only propose to allow 5000 acres instead of the difference in case of Colonists. Because our nominally allows 2500 acres while it was allowed 5000 acres appears to be different reason why for all the others
only to allow half as much as B.

Sir G. Fiddes.

I am in favour of the Governor's proposition.
The Director of Agriculture, who has an extensive knowledge of the country and the settlers and who had several years previous experience of colonial conditions in South Africa, urged upon me when I was in the Protectorate the necessity for an Advisory Board, which could bring candidates before it and see whether they were likely to make good settlers, could examine into their financial position (at present money is sometimes lent for a day or two to enable an applicant to show that he has the means of developing his property and, if so, as he has got his grant, is lent to someone else for similar purpose) &c.

I believe that, with the safeguard
in this despatch, the 99 years' lease, & of the right to impose a land-tax (whether or not and whether on all land leases only on undeveloped land would we could find a solution of
would be accepted by the set safeguard Government interest.

I must say settlers does not
course only all
is the advent

unless we insist also on complete control of transfers, and so render land unmarketable unless the transferor and transferee are in the good graces of the board.

The fact is that the conditions cannot be served, and until some arrangement is made for a systematic inspection of holdings to see that the conditions are being carried out, these patent devices
of Lord Delamere and Company for keeping East Africa select, and the management of the Crown Estates in their own hands, will only lead to further and worse trouble.

I do not see why the merchant or the shopkeeper should not be allowed to add farming to his business, if he is so disposed.

Why should a farmer who has several boys be prohibited from taking on a second farm to plant them on when they are of age? The cause of the whole trouble is of course that we are giving something for nothing and the individual who gets it, very often only wants it to sell and never thinks of getting an allotment.

The Governor says he put some farms up to auction. I do not see why he should not do this universally and couple it with a condition of personal occupation, and more stringent development conditions, which should be enforced strictly by forfeiture for non-compliance, without compensation.

As the Government has all the farms surveyed before an allotment takes place there can be no difficulty in having periodical auctions as surveys are completed, and the terms of occupation should be made clearly known and strictly enforced. There will then be less of this evil, and no need for a Land Board - whose 29/3.

Sir J. Anderson's minute presupposed that the Land Board is an unsuitable body for making recommendations as to applicants for farms. The composition of this Board was (and so far as I know is) four officials and three unofficials representing different districts. I see no reason on the face of it why such a Board should indulge in log-rolling.

On the whole I should be inclined to adopt the Governor's proposals and give them a fair trial. Putting up to auction is defensible from a Parliamentary point of view; but it does not seem to me to be along a the best plan for selecting suitable settlers. Even if we run the risk of an occasional unsuitable man being selected by a Land Board we shall also (provided the Board is properly manned and does its duty) obtain a far better choice on the whole.

On the other hand, I would that we ought to keep a tight hand on transfers. This is more easily done under a more elastic system than under a system of universal auction.

R. 29/3.

Issue would appear to be objectionable to the proposal that allotment of lands should be ^{the responsibility of} Irrigation should be undertaken by an ^{Advisory} Board.

Board I can see no reason why this duty should not be entrusted to the present Land Board - the Board will of course be reconstituted

not dissolved. The present system of allotment has nothing to do with it, and it would be a pity to lose this latter.

To General

I am bound to oppose Govt's proposals. The writer of report who has an extensive knowledge of the country & the settlers & who had several years previous experience of almost conditions in S. Africa, urged upon me when I was in the Post Office the necessity for a Advisory Board, which could bring conditions before it & see whether they were likely to make good settlers; could examine

its then financial position & at present money & sometimes last for a day or two to enable an applicant to show that he has the means of developing his property & was soon as he has got his funds in hand to someone else for a similar purpose) etc.

I believe that with the suggestions suggested in this despatch and the
of 2 years' lease, a consideration of the right to impose a land-tax (whether payment of all land held by the crown or only on undeveloped land to require taxation),
we could find a solution of the land question which would be accepted by the settlers & would sufficiently safeguard
but

28/III

I must say that the idea of a board to pass settlement does not commend itself to me. They would of course only allot to their friends,
and after all what is the advantage of controlling the original allotment unless to prevent also on complete control of transfers, and so render land unmarketable unless the transfer or transfers are

to make good settlers, could examine
its other financial position (at present money is sometimes lent for a day or two to enable an applicant to show that
he has the means of developing his property & as soon as he has got his rent i. lent to someone else for a similar purpose) etc.

I believe that with the support of the suggested a. the dept. and the 99 year lease, - + re-examination of the right to impose a land-tax (whether progressive (all land taxed by the crown or only an undveloped land at no require crown), we could find a solution of the last question which will be accepted by the
settlers & would sufficiently safeguard
the settlers

H. J. R.

28/11/

I must say that the idea of a board to have 28 settlers does not commend itself to me. They
would of course only allot to their friends,
and after all what is the advantage? By controlling the original allotment holder but most also on complete control of transfers, and so under land unmarketable unless the transfer or transference are in the good graces of the board. 207

If however the fact is that the conditions are not observed, and until some arrangement is made for a systematic inspection of holdings to see that the conditions are being carried out. These patent devices of the Declarative Co for keeping East Africa alert, and the management of the Crown Estates in their own hands, will only lead to further & worse trouble.

I do not see why the merchant or the small shopkeeper should not be allowed to add for himself to his business, if he is so disposed.

Why should a farmer who has several bays be prohibited from taking an acre and a half to plant them up when they are of age?

The cause of the whole trouble is of course that we are giving something for nothing to the individual who gets it, may often not want it to sell & reap the advantage of his luck in getting an allotment.

This only facilitates the Government in saying he put down farms up to auction. I do not see why he should not do this universally, & couple it with a condition of personal occupation, and more stringent development conditions, which should be infonced ~~trust~~ by forfeiture for non compliance - without compensation.

~~that~~ the Govt has all the farms surveyed before an allotment takes place there can be no difficulty in having periodical auctions as surveys are completed and the terms of occupation should be made clear between ~~Govt~~ & ~~trust~~ enforced. There will then be less of this evil, and no need for a Land Board - whose proceedings would be a target for Mr Ramsay
MacDonald or Mr MacCallum Scott.

The Soc. has decided for the present to drop the idea of terminating already alienated, and to confine further discussion to the question of the terms & conditions upon which lands still in hand should be leased.

Will you say who should be selected to go into this matter with Mr P. Gerard?

Premium.

I gather that it is within the range of practical policies to spread the payment of Stand Premium over a period of years.

It must be borne in mind that such a system, if no restrictions are introduced, although designed to assist the Farmer Settler, would also materially assist the Speculator.

I am difficult in suggesting a limit to the period over which such payments should extend. I am of opinion but ~~from a question of money~~ In any case such payments should be an item absolutely separate & distinct from rent.

One method would be to interest with the option of redemption at any time by payment of the Capital sum. This might go on indefinitely & may complicate matters in the revision of rental.

A simple method would be to spread it over a limited period of years say 10.

~~As a safeguard against speculators holding land for long periods of time, the payment of Stand Premium should be limited to a period of 10 years.~~

~~period of the licence & of making payment the least.~~

~~suggested restriction~~

As a safeguard to some extent against speculation a clause to the effect that the full payment of Stand premium must be made within one month unless the licensee can produce an affidavit to the effect that he holds no undivided interest in any farm, lease, conveyance, lease or license, or more stringent still has never at any time held such an undivided interest.

Every Transfer would be required to produce such an affidavit & pay the full amount of Stand Premium.

It must be borne in mind that such a system, if no restrictions are introduced, although designed to assist the Poor Settler, would also materially assist the Speculator.

I am diffident in suggesting a limit to the period over which such payments should extend. I am of opinion but ~~am open to consideration & definition~~ ^{Coming to know of it} In any case such payment should be an item absolutely separate & distinct from rent.

One method would be 5% interest with the option of redemption at any time by payment of the capital sum. This might go on in perpetuity & may complicate matters in the revision of rental.

A simple method would be to spread it over a limited period of years say 10.

A further method of ~~uncessant~~ ^{continuous}

Settler would be to demand the payment of a portion of the license & to make payment during the lease.

^{suggests restriction} As a safeguard to some extent against speculation a clause to the effect that the full payment of Stand premium must be made within one month unless the licensee can produce an affidavit to the effect that he holds no undivided interest in any known land, conveyance, lease or license, or more stringent still has never at any time held such an undivided interest.

Every Transfer would be required to produce such an affidavit & pay the full amount of Stand Premium.

Occupation

In all cases where an occupation is the essence of a license or grant, the onus of proof of occupation should rest on the Grantee & not on the Crown as at present.

The system in Canada which appears simple & effective is for the Grantee to swear an affidavit to the fact that he has completed the necessary occupation and in addition to produce affidavits by two residents in the neighbourhood in support thereof. The Land Ranger & District Officers can check this to a certain extent.

Purchase of more than one farm

Small the expenses with the restrictions set out above I see no objection to one man purchasing an unlimited number of farms.

Provisions have been made (a) for occupation

(b) for payment of stand premium ~~at once~~ in the case of one more than one farm being required

(c) for maintenance & improvements

(d) for revision of rental
for a small reduced grant

I should like to have time to consider how changing ~~present~~ purchases under Power of Attorney & Company formations will affect the position.

28/

This Memorandum has been very hurriedly compiled & does not embrace several matters which I venture to suggest would form in the future worthy & valuable subjects for discussion.

RECD
GOVERNMENT HOUSE

16 MAR 12

NAIROBI,

BRITISH EAST AFRICA.

EAST AFRICA PROTECTORATE.

February 14th 1912.

CONFIDENTIAL (15)

Sir,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Confidential despatch of 28th October 1911 on the subject of land grants.

2. I have always been given to understand that one of the principles to be strongly maintained in our land laws or regulations should be the prevention of the undue accumulation of large properties in the hands of individuals. In furtherance of this object I have been instructed not to grant lands beyond 15,000 acres, and all transfers which would increase the area in any one man's possession beyond this amount are referred to you for decision.

In 1908 I found that the system of land grants was as follows:- Certain large areas of Crown lands were surveyed off into farms, and on a particular day applications were entertained for their occupation, the principal conditions being:

- (1) Proof of means up to a certain amount.
- (2) Occupation within 6 months by the lessee or a European agent.
- (3) Certain development conditions.

THE RIGHT HONOURABLE

An

LEWIS HARCOURT, P.C., M.P.,

SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE COLONIES,

DOWNING STREET, LONDON, S.W.

An occupation licence only was granted, the lease being procurable when conditions were fulfilled, 3 to 5 years being allowed for this purpose.

In addition to these large allotments, there still existed within the older settled areas isolated farms which for various reasons remained in the hands of Government. To many of these claims were put forward, based upon promises said to have been made by my predecessors. To avoid any question of favouritism in grants of farms coming under this latter category, I have made an invariable practice of putting such lands up to auction.

4. I have now seen three of these large allotments dealt with, all of which had been decided on prior to my arrival. The first was on the Uasin Gishu plateau, where some 200 farms have been given out. A considerable number of these farms have fallen into the hands of new chums, and even small shopkeepers, who have been able to pay the annual rent and fulfil the conditions imposed prior to the granting of the occupation licence. Others have, by means of powers of attorney, been acquired by persons not residing in East Africa, and some, if not many, have, by means of dummy names, been probably allotted to people already holding large areas in the Protectorate.

The West Kenya allotment of 31 farms I visited in July last. A very large number of the farms have have been allotted to officers of the British Army, non-resident in the country, and most of these have by powers of attorney fallen into the hands of local speculators.

In the case of the Londiani allotment exactly the same proceeding has occurred. Here I will take the case of four farms allotted to South African gentlemen, one of whom arrived in the country with powers of attorney for the other three. On his own behalf and on behalf of his friends he applied for four farms, and they were allotted. Within three months I received an application from another gentleman, then resident in South Africa, who had however previously visited this country at a time when he could not secure any land as no general allotment was proceeding, requesting my approval for an extension of his time for the occupation of his four farms. He gave the numbers of the farms, and on examining them they proved to be the four farms mentioned above. The gentleman in question were only possessors of occupation rights, and had no power to dispose of the property. Undoubtedly the purchaser, Mr. Barber, who I understand paid £1,000 for the four farms, was ignorant of the law, or he would not have made an application disclosing his false position.

The net result of these three allotments has been, in my opinion, to increase largely the holdings of certain people in this country, the farms farms still remaining in the names of the original applicants, and I consider that if we continue our present practice they will be still further augmented. Moreover a very real hardship is imposed upon bona fide farmers who arrive here intending to take up land.

5. There still remain certain areas totally uninhabited, which can be thrown open to settlement, but this land until surveyed is unavailable. The new settler therefore usually finds it impossible to secure a farm unless by purchase from one of the many holders or by the acquisition of any Government farms which may be put up to auction in the settled areas. The latter can be practically ignored, as such auctions are of very rare occurrence. Over three million acres of land have been alienated in 460 names; the average holding is therefore 7,000 acres. What the individual holdings are is extremely difficult to ascertain, but what I have described of the Forest of Athyra, Government Farm or Forest, is sufficient for any single individual in the Highlands though it is true that I have recommended larger areas for groups of individuals who are running an estate as partners.

6. I am therefore of opinion that the present procedure should be discontinued. It is perfectly true that, occasionally, certain bona fide companies came forward with the genuine intention of developing the land. This is more particularly the case upon the coast, but when in England I expressed the opinion that in that district 2,000 to 4,000 acres would suffice for a plantation destined for the production of tropical products. Similarly 3,000 to 5,000 acres would appear to be sufficient for a Crown grant in the Highlands.

In August a new Land Board was appointed, and I am glad to say that in the proceedings of their first meeting its members showed themselves to be possessed of a very fair and independent spirit. In meeting them I asked them to consider

- (1) whether the time had not arrived when no person should receive a second grant of Crown land. With this proposal I found a hearty concurrence.
- (2) that the grantee should give an undertaking to occupy his land personally.

7. In paragraph 2 of your despatch you ask to be informed what number of persons who have held or are now holding land in the Protectorate and have complied or are complying with their obligations as to development would be thereby barred from receiving grants of land for which I now suggest had been enforced in the past. I append the opinion of the Land Officer in this matter.

If a lessee is allowed to fulfil occupation conditions through an agent any one desirous of speculating in land can do so easily, as a caste of "occupiers" has come into existence and is utilized for the purpose, though just at present

the supply hardly meets the demand. The lessee places one of these "occupiers" on the land and very little development is effected until a purchaser is found - usually a man who could find no Government grants of land free to take up. He develops the land under some secret agreement with the lessee. The "occupier" readily finds similar employment elsewhere. The farm is eventually allotted to the lessee, development having been effected by the secret purchaser, to whom it is then finally transferred.

The whole system is thoroughly bad, to my mind, in so far as it concerns individuals. For one man who might be hurt by a personal occupation clause dozens of bona fide farmers have to be turned away, or forced into purchase of land at enhanced prices, and hundreds of farms - principally by means of non-local powers of attorney - are held up for speculation.

The Land Board, on being approached on this subject, gave an answer which I am sorry to say was coloured with my view which is based upon the application of the two following principles. I think we should (1) stop the system of allotment on a particular day of a block of farms. Allotment should be regulated, in my opinion, by the recommendations of an advisory board, and I think there are men of sufficient independence to give Government their assistance for this purpose. In fact many of the members of the present Land Board are prepared prepared to serve. There may perhaps be some apprehension that such a board, if it contained non-officials, might be influenced with regard to particular applications. If the personal occupation clause is insisted upon, the motive for any such partiality would be lacking. Bona fide applicants as they come into the country would find farms ready for them. They would have to prove means and enter into an undertaking not to transfer their holdings until fully developed by means of personal occupation.

(2) In the second place I think that we should do away entirely with applications for highland lands by means of power of attorney, unless the person concerned has previously visited the country and found no land available for occupation. He would in that case at least have had an opportunity of satisfying the Government as to his bona fides. Land in the Highlands is not, generally speaking, adapted to development by means of private companies; the bulk of it is more suited to individual enterprise. The products besides stock which we may see developed are maize, beans, wheat and in certain farmed areas coffee, wattle and fibre. Experience elsewhere, in so far as Coast lands are concerned, confirms the principle of restricting grants to blocks of 5,000 to 10,000 acres. There is but little land still available for the growth growth of the higher class products, such as coffee, wattle and fibre; and I do not think it would be any hardship to oblige a company seeking such a valuable concession to send a representative to this country.

(3) On these grounds I think the country will readily accept, and that we should now lay down, the principle that no second grant of Crown lands will be made.

8. I hope that I have made the position clear to you, and that it will receive your consideration. The remedial measures suggested I would propose to introduce gradually as I found expedient, for, if we lay down hard and fast rules, we may find ourselves in an awkward position with regard to the isolated farms in disposing of which it might be advisable in some cases to retain the principle of auction, a principle to which undoubtedly we must still adhere in the matter of town plots.

9. I append a list of a few of the farms granted at the time of my appointment. I have mentioned which I think will exemplify very clearly some of the points I have brought forward.

10. I also attach a Memorandum from the Land Officer calling attention to a very flagrant case which has recently occurred in which land changed hands twice without the knowledge of Government, before any development had been effected. The transaction would probably never have transpired at all had not the third trans-

transferee enquired ingenuously at the Land Office whether his title was good.

11. A further instance has just come to my notice in which the holder of an undeveloped farm at Nyeri, agreed to sell it to if he would effect the necessary development for him. Subsequently receiving a better offer from he repudiates the first arrangement, places on the farm and on development being effected, presumably by though we cannot prove it transfers to him in revenge reveals the whole transaction to Government. His story is almost certainly true, though we have no legal proof.

12. It would be easy to multiply such cases but I think from those I have given that you will readily see the difficulties entailed by the present system.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your humble obedient servant

INCLOSURE

In Despatch Box No. 19.

Sir,

I have had a list prepared shewing the number of people who have obtained more than one original grant from Government, the number being 142, so that if the rule that no second Crown grant would be made to any one person, this number would have been disbarred from obtaining second or third grants as the case may be.

The Colonial Office have laid much stress on the importance of not allowing the accumulation of land in the hands of individuals, and the discouragement of dummying and speculation, and I am in absolute accord with the opinion expressed by His Excellency, that if this is to be seriously checked, all applications from people who have never visited the Country should be refused, and that applications made under Power of Attorney should not be entertained except applications on behalf of persons who for business reasons have been obliged to leave the Colony.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

Land Officer.

Extracts from "Special Bulletin No. 285"

"Conditions under which Crown Lands are allotted in South Australia and areas available."

(Copied by Commissioner of Crown Lands, 1921)

- (A) "After the land has been surveyed it is gazetted open to application for periods ranging from one to two months. Subsequently places and times are fixed at which the Land Board will hear evidence from applicants in support of their applications. The evidence is given on oath in the Court House and before a magistrate. The rights and are awarded or withdrawn and allotment made which may have to be believed to improve..... All other things being equal, the board is bound by the Act to allot the land to the applicant who agrees to fence on it for at least nine months in each year, and if it is not so allotted a person must be punished for departing from the directions of the Act."

Note:- I quote the following words of Mr. Shand-Taylor's contribution to the South Australian Year Book.

- (B) "Under the Act no allotment is allowed to be held for more than five years, and the holder or his wife or children may hold on the land for at least nine months in each year."

Note:- A very stringent clause.

- (C) ".....no lease held for five years can be transferred unless the holder thereof can show to the satisfaction of the Commissioner that a refusal to allow transfer would inflict great hardship on him."

given him a promissory note for the balance.
Mr. Leitch is advised by his solicitor that he has a case for action against Harvey, but, if he should lose it, our action in forfeiting would not punish Weistead and Harvey, the people who deserve punishment, as they have got their money, and it becomes Leitch who loses both farm and money.

Personal occupation is, in my mind, the only condition
which would effectively check such practices.
