MR AMERY AWAITS REPORT. The recent denunciations among the Somalis in Lakupa has apparently caused some anxiety in the minds of some Members of the House of Commons. Mr. Amery is particularly worried by the fact that the Kenya Press advanced strong rumours by Government for the purpose of improving upon the Somali, the fact that official intervention might be required. This advice was given to a leading official in the East African Standard some time ago but it did not see the light of day as the Member of Parliament in question proposed to raise the subject with Government to the detriment of the fact that the suggestion was that Government should not interfere with their intention of removing the Somalis from the area unless fully convinced by them and having removed them, some upon the stock returns that they would not be permitted to return to that area.

MOTURING TOPICS

THE MAGNETO.

Simple Explanation of its Working.

POLAR INDUCTOR.

What may be termed the standard type of light magneto is the one in which the magnet is mounted on a shaft which has a working knowledge of its position. The diagram and circuit have been prepared for an interesting experiment.

The pole of a magnet is the part in which the magnetic force is concentrated. It is the part which is the most powerful in the magnet.

It is probable that the general use of magnets in the way in which mentioned is not developing in the future. It is possible that the standard design, although there are some types in the polar inductor magnet.

It was known in the very early days of magnetism that it was not possible to use a rotating magnet with a winding, coil and contact breaker all on the same shaft. It was shown that the magnet could remain stationary and the coil and contact breaker be rotated. This is the principle of the polar inductor magnet.

Being back to very elementary principles, we show by the circuit diagram that with a coil of wire and a battery of cells, it is impossible whether the magnet is rotated or not to have a current in the coil. This is because the magnet is not in contact with the coil.

When a "magnetic" coil changes its position in the coil, a current flows in the coil in the direction in which the coil is rotated. This is the principle of the polar inductor magnet.

read—then if an arm were placed through the coil and two ends or two short attached wires the coil can be kept stationary and the magnet rotated on its axis between the poles. This would be the standard type of magnet. The flow of lines of force through the coil, in the north-south path, is the principle of the "true reversal" type. Here the north and south poles of the magnet change over. Here we have certain fundamental paths of a rotating magnet which, with some addition, can become a practical inductor.

Suppose that the coil of wire with four or five turns is kept a further step to the left, and the magnet is rotated. The coil and contact breaker are stationary and the magnet is rotated. This is the principle of the polar inductor magnet.

By bringing the coil to a position in which it is in contact with one or other of the poles, the magnet is rotated. This is the principle of the polar inductor magnet.

If two poles of soft iron be mounted on a shaft, so arranged with respect to the actual magnet pole that when the magnet is rotated, it will be in contact with one or other of the poles, the magnet is rotated. This is the principle of the polar inductor magnet.

The two inductors of a motor are of a peculiar shape, and their use is not a simple matter. It is the principle of the polar inductor magnet.

and inductor in fact instead of being in an important advantage. There are no mechanical losses on the windings, and a larger and more likely inductor coil can be used than if it were stationary. The likely inductor coil can be used than if it were stationary. The likely inductor coil can be used than if it were stationary.

speed engine having six or seven cylinders.

Some Recent Developments.

Recent developments in magneto design have largely been made possible by several improvements in magnetic materials. Carbon steel is an example, this being an alloy preferred for reasons which will be mentioned later. The use of very powerful flux magnets used in the polar inductor magnet. For the weight of material in them, the polar inductor magnets are much more powerful than magnets made of the older form of carbon steel, and another advantage is that they retain their maximum strength for very long periods, a factor which greatly increases the durability and efficiency of the magnet. The use of carbon steel, however, is a disadvantage in that it is not so strong as other materials of shock and vibration.

A further factor involved in the design of the magnet is the fact that the magnet is not so strong as other materials of shock and vibration. The use of carbon steel, however, is a disadvantage in that it is not so strong as other materials of shock and vibration.

Engineers and explorers, whose lives depend upon the reliability of the transportation they use, employ Dodge Brothers Cars almost exclusively.

British Goods.

The Colonial Conference departed somewhat from the normal line of its discussions this week and, as reported in the third communication published this morning, passed a resolution which meant a revolution in what the delegates will surely be the increased in the importance of foreign made goods despite the national sentiment and desire in the East African territories to purchase British made goods. In the same communication they expressed the hope that the East African Government will take steps in line with the wishes of the Imperial Conference to the desirability of notifying the public with regard to the goods which are produced in the Colonies. This is a most important step in the development of the Empire and has been made by the provision of accurate information both here and at Home to counter the growth of foreign trade. But there is no doubt that the position is still capable of great improvement and with a better understanding of the East African situation the British manufacturer should find many a customer who is his obvious advantage can be turned to Imperial advantage. It is not sufficiently appreciated, for example, that in the northern group territories alone there are some million potential native consumers who are rapidly coming into contact with economic forces and changing their outlook through the influence of civilized example and the example of the motor cycle. It is of course true and the common type and trade made and the British manufacturer has nothing to fear in that direction.

CENSORSHIP OF FILMS—IN KENYA.

Recommendations of Legislative Council Committee.

SEPARATE HALLS FOR AFRICANS.

No Differentiation Needed Between Other Races in the Colony.

The Committee of the Kenya Legislative Council has laid down on general terms what it believes to be necessary to safeguard the African from the bad influence of native cinema films.

Committee recommends that natives should have separate halls where carefully censored films would be shown in the main be educational or humorous but that in special cases the Government should have power to prohibit the showing of any film if it is considered to be morally or physically injurious to the natives.

Separation of all posters is also proposed.

Committee does not believe that the African in this matter can be regarded as on a par with white children and suggests that in regard to the latter, the parent should be the final judge of the fitness of posters for their children.

Explorers Use This Car Because It is Dependable

Pioneers and explorers, who have often depended upon the reliability of the transportation they use, employ Dodge Brothers Motor Cars almost exclusively.

Stefansson used Dodge Brothers' Carrs through the uncharted deserts of Central Australia. Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews, on three different occasions, penetrated the innermost wastes of Mongolia in a Dodge Brothers Car.

The car's dependability is proverbial, and its exceptional riding comfort permits long travel over bad roads without fatigue.

CONCRETE ON THE FARM.

No. 3.

Slabs and Bricks.

In the last article the subject of concrete blocks was considered. The present article may be regarded as a continuation of the last, since slabs and bricks are really just a block a small size. The general method of manufacture of both slabs and bricks will therefore be the same as that described for blocks. To take slabs first.

Concrete slabs can be usually employed in many ways—for walls, floors, roofs, footpaths and covers for drains etc.

Partitions slabs.
The commonest form of slab for building purposes is the partition slab, for two or more rooms. In a kitchen or bathroom or partition walls, these have to carry no weight and it is not necessary that they should be dressed and impregnated; they can be economically built of a concrete whose aggregate is a coarse breeze or shaker.

Both a concrete slab of concrete slabs, but this is an advantage in this case since the slabs are light to handle, may be on concrete, and can be used in a corner. It is not difficult to make such that there will be no deduction of weight and the surface will be smooth. The latter is an important point which will be important when we come to consider them as a means for flooring.

the interior surface of a wall, and the two sides open, but these are not necessary. In making the mould and the fill, the fill should be made to the depth for the thickness of the slab, plus 1 in. at the bottom. The bricks

If the surface is present the surface is finished, and the bottom is finished. If it is desired that the outside surface of slabs or bricks should be of good finish, the aggregate should be of good quality. It is preferable that the aggregate should be of a good grade of granite, or a similar stone, and that it should be well sorted. The aggregate should be of a good grade of granite, or a similar stone, and that it should be well sorted. The aggregate should be of a good grade of granite, or a similar stone, and that it should be well sorted.

Proportions.
A suitable mixture for this type of slab is 1 part cement and 7 parts breeze or shaker. It is very available. If they are not available, aggregate lumps to be obtained, must be used. The mixture, however, should not be a rich one, say 1 part cement, 7 parts sand and 7 parts coarse material from 2 in. to 1 in. size.

Since a convenient size for partition slabs is 18 ins. by 12 ins. by 3 ins. or 2 in. thick, slabs of this size are not too heavy to handle, and require less labour and less mortar for pointing.

Just as a convenient size for the slabs, or other, some other arrangement is necessary, particularly in the wall. A simple arrangement for this is to use a groove other all round the edges of the slab or along the top and bottom, that is to say the long edges of the slab, which is shown in Fig. 1. This can be easily done by using a wooden float. Make the float about 12 in. long, and divide it into two sides or of 4 in. This is shown in Fig. 1. This mould, the float illustrated in the last article.

can be made that one and falls down, and the two sides open, but these are not necessary. In making the mould and the fill, the fill should be made to the depth for the thickness of the slab, plus 1 in. at the bottom. The bricks

Setting and Laying Slabs.

In view of the purpose for which they are required, the concrete for slabs and bricks must be best quality, damp for about ten days.

available paving and flooring slabs are usually made in a hydraulic press, the advantages being a large output and great density. Where, however, such a plant is not available, perfectly good slabs can be made by hand.

Aggregate. As has already been pointed out, in order to produce a dense concrete, the aggregate itself must be dense and well sorted. In this case, a coarse aggregate of granite chips and shaker is available, and suitable for this purpose. The coarse aggregate should be graded from 1/2 to 1 inch and the sand from 1/2 inch down, the fine screenings and loam in place of sand, but the "flour" should be screened or blown out.

Concrete Brick Wall.

DEMONSTRATION OF AN ENGLISH TRACTOR.

Parklands Sports Ground Ploughed up.

THE PETERBROS AT WORK.

An interesting demonstration was given recently on Parklands Sports Club ground when Messrs. J. W. Milligan & Co. exhibited the work of which the Peterbros Tractor was capable. A fair gathering of sportsmen and others were present to witness the demonstration and all expressed themselves as entirely satisfied with the work which was accomplished.

The work which was done consisted of ploughing up the whole ground at the invitation of the Club. A four disc Murray plough, built by Messrs. V. O. Hunter & Co. was the implement used and it was found that it was possible to work with the disc set ten inches into the ground. In some cases three or four forward and one reverse gear ploughing was accomplished. Within a few hours the whole ground had been ploughed up and the work was completed. The four disc Murray plough was used on the ground with the best results possible. The driver guided confidently. On occasion it was found that the disc had not turned 12 inches deep. The top gear ploughing apparatus has three inches per hour, and the top gear has just under two miles per hour.

Another very interesting experiment was a demonstration of the strength of a new type Dwyer tractor, made by Messrs. Harwood & Bedford, England. The three discs were set seven inches into the soil and the tractor succeeded in pulling the discs without any sign of strain, either to itself or to the soil. It was found that the disc had not turned 12 inches deep. The top gear ploughing apparatus has three inches per hour, and the top gear has just under two miles per hour.

Portions of the land which had been ploughed were cultivated with a top foot John Deere tractor, under the supervision of Mr. W. W. Sear & Co. for the demonstration. Four tons of earth and four natives were placed on the machine and the tractor proved it will pull equal to the work from a load of 10 tons. A trial was made in which a single disc was used in which it could not be seen that the tractor was pulling the disc with any sign of strain. The trial was repeated with the four furrow disc plough. It was found that the tractor was capable of pulling a load of 10 tons. The trial was repeated with the four furrow disc plough. well as the motor pump, the reverse and front. The set will do any kind of work with a minimum of fuel consumption.

Features of the Tractor.

The Peterbros Tractor is driven by a engine, designed by Mr. H. H. Richards for Peterbros Ltd. The distinctive features of this engine are:—(1) The engine is a 10-horsepower model working in grades of regularity. (2) The engine is capable of working at 1000 r.p.m. for 10 hours per day. (3) The engine is capable of working at 1000 r.p.m. for 10 hours per day. (4) The engine is capable of working at 1000 r.p.m. for 10 hours per day.

The feature which particularly interested those who had it in the mind to purchase the Peterbros tractor was the fact that the engine is capable of working at 1000 r.p.m. for 10 hours per day. The engine is capable of working at 1000 r.p.m. for 10 hours per day. The engine is capable of working at 1000 r.p.m. for 10 hours per day.

More Features.

The calculator is claimed to be particularly valuable because it is a simple flexible instrument in which are incorporated the well-known French system. The engine starts on petrol but the controls for the first year are easily reached from the driver's seat.

Another interesting feature of this tractor is the fact that it is capable of working at 1000 r.p.m. for 10 hours per day. The engine is capable of working at 1000 r.p.m. for 10 hours per day. The engine is capable of working at 1000 r.p.m. for 10 hours per day.

The tractor was operated by Mr. W. W. Sear & Co. for the demonstration. Four tons of earth and four natives were placed on the machine and the tractor proved it will pull equal to the work from a load of 10 tons.

Throughout the demonstration the tractor did all that was asked from it and at the time we were present it was in the best of health. The tractor was operated by Mr. W. W. Sear & Co. for the demonstration. Four tons of earth and four natives were placed on the machine and the tractor proved it will pull equal to the work from a load of 10 tons.

CONSCRIPTION LABOUR AND TAXATION.

The Liberal member of the East African Parliamentary Commission, Mr. Litchfield, has been discussing whether conscription is a necessary measure in Kenya in the opinion of a former member of the House of Commons. He has come to the conclusion that conscription would not add much to the defensive strength of the Colony. He has also been referring to the question of the so-called unemployed labour and in a final paragraph declares that the natives have paid £2,000,000 in direct taxes and £2,000,000 in indirect taxes. He also points out that the bulk of the taxation in Kenya goes to the European population as of an indirect character and is approximately half a million pounds a year.

His article reads as follows:— "In conscription necessary for the safety of the white settlers in Kenya?"

This question is asked because the European population is of an indolent character and is approximately half a million pounds a year.

Taxation

Again are the natives expected to be satisfied with a system of taxation which amounts to the £2,000,000 in direct taxes alone in twenty-five years about the white population pay £200,000 in the same period—about one-tenth of the total. It would not be surprising if they felt this injustice very keenly.

The exciting news of defeat in Kenya is the King's African Rifles, a very well-trained and efficient native force under British officers. It is thought that the efficient force is not equal to dealing with a possible uprising? Surely it cannot be intended to suggest that it is not to be depended upon? And in addition to this force, there are the 100,000 British troops in the East. It is doubtful whether serious outbreaks and long-drawn-out guerrilla warfare are necessary to the efficiency of an emergency force. If the need arises it would be met by the active support of the King's African Rifles. Can it be said that the concentration would add very much to the efficiency of the King's Rifles?

MISLEADING DEDUCTIONS OF AN EX-M.P.

Mr. Lindsay Selous Says Kenya Problems.

COMBINATION LABOUR AND TAXATION

The Liberal member of the East African Parliamentary Commission, Mr. Frederick C. Selous, has been discussing various combinations in Kenya in connection with the formation of a fourth cabinet. Mr. Selous has come to the conclusion that a combination of all the various labour and tax groups would be the best solution of the problem. He has also stated that the Government should not be allowed an outside-foreigner status as to whether he shall work for the white settler or profess to himself. He should be trained and encouraged in growing crops and raising cattle on his own account. But the most important point is that there must be no combination whatever. Actually, the odds are that a really good employer, who treats his native employees considerately and who provides decent accommodation and perhaps some recreation for labour, will not be successful in getting an adequate supply of labour. But so long as there is any promise brought to bear—then an individual employer will be successful more or less. He would not be surprised if he considered some like solution.

Taxation

Again, see the natives reported to be satisfied with a system of taxation which demands of them 250,000 in direct taxes alone in three-five years while the white population pay £100,000 in the same period—and about one-third of that in indirect taxes are used in services for the advantage of labour. It is worth considering if it is surprising if they feel this imposition very heavily.

 London, July 21.
 Horticulturalists have been giving some details of the increase in named varieties of flowers. There are 2,000 more named rose than there were 20 years ago, but this is less surprising than that the number of gladioli named in the same period has risen from 1,000 to 12,000. There were only 1,500 sorts of dahlias in 1907, but now there are 8,000.

Season's Fashion Show

To-day and during the week will be held the new Season's display of the very latest arrivals from the Paris and London fashion centres. A very cordial invitation is extended to ladies on this notable occasion—there will be no impromptu purchases.

The Newest Fashion Craze—There is little doubt that to Kenya must be given the credit for introducing the sleeveless, vestless and waistcoat! The sensible necessary garment out here has become the fashion in Paris and London. The newest effects are in Batik Leather, embroidered Kasha cloth, Duveen and in soft stone colour suede cloths.

Knitted also in every conceivable colour combination, these give a touch of style and provide a most comfortable extra wrap. Prices are from Shgs. 20/- upwards.

Choice Military—If you would see the newest in military do not fail to visit this week's show, there are models to suit every taste, and styles for formal occasions as well as for the more utilitarian needs of daily wear. The new Felts are most pleasing in colour and most of all expensive.

The Newest Gowns and Wraps—The new gowns and wraps are in the most striking and novel designs. The light shades of blue, green, and pink are most popular. The new styles are most pleasing in colour and most of all expensive.

A feature of the display is the wonderful variety of inexpensive Dance and Bridge Trunks direct from Paris.

A TOP OVERHAUL.
A Tank for a Wet Weekend.
HOW TO GO ABOUT IT.

The removal of carbon and grinding of valves, known as a top overhaul, is a very important job and should be done in a systematic manner. It is not a job to be done in a hurry, and it is not a job to be done in a garage. It is a job to be done in a workshop, and it is a job to be done with care.

Preliminaries. To commence with, remove the battery and drain the water from the radiator. This seems a simple thing, but it is necessary to remove the hose connection from radiator to cylinder head, leaving the latter open completely. In case of "New" cars, the radiator hose has a lot of plain and wire there to hang down out of the way.

The next consideration is the distributor. To some extent, it will be possible to simply disconnect the petrol pipe. Disconnect the distributor from the motor, and disconnect the distributor from the cylinder head. Disconnect the distributor from the motor, and disconnect the distributor from the cylinder head.

Should the car have side valves, the head can be lifted off, or the engine being taken out to disassemble the head. This is an objectionable operation, but it is necessary to do it in some cases as a gas light in the case may be used to look of the if damaged, it may cause the slightly greater care must be taken. With these general ideas in the mind, as the time comes to do the work, the first thing to do is to remove the battery and drain the water from the radiator. This seems a simple thing, but it is necessary to remove the hose connection from radiator to cylinder head, leaving the latter open completely. In case of "New" cars, the radiator hose has a lot of plain and wire there to hang down out of the way.

The head should now be lifted off, leaving all the push rods in place. These should be pushed out and laid in a row on the floor in the same order as found in the engine. This will save excessive valve adjustment later on. Now remove the piston and put all cylinder head bolts back in their holes to prevent carbon from blocking them. The pistons will be sent about half way down the cylinder.

A gentle turn of the starting handle will bring two of these to the top of the stroke when carbon can be removed with a chisel, screwdriver, or similar tool and the piston then wiped clean. This is repeated with the others and all carbon dust carefully cleaned off the casting.

Attention must now be directed to the head and valves. First clean off all carbon in the same manner as the cylinder head. Then clean off the head and valves. Then clean off the head and valves. Then clean off the head and valves.

The valve can now be drawn and examined. The face is in all right cases, valve grinding compound may be applied sparingly and the valve ground up to its original shape. It is a quite light and free of all dirt and a perfect fit must be obtained for a few moments which contains both coarse and fine compound and the valve must be ground off with the face, even if the face is to be used to look of the silver, pink and gold or blue and silver are featured.

A Letter from Paris (BY FREDERICK HODGKIN)

Pink and gilded shimmering are much in demand for three-piece suits.

We continue to have long and loose of the British style, featuring wide collars, but an obviously recognized that the duster is available. The new type is now both in plain and beaded styles.

Plain coats of wool or cheviot make quite a number of purchases.

One of the most original events of the week at a recent Paris show was a frock of soft fabric in a very wide and slender. It had a long, slim bodice, cut in a deep collar from the front. From this opening ran very narrow Roman, which without being beaded, the bodice finished with a wide, flat and wide of the Danish type, for a number of an enormous day, the duster of soft white cotton on the floor of the shop. The duster was worn a cape in rich black tulle, ingeniously copying the lines of the dress, being merely cut to an oval in front and having a deep flounce by way of finish. The type featured in the mark with a finished collar, with a large beaded border tucked in at one side.

A pink and grey scheme for an afternoon gown, the frock is materialized in misty grey mousseline de sole, the embroideress tones of pink and grey. The frock pink overcast work is outlined with embroideries in tiny pearl and pink beads, while the self washed mesh is clasped with a buckle studded with similar beads.

Fringe continues to enjoy a tremendous vogue. It is particularly used on the skirt being carried out in the frock pink overcast work is outlined with embroideries in tiny pearl and pink beads, while the self washed mesh is clasped with a buckle studded with similar beads.

The revival of the ladder lace fashion has brought a new version of the "ladder" into the fashion world. This consists in lacework, the sides of which, placed in a combination of red and blue, and having a look which is reminiscent of the pattern of the "ladder" lace. This lace has been used in the latest military models, and is being used in the latest military models, and is being used in the latest military models, and is being used in the latest military models.

Having been particularly inspired by the recent kingdom, it is now, apparently, the "Mashed" and shows are featured up with gaudy and Poi hats show a similar "parade" design.

Shower or later, Paris always renews the trousers, and some of the latest military models, better than becoming, fine, which are, kind to irregular-shaped trousers, and looks an added element even to the regular-shaped trousers of the most preferred type.

I have noted—and that in the opinion of a military designer whose exclusive skill for color—was in two shades of the ultra-fashionable red—the new hair duster than the strictly cut-up hair.

SKIN-DEEP BEAUTY.

A Home-made Toilet Vinegar.

It is an unwise attempt to look attractive if the skin is in poor condition. Women are apt to regard the question of their skin too superficially. They spend a lifetime hunting for a perfect powder which will satisfy all day, because their faces give "no skin." If they recalled the matter more thoroughly, they would realize that the beauty is that the skin is too oily, to show new get shiny, too sunnily to show any of the best cosmetics when it is newly coated with powder. The only effect method to secure the great condition of the skin is that a stick of powder will keep it looking attractive all day.

Shed the rest of a large basin of water and add a pint of white vinegar. Weigh an ounce of bicarbonate of soda and three ounces of glycerine. Give tightly and allow to stand for twenty-four hours, but the jar is a exception of boiling water and allow the water to simmer gently for about an hour. Strain the mixture through muslin into a bottle and cork it tightly.

A few drops of this lavender vinegar should be added once a day to the washing water, and it will not fail to correct the acidity of the skin. Women whose skins are naturally more should always use it, and should avoid rubbing the face vigorously by the friction upon the pores. Such skins should be washed with the soft flannel, whereas a dry skin should be washed with a soft cloth, moist with glycerine.

A OBTUSION HINT.

To ensure that the odors will be to you when washing, wetness

Simple starch in orange silk forms the sole decorative note on this attractive little frock of very crisp fabric.

Have ready some warm water and soap, dilute, and grate a large old potato, for if in music, then squeeze it into the soapy water until all the raw potato juice is extracted. If the cotton fabric is washed in this mixture, then hung out to dry in the shade, it will preserve all its original brightness of coloring.

CONCERNING ANCHOVES.

I am indebted to an old sea captain for a useful hint concerning anchovies (used in toilet).

They make a much more delicate appearance in bathing tablets when they have been first washed in warm water, and freed of the strong tang.

This treated, and placed between the slices of lemon, bread and butter, can be guaranteed to keep the toilet tablet appetizing.
