OFFICIAL NOTES ON CATERPILLARS.

Advice on How to Remove a Menace.

TERRIBLES AND POISON.

The following notes have been received from the Department of Agriculture very information is received by the Entomologist is received by the Entomologist that large numbers of caterpillars are present and are such as maize some kind of crop, such as maize or grass needed for grazing purposes. It is advised that such information is received from the same district during two consecutive years.

During the presence of these caterpillars in such large numbers, all the habits of certain species of moving in armies, the caterpillars are grouped under the name of Army Worms. The caterpillars present on lands hundreds of square miles in extent. The caterpillars from the Northern Maasi have been seen to the East of the Maasi River in the north and from Nakuru in the north to the old German border in the south, and north of the Maasi settle with much interference with crops.

Control Measures.

Control measures to be adopted in destroying Army Worms depend mostly on the particular conditions locally existing; that only those methods are given here, general methods are given here. These, together with a little thought on the part of the planter whose crops are being or are likely to be injured will in most instances remove the menace of Army Worms.

1. Where a crop is not already attacked or where an attack is confined to a portion of the crop, pestiferous measures should be adopted by trenching in advance of the caterpillars line of march. Trenches should be at least 10 to 12 inches deep, with feet at least 1 to 2 feet deep every 15 feet or more, and should be made straight, and the sides made fairly steep, and the soil will become hard after, otherwise, as the trench opens, and many of the worms will crawl up. When the trench opens, and many of the worms are lashed by the straight sides, and as soon as the trench opens, wandering along in the trench until they fall. They should be crushed, or otherwise destroyed. Since the role of maize and grass are not so much as the soil it will be seen why it is necessary to dig a deep trench and to prevent caterpillars from crawling up the sides and escaping from the trench. Ordinary furrows 3 or 4 inches deep are useless. 2. Where a crop is young, it may be practicable to roll it and so crush the larvae.

Hand Collection.

3. In other cases labour could be put into the field to collect the caterpillars. Caterpillars can be shaken off maize or other plants into empty petrol tins and afterwards crushed. Some years ago the Walkways got rid of the pest in their orchards by turning in all their available fruit, handpicking and burning.

4. Where a crop is already infested, spraying the crop with a poison spray, such as lead arsenite will kill the caterpillars. The lead arsenite paste, 1 lb to 100 gallons of water will give a good solution. 25 lbs to 100 gallons of water will give a good solution. It is advised that such information is received from the same district during two consecutive years.

When rain or fog, or 50 grains of Paris Green, or white arsenic or Sodium fluoride, 10 grains. Insects. 2 pounds Water, sufficient to make a stiff dough. The bran and the insecticide are first mixed first and the mixture should be done very thoroughly. The jaggers is added next, and the whole thoroughly mixed. Then the whole is made into a stiff dough. If the whole is found to dry out very readily, add 5 lbs of oil. This keeps the mixture moist. The dough should be broadcasted over the fields preferably in the evening, and used at the rate of about 25 lbs to the acre.

The name of Mr. G. A. Williamson, chairman of Tanganyika Goldfields Ltd., and a Director of the (London) Trusts Ltd., is put on the Board of Morris Cotts & Co., a company just formed to acquire a mining proposition in the Malay States.

THE FAITH OF A CHRISTIAN.

Difficulties Facing the Church in the Evangelisation of Africa.

The list of the five books dealt with in these articles is the current work of an earnest man, Mr. W. J. Boone, for the Christian Church and he answers in the affirmative.

Mr. Boone is also a pioneer—a pioneer not of political creed, or of the same sense as the great missionaries to whom all gratitude is brought unthought.

There appears no second person twice a year, generally about the time of the annual meeting of the local branch of the British and Foreign Bible Society, a gentleman who has his list of any prayer for kottas and regatta many of the music as is found by organization to spend in them. His life is lived in the cities in Africa where there are no towns people with modern conveniences. Dressed in a simple, but not generally favored by the Britons on the East Coast—khaki, in a robe, with a white in hand, he is seen in the street, regularly from East Coast to West, through Sierra, Uganda, and the Congo, sometimes down into Tanganyika and to the borders of Livingstone.

own personal regard. The prodigious amount of work he does in his wanderings and with his characteristic cheerfulness and resource he has been for himself a most successful worker. He is a most fervent worker with a serious body composed with sleeping accommodations and simple means, when for his busy parturitions.

W. J. Boone has an intense love of the African with an approval of the Christian character, and out of the intensity of that enthusiasm for work was unselfishly performed. He has written a book which is a masterpiece of work which is a masterpiece of work. The volume is published by the British and Foreign Bible Society, London and is now being forwarded by the Bishop of Uganda. is a chapter on translation. Mr. Boone provides illuminating and dramatic evidence of the importance of the language question. In Nigeria about the missionary work involved 220 languages and dialects before the problem of reaching every man in his mother tongue was solved. "The Bible will speak," he says, "if it is given fair play, and he would have all capable translators released from their present tasks to undertake the great work to which he himself has devoted so much time and enthusiasm. There are still uncounted languages to be investigated and the demand for拼音 literature is enormous. In 1924 the British and Foreign Bible Society sent to its Kenya depot 20,000 volumes! In a further

DECARBONIZING.

Dismissing the Engine and Reassembling.

PRACTICAL POINTS.

There are many motorists, especially those who are now running their first car, who are prone to forget decarbonizing and valve-grinding, both of which jobs are usually done at the same time, as an involved and difficult process. It is not, it is one which saves with an average mechanical engine helps can carry out in a few hours obtaining perfectly satisfactory results. Started on a Saturday afternoon, for example, it would be finished the same evening or the next morning if the work is done in such a way as to require no particular hurry.

When to Decarbonize.

The owner of a new car should remember that in his case decarbonizing is needed after a shorter period than in the case of a car which has been in use for some months and has previously been attended to in this way. Some car manufacturers recommend that this job should first be carried out after about 1,000 miles of the engine's run on the road, and the engineer should see attention at an earlier stage than those in the large home power classes.

As a later stage in the life of the car decarbonizing is only necessary at intervals of about 6,000-8,000 miles. While both a side-valve and overhead-valve engine up to the same time, there being slight difference, naturally, to which we will refer in due course.

The first step in the job is to move the bonnet, this being effected by the use of the wing nuts on the cylinder head, and the water from the bottom of the bonnet being siphoned off. The water from the cooling system, there being always provided a tap or plug located at the base of the radiator for this purpose.

Pressing the cylinder head of all encumbrances, such as water-cooling, plug leads, the assembly and so on, in the next step in the procedure. When the engine is up to the bonnet it should be removed by the use of the wing nuts on the light alloy it might possibly be found necessary to use a screwdriver to be applied, therefore, that it is advisable to have a spare set of lengths of hose handy when re-assembly of the unit on the completion of the job.

Removing an Over-head valve Head.

Generally, in an overhead valve car, the head can be taken off one plate with the inlet and exhaust manifolds in the case the exhaust pipe must be disconnected from the manifold, and the carburettor may, removed. Likewise an arc of the overhead rocker, if there is one, to the overhead rocker, who has to be disconnected, the rocker gear removed, together with the timing to the push-rod, a final examination should be made after these various parts have been taken down, there are no further connections which would interfere with the lifting of the cylinder head.

It will be appreciated that with a side-valve engine, removing the head is not done by the use of a straight-forward, as even the manifold will not need to be disturbed, as with a side valve, so that the fact that disconnections will be the fact assembly plug leads and water hoses.

In an overhead-valve engine the rocker assembly can be taken off as a unit, this being simple by state passing through the cylinder head to the cylinder block. After narrowing the nuts the rocker assembly can be lifted away, followed by the removal of the push-rod. The cover of the push-rod with its valve ready for reuse.

An Important Point.

A point to remember is that the bonnet-covering should not be completely stripped off one at a time. Rather do there in a predetermined order, giving each nut, say, a quarter of a turn, first, afterwards unscrewing each one right off its stand. Force should not be employed in breaking the joint. If the engine is cranked it will in all probability be found that the compression alone is sufficient to break the joint and allow the head to be lifted. If not, then it can be separated by inserting a lever between the base which is invariably provided at each corner of the head. These should be used to be obtained, but on no account should the instruments used for driving head be used. The lugs, as the gaskets will probably be split so that a new one will be needed when reassembling. It may remove the head or block. The head can then be lifted and placed upon the bonnet ready for attention.

Scraping the Piston Crowns.

The piston crowns are now exposed ready for decarbonizing. The regions should be cleaned so that two cylinders are done at the top of their stroke and rag should be studied into the holes of the remaining cylinders. The carbon can be removed by means of a scraper or a screwdriver, and when completely clean the top of the scraper so that two other pistons can be brought into a similar position for attention. Do not employ a too sharp instrument for the job.

The cylinder head next requires attention. With the head of a side-valve engine this presents difficulties and the carbon deposit is all removed by the scraper employed, special attention being given to the valve seats. The carbon from the top space to see that no particles or lumps are left behind. If these are overlooked they tend to be removed from the top of the piston of the engine and are likely to cause pre-ignition.

With an overhead-valve valve the valves will, of course, have to be removed from the head before it is decarbonized. This is necessary, however, for valve-grinding. To remove them the head should be inverted over small blocks of wood, or a jir, positioned so that the blocks fit under the valves. Then each valve, spring on its turn be depressed to permit of the removal of the outer pin which secures it to the stem. The valves when taken out should be marked or placed in a suitable order so that they can be put back in the guides from which they were taken. Of course, they should be examined for any signs of damaged stems or burnt settings. The head can then be cleaned in the same manner as that adopted for the side-valve model.

Cleaning Up After Scraping.

When the scraping is finished and all the carbon has been removed, the cylinder head and piston crowns should be cleaned up with a coarse rag soaked in paraffin oil. The gasket, too, should be cleaned and any signs of the old gasket, or whatever sealing compound was previously used, completely removed.

Assured that all parts are quite clean, the operator can then commence reassembling the engine. An even film of oil will also be painted with a small brush on each side of the gasket, and the gasket carefully lowered over the studs on to the top of the cylinder block. If it tends to stick while being lowered, do not use force, but ease it down; rough usage will probably break the bolts. The head is then fitted—care being taken that no dirt is knocked on to the seat of the piston and the bolts—down until threaded on the studs.

Here is an important point to remember. Do not screw each nut down until the engine has first made three little more than eight or ten revolutions. This is the order employed when dismantling, tighten them down little by little, and finally go round in the same order, fastening the head right down. The reason for gradually screwing down the nuts is to ensure that there is no undue pre-ignition, as the head, during any one point; this might easily cause damage.

The remainder of the assembling is simply a reversal of the order employed in taking down. When the car has been run for a few hundred miles it is advisable to go over the cylinder-head bolts. This is usually done in the order in which they were taken up. In the event of a head bolt being found to be loose, it should be tightened up. It is well to observe this precaution will probably result in a saving being shown, replacement of which will involve dismantling the head again. ("The Motorist") ments. What there are great varieties of soil some are apt to certain plants and do not agree with other kinds and the common lack of calcium is a hindrance to the cultivation of many varieties of lime-loving plants. It often happens that flowers are killed healthily at one place will not thrive at all in a different soil some miles away. Even this factor, however, has its compensation since it makes for selection and thus adds to the pleasure of horticultural effort. The weather which has been such a fruitful source of grumbling and cause throughout the ages has of course a very important bearing upon gardens in Kenya. There is no doubt that it often causes considerable anxiety to others than farmers. In a district without a severe rainfall of many inches, long periods of drought may occur when only a sufficient amount of rain falls to moisten the soil and the resulting "choking" of the trees above. Then, too, there are algae with us in this country the insect pests. While fungi and caterpillars are the handiwork of the gardener's life, at home here they give place to hordes of night-flying beetles and grass hoppers and locusts which eat by day. Notwithstanding the above, however, there is no reason why everyone in the Highlands should not have a wonderful crop of ever-changing delight if it is prepared to give it his personal attention. There are no native specialties in horticulture and therefore any work the gardener is not prepared to do himself will probably remain undone. What has been accomplished by personal attention has been abundantly demonstrated at the shows which form the chief feature of the life of the Kenya Horticultural Society. There is a wide and largely unexplored field of research in the botanic in this country; there are still hundreds of shrubs and flowers whose names are unrecorded; many more no doubt still await discovery. Some of the native plants are well worthy of cultivation as they have been evidenced here and again by the specimens on view in the Memorial Hall. It has been shown too that Kenya is able to produce fruit of excellent quality and there is no doubt that in years to come there will be a great extension in the cultivation of apples and other kinds of fruit which are not regarded as common within the realms of tropical cultivation.

Two Flags.
For the first time in Nairobi the Union Jack and the new Union Flag flew side by side yesterday at the Memorial Hall. This is the Commemorative for South Africa in connection with the 10th anniversary of the two flags with the former on all public buildings connected with the Union, both in South Africa and outside.

Taxes.
The Government will shortly be issued a bill which is probably the only new tax to be introduced. The Kenya Engineers' Association, Professional Engineers' Association, Engineers, I.A.S., Surveyors' Association, and the Kenya Building Contractors' Association, have secured a contract for the construction of a storage reservoir for the three of them. The bill will contain a provision for a storage of water, with a storage of water. It will be the largest project ever undertaken in the world, a record in process but it is a very important project. The Kenya Engineers' Association will be the sole company for the supply of water.

PROGRESS OF AGRICULTURE IN THE NATIVE RESERVE.

Effect of Increased Use of Suitable Implements.

SEEDS OF SUSPICION.

Attempts to Encourage a Bigger Cotton Crop in Kavirondo Country.

In a further instalment of the Report of the Agricultural Department for the year 1927, the position in the Native Reserves is covered by the Agricultural Officers and at the Native Agency Schools.

Regarding the sowing of seed, it is stated that there is still a great deal of ignorance on the part of some of the tribes and that they are not inclined to accept such lines unless carefully prepared. Nevertheless, the value of the seed which has been issued in previous years is now becoming apparent in the better quality of the produce expected.

The effect of increased use of proper implements is now evident, and more modern methods are being adopted in the Reserves.

As a result of an intensive campaign for the encouragement of the planting of cotton in North and Central Kavirondo, the amount of seed planted was four times that of the previous year.

INSTRUMENT WORK.

As in previous years, the main functions of the Agricultural Officers of the Department have been the planning of cotton and the advisory to Administrative and Cultural Institutions at the Native Agency Schools and in the Agricultural Laboratories at the Native Agency Schools.

Weather Conditions.

Nyasa. Rainfall has been better than the average during the past few years. During the month of February it was normal but the short rains were particularly heavy. Considerable damage was done by hail particularly in the Cotton crop. A shortage of food occurred in North Kavirondo in the early part of the year and the wheat was distributed to the seedling and to the stock.

South Kavirondo. The long rains were normal but the later July and August rains failed at the higher elevations. The short rains were late and below the average and considerable apprehension was felt in South Kavirondo for the short rains. Conditions improved in the latter part of the year and the wheat was distributed to the seedling and to the stock.

North Kavirondo. (Hamb, South Nyasa and Fort Hall). The long rains were normal but the later July and August rains failed at the higher elevations. The short rains were late and below the average and considerable apprehension was felt in North Kavirondo for the short rains. Conditions improved in the latter part of the year and the wheat was distributed to the seedling and to the stock.

Kakuyi. The Agricultural Officers regularly instructed the Native Agency Schools and in the Agricultural Laboratories at the Native Agency Schools.

The majority of the value of good seed and without persuasion from the Administration and the Agricultural Officers, the poor seed would be planted.

The main reason that the cotton crop was made in the North Kavirondo and the North Nyasa districts in the past few years are shown in the fact that the increased quantity of good quality cotton reported from the Kavirondo Reserves.

The increased use of labour saving appliances is becoming more general in the Kavirondo Reserves. Nyasa will lead the way in this respect but in South Kavirondo the interest is being aroused in the use of tractors and also a number of ploughs, mills and cultivators have been introduced into the area.

As the use of such appliances becomes more general the amount of work done in the past few years in the Kavirondo Reserves is now becoming apparent in the better quality of the produce expected.

London, May 24.—Every day sees the editor of our famous Society lose its grip on the social column of the newspapers and the editor of the news columns of the newspapers. It is so much so that when one is asked to write for a prominent newspaper—probably one of our own—it is not very uncommonly to find that one's own newspaper is not interested in the millions of people who are all and sundry engaged in the social world of the metropolis.

The cause of this, it is said, is a beautiful "big game" which is being played by the social world of the metropolis.

Banish Malarial Debility

Like a shadow of mercy malarial debility is hovering over every inhabitant of Africa. Only too often this slow, unconquerable change is overlooked; over the parasites have been conquered by nature, the patient regards himself as cured, but the battle has only just started.

The reason of the parasite in your blood cause anemia, hence your weakness. It is only an abundance of new fresh blood will give you new strength and energy.

Sanatogen makes to increase the number of red blood cells to strengthen the nervous system. It contains exactly those elements—phenolic and albumin—from which new growth is derived, and thousands of times it has proved in actual tests that it does what it promises to do. (An average increase of 67% of red blood cells was shown by Medical observations—see Medical Revue, March, 1926.)

Already after a few weeks' use of Sanatogen you will notice a remarkable increase in health and energy.

LOCUST MENACE MUCH MORE SERIOUS THAN ANTICIPATED.

Government Allocates Special Funds for Campaign.

INTENSIVE WARFARE.

Expert Advice Being Sought from Another Country.

That the locust infestation in Kenya has developed into a menace is evident from recent reports from those parts of the country most affected.

Government, realising the seriousness of the position has sanctioned special expenditure for an anti-locust campaign which is being prosecuted vigorously by the Agricultural Department.

The area most infested at present is centred at Gilgil and the insects have spread to many farms in the Rift Valley.

INVASION OF RIFT VALLEY.

The position of the locusts has been explained to a representative of the East African Standard on Monday by the Director of Agriculture.

It appears that the invasion of hoppers is now found to be on a much more extensive scale than was previously realised and is greater than that reported in the past. This will be realised when it is stated that there are now swarms of square miles of hoppers in a young stage of their growth.

The chief centre of infestation is a small area near the station at Marigat, but it is still strong enough to kill the hoppers.

Trampling and other methods of destruction are only effective up to a point and large numbers of locusts are being destroyed.

An earnest effort is being made to cope with the infestation. It would be too much to expect that all hoppers must be destroyed and those that remain the seedling stage and allow the wing to form. But the Director of Agriculture has decided to organise the work in the following manner: The Deputy Director of Agriculture has been appointed to organise the work in the Districts of Meru, Thika, and Kiambu. District Commissioners will be asked to charge all that part of the work which is their own, and will begin with the locusts.

Every effort is being made by Government to assist owners and tenants to destroy the locusts and a large stock of arsenic and other insecticides have been distributed.

Certain numbers of spraying machines have also been distributed. The Department of Agriculture are engaged in the work of spraying the locusts and are five officers engaged on the work and a further six officers are being employed to assist in the work.

It is estimated that His Majesty's Government will be asked to contribute £100,000 towards the cost of the locust campaign.

In Memoriam.

Every day people are mourned and some level one has passed over to the Great Beyond. Names unknown to many are ceaselessly read to the columns of our daily paper, but to friends and relatives their lamentations: "I wish a blank has can never be filled."

Many friends return this gentle little lady, and although her time in Kenya has been but three short weeks, her influence has been beneficial. Her in Memoriam has been felt.

PRINCES PREPARING FOR THEIR VISIT.

Easy over Maps and Plans.

THEIR CHIEF INTERESTS.

"STANDARD" CORRESPONDENT.

London, May 31. Speaking at the Royal Geographical Society last night, the Duke of Gloucester related to the Princes of Wales and the Duke of Devonshire that he had a number of interesting facts to relate about the trip of the Princes of Wales and the Duke of Devonshire to East Africa in 1927. He suggested that the Princes of Wales and the Duke of Devonshire had been traveling on the sea which has been to experience. He is not making a bad start.

"Extremely Fortunate." It would be difficult to map out within the confines of the Empire a more interesting journey than that which the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Devonshire have undertaken. "I consider myself," continued the Duke, "extremely fortunate to be accompanying my brother-in-law on this trip to East Africa. He has not visited before. The educational value has already begun. The preliminary study of improving my poster method than sitting down with maps and reports to plan an imaginary journey. This teaches great lessons, and illustrates the fact that the most valuable of the many links which unite the Empire are the personal links. It is within the power of every man, woman, and child to strengthen those links by trying to understand the Empire and making true friends with those who live in other parts of it."

Not Fond of Shooting.
 For those who may have some part in planning the Royal tour to East Africa, the Duke of Devonshire and the Duke of Gloucester are not at all keen on shooting—in fact they were included in this country. They are both interested in anything connected with rifle and both of them are quite good shooters, though the Duke of Devonshire has by far the better seal.

Meeting they are both very fond of, and this week the Prince of Wales has given for the first time, obviously with royal permission, a royal review in East Africa since air comes into the picture. The Princes are expected to return in all sorts of ways, and it is a regular occurrence in this country and is a regular feature at the chief show. Although no exhibition has been given as yet, the Princes may add to the list of things they will see in this country, which is a regular feature for the Princes, the Princes may add to the list of things they will see in this country, which is a regular feature for the Princes, the Princes may add to the list of things they will see in this country, which is a regular feature for the Princes.

THE CENSORSHIP OF FILMS.

Proposed Rules for the Colony.

AN APPEAL BOARD.

Every picture intended to be presented for exhibition to be presented, exhibited or advertised shall be submitted to the Censor in connection therewith shall be submitted to a Censor, who shall be appointed by the Governor by notice to be published in the "Gazette."
 The Censor may in his discretion approve of the presentation for exhibition of such picture or poster or any part thereof. Nothing in this rule shall be construed to prevent the Censor refusing to present either wholly or in part any picture or poster submitted to him for approval.
 Where any picture or poster is intended to be presented for exhibition to non-natives has received the requisite approval and certificate of the Officer in charge of the district, it may be approved for exhibition in the Colony and Protectorate of Kenya by the Censor without further censorship. Nothing in this rule shall be construed to limit the exercise by the Censor appointed under these rules of the powers vested in him by these provisions.

Appeals.
 An appeal shall be in respect of any refusal to approve or any decision made by the Censor, to a Censorship Appeal Board, whose decision on all questions shall be final and binding.

 The Censorship Appeal Board shall consist of six persons appointed by the Governor, one of whom shall be a member of Executive Council, one a member of Education Department and one a layman.

FRONT WHEEL DRIVING.
Possibilities of the System.

ALREADY SPREADING.
 The idea of driving a car by the front wheels is by no means a new one. In fact, numerous front-drive cars were produced many years ago and interested in the subject in the type of transmission from time to time by various manufacturing concerns. During the past few years, however, several important developments have taken place in this connection, notable amongst which have been the recent cars which have been built and successfully run with front-wheel drive.

Lower Centre of Gravity.
 Apart from this factor, however, there are several subsidiary factors due to the reduction of sprung weight and the lowering of the centre of gravity which are made possible when front driving is employed. Then again, on rough roads the system has the advantage that the driver's front wheels pull themselves over obstacles instead of tending to dig into them as in the case when a car is propelled from the rear.

Used for Sport Cars.
 So far, front-wheel driving has been limited to classes of the sports class, which is, of course, a natural inclination, owing to the ease of control which is obtained on racing cars, but the advantages of the system are such that it is well possible that it will be applied to the more sedate type of touring car, despite certain mechanical difficulties which have to be overcome. The advantages of front-wheel driving are briefly: consistency, the elimination of all transmission mechanism rear of the dash (which makes possible a very low frame level) and the possibility of obtaining extremely good suspension by independent wheel-acting with a low sprung weight.
 The superior consistency of the front-drive car has very thoroughly been proved, as has been demonstrated by the high speeds obtained on the different Indianapolis track with the Miller and the performance of the French "Tonda" cars at Metz. It is also well known that on ordinary roads with a bumpy surface the car is more comfortable than a car with many factors, one of great importance being that the direction

THE EAST AFRICAN AND STANDARD
 KODAK AMBUSH WEDNESDAY, JUNE 27, 1926.

Louisa.

In the course of an interview an account of which appears this morning, the Director of Agriculture made no attempt to disguise the seriousness of the situation created by the rapid spread of the locust menace in the course of the last few days, and that this industry is shared by the Government is evident from the fact that money has been set aside to permit of the campaign against locusts being prosecuted with increased vigour. There are not wanting signs that the problem is growing daily and it will that the whole country should realize the danger to which crops throughout the Colony are subjected. Locusts can cause such terrible havoc in a very short time that the need for the most energetic measures to combat them and to prevent their further breeding will be recognized by everybody who gives any thought at all to the question. Fewish knows of the extent of the damage in other countries to fall farms here with the greatest appreciation. It has been the maddest of mad ideas to be left without a single blade of grass or a vestige of green food anywhere after the locusts of such a insect host and when all the natural food has been exhausted the insects have directed their attention to any thing and everything else which was not either ironwork or very hard wood. As was pointed out by the Agricultural Department a few days ago, swarms of locusts have visited Kenya in past years but these were illing flying visits and no damage was done because apparently no eggs were laid. That the earlier whatsoever were quite innocuous was apparent since there were no reports of damage nor was there any agitation for a campaign to have the insects exterminated. This immunity may well have been a sense of security which is being rudely disturbed by the alarming settlement character of the present swarms. The first swarms of locusts were reported in March and the Department of Agriculture immediately advised through the medium of the Press to be given information as to the extent of the swarms, the direction in which they were moving and where they were laying but had been observed. Egg laying was first reported on May 5 and three days later the entomologist visited the district although he was unable to confirm the report. Towards the end of May egg-laying was confined to areas at Nariva, and a few days later hoppers appeared. It is noteworthy that the locusts of which the B.S.A. Colony has any need. They have by means of Press photographs and addresses to gatherings of farmers' efforts were made to advise the community here to cope with the menace and the limited amount of apparatus in the possession of the Department. This is brought into view in part immunity and the likelihood that the experience of previous years would be repeated. There was a general failure to apprehend the potential seriousness of the situation. Now that the danger has manifested itself, we think that everything should be done to cope with it as quickly as possible. That it is to be secured, not by futile recrimination, but by wholehearted cooperation. If farmers throughout the country are to work under the direction of the responsible officers it should be possible to prosecute the campaign in such a way that the locust threat, serious though it appears at the moment, may be checked at once and before long entirely vanquished. So far the request by the Department of Agriculture for information as to the movements of locusts has not met with a very encouraging response. It is essential that the Department and the public throughout the country should have the fullest information as to the enemy's movements and in order to aid in the gathering of this knowledge this Journal will welcome reports on the home position from all parts of the Colony.

"Waste Rats" Danger.

A few rats were seen on the other day at the Tangata Hotel. They were seen in numbers enough to give one a leave from the Kenya Land and Shipping Commission and a visit to the Government five or six correspondents. There were also some other correspondents who were known to the Commission. Mr. J. M. Crocker, Mr. Yvonne and Mr. Charles. The Association to which they belong, and who gave the dinner, is known as the "Waste Rats" Dinner. It was known as the "Waste Rats" Dinner because to be included, the same was to include the commission. As far as the dinner was concerned, there was a general agreement that it was a success. It was held at the Tangata Hotel on Sunday afternoon last week.

Traffic Taxes and Control.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

OPINION:

Properly qualified opinion is necessary before new legislation should be enacted, we having bought, sold, repaired, blessed and cursed cars of all kinds for many years off the following—

INITIAL TAX:

All cars not purchased from us should have an initial tax (fairly heavy) levied upon them before being allowed on the road. Cars bought from us—particularly Fords—should be allowed a 50-600 remission of all taxation charges. Our reasons for this suggestion are too many to deal with in the space available.

UPKEEP TAX:

Persons, possessed of cars not bought from us, giving an undertaking that in future all repairs will be done by us should be allowed a rebate of 50% of taxes provided always that such person is young enough for such refund to be paid within his or her lifetime with out unnecessarily harassing the Government.

PROPOSED ESTABLISHMENT OF LAKE FISHERY AUTHORITY.

Expert's Recommendations Following Lake Victoria Survey.

NEW EAST AFRICAN DELICACY.

Turning the Abundant "Ngege" into Kippers.

As a result of his six months' fishing survey of Lake Victoria Mr. Michael Graham recommends that the Government concerned should set up as soon as possible a Lake Fishery Authority...

The view is expressed that the investigation should not end with the preliminary survey and that the continuation of the work would yield valuable economic results.

Mr. Graham has shown that fuller use may be made of one of the most prolific species of fish in the Lake by a process of curing and this, he thinks, should yield immediate economic benefit.

FURTHER RESEARCH ADVISED.

Having dealt in previous columns with the survey of the fishing survey of Lake Victoria with the cooperation of the present stock survey, Mr. Michael Graham says subsequently—in the six months that has been at my disposal I have not discovered, though I have searched diligently, any method by which this stock may be so extremely simple as to be a more or less inflexible natural force which are necessary to its successful existence...

My experiments in this direction have shown that a very valuable article can be made, easily and cheaply, and that this will not hold for a long period, some six weeks after the preparation. The principal difficulty is that in travelling the cured fish tends to become more and more deteriorated, and therefore, unsuitable. This difficulty is one which should be easily overcome by a few trials of different methods of packing. The first sort of method upon which I went out to administrative effect was that in which the fish was packed in airtight tins...

Protegera being overfished, and (2) an investigation into the effect of such a method of fishing on the stock of guppies.

The Nilegus-Shank Fish.—This is an extremely abundant fish all the deeper waters of the lake. It is an excellent food (available) by the Lake Kivu, near the shore. It is a very common fish, and is used by many other people of the lake, and however many natives may say they do not like it, I have never observed any native fisherman to throw them away. The fish contains an enormous quantity of oil. We have here a valuable source of organic matter, though it is not at present clear whether the oil is of the fish, or both, would be essential to the health of the natives.

Halibut-like.—This genus includes the fish known to the family as the ngege, and represents all the lake by more than 60 species. The number of species of fish is almost incredible. I have taken comparatively large catches of these with a small trawl more than 2000 yards from the shore...

It has been suggested to me that the Lake Victoria would be greatly benefited if the fishery of the Lake Albert (Victoria Nyanza) were established in the Lake Victoria (Lake Albert Nyanza)...

The Long Fish (Protegera longicauda). It is a very common fish, and is used by many other people of the lake, and however many natives may say they do not like it, I have never observed any native fisherman to throw them away.
