DIFFICULT CHILDREN.

The Naughty Child.

By Helen Graham C.M.B., etc.

Volunters have been taken on this subject, and one of the best...

conversion of attention to the outer environment... the child becomes so nervous that he cannot...

probable for disobedience because he is slow in reacting to his surroundings...

Although children suffer in these respects, we do not mean to...

DISCIPLINE.

Of course the fewer direct orders one gives a child—very child—the better...

It is general that it is a heavy plenty of order for his nature self-assertion and physical energy...

Too often, now-a-days, the vigorous and assertive child in the direct of occupations presents whose minds are filled with...

This does not mean, the old-fashioned and outworn method of harshly slapping to let off one's own irritability...

It is general that it is a heavy plenty of order for his nature self-assertion and physical energy...

Voluntary Contributions towards Provision of Schools.

LITERARY AND TECHNICAL EDUCATION

Excellent Work in the Training of Women and Girls.

The Education Department report for 1922 reveals an earnest desire among the Local Natives Councils to provide schools for their own children...

What is chiefly required in education in Africa today is the training of women to become the companions instead of the chattels of their men.

Another notable feature of the work among Africans is the training of women to become the companions instead of the chattels of their men.

STANDARD OF PROGRESS MAINTAINED.

The most remarkable feature of the year has been the maintenance of the standard of the Local Natives Councils to provide schools for their own children...

THE ROYAL VISIT ARRANGEMENTS.

Mayor Thanks Those Who Assisted.

COUNCIL'S APPRECIATION.

The following resolution regarding the Royal Visit was proposed by Mr. Wainwright the Mayor and seconded by Councillor Hingray at the Mayor's meeting of the Municipal Council on Tuesday, 12th inst. Councillor Ley warmly supported the motion which was carried unanimously. I desire to express a vote of thanks to all those persons who assisted in the arrangements in connection with the Royal Visit, including the Indian merchants and those who gave every assistance and co-operation.

I think special mention should be made of the many hours of work given by Councillor Mayor Hingray in connection with the stands and decorations. Very generously he took charge of all the voluntary work in connection with the stands, and after the contract was placed by Government, appeared at the work. The decorations, for which he was certainly responsible, appeared to meet with general approval. Councillor Edral took charge of the arrangements for the City Park and it says a great deal for the excellent manner in which these were carried out when some two or three thousand people were entertained without any mishap. Councillor Hingray not only assisted with supervision of the design of the stand, but carried out the address given by the town Mayor, Messrs. Hobbs Ltd., regarding a return on their behalf, prepared a booklet which was officially admitted and reflected great credit on the craftsmanship available in the Colony.

A large amount of extra work was thrown upon the Municipal staff particularly on Mr. Gilbey, the Town Clerk, who responded to the best of their ability and I think will merit recognition. The successful opening of the display in the Market evening was organized and extended by the well known Mr. Theo. Blatt, who fortunately returned to the Colony in time to give some very fine services for several public and, and in the end, a very successful risk.

Finally, I should like to express appreciation of the constant and co-operation of Government in all matters connected with the arrangements, and although, it is not possible to mention the names of those who do not think the mention should be closed without the Council expressing high approval of the manner in which all the above arrangements were carried out.

The Devout Thief.

PRAYED BEFORE STATUE;
THEN STOLE IT.

The police of Napier have arrested a British named Masani, who is described as a thief of epileptic habits.

He was seen to climb over the wall of a yard, where some sheep usually stowed during the night by vegetable vendors, and to emerge through the gate with a bulky parcel which he hid under a pile of vegetables.

It was found that the parcel contained not only vegetables, but also a silver watch, a pair of silver shoes, a silver watch lamp from a sailor-ship, the collection, lot of a church with 500 francs in it, and some other objects stolen from a shop.

The thief explained that he had only just been let out of prison, and that he had no time to learn any profession, he had gone to pray to Saint Anthony in the chapel, and was overcome by the deity's power the statue before which he was praying.

He had intended to leave the station office in the yard for the night, but saw the lady and the set ladies with the vegetables, and took them so that he would be able to earn a honest living.

Privately Owned Weirs.

OBJECTION TO FURTHER CONSTRUCTION.

The Anti-Malaria Works Committee opposes the construction of weirs on local rivers and recommends that permits should be restricted.

A further letter was submitted stating that in the opinion of the Anti-Malaria Works Committee permits in the connection should be restricted as they are advised that the continuance of the works executed under these permits is incompatible with the proper treatment of the area, the stream in question as present being under construction. It was agreed to recommend that the proposed weir should be cancelled and the Town Council should be notified of this at yesterday's meeting.

Sveeve Valve Engines.

Units that improve with Use.

To thoroughly understand the construction of the above cylinder it will be well to remember that the essential principle of the radial combustion engine is that the valves are in all ways regular, tapered and air, properly seated, and taken into a cylinder, clean combustion to make it highly efficient, ignited at the proper point of compression and to operate the expansive energy is used to operate the mechanism. The method used to allow the fresh gas or vapour to enter the cylinder and the formed dead space to leave is termed the "valve" if the engine. It is the difference in the actual volume of the above valve design that distinguishes it from other engines.

In the usual type of engine the valve mechanism consists of a circular plate for "head" of metal mounted on a stem. The lower edge of the valve head is beveled, and within closed, rests on a correspondingly beveled "head" of the cylinder. The valve is operated by means of a cam or bump on the camshaft raising a "pusher" which in turn raises the valve stem and consequently opens the valve. If it closed or acted by means of a strong spring which pulls it back on to its seat after the high part of bump on the camshaft passes from underneath the pusher.

In the case of the above valve engine, two cylinders of metal are joined in one within the valve engine, two cylinders of metal are joined in one within the valve engine, the valve stem is in such a position that when the valve is opened, the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed, and the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed.

These valves are driven or actuated by small rods connected to a common shaft, taking the place of the camshaft in the usual type of engine. This construction and the fact that the valves are in the same position as when the valve is closed, and the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed, and the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed.

The remarkable degree of quietness found in the above valve engine is due to the fact that every action is either rotary, sliding or reciprocating. There is no valve gear or rotating mechanism, and the valves are in the same position as when the valve is closed, and the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed, and the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed.

Valves. Again, valves are mounted in a radial position to make the valve stem and the valve head in the same position as when the valve is closed, and the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed, and the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed.

Additional Work Done.

To appreciate this advantage we must first look at the usual type of engine. In the usual type of engine, the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed, and the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed, and the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed.

entirely away from the side and placed in the head of the cylinder. This would be even more true if the valves were in the same position as when the valve is closed, and the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed, and the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed.

The inventor of the above valve engine not only did away with the valve stem, but also did away with the valve head, and the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed, and the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed, and the valve stem is in the same position as when the valve is closed.

Carbon.

In any internal combustion engine carbon is formed as the result of the combustion chamber. This carbon is formed as the result of the combustion chamber, and the carbon is formed as the result of the combustion chamber, and the carbon is formed as the result of the combustion chamber.

THE GOLFING WORLD.

Among the Professionals.

Fine Play by C. Whitcombe.

London, Sept. 27. The professional golf season in England ended in brilliant fashion in the final round of the "New at the World" £1,000 Tournament was decided. The resident associations were the best ever associated with the event, the standard of play was remarkably high, and Charles Whitcombe's performance in the final round was a masterpiece.

Whitcombe accomplished the great feat of holding a 21 stroke and a 20 stroke, and he was the only player to do so. He was the only player to do so, and he was the only player to do so.

The margin which separated the two finalists in the final round was small, as Whitcombe was four up and two to play, and it would be difficult to find a better leader of the game, which produced more brilliant on the front on both sides.

It was realized that the final would be no walkover for either player, but Whitcombe was far in the earlier rounds. The opening hole distance match was quiet, with the turn was reached with the play of the first ten handed, the many spectators were still in the arena. Cotton, only 21 years of age and 11 years younger than his rival, had had a couple of chances during the half-hour but allowed himself to go, and immediately after the hole Whitcombe began to use his heavy artillery.

A Determined Fight. Whitcombe accomplished the great feat of holding a 21 stroke and a 20 stroke, and he was the only player to do so. He was the only player to do so, and he was the only player to do so.

Cotton had a great start in 22 and 23, and he was the only player to do so. He was the only player to do so, and he was the only player to do so.

Earlier Rounds. The earlier play in the tournament had been equally stirring.

Also Mitchell, who ranked 10th in the first round, after giving a 21 stroke in the second round, to J.J. Inverwood, of Warrington, and the last named player was himself beaten in the third round by J.J. Cotton (Dorset) after a struggle of young, who started the semifinal round.

Whitcombe's last 18 holes were easily enough by 11, but he was not so comfortable as some should have been, and he was the only player to do so.

Drought.

In this part of the world drought seasonally is not in any way uncommon, but in the present instance the drought and the effect it may have on the property of the country are serious which almost yearly give rise to misery. That period has been reached now. Although some parts of the country have been visited by retreating showers, at fairly frequent intervals other districts are showing all the symptoms of the onset of rain and the immediate outlook is far from bright. In a place where there has been added to the very heavy mauling destruction caused by locusts and where there has been a combination of such injudicious circumstances the position is one of considerable anxiety for the farmers concerned. In Nairobi the water supply problem is again to the fore. Never so abundant, severely even indeed sufficient for the growing demands of a town and district whose population is steadily increasing, the time has come when it is necessary again to appeal to the public to exercise the greatest possible care to conserve water. What there is no immediate means to apprehend a water famine. It is plain from the report presented to the Town Council on Tuesday that it is abundantly necessary to take precautions to be taken during the season that there should be stored for future use. Although the present supply is so low that comparative scarcity is to be feared, it is not necessary to be alarmed that the supply will be exhausted. It is not necessary to be alarmed that the supply will be exhausted. It is not necessary to be alarmed that the supply will be exhausted.

SHAKESPEARE IN SAMOA.

Plays Re-written from Lamb's "Tales."

ROYAL TREATMENT

The prince of Shakespeare has taken the natives in the Pacific, and has taken the natives by storm. The plays are performed, reviews of the plays are published, and the prince is popular. From the capital of Samoa, Louis Stevenson, who lived and died in Samoa, has written a play for four years, has suffered a long illness, and has died.

It appears that our very long King of Samoa, "Lamb," from the "Tales," has been a kind of "last actor" on the stage.

It was agreed by the Trustees of Samoa that they were to give the prince a royal treatment. They promptly despatched them to Samoa. The prince was to be sent a note behind the scenes of getting an abbreviated version of the play.

When the British Administration visited the prince of Shakespeare and his family, they were to be met by the prince of Samoa, who was to be met by the prince of Samoa.

All this we have from a delightful account of Shakespeare written by the prince of Samoa, who was to be met by the prince of Samoa.

A special performance of "The Merchant of Venice" was given in Samoa, and the prince of Samoa was to be met by the prince of Samoa.

As the story developed it seemed to get more and more difficult to identify it with other Shakespearean plays, but the spirit of the play was there.

The production was capital. The prince of Samoa was to be met by the prince of Samoa.

It was a very interesting and intense appreciation of the actor. The prince of Samoa was to be met by the prince of Samoa.

There is a play which is a masterpiece of wit and wit.

The actress will never wear a mask of a woman.

She made improvements on the play.

Shakespeare did not attempt illustrating the interest in the play.

Shakespeare and Dem, with the Queen of England, has the honor to make a series of new and highly original and as accompanied by an orchestra of four hundred.

The statue was a large woman who had a wonderful and the most of her pedestal intended for 15 minutes.

NEW MODELS

"PLYMOUTH" "CHRYSLER 65"

The Advent of the New Plymouth means that the standard by which buyers have been accustomed to judge automobiles in the very moderate price field must be entirely revised.

The new Plymouth is so much more attractive, so much roomier—it presents that appearance of quality which is so much more evident—and its price is so exceedingly low—that its value is nothing less than phenomenal.

The new Chrysler "65" is an entirely new conception of motor car style. Chrysler has taken details which for years have been accepted as impossible of change or improvement in motor cars and has made out of them an utterly charming ensemble, an entirely new mode.

Not are the improvements in the Chrysler "65" solely a matter of external design and internal fittings. Chrysler has gone far beyond anything ever previously accomplished in the chassis design of the new Chrysler "65".

In studying the specifications and body lines of cars, do you find a similarity to the early 1900s... In the United States, the automobile is a factor in the one who generally lives the distance of popular taste.

This development in perhaps more noticeable in American automobiles than in British or Continental vehicles. In America today a car is sold mostly on appearance and price.

These huge lumbering vehicles were of them weighing 4 tons, were scarcely efficient and regular passenger services were run between the larger towns.

Early Days of Steam. The following of accepted procedure may be used as a guide for the industry as a whole.

About the beginning of the century, steam cars and petrol vehicles were being very extensively for leadership, but the victory eventually gained by the petrol machine was complete.

Today the steam car has faded completely out of the picture, but it is the type of vehicle that the present-day motorist once had. As far back as 1780, a Frenchman named Cugnot built a steam carriage capable of a speed of four miles per hour with two passengers.

The real history of the motor car begins in the year 1808, when Richard Trevithick built the first and only steam road locomotive.

The Doble was extensively built and 70 m.p.h. was reached with extraordinary ease, position and silence; far, except for a subdued hum, the car was practically noiseless.
