RESPONSIBLE SELF-GOVERNMENT - THE EAST AFRICAN GOAL.

Mr. Amery Re-States Mr. Winston Churchill's 1922 Pledge.

THE LESSON OF SOUTH AFRICA.

"Ultimately the Destiny of the Country Rests on the White Settler."

(BY WINDHURST)

Speaking at a dinner in London under the auspices of the African Society Mr. Amery, Secretary of State for the Colonies said the one thing that ultimately the destiny of the country rested on the white settler.

The tendency had been to regard themselves as Home as the only champion of the native, creating among settlers not only hostility to the Government but hostility to the ideas for which the Government stood.

"That mistake, I trust, we shall not repeat in East Africa. Responsibility, therefore, must rest with the Imperial Government, for any years but even on the day of small things the Government should be associated more closely with the settlers and settlers who have identified themselves with the Government."

THE PRINCIPLE.

Referring to East African settlers Mr. Amery said he regarded responsible self-government in East Africa as well as in other parts of the Empire as the ultimate goal.

Mr. Churchill's declaration of 1922 still held good, namely that they did not contemplate any settlement or system which would deprive East Africa from looking forward in the full-franchise of the principle of equal rights for all civilized men.

Mr. Ormsby Gore, Under Secretary of State for the Colonies repeated the suggestion in the Hilton Yarranton report of a constituent union for the African and questioned whether consistency was possible.

(BY WINDHURST)

Mr. Amery and Mr. Ormsby Gore took with those colonists and settlers who had identified themselves with the principle of the country.

THE OCCUPATION REPORT.

We owed a debt of gratitude to the Hon. Mr. Young and even those Africans who objected to the candid address of the report would recognize the impartiality and interest shown in such a complex problem.

Mr. Ormsby-Gore said he had been asked regarding the future of the negroes and was convinced that it was not right to separate the matter with what would be wholly the result of the white settler's action.

MR. SASTRI.

Mr. Sastri, who had introduced the motion and introduced the report, said that he had been asked regarding the future of the negroes and was convinced that it was not right to separate the matter with what would be wholly the result of the white settler's action.

ARRIVES AT MONROVIA TODAY.

Mr. Sastri, who had introduced the motion and introduced the report, said that he had been asked regarding the future of the negroes and was convinced that it was not right to separate the matter with what would be wholly the result of the white settler's action.

RUSSIA'S THIRST FOR KNOWLEDGE.

The Great Soviet Encyclopaedia.

30 VOLUME WORK

It has been said that Russia leads a life of intense activity. Certainly a look at the bookshop reveals the tremendous activity in this field. Besides the great and the small which are apparent everywhere, there is a vast literature of reference and information from time to time, and can find in various stages of preparation and completion, separate encyclopaedias in the various subjects. Law and the State Medicine, Industrial Technique, Literature, Economics, Agriculture, and Finance are the last of these.

The major undertaking of this group is the great Soviet Encyclopaedia, which will probably run to fifty or fifty-five volumes, not counting the average eight volumes have been published so far, carrying the work to the end of the third letter of the Russian alphabet. Its hundredth anniversary of the work compares favourably with the present Russian encyclopaedias. It has acquired a reputation of unusual authority, whereas formerly the standard work figure for a Russian encyclopaedia.

The Marx Influence
In general the special feature of the Soviet Union are placed side by side in the encyclopaedia, natural sciences and contemporary political and economic development. At the expense of ancient and modern history, although the latter are by no means entirely neglected. In some cases foreign scientists have collaborated in the article on Behaviourism. The American psychologist J. H. Watson, and Professor A. B. Lewin, of London, contribute a description of the theory of personality and its various implications.

Side by side with the Great Encyclopaedia is a Small Encyclopaedia. It is five volumes, a being named. Its general objectives and tendencies are the same, but its material is presented in substantially condensed form. There are several reasons for the popularity of encyclopaedias in the Soviet Union. Many new developments in the field of science are unaffected in pre-war work. The Revolution has been to bring to the fore in almost every branch of political and economic life a materialistic world outlook. Making allowance for the fact that a non-Moscow reader can only find a certain amount of non-Moscow matter in articles which are commonly shaped along Soviet lines, the Great Encyclopaedia, as a whole, makes a good reading. In the scientific field the last of our encyclopaedias.

British History
Half of what is devoted to a variety of British history, which is concerned largely with the movement. The average British reader would in the first instance be interested in the work, and read the history of the old-fashioned persons, the old-fashioned persons, the old-fashioned persons.

"INSULT" TO THE SETTLERS OF NORTHERN RHODESIA. Elected Members' Objection to the Term, "Immigrant Race."

FURTHER CRITICISM OF CLOSER UNION REPORT.

Governor Declares Self-Government to be "An Utopia Impossibility."

Further adverse criticisms of the Hilton Young Commission Report were made by Elected Members in the Legislative Council of Northern Rhodesia and additional extracts from the report of the discussion are given to-day.

Another speaker said the suggestion that learned gentlemen sitting in a London office knew more about the native and how to look after him than settlers who had lived for years on the spot was the cause of great disappointment.

It was further contended that to apply the term "immigrant races" to the white settlers was tantamount to an insult to the people of Northern Rhodesia.

The Governor expressed the view that self-government for Northern Rhodesia is the proper sense of the term was an obvious impossibility and the more the Imperial Government had to do with its problems the better.

Distorting Influence of Self-Interest. Following are further extracts from the "Tribune" article...

great problems which concern the whole of the East African Dependencies. As an academic report it has had the very greatest interest.

No question of responsible government in those territories until the natives themselves can assume the responsibility, however small, that they are required to assume.

The authors of the report recognize how far political changes in England affect adversely the confidence of the people of this country.

I maintain that some of their suggestions with regard to the development of the native in the territory are commendable.

London Car Park Regulations.

Penalties which May be Imposed.

A Point For Those Going Home On Leave.

Although there are a number of car parks in London, it is not until recently that the regulations governing the use of these parks have been made more strict. The regulations are now such that a motorist who parks his car in a London car park must be prepared to pay a penalty if he does not do so. The regulations are now such that a motorist who parks his car in a London car park must be prepared to pay a penalty if he does not do so. The regulations are now such that a motorist who parks his car in a London car park must be prepared to pay a penalty if he does not do so.

The ordinary way a policeman has with enough power. This without doubt is the only way to stop any motorist and ask to him to be licensed. A motorist who parks his car in a London car park must be prepared to pay a penalty if he does not do so. The regulations are now such that a motorist who parks his car in a London car park must be prepared to pay a penalty if he does not do so.

It should be noted that there is no power to make a charge for parking a car under the above regulations. There are three points in these regulations which London for local authorities to make a charge for parking where the park is on the highway. The regulations are now such that a motorist who parks his car in a London car park must be prepared to pay a penalty if he does not do so.

An Aired Trouble

A motorist who parks his car in a London car park must be prepared to pay a penalty if he does not do so. The regulations are now such that a motorist who parks his car in a London car park must be prepared to pay a penalty if he does not do so.

Home-blowing Rules

The home regulations put on the motorist rather than the policeman. It is not until recently that the regulations governing the use of these parks have been made more strict. The regulations are now such that a motorist who parks his car in a London car park must be prepared to pay a penalty if he does not do so.

Poorer Britons.

Makes a Strong Plea for Moderation.

FAVOURS COMMON ROLL.

'STANDARD' CORRESPONDENT.

Mombasa, May 10. Mr. S. Sastri arrived yesterday from India and was welcomed to Mombasa by Mr. Sastri.

During the course of a speech he categorically denied having any intention of touching upon the subject of the 'Standard'.

He favoured a common roll on the basis of European agreement for moderation and control of trade.

He stated that he had not yet been asked to speak on the subject of the 'Standard'.

There was a representative gathering of European and Indian members.

Made in Part. Following in tomorrow's 'Standard' program is the first of the 'Standard' series.

Mr. S. Sastri (By permission of Mr. S. Sastri) will be the first of the 'Standard' series.

THE KING'S MESSAGE

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard." Sir,—I am a great pleasure to see the King so lovingly giving expression to his kind feelings for people living in various parts of the Empire in the telegraphic message on the occasion of his recovery from illness. For mutual expression of affection, there are occasions, and the occasion of our King's illness was the one that brought out hidden sentiments of respect for King. The news of his recovery by the King was a great pleasure to me.
