OUR SHORT FOR

The Boy Who Played The Violin.

By Alice Upcott.

Sometimes it comes up before me as clearly as if it had happened yesterday, and I can't seem to get it out of my mind. I was only a young boy when I met her, but I was just a boy, and I was just a boy, and I was just a boy...

Neither do I see any more like a that I had seen in London. I had seen it before, and I had seen it before, and I had seen it before...

THE INDIAN PROBLEM
 HERE AND ELSEWHERE

Interesting Correspondence.

Our London correspondent writes as follows—

The treatment of the Indians in South Africa has, needless to say, been the subject of much correspondence in this country. There has been a considerable quantity of material published in the press, and the difficulty is of course that no one can read it all. It is, however, interesting to find that the Indians in South Africa have been treated in a manner which is not only in accordance with the principles of justice, but also in accordance with the principles of common sense. It is, in fact, a model of what should be done in any similar case.

The first round question was raised by the fact that the Indians in South Africa were not allowed to vote in the elections of 1908. This was a matter of some importance, as it was the first time that the Indians had been asked to vote in a general election. The Government had to deal with a situation which was not only new, but also very difficult. It had to find a way of dealing with the Indians which was fair to them and also in the interests of the country.

Indian Representation.

To the Editor of the East African Standard.

Sir,—You are referred to a Columnar Representation in your weekly issue of the 11th inst. in which you have expressed an opinion on the subject of Indian representation in the Legislative Council. It is, in fact, a matter of some importance, as it is the first time that the Indians have been asked to vote in a general election. The Government had to deal with a situation which was not only new, but also very difficult. It had to find a way of dealing with the Indians which was fair to them and also in the interests of the country.

The Kittens and the Christmas Pudding;

SANTA CLAUS, M.D.

(Written for our Children's Page by Helen West)

The kittens were delighted with the plums.

The breakfast of kit-cats, they were merry, merry folk. Of munched full, and to enjoy trills.

They were so full of joy that they were... The kittens were delighted with the plums and the plum!

He filled each kitten's stocking with a nasty dose.

New Kitty was the wisest kit of all the pussy cats. He looked up into Father Christmas' eye.

They met him in an ear chair, and cuddled him all day... They brought the physic bottles from their stockings right away.

Round the floor... the happy party away.

The good old elf enjoyed the job of drinking all the stuff. He busy makes from whence he draws comes.

New, sick, and ill, and sorry, all the six went out to bed. When Father Christmas came at night he shook his bag of lead.

Brought the physic bottles from their stockings.

'Xmas Bolls.

Peel! peel! the bolls, the merry bolls. The Christmas bolls—oh chime! The advent of a kinder day!

Peel! peel! the bolls, the merry bolls. The Christmas bolls—oh me! The advent of a kinder day!

'XMAS POSTAL MUSINGS.

The post office is a wonderful institution when one comes to think of it. One wishes to send, say, an Xmas greeting.

Then think that you are not the only messenger that millions of similar greetings are at this time spreading over the ocean.

WHEN THE THAW COMES

BY HILDA COVARE.

Some years ago, I was writing a brief Xmas variation of a certain well-known Continental waltz song.

AT A GEMMA'S XMAS FESTIVAL.

In a somewhat startling manner I made her acquaintance. As you do not know Gemma, I will give you a brief sketch of the scene of the year.

JUST A THING.

I shall not readily grant that some of the most beautiful things that ever came into the world are the things that come from the pen of a woman.

THE CLOSE OF A WASTED LIFE.

I started her life story as she lay dying that night of a hemorrhage brought on by cold and excitement acting upon a weak constitution.

Flouring her his wife about her I could see the "shortened" probability of picking out her life story.

HOW CAN WE JUDGE?

Whether the woman was right or wrong in her attitude, who are we to judge? Xmas brought a travel of some kind.

A BRIGHTER XMAS TALE.

Here is a brighter Xmas tale. A friend of mine owned a splendid Newfoundland dog, a great powerful animal which could swim long distances and was a great favorite.

WHAT REVELL THE GHOST-LAND.

Well, Miss, being an adventurous maiden, determined to risk things. Accordingly, up took an midnight was-thing.

A QUESTION AND AN ANSWER.

What was meant by the view of the world? That was the question which was answered in such a tragic fashion in the life of the lady referred to.

REASONABLE REASON NOTION.

I am not quite sure if I am very reasonable in introducing my usual formulae. We have said it so many times.

"Love your brother, help your brother. Bless the world the message rings. Born this year, 'Viggo' (1910). Christ to us salvation brings."

"And as the last trumpet 'Noel' rang out 'Victory' was the cry being shouted and clanking of Christmas bells. Far and wide the bells were rung and the notes of great joy were carried across the world. Bernard had written a paper upon his hour. Bernard had written a paper with everyone, and God will send his angels who only come to those who have kept the commandments of the Master."

"And when we enter into our kingdom, Assurance." He closed her, smiling, to speak further or give us an indication."

"They had already entered into it, although they were to wait for while she would finish their Christmas message the end of the year. They were to wait for the end of the year. They then began the gift of the season. But the gift of the 'new-born' was better for it is given to all. Many of the 'new-born' have been given to all."

[The End.]

SIR H. JOHNSTON'S VIEWS.

"I have loved everything," insisted Marion, with a shame face. "What is disappointed with what you have done for her? I've loved her—she took for her own's." "It is now done. Let us go and hear the music which will repeat the card which we are now consulting a great deal."

"You've got what Bernard wanted, and along with Marion he had just stepped out of the room. He had just stepped out of the room, repeating the immediate presence of Bernard and Marion."
