Latest Cables Peace Deadlock.

Adriatic Starving. Servia's Moderation.

PROBABLY PRESERVE ON TURKEY. (Recher's Special to "E. A. Standard," London, Jan 8)

The Balkanise view of the opinion that the agreement has been afforded the Turks in connection with proposals at the next meeting which is probably to take place on Friday or possibly Thursday.

The Servian Government has informed the Powers of the willingness in the interests of general peace to withdraw its troops from the Adriatic coast immediately that peace is concluded.

The Ambassadors resumed their conference on Thursday afternoon at the Foreign Office. Russia's attitude was reported by the Turks as desiring the City of Adriatic ally.

General Biveff replied that the first matter was settled by the armistice and the second was a matter for the Peace Conference.

General Biveff reported that the Turks are deserting the City of Adriatic ally. The desertion report that a former proposal of peace had been raised which is the sole ration has been issued which in four ounces a day, otherwise the whole city is without food.

It is stated in Paris that the despatch of the Powers to the Chamberlain has not been deferred to the end of the week. The Powers have agreed regarding armistice. There are however some divergences regarding the Aegean Islands.

A. A. M. has been in London, Jan 8. A lot of people valued at £8,000 disappeared from Berlin and Hamburg, which were for Bill James. There is considerable dispute among the underwriters as to the liability of November when the money destined for Egypt was stolen between Paris and Rome.

London, Jan 8. The Coal Conciliation Board of the English area has granted the miners a five per cent advance bringing up their wages to the 1920 point which is the highest on record.

China's Prohibition. FINANCIAL CRISIS TENUATED. London, Jan 8

The Indian Government has now been compelled to suspend the issue of rupees in India for the purpose of support to China, despite the large diminution of revenue to the Indian Government. France on behalf of Indo-China has presented against the decision on the ground that she is suffering a heavy loss in Customs revenue. She has also a heavy loss in profit.

THE PAINTER AND DRESSMAKER. The chief characteristics of the new frocks are the painter and skirt draperies.

SHIRTS ARE ALL SLIGHTLY FULLER, and finally they are made with pleated necks instead of the whole of the skirt being pleated.

SOME OF THE NEWEST DRESSMAKERS are lined up to the centre of the back of the gown, and fall in long loose plaques, more or less slightly reminiscent of the olden days.

LIABH BARRIES OF CLIFFON OR NINON. which are so arranged that they give the effect of being the gown and are located on the skirt at the knee.

place will come a revised edition of the "Witchamander girl, with her fall domino skirt, her trim pointed bodice, and her dress of the time, rich or richless.

HAPPY IDEAS. The long coat is still with us, and its inclusion is desirable. All scarves, whether of wools or silks, have no defect; they very soon get and get shabby at the edge.

DIPPING TANKS PROPOSALS.

To the Editor of the "E. A. Standard." Sir:-At the Quarantine meeting held at Nakuru, during about week I made certain proposals for a tank of Messrs. Wm. Cooper & Nephews intended to be of assistance in the establishment of dipping tanks throughout the country.

My proposal to advance money by way of a philanthropic trust but a business one, in that it is obviously to the advantage of the manufacturers to encourage the erection of tanks and thereby prevent the more extensive use of dipping fluids. To make dipping a general value it must be well supervised as possible, and whilst many well owners are well able to pay for their own dipping tanks, there are many who are not in a position to face the considerable expense involved.

In conclusion, may I express my opinion that the systematic elimination of horse disease in the Protectorate must result in a great impetus being given to the country with such wonderful pastoral capabilities.

Yours, etc. W. F. COOPER.

NAKURU QUARANTINE MEETING.

To the Editor of the "E. A. Standard." Sir:-Your readers who have been interested in the above report in your papers of January 5 and 7, may like to hear that the "New Method" of controlling tick disease was proved successfully in fact, then in Queensland about 20 years ago.

The above was the first time that there was to be done before using I must point out that there will be danger of antiseptic poisoning if kerosene is used, as used at the present time in the Protectorate. Quaternary bases, are not so poisonous, and proper cautions should be observed, and proper cautions should be observed, and proper cautions should be observed.

Yours, etc. P. LOGAN. Kiambu, Jan. 9, 1913.

Retired Officials.

Accepting Company Directorship. Mr. Harcourt in reply to a question from Mr. J. D. Howie said that he did not propose to lay down an absolute rule as to Government and Colonial officials shall not accept a directorship or office connected with business in the Colonies in which they have served. The latter would not be allowed to accept such directorships unless the retirement of the Governor is first obtained. He added that during the last three years he had accepted under the strictest supervision of the Government.

Social Problems. Attack on Education.

Lord Halifax speaks at Mombasa and says that the last question regarding great taxation. He declared the necessity that some suggestion Mr. Aquist and Mr. Lloyd George had made in connection with the last social problem to be tackled. The latter would not be allowed to accept such directorships unless the retirement of the Governor is first obtained. He added that during the last three years he had accepted under the strictest supervision of the Government.

Book World.
"THE LIGHTED WAY"
(Special to the "East African Standard.")
The popular novelist, E. Phillips Oppenheim, in his new book, "The Lighted Way," delights in strange, but strong contrasts; and the result is far more dramatic than any of her previous work. The story of the novel is as follows:—The plot of the novel makes use of the warehouses of Sassau Wedgwood & Co. a wholesale perfume manufacturer of Trothy street, London; but one line of its romantic ore, it radiates with life and sentiment in pathos and passion. The leading lady, the wife of the Scotch Chamberlain's superior, the aristocratic, the cameo-like in their perfection. Her eyes large and soft and brown; her hair a Titan red, very low and without ornaments. When first introduced to the reader her dress was of pale blue, which somehow had the effect of being made in a single piece, without seam or joining. She is moreover, possessed of a very extensive wardrobe, utilised for political intrigue. Her world which is at once prosaic and romantic has as its agents those of this vastening young creature. Her brother, Omer Sabah, a tortuous and a soldier of fortune, and hero of his own campaign, to find a husband on the little island near Minorca, and while Mr. Wedgwood was regarding her as a poor thing and Sabah still counting her as his bride, by looking him in a dangerous re-union to him go on to propose to marry his sister. Following on this story, told at a dinner table given by the hostess, the guests being Lady Hamilton.
"They are a good many men in the world, I should think," Arnold murmured, "who would like to be looked up on similar conditions."
"She looked at him with a queer little smile."
"I suppose it is inevitable," she declared.
"You will have to go through it too, She certainly is one of the loveliest women I ever saw." I suppose you are already convinced that she is entirely adorable."
"She was very kind to me," Arnold replied.
"She would be," Lady Hamilton remarked dryly. "Look at her husband. The poor man ought to have known better than to have married her of course, but do you think that he looks very reasonably happy?"
Arnold chuckled, by the way, is a clerk in Trothy Street who has been chosen by her employer to fill up a gap in a possible game of bridge after the death of Mr. Wedgwood. He had been constituted by his wife to get some one at the bridge, but he had explained to her confidential clerk, one Mr. Jarvis, that he did not know any one at the club. It fell like a bolt from the sky when Mr. Jarvis, it was a good club, I got elected there—well never mind how—but it's one thing to be a member of a club, and quite another to get to know the men there. You understand that, Jarvis?" Mr. Jarvis did not understand it. He only conceived of no spot in the City of London, where in his immediate neighborhood, where Mr. Sassau Wedgwood, head of the firm, Mr. Wedgwood's brother could find himself amongst his social superiors. He knew the capital of the firm and its status. He was ignorant of the other things which counted as important as his name, his own name, but had paid the price of his name for a year ago in search of certain evidence to be laid in the Mediterranean. He was to have returned in triumph to Trothy street and launched upon the provisionally as a partner in the firm, but he had been either a hero or heroine. Arnold chuckled in the leading gentleman—the beauty lover of the drama. He was the foundation of his fortune, in being launched on a sea of adventure to go to good by (Mrs. Wedgwood's mind), and primarily in being able to play the game of bridge, but the possession of a fine sitting dress suit. The author has succeeded in giving us a really pathetic character in both a very lively living life with all its interest under the protection of her usual name, an anecdotal and a little of the friends and acquaintances to which she was to be given to reach a fair ship upon the river at night. Always she carried with her (Arnold) away by her intense earnestness, the bewitching softness of her voice, even when it was full of tenderness for them." In the in the public but tragic figure in the drama—the socialist who has become a revolutionist and socialist. The more bright reading, and all the characters are well drawn. The first few chapters read of it of the book would develop socialist idealism; but it does not. It is a challenge Oppenheim offers to a socialistic novel. One wonders, if the civilized world is to become socialist how the socialist will succeed in his long war with the times, when he and wealth are to lose their power as the motive force making the horses and cartwheels to live happy ever afterwards. To-day the average man is one of the greatest individuals in earth and rarely fails to do distance at the Trine Trine of Faith, Rank and Honour.

Aftermath of Titanic Disaster.
BOARD OF TRADE COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

(Reuter's Special to "E. A. Standard.") London, Jan. 13
The Committee appointed to consider the question of the boats to be carried by liners, after the loss of the Titanic disaster, recommends to the Board of Trade the stowage of extra boats under the boats attached to the davits sufficient to accommodate all those on board. As regards ships where the boat accommodation required is so large that it cannot all be thus stowed away the Committee recommends reversible gun-tow rafts which should be capable of being thrown from the deck in case of necessity.

Heavy Gales.

Shipping Delayed.
SCOTCH EXPRESS SNOWED UP.

London, Jan. 13
Owing to the heavy south-westerly gale there has been a number of wrecks along the British coast. The express from Scotland to London has been snowed up in Cumberland. There are numerous instances of casualties and damage to property. Several liners have been delayed. There are serious floods in the west of England and in Wales.
The steamship Macraetia has been delayed in starting from Liverpool for 26 hours as she is unable to fill her bunkers with coal.
The White Star liner Celtic has arrived at Queenstown and reports maintenance sea. She had to reduce her speed and pour oil on the waves. One of her passengers died of heart disease.

RUMANIAN ACTION DENOUNCED BY PRESS.

(Reuter's Special to "E. A. Standard.") London, Jan 13

The delegates in London declare that they are awaiting the result of the representations to Constantinople on Monday (to-day) of the collective vote of the Powers before packing up. It is understood that the note made clear to Turkey that she must yield Adrianople while recommending to leave the question of the Aegean archipelago to the Powers.
The opinion in Sofia is strongly in favour of a rupture. The Montenegrins are angry at the repeated sorties of the Turks from the fort of Tarrabosh near Scutari despite the armistice.

Reuter at Athens reports that the Turkish fleet made a sortie from the Dardanelles but returned on the Greek fleet hurrying to attack them.

Constantinople, Jan. 13
The Turkish Government has decided to submit the question as to whether it shall be peace or war to a great National Assembly to be held in the palace on a day appointed by the Sultan.

The conference of Ambassadors was resumed.

The impression prevalent in the Turkish circles in London is that the decision of the National Assembly will be known to-morrow when the delegates leave London as it is impossible to abandon Adrianople.

French Politics.

Cabinet Changes.

REMINDER OF DREYFUS CASE.

Paris, Jan. 13
M. Millerand has been re-elected at the head of the Army and Colonel Pay de Clesm, who was a prominent figure in the Dreyfus case, has caused a sensation in France on the occasion of his being accorded a seat in the French Cabinet. In the meetings of the Councils M. Millerand repeatedly offered to resign and this will probably be accepted.

LAVAS: The resignation of M. Millerand has been accepted. General Le Hiran has been made Minister of War in M. Millerand's place and M. Berruyer has been appointed to the Ministry of the Colonies.

It was stated in the Council that all the Ministers disapprove of the reinstatement of Col. Pay de Clesm. Mr. Fontaine suggested that the Cabinet should resign. M. Bernard's exposition of the difficulties at home and abroad, however, also averted the resignation.

Shipping Amalgamation Rumours.

LIVERPOOL PAPER REVIVES STORY.

London, Jan. 13
It is remarkable that although after the Sutherland line and Peninsular and Oriental Line meeting the papers denied the amalgamation rumours which were set about on the 11th of last month, the "Liverpool Courier" revives the story now that the Peninsular and the Royal Mail lines have arranged an amalgamation, adding that an official announcement may be given in a few days.
The Peninsular and Oriental Company declares that pending the delay in communicating with the Royal Mail lines the suggestion of the amalgamation is absolutely untrue.

The French are making a big movement to quell the unrest coupled with treasury in the Mogador country. Some sharp fighting took place on Wednesday near Mogador in which the Moors lost 500 killed and the French 12 killed and 600 wounded.

Tariff Reform in Lincoln.

London, Jan. 13
The Lincolnshire Farmers Union have resolved to be no party to a Small change including agricultural tariff benefits. A copy of the resolution was sent to Mr. Bonar Law.

Is This Man Gifted With Strange Power?

PROMINENT PEOPLE SAY HE READS THEIR LIVES AS AN OPEN BOOK.

Do You Want to Know About Your Business, Marriage, Changes, Occupation, Friends, Enemies or what to Do to Achieve Success?

TEST READINGS FREE TO ALL "E. A. STANDARD" READERS WHO WRITE AT ONCE.

Attention of the mystically inclined seems to be centred at present upon the work of Mr. Clay Burton Vance, who, although laying claim to no special gift of supernatural powers, attempts to reveal the lives of people through the slender clue of handwriting and handwriting. Mr. Vance's ability to do this is attested by the numerous testimonies which he has received from prominent people, including judges, statesmen, and men of letters. Mr. Vance's readings are said to be so accurate that they have led to the discovery of hidden talents, and the prevention of disasters. Mr. Vance's readings are said to be so accurate that they have led to the discovery of hidden talents, and the prevention of disasters.

The following letter is published as evidence of Mr. Vance's ability.
Professor Dixon, M.A., Director Lanka Observatory member of the "Societas Astronomica de France," member of the "Astronomische Gesellschaft," Germany, writes the following letter—Frederick Burton Vance.

Dear Sir,—I duly received your letter and Complete Life Reading. I am perfectly satisfied with your reading. It is nearly all the items as exact as it could possibly be. It seems strange that you should refer to my suffering from throat trouble. I have just had a bad attack, and usually have it two or three times per year. I shall certainly recommend you to my friends who desire a Life Reading.

Arranged to be sent to all readers of free test Readings in English to all members of the "East African Standard," but it is especially requested that those who wish to avail themselves of this generous offer make application at once. If you wish a delineation of your own life, if you wish a true description of your characteristics, talents and opportunities, simply send your full name, the date, month and year of your birth (state whether Mr., Mrs., or Miss), and also copy the following verse in your own handwriting. Be sure to put 15 cents postage on your letter.

"Your power is marvellous.
So people write,
Pleased with my life,
Are my prospects bright?"
Send your letter to Mr. Clay Burton Vance, Suite 300 C Palais-Royal, France. If you wish you may enclose 37 cents (Stamps of your own country) to pay postage, clerical work, etc. Please note that 15 cents postage is not required on letters posted to France. Do not enclose coins or silver in your letter.

The most useful book in the world

No other book can claim the popularity of an encyclopaedia—a source to which the inquirer may confidently turn for accurate information upon any subject. While of other books it may be said that each of them is written only for a certain section of the public, a good encyclopaedia appeals as a possession of practical value to every kind of reader, partly because it includes a full and authoritative treatment of subjects which interest him, and partly because it also contains, ready for any question or need that may arise, information upon a host of other matters concerning which he knows little or nothing. It appeals in this way, as a useful resource, even to those who have not the reading habit, and covers them, moreover, as a rule, so little with what is a waste of books as that they would never think of themselves as "readers."

In your profession.

The lawyer, the doctor, the man of business, the engineer, the farmer to give first in the busy, active, and exacting world of the day, the man dealing with law, medicine, commerce and industry, needs a volume of practical value. The "Encyclopaedia Britannica" finds that the work has a "pre-eminence claim for the lawyer in particular" because in legal studies it offers a safe guide and constant reference. The "British Medical Journal" commends the work as a "valuable article for the doctor" because of the result of a careful summation of the harvest of modern medicine. The Dean of the Faculty of Commerce at Cambridge writes of the "Encyclopaedia Britannica" as "a book which is a mine of information in the hands of men of letters." Reviewing the "Encyclopaedia Britannica" in the "Daily Telegraph" the professional engineer writes: "It is much the best work in trade or in science, the most complete and up-to-date, the best reading matter in England." The "British Times and Mail" says: "We need not think of any agricultural inquiry but it is disappointed in having a subject connected with his industry being in a wrong order."

A profitable guide.

But a man's profession is constantly bringing him in contact, also, with matters far from his own that arise from his specialty. The command of a wide range of accurate knowledge—geographical, scientific, industrial—helps any man in his occupation, and one who has his career to make will find in the convenient volumes of the new Encyclopaedia Britannica a powerful addition to his equipment. It is also, and will prove to be far in excess of any expectations he may have formed, for its articles are not framed merely with a view to satisfying the inquirer who consults them in an emergency. They are intended, also, to be read and studied, and one who would instruct himself in any department of knowledge can scarcely do better than refer to the new Encyclopaedia Britannica, where he will find the subject, whatever it may be, treated by authorities of the highest standing.

In the household.

To speak of the profit which may thus be derived in the pursuit of a profession, however, is but to offer the most obvious illustration of the usefulness of this encyclopedia, which accrues from the possession of knowledge. It is evident, to take instances from the normal, everyday concerns of life, that the knowledge of medicine and some knowledge of law are desirable. In small matters, such as are generally decided without a lawyer, there are no sound and expert articles in the new Encyclopaedia Britannica offer all the guidance needed without a typewriter. There are, also, less useful, though no different, in the cases where such professional advice is required. The point to be made in this connection is not that all the parties of such articles enables the possessor of the new Encyclopaedia to dispense with the services of solicitor and physician; but that they place him in a better position to understand the opinions of experts and to weigh them in the many cases in which a decision must finally lie in his discretion. (Other instances of practical usefulness are afforded by a series of articles upon sports and games of all kinds.

Particularly valuable are the articles upon all matters that concern the home—lighting, carpentry joining, painting, plastering.

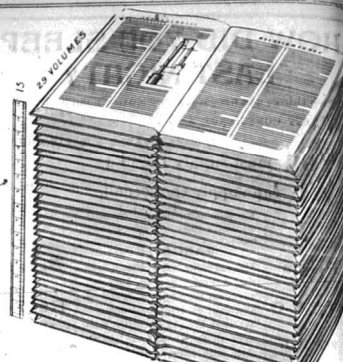

These are written in a practical, builder, and are usefully illustrated. Similarly, the articles upon poultry and bee-keeping, those upon flowers (over 600) fruit and vegetables and the articles on the art of raising them, are all written in a practical, useful, and authoritative way. The "Encyclopaedia Britannica" is a book which is a mine of information in the hands of men of letters. Reviewing the "Encyclopaedia Britannica" in the "Daily Telegraph" the professional engineer writes: "It is much the best work in trade or in science, the most complete and up-to-date, the best reading matter in England." The "British Times and Mail" says: "We need not think of any agricultural inquiry but it is disappointed in having a subject connected with his industry being in a wrong order."

General utility.

What has been termed the "practical" value of the new Encyclopaedia Britannica calls for special mention because it is a feature of the present edition. Wherever the inquirer may turn to an article with a view to finding information upon a subject which he can act on, his expectations will not be disappointed. Concerning the value of the articles which do not come into this category, it is less necessary to speak. The usefulness of a book which constitutes the fullest international dictionary of biographies in existence, which includes the histories of all nations and periods, and offers authoritative and detailed accounts of all the sciences and arts, of languages and literature, of religions and philosophy, is self-evident.

The desire to know.

Upon the attention of the man endowed with a normally active mind, the desire to know is a constant. There are, for example, all the facilities and devices which he uses and only half understands—from an ocean going steamer to a typewriter. There are all the natural phenomena which he sees—the planetary system, the formation of the earth, the winds and tides, forms of animal and plant life. There is all that he is, body and mind; all that has been believed by the religious, and speculated by the philosopher, during the entire meaning of life; all that has been achieved in the arts, in literature, in music. They are the lives of noble men and women, the characters of divers countries; the histories, political and military, of the past, and the light shed thereupon upon the present; the means by which, in law, in education, in the regulation of trade and the taxation of property, in the relief of distress, in the treatment of crime, society seeks to preserve and better itself. Upon many of these subjects, since they come within the domain of practical politics, the acquisition of some knowledge, the formation of opinions upon some better ground, that prejudices and bearings amount, in these democratic days, to positive duty.

It would be impossible, indeed, to conceive a more valuable resource than a book which covers the whole field of knowledge in the light of the most recent research.

The residents at Malindi in spite of the adverse climatic conditions and small rubber returns during 1902 managed to have a fairly good time at Christmas. At about six o'clock in the morning we were apprised of the fact that this was "Sika, Kuni, Hwani" which translated, means to mean hawking. Any one who wishes to see a party so busy to get out in the day to have a "sika kuni" on their own. At three o'clock in the afternoon Malindi Plantations to witness the sports for the natives which promised some fun. Mr. Bird had cut a splendid course near the factory. The only thing which should say slightly affected the ranging, was that the soil was rather loose; but the natives put up some very good game, and a few of the displayed great athletic ability; and their judgment in the sports was splendid. This was noticed to think that with a little training some splendid athletes could be found.

A fairly extensive programme had been arranged including snare, 100 yards race, 400 yards race, high jump, 100 yards children's race, long jump, 800 yards race, log of wax, and a consolation race. The snare race and the log of wax as usual were immensely popular while the other events had plenty of competitors who were very keen. Not the least amusing feature was the look of disappointment on the faces of those who managed to be just a bit too long in reaching the tape. The officials were the District Commissioner, Mr. Chapman, a B.C., and Capt. Smith, Judge, Mr. Bruce, Major of the course, and Mr. Hayfield, starter.

Mr. Bird attended to the safety of the contest in the way of refreshments and the prizes were presented by Mrs. Tate. In spite of the very pleasant time every one concerned had enjoyed there were two of the snare races which could not quite understand why there were not prizes for all. It was in fact a case of "one man and after the prizes were distributed all most of the game were gone they saw some books of professional development on their feet to inquire how it was they had not received a prize and we fear that to spite of the pleasure which they are all still thinking that their injuries had been done them. The wonder whether they heard someone mention a consolation prize.

In the afternoon a tennis tournament had been arranged but this was affected by lack of players and did not promise very much. The Tennis fell to Messrs. Hayfield and Bellenden.

As a splendid finish for the European residents were invited by the District Commissioner and Mrs. Tate to partake of the Christmas dinner, and everyone spent a most enjoyable evening and next day was very feeling that after all there are some things to be glad of on Christmas at Malindi.

On the Friday Capt. Smith was at home at the rifle range where the Europeans residents were invited to shoot. Our host had attended to every detail conducive to the comfort of his guests who spent some very enjoyable afternoon. The range was 300 yards long and a night.

The results were as follows: - Chapman 20 Caldwell 20 20 Hayfield 22 22 Ross Finnie 19 19 22 Hayfield 22 22 Hayfield 22 22 Hayfield 22 22 DAVIS prize: Capt Smith, 21 Sanderson 15 A further 4 rounds each for the five best shots resulted as follows: - Chapman 22 15 Hayfield 13 Gilbert 14 Bird 14 14 Bellenden 14 On the Saturday evening about sixteen guests assembled at the Hill Bungalow as the invitation of Mr. De Lacy to partake of the good things which he had provided and to share in the Christmas festivities. After a most sumptuous repast and the usual toast had been drunk the guests repaired to the parlour to witness the play and the work which the host had provided for their entertainment. Of those who had a good variety and, as is well known, our host never does things by halves, every one had a real good time.

Before proceeding to consider the bearing of each of these on the subject under enquiry, we desire to state that in our opinion, while they have not established beyond a doubt the desirability of the crop due to the uncertainty of price, they have shown that it is not a crop to be compared with the cultivation of kareage as an investment in a profitable business, especially in that country.

CLIMATIC CONDITIONS.
Temperature, rainfall, and other local conditions will be found in the reports on the weather in the columns of the Standard. It is sufficient to say that in the present season the climate is somewhat more favourable than in the previous one, and that the temperature is generally higher than in the previous one.

SOIL CONDITIONS.
The soil is said to be heavy, and that the light, deep, strong loams, with a thin soil layer, will give the best results.

PLANTING.
The best time for planting is in the latter part of the rainy season, and the plants should be planted in rows, with a distance of 10 feet between the rows, and 4 feet between the plants in the row.

PREPARATION OF FERTILISERS.
The best kind of manure to use is the one that is made of the bones of the animals that are killed in the country, and which is mixed with a little lime, and is then pressed into cakes, and is sold in the market.

METHODS OF PLANTING.
The best method of planting is to plant the plants in rows, with a distance of 10 feet between the rows, and 4 feet between the plants in the row.

CROP ROTATION.
The best crop rotation is to plant the plants in rows, with a distance of 10 feet between the rows, and 4 feet between the plants in the row.

PEST AND DISEASE.
The most common pest is the one that is called the 'fly,' and which is very common in the country, and which is very destructive to the plants.

Uganda Notes.

The issue of "Uganda Notes" for January, 1913, No. 1, Vol. 12—subscribed by a new departure. The first newspaper published in Uganda was "Uganda Notes" which appeared in May, 1900. Two years later the change of name to "Uganda Magazine" took place, but the paper continued to publish news of Uganda and its people. It was not until the "Uganda Gazette" was started in 1907, that the "Uganda Notes" was discontinued. It will now be published in the "Uganda Gazette" which is a monthly journal, containing news of Uganda and its people, and is published by the Uganda Protectorate Administration.
 Grave causes for anxiety is felt as to the future of the "Uganda Notes". The numbers pressing into the church, and crowds thronging the schools are greater than at any previous period. The "Uganda Notes" is a monthly journal, containing news of Uganda and its people, and is published by the Uganda Protectorate Administration.

In an editorial "Uganda News" shows the future of the "Uganda Notes" as a development that will be of benefit to the people of Uganda. It is not the healthy growth of a natural development but the forced growth of a hotbed plant. It is a filthy habitation, and is a source of danger to the people of Uganda. It is a source of danger to the people of Uganda. It is a source of danger to the people of Uganda.

The Ven. Rev. K. K. Isherwood has now succeeded in making the "Uganda Notes" a monthly journal, containing news of Uganda and its people, and is published by the Uganda Protectorate Administration.

The issue of Mr. C. J. Phillips, after twelve years, is now published. The issue is a valuable one, and is a source of information to the people of Uganda. It is a source of information to the people of Uganda.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPES.
London, Jan. 16.
The most dramatic story that has yet been told of the recent storms in the Atlantic and adjacent seas is that of the Puritan liner "Stonewall". This steamer was wrecked on a rock in the Atlantic for five days. The boat had been blown up by the sea, and after this long period the vessel was picked up by the steamer "Walsingham" and towed for five hundred miles, where the "Walsingham" had to anchor owing to the storm. They were then within sight of Queenstown. Two lugs made fast to the derrick but after strenuous efforts were compelled to give her to her fate. The naval tug "Queenstown" then went out to give the disabled vessel every aid but to no avail. The "Queenstown" was then towed to Queenstown. The "Stonewall" was then towed to Queenstown. The "Stonewall" was then towed to Queenstown.

DR. OSWALD'S LECTURE ON EAST AFRICAN PALEONTOLOGY.

Last Monday in the Lecture Theatre of Burlington House, Dr. Felix Oswald lectured on the present state of paleontological research in East Africa.

The immediate object of my journey to the Victoria Nile was the investigation of the geology of the Nile basin.

The Nile basin is a vast area of land, and the geology of the Nile basin is a subject of great interest.

It was that fresher than the morning breeze. What was fresher than the morning breeze? What was fresher than the morning breeze?

It was true that Mortimer had done all this as part of a deep-lying scheme. Lord Paington was a very much in love with Mrs. Moosley.

Mortimer's eyes were still fixed upon the tramp-servant. He wanted to find out whether he had not been deceived.

What a silly question that was! It was not as if he had any question at all. He was sure that he had a question that was as silly as any.

HOW TURKEY LOST CRETE.

It is interesting to recall how Turkey was deprived of the military possession of Crete in 1913 during the continued disturbances between the Mussulmans and the Christians. Italy and France, under the leadership of the Duke of Salm, landed troops at the ports of Cassa, Candia, and Hania. A Greek vessel containing the British and Italian troops was captured by the Turkish fleet. The British and Italian troops were rescued by the British and Italian fleets. The Turkish fleet was defeated by the British and Italian fleets. The British and Italian fleets were victorious. The British and Italian fleets were victorious.

A LAND OF MYSTERY. Long years ago before the coming of the Spaniards to the island of Crete, the island was the seat of a civilization which had attained a high degree of material and spiritual progress.

THE OPAL CITY. This is the same given to White Cliff, in the far west of the island. The opal was first discovered by a Greek shepherd in the year 1824. The opal was first discovered by a Greek shepherd in the year 1824. The opal was first discovered by a Greek shepherd in the year 1824.

The limits of the offer

WHEN the second issue of extending to readers in British East Africa and Uganda the opportunity of subscribing for the new Encyclopaedia Britannica at the minimum London price it was thought that those who would be interested in the great work would all be notified in time to enable them to give their orders before the close of January.

Such delays, however, have occurred in posting as would make it impossible for the many readers, especially in Uganda, to apply in the given time. However, the number of those who wish to subscribe so far exceeds expectations that after ten days it had already become necessary to cable for further stock.

In the circumstances it has been decided to extend the period during which subscriptions will be accepted until

FEBRUARY 15

All orders for execution at the minimum rate, PAYABLE RS. 15 MONTHLY, must be received in Nairobi by that date.

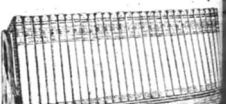

Thereafter the new edition will be obtainable in British East Africa and Uganda only for CASH PAYMENT, and at an increase in price of AT LEAST 5%.

If you wish to have early delivery of the work, it is especially desirable that you should make immediate application for it now, seeing that the second shipment also will be exhausted very soon, and as orders are booked for execution in rotation, those who delay may have to await the arrival of a third shipment.

Readers who have received a copy of the subscription form, along with other particulars, are reminded that the prices and terms therein mentioned are valid only for orders received in Nairobi by February 15.

price of Rs. 17.50

A convenient to be sub-shaded rack for table. Fitted Oak. Price, Rs. 17.50

Full particulars on application

THE PROSPECTUS (32 p.p.) gives a full description of the systematic manner in which the new edition was prepared, fresh from the beginning, with the collaboration of some 1,500 eminent authorities from all parts of the world, and organizing assistance of a permanent editorial staff of 60 members. Reproductions in colour are included of the various styles of binding in which the work is issued, as well as photographs of different bookcases, which may be had with the volume. The collection of 12 SPECIMEN PAGES shows the scope, style and character of the articles, and includes samples of plates, illustrations and maps, as well as that of some among the most important articles in each volume. THE FORM OF SUBSCRIPTION, enclosed in the centre of the prospectus, shows the present subscription prices of the new edition in various styles of binding, as well as the different methods of deferred payment in 4, 8, or 12 months, of monthly payments of ONLY Rs. 15.

Readers who have not yet seen prospectus, specimen pages and schedule of present prices and terms should please use this coupon AT ONCE.

The "Hesperide" steel, made of solid tubular, carries the volume at the right height from the floor and at a convenient angle for the eye. It is a very handsome piece of furniture, designed in the Georgian style.

Some Particulars

The new Encyclopaedia Britannica, 11th edition since 1785 is not a mere reprint of the previous edition, but a new work, which is founded upon a fresh survey of the world in every department of knowledge.

29 quarto volumes measure 12 1/2 inches, and contain 1,000 pages each, with 1,500 words to each page; 44 million words in all—affording in respect of every subject the most recent information. There are 9,000 illustrations in the text; 400 full page plates; 400 maps and plans; 40,000 articles (ranging from a few lines to 50 pages and more), and many thousands of bibliographical references. Its articles are the work of some 1,500 contributors, including leading authorities in all parts of the world, and in every branch of learning. The Index (valued at 29) of 200,000 entries, renders immediately available to the inquirer every item of information contained in the volumes of text, whatever may be the connection in which it requires it. The preparation of the work occupied for 7 years a permanent editorial staff of 60 members, and cost (exclusive of printing, paper and binding) more than £230,000, while the inconsiderable price to the extent to which the new such a work is realized may be found in the fact that 36,000 orders were received within a few months of publication! The work is issued in two forms—paper and cloth bookcases. Printed on India paper, it occupies a cubic space of 2 1/2 feet.

No new edition will be published until 1925 at earliest.

REUSE CERTAIN LARGE ORDERS because they cannot be large enough to add that with the price of production up as it is, and a shortage of labour must tend to increase the cost of producing extra goods will be considerably dearer than the New Year. It is true that the manufacturers facing a huge demand for their product make an extra profit.

Afterwards I went across to Huddersfield and found a property equal to that of London. The great woollen mills are packed with orders and have every man, woman and child at work when they can find. Every boy is working in the streets of Mombasa. We had 22,000,000 yards of cloth made in the last week, and they assured me that all the other firms are equally busy. The machinery has been brought to pull up the surface of woollen goods to give that blanket effect which about which all the papers are talking is a real and progressive one. Every Londoner in the City Value appears able to run a Fortune Palace of its own, and the present prosperity will certainly furnish a great impetus to the progress of Trade in the Colonies.

I was told by several manufacturers both in Lancashire and Yorkshire that Mr. H. B. Shaw had had a very good year. He had done some large work for the cause of Unemployment than any other man in the country. He had done some large work for the cause of Unemployment than any other man in the country.
