THE FUTURE IN THE BALANCE

MOMENTOUS CONFERENCE OPENS IN LONDON. BELGIAN OPPOSITION TO CONGO RAILWAY LINK.

All Indian Parties Agree Upon a Federation Ideal. Kampala - Stanleyville Plan "Not of Interest."

VISION OF A UNITED INDIA. The writer declares that no Half-Breed Measures Will Meet Present Situation.

Notable speeches by Indian Princes and representatives of British India were a feature of the opening session of the momentous Round Table Conference which is now being held in London to consider the future constitution of India.

Mr. Bakshi Prasad, one of the most distinguished representatives of British India pointed out that India was governed by a mixture of equity with other members of the Commonwealth. His ideal was the development of India as a single unit and he stressed that in the federal form of government—

"Go ahead," he said "with faith and courage relying on the commonness of the people of India. The time has long since passed when India can be held to hold its soul in patience."

The point of view of the Indian Princes was put forward by the Maharajah of Bikaner who said they should retain their position to the state of dominion status under the Crown. He, too, condemned as impossible, the unitary form of government and supported the ideal of a federal system embracing all India.

A delegate who spoke for the younger generations in India said that if India was given dominion status to-day the cry of independence would die in a few months. The young men of India would only suggest such terms of independence as most of the Indians were prepared to accept.

ATTITUDE OF YOUNG INDIA. The House of Representatives discussed whether the future constitution of India should be based on a federal or unitary basis. It was suggested that the general idea of a federal system would enable the States to work with the help of the committee, to frame a programme for the future.

A QUESTION TO THE DEAFEN PRINCES. Opening the general discussion on the future constitution of India, Mr. Bakshi Prasad said that he began his speech with the words: "I am a light speaker to the States and India." An audience member asked him to explain what he meant by the words "I am a light speaker to the States and India."

He said that the States and India were not one and the same thing. He said that the States were the building blocks of India and that the Government of India was the superstructure built upon them.

Belgian opposition to Congo railway link.

Kampala - Stanleyville Plan "Not of Interest."

Northern route favoured.

With the arrival in Nairobi to-day of Mr. Paul Charlier, Secretary General of the Belgian Colonial Office, the question of a Railway connection between British East Africa and the Belgian Congo attains a special importance.

An interesting and important point of view is expressed by a well-informed circle in the Belgian Press. The writer declares frankly that the proposal to link the Congo system with the K.T.R. by building a line from Stanleyville to Kampala crossing the frontier South of Lake Albert, is not of interest to Belgium.

On the other hand, the writer states that Belgium is decidedly interested in a line to the North towards Khartoum, opening up the fertile and highly mineral-rich area of the Great African Congo, a plan which has been under consideration for years.

A 1906 "PROMISE."

The proposal to extend the Kenya and Uganda Railway system to the Congo border with Belgian cooperation, is in agreement with the Congo system through the Belgian Congo, a plan which has been under consideration for years.

FEATURES OF THE SHOW.

And since it appears that, in the long run, the very best iron has been one of the varieties of British machines to sell overseas, it may well be that the miniature six will be the machine to appeal to our Dominion and in foreign countries where, because of the diverse methods employed, the smallest size of six is almost too low weight class for the four very heavily loaded.

The Beatles and the Largest Six.

It is really rather wonderful that the smallest six among the hundreds at Olympia attracted attention today for every reason except the size. (I would rather bet to go one day in four to meet the little six, and still be greeted cordially. And that is the finest testimonial to a little six's ability, and one man's determination, that there has ever been. Remember, when Sir Hector Austin created the famous years ago, scarcely anyone would have been ascribing that a four from four of mechanical jobs, yet within a year the machine was so popular that it could not, and still cannot, be produced in quantities sufficient to meet the demand. As a design it is both unconventional and conventional; the former because the frame, front spring and transmission are not of the expected type; the latter because the little power unit and gear box are those of a big six in miniature. The whole thing, from stem to stern, is a masterpiece of design for low production cost, and it was one of the very few designs that were right from the very commencement.

For more space was given to the designer of the larger car, the new 10-hp. Bentley; 10-hp. to make stand a more detailed, as well as a more successful, criticism, for the little six is, in fact, a compromise make of a big six, a compromise which, and even the smallest amount of attention, is rewarded seven fold. In everything it does this great six must verify that suggestion of someone, almost absent recall of the fact that, so much as the last important feature never seen by the slightest breeze to "blow" that has been saved, just as much as the little Bentley, and even as much as he built to a certain limit, of price.

The Most Novel Sixes.

Taking novelty to mean not something which has not been seen before, but something quite distinct and original, the latest Austin-Daimler chassis is easily a leader in importance from the front axle to the crankshaft, and able from its aluminum eight-cylinder engine to its tubular "backbone" and rear suspension. This probably the only model Franklin must equal with the Trojan; the Franklin because of a wood frame, full-suspension springs at the front and rear, a horizontal governor for the exhaust to the engine, and the six separate fuel cylinders of the engine itself. The Trojan becomes the engine in its own right, the type even for a two-stroke, and at the back of the body, while the sporty gear box and the transmission are both of original character. Thus the Lotus resembles in other one, for the V engine is not in the least like what one usually expects to find. It being almost indistinguishable from a straight eight power unit. The frame is highly unconventional; the front axle has no "axle" as the term is usually understood, and coil springs replace the familiar leaves in front. Austria, America, England, and Italy each is thus represented to prove that originality is the prerogative of one nation. The design is represented again by the latest Daimler chassis, which, though not as absolutely a departure from convention as the four are previously mentioned, is quite sufficiently unusual in color and outline to give it prominence. First, the engine, again, is a V, but the cylinder is mounted in an exceptionally low chassis. The normal shaft is replaced by a form of split-shaft mechanism giving a very wide range of flexibility, apart from which the gear can be operated by merely moving the shaft gear to the required position beforehand—no long levers and no gear-shifting, and the releasing and re-engaging the shafts in the normal manner. Each of these five cars is worth the time and space, and even that, far from design nothing of the kind, and for each set of chassis, there is still room for individuality fully expressed.

Home Types.

This year, more than ever before, there is a tendency to describe the different models of various makes by type names rather than by horsepower designations; the exception being particularly in the British cars. Thus there are the Wolseley Types: Triumph (Scorpion, Morris Major and Morris Hillman; for instance) in addition to existing equipment such as the Hillman Range, Rover such as the Hillman Range, Rover and Wolseley. However, there are the terms such as Standard, Big Nine, Triumph Super Seven, Austin Station and Big Nine, which clearly have a definite significance. But it is rather curious that origin cars, for example, the A15 Five Bentley, 14-hp. Alfa Romeo and the 12-hp. Landau, are hardly ever referred to by any other terms than those, and one people would be at a loss to give the horsepower ratings of these machines, whereas the Armstrong Siddons and the Daimler, to give two instances, are almost invariably mentioned by specific horsepower figures. Really there is little if anything to be said against the modern type names, some like the Wolseley Heron and M.F.1. Most, however, obviously happy choice that has come to us, the other newly with us, the Swift Cablet and the Triumph Cablet, which latter leads little explanation to tell that it is a sports model. Wolseley have become used to the Chrysler 71, 70 and 66; to the Marmon 60 and 59; or even sometimes have the Talbot 75 and 90. Actually, a type name may add a touch of picturesque, but why intelligibility is an apparent purpose of little help to confer aim is in the names themselves applied to the different types of onlooker on a given chassis.

THE KILARE MISHON BURDER CASE.

Miss Shumpp's clock, which was found in the room, and the lamp were on the table next to the bed. The lamp was cleaned every morning and Miss Shumpp's clock was cleaned every day. The lamp and clock were kept in the sitting room.

On examining the clock, the witness found that it was a cheap one and that it was not a very accurate one. He said that he had seen a similar clock in the sitting room of the house when he was there with a nurse named Kiboni.

At Early Hour

It is contended by Miss Shumpp to get up before 7.45 o'clock and which hour she had been found to get up before 7.45 o'clock and which hour she had been found to get up before 7.45 o'clock.

On the morning of the 10th, Miss Shumpp was in the sitting room at 7.45 o'clock and she found the door open. She went into the room and she found the door open. She went into the room and she found the door open.

At the distance between Miss Shumpp's and her own house she said 270 yards. Her only carriage was Kiboni and Mwangi and the head of the property at about 3.15 from Kilare. She was walking on the road and on the way they were followed by Andrew, on the house and on the way they were followed by Andrew, on the house and on the way they were followed by Andrew.

A GOOD LAD FROM LOCAL TOUR.

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard."
Sir, in answer to K.D.'s article on the possibility of making good bread with Kenya flour, I would like to mention that I have made a number of loaves of "Kenya Bread" (white) or whole wheat, and they were very good indeed. receive milk during the afternoon. When we visited the spot, we saw the remains of the "Marages" and when the pipes were fixed and water was allowed to run down the programme for 200 feet in the power dam. On the other side of the dam, the water was brought to the top of the pipe, and the water was allowed to run down the programme for 200 feet in the power dam.

It may be that the four Europeans who visited and examined the dam were not so satisfied with them with their four hundred tons of water as we are. It is not to be surprised that some thousands of people who are strong enough and well able to handle and carry out those things which are necessary for the maintenance of the dam, and who are interested in the dam, are interested in the dam.

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard."
Sir, being what "Co-operators" describe an old-fashioned milk producer and living on his charity, I feel that it is most regrettable that other people whose work is equally necessary for the country should be levied a tax on their milk.

KENYA'S COAST ROAD TO MALINDI

A Resort Known Only to a Fortunate Few.

THE SABAKI BRIDGE.

Gigantic Structure in the Heart of the Jungle.

trip along Kenya's coastal road—or rather sandy track—to Malindi, and its glorious beach, which is present at the fortunate distance of five miles north of Malindi. He says this is the largest bridge he has seen in East Africa and draws the centre bridge on the Maunya Causeway. He pays a tribute to the F.W.D. for the work in erecting the bridge.

His questions, however, the need for such an expensive bridge, which is strong enough to carry a train, while there is already a ferry over the river. The bridge at present ends in a cut of sea in the lagoon, as there is no road to Lamu.

Regarding the road to Lamu, Mr. Galton-Fest says advanced the construction of a road across this 70 miles gap. He points out that there is a dry-weather road running from the Portuguese bridge in the south along the coast through to Malindi, and from Lamu a road goes right on to a point near Guadalupe. There is thus only 70 miles to be constructed to make an East African Coastal Grand Trunk Road, of 2,000 miles in length.

COASTAL TRUNK ROAD.

Mr. Galton-Fest writes in his report that the road from Malindi to Lamu is a very fine road, and that it is a very important link in the East African Coastal Grand Trunk Road. The distance from Lamu to Malindi is 70 miles, and the road is a very fine road, and that it is a very important link in the East African Coastal Grand Trunk Road.

Some residents in the shape of the remains of a six-ft-wide road. The story goes that it was found a corner crating into a new and out of the right corner (all natives) but were killed in the spot and nearly of the road body torn.

Shower rains from Malindi sent two hundred yards out the road some to the wonderful ruin of the road. The road is in the shape of the property and is a very fine road, and that it is a very important link in the East African Coastal Grand Trunk Road.

The Sil Industry.

PROBLEMS OF PRODUCTION COSTS.

To the Editor, "The Standard," Nov. 17, 1920.

The Board of Agriculture's Memorandum on the silk industry, issued in the issue of the 17th inst. The figures are most interesting, and the reasons given for the increase in the cost of the raw silk are most convincing. It is a pity that the article does not contain one single helpful proposal and I cannot advise that such proposals are not possible.

The Country Clubs are not a guide to the Director of Agriculture, but he has no doubt a "planned" attention is directed to the importance of the silk industry, and the attention of the Government is directed to the importance of the silk industry, and the attention of the Government is directed to the importance of the silk industry.
