Coffee Conversations No. 4

Your coffee is looking fine—Mine was like it two months ago, but now the leaves have turned a light yellow, the cherries are falling off and I'm atraid I shan't get half the crop. Moreover, it looks as if there was going to be a lot of die-back.

2nd Planter: Yes! it is really very serious. Apparently it is due to lack of soluble plant food after the constant rain. It was all explained in the "Stan dard" of July 11th. Did you read it?

Yes, and I'm wendering if its too late to help matters now. I kinkle III, go along and see African Explorive & Industrias Ltd. One thins I've learnt—I'm not going to be caught like this a second time. I shall make it a routine practice to give my coffee an all-round dressing of soluble plant foods at the end of the raises to carry it through the dry, time. What did you use on yours!

2nd Planter: I used KYNOCH No. 2 but you had better ask A. E. & I. Ltd. They have several Compounds and which you should use depends on the past treatment of the shambs, the age of the coffee and other things.

Yes, I know. That's what I like about those people. They tackle the thing in a scientific way and don't pretend to provide one dope that will suit all cases and cure all the lils that coffee is heir to.

COUNCIL DEBATE.

Government Agrees to a Fuller Investigation.

The present plight of farmers in Kenya was emphasised during a debate in Legislative Council centring round a motion put forward by the Elected Members urging Government to institute an immediate enquiry into the advisability of granting a subsidy on maize, wheat and barley.

Hon. Conway Harvey who initiated the debate declared that the situation was desperate and did not permit of time being spent on a detailed enquiry. He declared: "We should be guilty of criminal folly. if we continued to fiddle while Rome burns."

Lord Francis Scott speaking as a practical farmer said that whilst opposed to subsidies he considered that a desperate situation required urgent means to cope with it.

to cope with it.

The Director of Agriculture replying to the debate said Government considered that a more extensive anquiry than that indicated in the motion was necessary. Government was prepared to appoint hips, be sure to pass the tape over the hip bones—not just above. And do not try to squeeze into less compess than usual, or the garment will be tight and uncomfortable.

Many amateur dressmakers fail because they do not cut arm openings correctly. Careful measure-ment will remedy this. Keep the well under the arm, let it touch shoulder point bone, and

For front length of bodice, measure from bone at back of neck to waist in front. For back length, from the same bone straight down back to waist. For the shoulder, run the tape from neck to shoulder (under arm) to waist,

When taking the sleave measure ment, the outside distance should be from aboulder bone to wrist over the bent elbow. For inside measurement, from hollow of front arm to write.

For a skirt, measure front, side and back. And, to ensure correct results, have a strap or tape drawn tightly round waist to measure to

PHOSFERINE a Marvellous Help MALARIA YELLOW

FEVER Mr. Robert Dykes, F.R.P.S., the well-known African traveller, writes:

WANT to tell you of the wonderful benefits derived from Phonferine by travellers in hot countries, both as a nerve tonic and is a preventive of Malaria, and other fevers. I have just returned from an expedition to the Source of the River Congo, where I met Chief Ebaka, of Upoto, who actually remembers his meeting in 1879 with the Source of the River Congo, where I met Lone Joacs, or Upoto, who actually remembers his meeting in 1879 with the famous explorer, H. M. Stanley, whose anniversary is now being celebrated. During a terrible outbreak of Yellow Fever, Photferine was a marvellous help and remedy to all the white traders, missionaries and nurses in the twee stricken area. At such critical times, Photferine is invaluable for protecting, strengthening and invigorating the system, its virtues are unsurpassed."—57, Cedar Avenue, Whitton, Twickenham, England.
