FLIES endanger innocent LIVES

At the first meeting Mr. Healey addressed the court under the new heading and the final conclusions were forwarded to the Commission.

The following are the changes in the system as proposed by the Commission:

(a) In all capital cases the Magistrate should conduct the investigation with the help of the Police Officer, and as far as possible, and with him should be the names of the crime, and as far as possible, to conduct the investigation on the spot.

(b) The Magistrate is empowered to issue warrants to arrest or to some extent, depend on the nature of the crime, and as far as possible, to conduct the investigation on the spot.

(c) At all Magisterial Police Courts, the Magistrate should be empowered to issue warrants to arrest or to some extent, depend on the nature of the crime, and as far as possible, to conduct the investigation on the spot.

(d) The Magistrate and Police Officer should be empowered to issue warrants to arrest or to some extent, depend on the nature of the crime, and as far as possible, to conduct the investigation on the spot.

(e) The Magistrate and Police Officer should be empowered to issue warrants to arrest or to some extent, depend on the nature of the crime, and as far as possible, to conduct the investigation on the spot.

The terms of reference to the Commission are as follows: (a) To inquire into the administration of the law in Kenya, and to report on the manner in which the law is administered, and to recommend any changes which may be necessary for the improvement of the law in Kenya.

(g) To inquire into the manner in which the law is administered, and to recommend any changes which may be necessary for the improvement of the law in Kenya.

It is evident that the system prevailing in British Provinces, such as the Magistrate and Police Officer should be empowered to issue warrants to arrest or to some extent, depend on the nature of the crime, and as far as possible, to conduct the investigation on the spot.

was introduced into Kenya, where the law is administered, and to recommend any changes which may be necessary for the improvement of the law in Kenya.

"Most of the advantages for the natives are to be found in the new system of the law in Kenya, and to recommend any changes which may be necessary for the improvement of the law in Kenya.

"The Magistrate should be empowered to issue warrants to arrest or to some extent, depend on the nature of the crime, and as far as possible, to conduct the investigation on the spot.

BRITISH BOXING CHAMPIONSHIP.

Al Foreman Retains Title.

[LONDON REVIEWER'S AGENCY.]

London, October 23. Al Foreman, the rugged Anglo-Canadian, who presented his own fight on May 20, when he won the British Empire lightweight championship from the holder, Fred Webster, tonight retained his title by knocking out George Bone of Bristol, in the sixth round of a contest booked for fifteen rounds.

The Londonite Bill was proved to be the winner by Mr. Leonard Beckett, in the absence of Lord Forster.

The Foreman-Bone contest was the exhibition of protracted efforts to get the best of Al Foreman, a rugged little fighter, and dealt out punishment to one of all, while packing a deadly knock-out punch. Bone had the reputation of being very hot while packing a knock-out.

With regard to Bone it was only a few weeks ago that he carried the championship of the world under the name of Al Foreman, after the name of the champion, who had retired from boxing.

The same manager's commission was paid for the fight during the night at Liverpool, when Bone was out of the contest with the second round.

Foreman has been and aged about the East Londoner, who was defeated by Webster, who was defeated by Webster, who was defeated by Webster.

The Board of Agriculture—Some Conclusions.

We have been at the meeting of the Board of Agriculture since the week ending September 15th, and have been following the proceedings with some interest. It is a pity that the Board should have been so long in coming to a decision on the matter of the proposed extension of the Board's functions to include the control of the export trade in agricultural products. RE FIGURES.

It should be explained, first of all, that in the Kenya Budget there are many items which appear in both sides of the balance sheet, but are not actually revenue items, but are charges as expenditures on the Government's account.

The total estimated net revenue for 1930-1931 is £1,000,000. This is an increase of £100,000 on the estimate for 1929-1930. The increase is due to an increase in the revenue from tobacco, alcs, general taxation and the post office.

Let us take first the revenue from tobacco, alcs, general taxation and the post office. This is the largest source of revenue for the Government, and is expected to increase by £100,000 in 1930-1931.

Tanganyika More Fertile than Kenya.

Addressing fellow members of Nairobi Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon meeting on 26th day, Mr. W. Xymon said it was rather striking that if Tanganyika covers practically the whole range of British Industry, at no other time can the trade buyer see the manufactures of the Empire in so short a time or in such comfort.

A SUCCESSFUL "PETS' SHOW"

Dogs just plain dogs, a poorly gathering of them, a couple of ewe-keepers to take away to some boring job, or a representative of the feline race, a cock and many chicks. And there was the machine of the "Pinks" which staged on Wednesday afternoon at the Empire Hotel Sports Ground, Nairobi, under the auspices of the Junior Branch of the East African Sports Club, a Pet Show of quite an unusual character.

It was the first time it had been held in Kenya and the first where attention was paid to the lighter side of the programme, one can easily say that it was an able parallel to the fully developed one recently with an attendance of some 1,500 persons which prevailed on Saturday.

PHOSFERINE Best Protection against MALARIA and FEVER

CAPTAIN C. A. JONES, late I. P. W. V., writes:

I HAVE spent many years in districts where Malaria and Dengue Fever have prevailed among the population, and I must say I have found Phosferine very effective in warding off attacks; indeed, I consider no one going to the Tropics or Far East, should fail to add a tin of this valuable Compound. During 14 years' residence in the parts of India I have found Phosferine of the greatest value, a bottle always being in a nice tin bag, and so far I never recall any ill effects from climatic conditions. As a tonic for the nerves it has my opinion no equal. (117 Edge Lane, London, E.C.1)

PHOSFERINE THE GREATEST OF ALL TONICS FOR

Infantile Malnutrition, Nervous Exhaustion, Debility, Mental Exhaustion, Anaemia, Pale Blood, Loss of Appetite, Indigestion, Spasms, Rheumatism, Headache, General Debility, Anæmia, Nervous Exhaustion, Debility, Mental Exhaustion, Anaemia, Pale Blood.

Also take PHOSFERINE HEALTH SALT - the Tonic Cure Saline - it tones up its cleanses!

White wins in three moves.

Kipping is always a little unusual and so far those who have tried the White King in doubt about it. It ought to be made to carry the same weight as Black King, but is limited to the few moves mentioned in the following.

KEY-KEY CHAMPIONSHIP
The first of this match was won by W. A. Way the victor. The arrangements made by the London Chess Club for the last year, have not only been successful, but also very profitable. The London Chess Club has a small room to devote to the chess club, and the respective club was present at each move. This was the case in each move as it was the case in the large room adjacent visible to all these spectators. The progress of the fight was watched from the gallery. The chess club is very much interested in the progress of the fight and will hold his friends to look for it. Various groups formed small boards on which they work out the chess board.

WHY AND WHEREFORES OF MOTORING—No. 2

Does your car's engine KNOCK?

Under certain conditions any engine will knock or produce the metallic noise known as "pinking," and this knock must not be confused with knocks emanating from worn engine parts or other mechanical defects. Some types of engines knock more readily than others. Even two identical engines may differ greatly in this respect. The answer lies in the nature of the explosions in the cylinders, and the nature of these explosions, mechanical considerations being equal, is controlled by the properties of the petrol employed.

A charge of air, saturated with petrol vapour, is drawn into the cylinders—the rising piston compresses it—when compressed the spark ignites it—it explodes, or more correctly burns rapidly and expands, and forces the piston down developing a power stroke.

Engine builders endeavour to obtain the utmost power from any given sized engine and arrange for the greatest expansion of the charge after it is ignited—to do this it is necessary to draw in the greatest possible charge and to compress it into the smallest space before igniting it. For these reasons we find a tendency to increase engine compression and the development of the device called a supercharger.

There are very definite limits to which compression may be raised because, if the charge is too highly compressed, it burns too rapidly, produces too much heat, makes the engine knock and overheat.

Knocking is caused by the charge itself for instead of the flame of ignition spreading through the whole mass comparatively evenly it develops so violently, and in such concentrated form, as to push ahead waves of unburnt charge which are so highly compressed as to produce a real knock when they impinge upon their cooling cylinder walls and piston head. The speed of combustion has to be brought under control if more power is to be gained by raising the compression and one of the marvels of modern motoring is the intensive research enabling us to accurately analyse explosions occurring 1,600 to 2,000 times every minute inside each cylinder of the engine. This speed of combustion is, under similar mechanical conditions, controlled by the nature of the petrol used and blending and production have become such exact sciences that it is known precisely what proportion of each basic constituent is required to provide that petrol which alone gives the desired performance with high compression engines.
