PORT TERAN-MURBORO NOTES.

From our own Correspondent. Port Teran, Sept. 19. (From our own Correspondent.)

Several local and foreign boats have been chartered for the season during the past few days. The season average daily temperature for the week was 80 deg. Day, 65 deg. and 60 deg. at night.

The dry spell is hastening the means for irrigation will be kept at a minimum. The water supply is becoming very low, and the farmers are being forced to use the water very sparingly.

A water conserving horticultural experiment is being conducted at the present time. The progress of this project is being watched with interest, and it is hoped that it will be a success.

An attempt is being made to improve the soil in the district. The soil is being treated with various fertilizers, and it is hoped that this will result in a better crop.

The farmers are being encouraged to plant more fruit trees. This will help to improve the soil and provide a source of food for the people.

The district is being improved by the construction of roads. This will help to transport goods and people more easily, and it will also help to improve the economy.

The district is being improved by the construction of schools. This will help to educate the children, and it will also help to improve the economy.

The district is being improved by the construction of hospitals. This will help to care for the sick, and it will also help to improve the economy.

The district is being improved by the construction of bridges. This will help to connect different parts of the district, and it will also help to improve the economy.

The district is being improved by the construction of dams. This will help to control the water supply, and it will also help to improve the economy.

The district is being improved by the construction of canals. This will help to irrigate the land, and it will also help to improve the economy.

Royal Vinolia Perfume
presents the finest essences of flowers and sweet grasses in a form to charm and delight delicate nostrils. It is entirely free from that irritating odour which is so often exhaled by the most costly perfumes when they are first dropped from the bottle. The bouquet is most delicate when first applied, and its fragrance lingers long after application.

Poultry Ailments.

The trouble may affect the whole body of the bird, but usually it is limited to the head, neck and throat. The symptoms are swelling of the throat, difficulty of swallowing, and the bird may die from starvation. The disease is caused by a virus which is very contagious. It is spread by contact with infected birds, or by contact with their droppings. The disease is also spread by contact with the droppings of infected birds. The disease is very common in poultry, and it is important to take precautions to prevent its spread. The best way to prevent the disease is to keep the birds clean and dry, and to avoid contact with infected birds. It is also important to destroy the droppings of infected birds as soon as they are found.

The first symptom of the disease is usually a contraction of the neck or of the head. The bird may then shake its head, or it may wiggle its legs, and it will probably curd the feathers on its neck. It seems to be in a good deal of distress, and it usually tries to get away by sitting down. In fact, the disease is really bad if the bird will be unable to stand. The disease may also be spread to a dry egg, and give a five grain tablet of the virus. The virus will then enter the egg, and will probably curd the feathers on the neck. It is important to take precautions to prevent the disease from spreading to other birds. The best way to prevent the disease is to keep the birds clean and dry, and to avoid contact with infected birds. It is also important to destroy the droppings of infected birds as soon as they are found.
