The Rift Va lev.

A PEN PICTURE. (By "RAB.")

The light in the carriage had gone suddenly din—with that abrupt unexpected colors of the colors of the tropics. Our hand at bridge, all-absorbing formerly, had lot a little of its interests, and now and then our or other of us would gaze sidy out of the window. Too heast of the day still the window.

"Look!" I roused myself from my state of letharge. Then as my crys focused the centre window. I saw a sight which made not bold my leverable. Never so large as bit out of the astounding spectacle be forgetten. Somewhere far, far below the burgring carriages, the earth was rout in twain. A great, black gash—sinister, appallingly sallen, and full of atygian mystery, stretched by interesting the princip could for the dying.

day. "It is the Bift Valley."

"It is the Rift Valley."

The words came to me indistinctly—as from a far-away voice. Immersial in the majesty of the scene before me—the sublimity of this masterpiece of creative genius. I was dumb and deaf. Only my eyes Rred, and through them into the stricken recease of my brain, burned the beauties, the marvels of the magnificent picture before me,

Round the escarpment swept the transled of thin, emaciated wattles loomed und partially blotted out the glory of the and partially hotted out the glazy of this view. ALLEGED MURDER

Before His Honour, Mr. Justice drunk. His wife accompanied him, and six asked him for money. Upon his boxing he cars, the other man remonstrated and handlied him roughly, knocking him down and grauping his throat. He (the accused picked up a panga and hit him over the head, thinking it was a stick. The fight was the result of drinking.

This statement he now confirmed and h in statement he now confirmed and his lawyer, Mr. G.P. Severes maintained that the stab in the storageb, which really caused Soliman's death, if deferered by the accused was spore in the heat of the moment during the struggle, and this would not constitute murder. But there was a doubt constitute murder. But there was a do as to the manner in which the knife used. It was not known whose knife it: or if the blow was intentional. There very little light in the but, and on secon ficult for the witnesses to state what had really occurred. They could not say if the blow was intentional. Anyhow, the cut was not done in cold blood. It was natural for the witnesses to deny drinking "temba", as on toe estate in question there was a w

A Young Bongo.

It is interesting to note, by the way, that the "Standard" is the type of car at present on order for the Kabaka, and that the car is being delivered to the King of Uganda through Messrs. McCrae. Flield, Mr. S. C. telifield writes - No., The accompanying photographs were taken on a recent safar: in British East Africa, and, I think will be of interest to your readers. The subject is a young bongo (Tragelophia europeres) and I am under the impression that this is the first time that a photograph has been so live one. The animal was on Wanderolo when only a few days old, and brought into one of the stores, where it was purchased by the proprietor. At the time the photograph was taken, on July 23rd, it was just four months old. It appeared re-markably tame, and would lick one's hand the salt for several minutes at a time It lived with the cattle, going out to graze with them, and wandering round the store when they were brought in I to consumed the milk of ten native cows per diem, and, which they were brought in I to consumed the milk of ten native cows per diem, and, whilst having perfect liberty, it evinced to desire to room back to the forest close at hand. In colors it was bright clostinut, hand, in colors it was bright clostinut, preciliar markings, large ears, and mates are not supported to the consequently.
