Municipal Committee.The following members attended this week's meeting of the Municipal Council which was held on Thursday at 2 p.m. at the Victoria Dispensary, Mombasa, Allen Barnes, Boston, Elsie, Hunter, Mr. J.
N. Kilby, Ribton, Steele, Mr. W. H.
Tannhill, Chairman and Mr. J. Watson (town clerk).The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and approved, the building plans which had been submitted, were considered and discussed. It was decided to submit the same to the Township Rules so that a license might be granted. This section of the city's territory is situated upon land which is subject to flooding and the erection of short houses were fully gone over.The chairman first read a communication from the Secretariat on the subject of the establishment of a cemetery in the town, and invited the opinion of the Committee as to a suitable site and further informed the members that the expenses incurred in erecting the cemetery should be charged up to municipal funds.A discussion arose as to the price of wood and the quantity required for a cemetery and it was decided that a suitable site was a satisfactory wood for the purpose and that 10 or perhaps 10 to 12 feet square would be sufficient.
An estimate was made that the cost of the site would be £1000. An estimate was also made that the cost of the construction of a cemetery would be £1000. The chairman then asked if anyone had any objection to the erection of a cemetery in the town.
The discussion, however, continued and the same gentleman was of opinion that a few bones in the ground were better than none.
The chairman then said that it was not necessary to have a cemetery, but that would mean an additional expense of
Rs. 10 a head. A letter to be sent to the Secretariat in view of this was eventually adopted and it was agreed to adopt this in the codification of the Township Rules.

The resolution was carried.

Mr. Wood moved that the site should be allowed to remain so that in the event of damage in neighbouring premises a fire should not spread to the cemetery.Mr. Wood quoted an instance in Nairobi where a fence which was pulled down whilst a fire was burning.The discussion, however, continued and the same gentleman was of opinion that a few
bones in the ground were better than none.
The chairman then said that it was
not necessary to have a cemetery, but
that would mean an additional expense of
Rs. 10 a head. A letter to be sent to the Secretariat in view of this was eventually
adopted and it was agreed to adopt this in the codification of the Township Rules.SLAUGHTER HOUSE - GRUESOME DISCUSSION.The next matter brought forward was the condition of the slaughter house in the vicinity of the Town Clerk's residence.It was asserted that they had been in communication with the owner of the slaughter house in the Town which had been situated in the same premises as the present one for a long time.A roof was required, and tackle, Mr. Sturdy had informed him that the roof was not safe, and that the building should be demolished.The Town Clerk had informed him that the roof was not safe, and that the building should be demolished.The chairman then said that it was not necessary to have a roof, and that the building should be demolished.The chairman then said that it was

The Swahili Coast and its People.

BY MRS. ALICE WERNER OF NEWNHAM COLLEGE, CAMBRIDGE.

(Delivered King's College, Oct. 28.)

The Swahili coast is a taunting designation—so little, so nothing more than the Banished pronounism of the Arabic "Swahili," the broken plural of "Swahili." The coast is the strip of littoral extending from Wazirishah in what is now Italian Somaliland to Cape Dolgod southward.

The name of this coast-strip are called We Swahili (sing. of M-Swahili) equal to Men of the Coast." They are mixed race descendants of Arabic and African who began to settle here in the eighth century and intermarried with various aboriginal tribes. As I have seen series on mixed race in this town—though possibly such may have taken place with the Somalis the mixture of blood was effected by means of the slaves brought in from the slave diverse quarters. Abyssinians and Galla from the northern territories. Subjans from the Nile, and an overwhelming majority of the Sultan of Oman, who has been here for so long that the Upper Congo. To understand Swahili we must remember that the children of these diverse following the same laws—drives us following the same laws—drives us distinction is drawn between free men though those whose descent is pure Arab on both sides are naturally in a position to command upon it.

I am bound to say, however, that I have never observed any trace of this in their strikingly different physiques.

It is difficult to mark the extent to which they would be looked upon with disfavour.

In the northern states, where inter-with the parent country was easier and immigration more frequent, the pure Arab-type is much more prevalent than in the south. There have been many wars at Lamu and on Sirs Island; but the good looks are not confined to the mixed Arab families as are sometimes suspected. The Swahili are a fine race, but the people of the coast are not so good looking as those in the interior.

The Portuguese, who settled here in the 15th century, were said to be of mixed origin, the men being of Portuguese and African blood. Some impressions are given of the real mixed ethnology of "Swahili" as seen in a description of a Swahili woman of Pate, as follows:

Pate is chiefly a mass of rags, the women being the great apes, which the houses—re built like weather rapids. The houses are still standing, and the people are in complete decay, preservation.

New is a few paved lanes, but high walls seats on either side.

It is said the women are forbidden to pass certain hours of the day, and have come here to take the sun, except in a few most exclusive Arab families.

Very seriously on the Swahili is the law of the land.

It is said the women are not allowed to go out alone, and they have to be escorted by a servant, who has to be paid for the escort.

The Portuguese gained a footing at

Pate during the reign of Muhammad bin Abdu bin Ali in 1513.

It will be remembered that Vasco da

Gama made the voyage round the Cape in 1498, touching at Mombasa—where he either had or found means to support his crew, and the Swahili had erected a pillar which remains to this day. The Sultan of Mombasa received him very kindly, and as we may read in Camoes, who also relates the story, with considerable political losses have been inflicted on him—in consequence of what he was and what he did in the whole history of Portugal from the time of the first landing of the Moors in 711 to the present day.

THE EAST AFRICAN STANDARD.

The Portuguese expedition to the coast of Africa was the first to be sent out by the Moors.

Muhammad bin Alid (1304-1344) subjugated the town of Pate, the neighbouring islands of Kiswani and the coast of the mainland opposite the town of Mombasa. The people of Mombasa were deported to Pate and compelled to build the town wall, whence a legend made a song, which is current to this day.

Tali known Mandi twallikindia, tali known swahili kwanza?

Mutoni ukwala, mutoni ukwala, mutoni ukwala.

We were at home in Mombasa, we were doing

Now we are done to walk on the wall (to build).

They have given us the wall (wall) and about (the city)

There is chilling all day long—we have rest."

The Portuguese gained a footing at Pate during the reign of Muhammad bin Abdu

Camoes, who also relates the story, as we have already seen, the people of Mombasa expelled the Portuguese from the coast of Africa.

They say and Seti al-Aziz, and Yerah

Yerah attacked and razed the Sub-Saharan port for help to the base, invaded the Swahili towns of Mombasa, Zanzibar and Sofala.

Some time later, when the Portuguese had left, the Sultan of [Price 6 Cents]

The Hon H A Smallwood replied as follows:

I must, in the first instance, apologize for failing to respond to the toast "The Land" which was so eloquently proposed by Mr M'Nicolson.

Both tradition and custom have hitherto assigned this duty to those who are far more fitted than I am; but in the course of my speech I have mentioned that Mr Boering I am told is still my dear old friend.

Gen. Boering, if in the few remarks I shall start of the high standard you have always been accustomed to, and if I carelessly allow myself to do so, I hope that Mr Boering I am told is still my dear old friend.

As to our financial arrangements alteration is to be made. Hitherto our expenditure has been restricted by what is known as the half and half principle under which half the expenditure of the Protectorate has been devoted to the reduction of the Imperial Grant and half to new expenditure.

With the exception of the Imperial Grant in Aid this will now be abandoned, and in future our expenditure will be regulated by the amount of our revenue.

To that half and half principle we have added one, in a great measure the present satisfactory state of the Protectorate's finances, and the fact that the half and half restriction embodied in that principle is a very important point in the financial career of the Protectorate.

It is the parting of the ways, and I believe, that we have agreed on our first steps in the new way we should proceed with caution, and if I may say so, let me add, that it is right for our land we live in it would be "action time"; that suggestion may not meet with the qualified approval of everybody; but we cannot afford to be slow in action, and must go a long and most arduous process must be kept at hand till we can afford to act.

Mr Newland alluded to the prudence of Beccles. May I go a step further and ask what is it that has made Scotland in recent years such a power in the world? Is it not that as a nation we have given a glorious gift of poverty with which Scotland has endowed so many of her sons?

That is the point I do not wish to be understood that we are not to be beaten, we have inconquerable evidence to the contrary, but what I do say is that we, the Scots, should be careful in our expenditure and credit ourselves with a definite policy of expenditure.

We must only look to what is happening at the present moment in other parts of the world to acknowledge the wisdom of our action.

Turning now to more general questions the past year—Mr. Andrew's dinner calendar has had many points of interest. We have had visits from several prominent men, among them one whomly death—was a matter of universal regret and sorrow I am glad to say. Mr. Lytton. Many of us have paid him his respects at his residence East Africa, and who knows what good may not come of his efforts to further the interests of our country.

In July the Commander-in-Chief of the Cape Squadron and several of his officers visited Nairobi, all carrying away, I am sure to you, all the happiness of their stay there.

The we have Professor Simpson, who is going so thoroughly into that important question of Sanitation.

Then there is the fact that I wish experts had, and that is the power of impressing an audience by a stroke of a magic wand, but financial considerations and limitations not to mention the difficulties of communication of the beneficial scheme.

We have also present with us to-night an ex-service man of the Crown, Sir Ralph Williams, served a long time to that well-earned "peace with dignity" he so thoroughly deserves.

To Sir Thomas Dews, who has been unable to attend, I wish to say that while I think we can appreciate that he will find neither the number nor size of the game audience since his last visit, for we hear of bogs of 80 lions and a leaped 8 yards I

THE COMMITTEE OF THE CALEDONIAN SOCIETY.

Above we reproduce a photograph of the Committee of the Caledonian Society taken at the final committee meeting who were responsible for the arrangements and successful carrying out of Saturday's dinner. To the President (Mr. A. Turner), the Secretary (Mr. H. B. Simpson), and Mr. R. J. Sturdy special thanks are due for the indispensable help in which they assisted.

Reading from left to right, the names are: back row, H. G. Robertson, F. G. Hamilton (District Commissioner), T. MacLure, H. B. Simpson (Secretary), J. S. Hunter, J. McR. Smith (asted), B. J. Sturdy (Chief Veterinary Officer); in front row, H. B. Taylor (Manager Uganda Railway), A. J. Turner (President), H. P. Epie and W. McAlary (Treasurer).

assays by sending one of their staff as British Commissioner, and when the next Nigerian requires a law officer of the Crown to represent him, he will be able to make sure Mr. Combe that he will carry away with him the best wishes of everybody for his safety and happiness.

And now let me end with a question, of what I said when I asked you to be frank with me about my shortcomings; but at any rate I can assure you that it has been an honour to me to respond to the toast of "The Land we live in and believe in."

W. J. D. (Never seen prop.) The Land & Co. (Oakes) He said—

"Dant au moins."—I am of our country leaders up. Where has he led us?

It has led us to this country of ours to assist in the colonization of one of the most important countries in the world.

We have also present with us to-night an ex-service man of the Crown, Sir Ralph Williams, served a long time to that well-earned "peace with dignity" he so thoroughly deserves.

To Sir Thomas Dews, who has been unable to attend, I wish to say that while

I think we can appreciate that he will find neither the number nor size of the game audience since his last visit, for we hear of bogs of 80 lions and a leaped 8 yards I natives of Scotland were the richer for this service, as it developed in those a sturdy and stoical temperament, it gave them a sense of responsibility of the Scotch race—distrust and it is well known that foreign adventure which have promoted that world famous empire-builder the Scotch.

Turning to the question of land we find that our land laws were not always so good as we might desire.

We read that the crofters had a hard and miserable existence, and that the settlements had to be cleared out and a precarious living by following the lines open to us.

East Africa we have our grievances against the natives, and the principal official grievances being that we have to lease the land key, but I have yet to learn of the native household from which we are to earn our living.

A previous livelihood by conducting safaris in the bush, and a dangerous existence.

Some of them it is said are now engaged in agriculture, and others have given up their former mode of existence.

In days gone by the Scotch postal service undertook extraordinary delays, an interval of two months intervening between the despatch of a letter and receipt of a reply.

Now in those days in a brakpan, the other day a postman by the name of Guthrie, a Scotchman, who spoke the vernacular, required us to take this postman to the post office.

Now, see here! I have two first-class passengers in the van "an" I have instructions to give them a free passage.

An Indian View of the Indian Question.

Sir, I feel it my duty to express my views as an Indian in reply to an article appearing in our weekly issue in The Leader on the 22nd inst. under the heading "The Colonial Problem." I do so because I am highly obliged if I may allow the author of your column to say even a part thereof, but it is my duty to express my views.

The society with which I live is the Indian Society, and the Indian and European races are fundamentally different in every respect, and therefore it is impossible that we can possibly co-exist happily and in peace. The Indian must be allowed to rule his own country.

Home Politics.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

LONDON, October 31.

Prophecy in politics is a very dangerous thing, but it can be taken as certain that its fulfilment will be reached by agreement on the Home Rule question in Dublin next year, as there is every reason to believe it will meet. There will be no violent opposition to it, and there will be no likelihood either even on the part of its opponents a more or less in-different toleration of the first steps in the path of self-government.

This will only be achieved by

A DEAL WITH ULSTER.

It is a remarkable fact to note that the inviolability of this step is recognised by practically all parties, although there are plenty who will not admit that it is inevitable. After all, he is a good leader, and a man who merits and obtains a good deal more public notice than the majority of us.

It is also agreed in the separate treatment of Ulster, only stipulating that a plebiscite would be taken every five years, and that the Ulster Parliament would not "come in."

If the Nationalists are wise, they will so play their cards that it is a very difficult task to get them. Ulster would appreciate that after all the Home Rule bogey is merely a bogey, and they would agree to co-operate in the carrying out of the Tariff Reform movement.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain proposed the Tariff Reform movement in the Birmingham Town Hall in 1903, and it is not unusual for him to be right. He is a man who, after all, has a good party leader, and a man who merits and obtains a good deal more public notice than the majority of us.

It is also agreed in the separate treatment of Ulster, only stipulating that a plebiscite would be taken every five years, and that the Ulster Parliament would not "come in."

If the Nationalists are wise, they will make it clear that the Ulster Parliament will not be allowed to proceed with its own legislation, but that it is hibernating.

The Unionist Party, despite its firm belief that the matter will be left to the other side, will not be slow to act.

Will the Government make such proposals? Of course it will refuse initially, just as it did in 1903, but it will be forced to yield, and then the will form the basis of future bargaining, and in time shall exert the spectre of civil war over the first steps in the path of self-government.

Meanwhile, everybody seems to have a panacea. Sir Edward Grey brings up Home Rule with a vengeance, and the Ulster movement, there is Sir Edward Clarke this week suggesting not merely a separate home Parliament for Ireland, but a separate home Parliament for the British Islands, and there the Home Rule All round for every part of the United Kingdom.

At the same time, there are doubts that ever Unionists return to power they will take up the question of Tariff Reform. They will not want to do so at once, and the Liberal party, the country to do so, and they will be able to point a good deal of justice to the precedent set by them.

If the Liberal party is elected, given a chance, it will be able to point a good deal of justice to the precedent set by them.

This was done when the Black Countess was shown in the Royal Albert Hall, and there the Liberals were returned to power mainly on their general record as the providers of Old Age Pensions, and so forth, but they were not able to do so, and they did not host the flag of Welsh Disestablishment, dislodged casually to temperature, and spoke instead on education. Hence, they are clearly destined to be dealing with many of these subjects.

The Unionists will do precisely the same, they will win some election on an issue like that the country is diametrically opposed, and they will not want to do so, and they will be able to point a good deal of justice to the precedent set by them.

Thus, the Black Countess will remain in the background, and everyone is content to leave it there.

ULSTER OPINION IS BITTERLY ANTI-HOME RULE.

and no permanent Irish settlement is possible without the consent of either of the Nationalists of the Ulstermen. We are therefore rapidly approaching the day when we may say what will it ultimately take, but it will be carried out on lines which will probably produce some sort of settlement of this great issue.

In any case, if the Government do not ulsterise Ulster, the House of Lords will do it by a direct vote, and they will be successful in effecting in impeding the progress of the Bill, it is quite certain that Government dare face the country and say that they like it rather even on the part of its opponents a more or less indifferent toleration of the first steps in the path of self-government.

This will only be achieved by

and which are now in the propagation, which needs detailed explanation, a strike was made last week, with the result of the tenth birthday of the Tariff Reform movement.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain proposed the Tariff Reform movement in the Birmingham Town Hall in 1903, and it is not unusual for him to be right. He is a man who, after all,

were not able to do so, and they did not host

the flag of Welsh Disestablishment, dislodged casually to temperature, and spoke instead on education. Hence, they are clearly destined to be dealing with many of these subjects.

The Unionists will do precisely the same, they will win some election on an issue like that the country is diametrically opposed, and they will not want to do so, and they will be able to point a good deal of justice to the precedent set by them.

This was done when the Black Countess was shown in the Royal Albert Hall, and there the Unionists were returned to power mainly on their general record as the providers of Old Age Pensions, and so forth, but they were not able to do so, and they did not host

the flag of Welsh Disestablishment,

dislodged casually to temperature, and spoke

instead on education. Hence, they are clearly destined to be dealing with many of these subjects.
