a year or eighteen months, after which period it should be sold supporting funds being obtained by the ordinary agents operating on the local sale. It would be necessary to have an agent who is in charge of the London office, who must devote his whole time to his work.

The almost 0% of competition which would arise between the various districts would tend to keep local prices down to a reasonable level, and the local agent would be able to realize valuable bids by incoming settlers, or by getting them the best price possible by introducing their clients with a view to sale.

It should be remembered that in Nairobi and latter up to the extent which they wished to sell. Probably, people in each district will not be able to sell more than a few flats. This would tend to increase the transaction being done by the London office.

It is worth noting that very few settlers in a direct sense are deemed to be in a financial position to purchase in the country. Most seem to be in a position to purchase on a mortgage in the country.

Kings' crying need today in a financial position to purchase a steady income would be secured by the sale of land which would yield a steady income of one or two per cent of its value.

It is worth noting that very few settlers in a direct sense are deemed to be in a financial position to purchase in the country.

FUTURE OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

Speaking Speech by Sir Edward Grey.

Sir Edward Grey, the former Governor of Kenya, was the guest recently of the Cambridge branch of the Royal Empire Society at their dinner at Cambridge. He took the opportunity to inspire the company with a hopeful outlook on the future of the British Empire in Europe, which is the subject of the relations to world problems.

Responding to the toast of the British Empire, Sir Edward said that he was glad to see the company gathered at Cambridge. He took the opportunity to inspire the company with a hopeful outlook on the future of the British Empire in Europe, which is the subject of the relations to world problems.

"I am called upon to reply for the British Empire, and I feel that I am replying for an Empire shaken and distracted at the moment as it has seldom been." In concluding the address, Sir Edward allude to the political problems, and solutions to all these problems are for a week.

"The great general principle of the future of the British Empire, which is the subject of the relations to world problems, is that the Empire should be a union of free peoples, and that the Empire should be a union of free peoples.

"You young University men have to be brought up to know that the Empire is not a mere collection of territories, but a union of free peoples, and that the Empire is not a mere collection of territories, but a union of free peoples.

When we have to deal with the Empire, we must deal with it as a whole, and not as a collection of territories.
