THE GREAT EMPTY SPACES OF KENYA.

2,500,000 Acres Unused By Present Occupiers.

COLONY NEGLECTING ITS ASSETS.

1,457,000 Acres Sold by Crown Never Occupied at all.

Although the area of alienated land in Kenya, provided for white settlement, is 8,841,000 acres only 2,890,000 acres are beneficially occupied.

Moreover, the very large area of 1,467,000 acres sold to private individuals has never been occupied at all.

Over a million acres on white farms are occupied by squatters. The number of squatter cattle and sheep on European farms is nearly equal to the total owned by white settlers.

Of this unused area in the occupation of the present squatter community at least 1,000,000 acres could be used for new settlement.

It is quite clear that the two main needs of Kenya are greater population and greater production and a differing analysis of the present land position is a striking commentary on the economic foundation of the Colony.

Wanted: A Development Plan.

An examination of the economic foundation of Kenya is accompanied without a proper appreciation of the extent of the Colony's assets. The extent of the land which has been put to use is small. The extent of the land which has been put to use is small. The extent of the land which has been put to use is small.

There are some of the unpaid questions which have been raised in the course of the investigation. The whole position comes back to the fact that the Colony is probably not doing what it can for the land which it has.

It is clear that the Colony is probably not doing what it can for the land which it has. It is clear that the Colony is probably not doing what it can for the land which it has.

It is clear that the Colony is probably not doing what it can for the land which it has. It is clear that the Colony is probably not doing what it can for the land which it has.

Table with 2 columns: Item and Amount. Includes 'Total Cattle owned by Europeans', 'Total Sheep owned by Europeans', 'Squatter-owned cattle on European farms', etc.

These figures show that, as a whole, the people are producing very little surplus and are not making any profit from their stock.

This is what the Colony needs. It is what the Colony needs. It is what the Colony needs. It is what the Colony needs.

The value of land being used by squatters is estimated at 1,000,000 acres. The value of land being used by squatters is estimated at 1,000,000 acres.
