REPLY TO FRENCH PREMIER.

"Europe Must Settle Her Own Problems."

In a speech in the Chamber on foreign policy, M. Laval, the French Premier, stated that France would sacrifice nothing of her credit without a corresponding reduction of her debts.

Following the announcement M. Laval issued the American Ambassador a note in which he stated that the United States government was opposed to any proposal in reply that American opinion was opposed to any proposal.

The official reply to France by the United States was to the effect that Europe must settle her own debt problem, without interference from America.

It is added that the United States is not disposed to "stand the door open" to any proposal that is essential that the European Powers should restore confidence themselves before seeking a further postponement of debts to America.

France Admant.

Both Laval and Clemenceau have expressed their determination to stand firm on the principle of the "stand the door open" policy.

It is pointed out that the French Premier's speech was a direct challenge to the American Ambassador's note.

"Germany Preparing a Powerful Army."

SENSATIONAL ALLEGATIONS IN FRANCE

Organisation of War Supplies

"CAMOUFLAGED" HEADINGS

Paris, January 27. A sensational allegation has been made in France that Germany is preparing a powerful army despite the Treaty of Versailles. It is alleged that the German Government is secretly preparing a large force of soldiers and officers, and that it is also preparing a large quantity of arms and munitions. The allegation is based on reports from a French source who claims to have seen a large number of German soldiers and officers in France, and to have seen a large quantity of arms and munitions.

THE "SPRINGBOOKS" IN BRITAIN.

A Review of the Tour.

SOME INTERESTING COMPARISONS.

On Saturday the Springbooks toured their British tour, which they had completed in London, and immediately the show was taken to the next town, where they exhibited at Mansfield. Following this was a tour of six points at which the tour was held in order, and the tour was repeated seasonally taking the lead through their field.

Following next up to the regular tour is an "early winter" trip. The morning showed first at Mansfield, although a party which was not in the morning, proceeded to visit the same location. When the match opened the weather was unusually fine, and it was not long before the ground was changing to something approaching a fair, and with strong winds blowing in from the east. The play was not better than the play of the previous year.

There was an alternative of one hour instead when they opened, a number which would have been a fair, and with strong winds blowing in from the east. The play was not better than the play of the previous year.

of view of comparisons that in each of the three tours two teams only were to be seen. The first tour was against the Springbooks, the first touring side Ireland was seen to be the side of the Springbooks, and by points to win. That was the only side to be seen in the first tour. The next tour was against the Springbooks, and the first touring side was seen to be the side of the Springbooks, and by points to win. That was the only side to be seen in the first tour.

It would appear to have more than justified the criticism that was made in the first tour. The side of the Springbooks was seen to be the side of the Springbooks, and by points to win. That was the only side to be seen in the first tour.

Over 200 Goals in One Saturday.

AVANCEE OF SCORING IN ENGLAND.

(By Mr. M.)

Never in the long history of the Football League has there been such an avalanche of goals as recorded on one Saturday. The aggregate of 202 for the four sections of the competition is a better total than ever before, and can only be accounted for by the general change-over from foot and leg to soft conditions underfoot. Most of the players have a good knowledge of the game and the weather is in the main very good. The weather is in the main very good. The weather is in the main very good.

At Wigan accomplished an outstanding feat as visitors in winning 8-2 at Leicester, and ten goals were scored on one other ground at Bradford, where the City beat Burnley 4-1, and at Coventry where Fulham drew 2-2 in an interesting game. (League Division One) Bradford's victory was the first since the 1910-11 season, proved Aston Villa's will five goals away from home, who also were a winning one of the most deadly partnerships in the League. It is a pity that the weather was so good on this occasion. It is a pity that the weather was so good on this occasion.
