When Natives reach the stage of insolence the cause is always where black and white live side without exception to be traced to side, when stern necessity arises for the local Government. No white women was safeeven the lives of little girl children were blasted for ever to the despair of sorrowing parents by these mis-

Even to-day despite strenuous legislation and the combination of every white man in the Colony the evil is not yet dead. In the Southern States of America and many other places the same evil also still exists though the measures now adopted are gradually eliminating it.

With these experiences before us learned we must see to it and at once that the cursed evil gets no foothold We must rule the Native with a stern hand. It is pitiful to hear the hopeless arguments that the law for the white man must be the same as the law for the Black cannot be, it has been proved times without number that it is a fallacy, an impossible policy, cruel to the native and unjust to the white man. Are not our natives forbidden to prospect for minerals on their own native land? our natives forbidden to include in Are not strong drink? It is the grossest hypocrisy for us to even suggest that our laws for both are the same. Let us then face the problems before us. Let us beware of that fearful policy of the past. Yet another question:

What is the position of the other actuated by the common feeling of kinship. They looked upon the incident as a prominent method of showing the World that in their opinion more drastic measures were eded with the local natives than had hitherto been meted out. Their had botherto been meted out. Incir-action was purely a protest. We would have preferred the protest to have taken the course of a widely signed petition to the Administration for the removal of those Officers who bad allowed the natives to reach such a pitch as to make it possible for them insult a white woman. This would have been the better course but blood heats and in a tropical climate the Cancasian is apt to be intemperate. We hear that the whole forces of the Administration are to be turned against the alleged offenders.

If this is so we sincerely hope that in hunting the white men policemen or whatever crime if any may have been committed the Administration will not overlook our black friends, the Turkhana, who are known to be guilty of highway robbery and foul assassination Our Nairobi Correspondent Writes:

Cotton was not altogether new in East Africa. For some years their Agricultural Department had been experimenting, and there had been some desultory cultivation, but noth ing to speak of in the way of an in-dustry. Latterly some of their settlers had paid a news attention to it and the cotton sent home by one of there had been fairly well valued, but the produce up to the present had been very small. The British East Africa Corporation would be the first seriously to undertake cotton production in East Africa. It's ope rations would be conducted in a very interesting and, he ventured to think, a very rising possession of the Crown. The soil and chimate in those portions with which it would deal were peculiarly well suited, and the conditions were very favourable. The representatives of the Corporation would meet out there a body of otherals who were devoted to their duties and the advancement of the country, and who would give the Corporation every asistance in their power. The naties. too. would not be long before they saw that they would again permanonth by aiding the operations of the Corporation, and he trusted that ere long this little trukhne stream of produce would be turned into a large. road, rapidly flowing river of export.

(Hear, hear.) Mr. Hamar Greenwood, P. M., in proposing "The Trade and Develop-ment of British East Africa;" said that Mr. Winston Churchill wished him to convey to them his best wishes and to express his regret at not being able to be present. Anyone who had the interest of the home country at heart could do nothing better than take a keen interest in the development of the cotton industry either here or in our possessions beyond the seas, and it was for that reason that he wished the British East Africa Corporation every success

. Major Leggett, as the general manager or the corporation, respond-ted, and said that the origin of the undertaking must be placed to the question of the British Cotton Growing Assemblian which discussed in the control of the British Cotton Growing Association, who had drawn attention
