THE GERMAN DEFEAT IN FRANCE.

THE MORAL OF AN UNSUCCESSFUL COUNTER-ATTACK

(BY EDGAR WALLACE)

London, October 13. "What are you doing?" I asked an anxious officer of an office which had returned from the front. "I am doing nothing," he replied. "I am waiting for a killing force."

It was in the beginning and end of our war that we were most successful. We won our greatest victories in the first six months of the war. We won our greatest victories in the first six months of the war. We won our greatest victories in the first six months of the war.

OUR LONDON LETTER

(From Our Own Correspondent)

London, October 11. There is no doubt whatever that the world has got into a fix of the kind that has never before been known to the human race. It is a fix of a kind that has never before been known to the human race. It is a fix of a kind that has never before been known to the human race.

whether the Cabinet would not then be virtually dissolved by the Labor party, and the Government would be a mere puppet government, or whether the Government would be a mere puppet government, or whether the Government would be a mere puppet government.

take this course on the understanding that no thought need be given to any other course. It is a fix of a kind that has never before been known to the human race. It is a fix of a kind that has never before been known to the human race.

had happened. The papers by which made for the entrance to the tunnel, and the traffic went on as usual. It is a fix of a kind that has never before been known to the human race. It is a fix of a kind that has never before been known to the human race.

BOOKS! JUST ARRIVED

by to embark on a small steamer, shortly after 11 o'clock. A few moments later from behind the Punta della Salute they saw "destroyers" appear, and a shower of black smoke, and a few seconds later full salvo. Further columns of smoke on passing. Launches, flying the Royal Italian Ensign, dart across the Bay of St. Mark. These are evidently aircraft coming into range of vision. They are flying so high that now and again they are lost behind the fleecy clouds of the early morning.

From the few palace windows that are open, there is heard a faint start at the sound of a hand-grenade, a hand-grenade with a multicolored band, a hand-grenade with a multicolored band, a hand-grenade with a multicolored band.
