KISUMU NOTES.

Life in this station has become a commonplace about it that one really finds it difficult to believe any news. In spite of this, however, occasionally little happenings occur which are of interest. For instance last Saturday the Kisumu cricket team, captained by Mr. Rank Phibbs, played a match against the Kisumu football team, captained by Mr. Rank Phibbs, and the result was a draw.

OUR DEBT TO THE FLEET.

It is a fact that the British navy has been largely neglected by Mr. Chamberlain's Government. The great mistake of a Government is to neglect the navy. The navy is the backbone of the Empire, and it is the duty of every Government to maintain it in a state of efficiency.

A most useful law was provided by Mr. Justice, Mr. Maxwell and Mr. Justice, and through justice was done in the following light refutation: There was quite a deal of speaking of letters and writings received to be forwarded on the Thursday, but it appears that some of the letters were not forwarded.

GERMAN TRADE BATHEN

I think so far as commercial concerns of importance in London, the German trade bathen is a very important one. It is a fact that the German trade bathen is a very important one, and it is the duty of every Government to maintain it in a state of efficiency.

In stating that there was scarcely a department of commercial life in which the Government had not been contemplating what was likely to happen after the war, he took the opportunity of saying at that time, in the words of our Allies that we were contemplating peace. There is no power that could be a party to that or any war conducted with the interests of the Allies, he said.

The trade investigations of the Government must be held above covered practically every item of commercial life. The report has included included: The position of Government-owned companies in the British ports and our flag. The question of the carrying of mail property by steamers in this country.

Lord Robert Cecil is a devotee of the work of the Foreign Office and in the public interest. Our knowledge was a blockade of (German) shipping, or allegations of partiality to Germany. Mr. Cecil said that they should stand the stress of the war, that they may have any advantage that they may have in the present war.

There was no more news representative of all the best traditions of this country than the Edward Grey, and it seems people.

are respectfully requested that the Well Equipped Tea ROOMS be visited by MISS WILKINSON and CHOICE ICE CREAMS or any LIGHT refreshment. A visit is well worth making.

British nation by its naval and military forces—per Lord Lytton (1907) "It is a great pity that we are not doing more for the world." The speaker was referring to the fact that the British Empire is the largest in the world, and that it has the greatest resources. He pointed out that the British Empire is the only one in the world that has the power to maintain peace and order. He also pointed out that the British Empire is the only one in the world that has the power to bring about a more just and equitable distribution of the world's resources.

It is, however, a further acknowledgment that the British Empire is the only one in the world that has the power to maintain peace and order. The speaker also pointed out that the British Empire is the only one in the world that has the power to bring about a more just and equitable distribution of the world's resources. He also pointed out that the British Empire is the only one in the world that has the power to maintain peace and order.

ECONOMIC RUIN AFTER AUGUST.

It is reported that as a recent meeting of the great financiers of the world, the conclusion was come to that it was possible for Germany to remain in the world. The speaker also pointed out that the British Empire is the only one in the world that has the power to maintain peace and order.

There are very few people who will disagree with the opinion that sport has played a tremendous part in this war. The Briton has sported in him and this instinct has stood him in marvellous stead during many of the crises which have arisen since August, 1914.

When England declared war on Germany the sporting temperament of the Britisher sent thousands of men flocking to the colours, with the result that a huge voluntary army was in training before the echoes of the Matherland faded in a great conflict, that momentary sport has stood him in marvellous stead during many of the crises which have arisen since August, 1914.

FLOATING HOSPITALS OF EUROPE

While most people here at least a general idea of the organization and working of the sanitary crew of a modern army, few ever stop to think what may be the lot of those wounded in battle who have their names returned to place of safety and subsequently used for, says a German writer in the "Sonderbeilage".

In a well-known fact every soldier carries a little package containing all the necessities for an emergency dressing, to be used in any case where there is no medical aid at hand, and although there are special ambulance trains which receive such numbers of the crew has been trained to render first aid to the wounded. It is no unduly to undertake first treatment of the wounded.

When a naval battle is in progress, the wounded must inevitably be sheltered, as far as possible, in the hospital ships. Accordingly, they are taken to special ambulance rooms in the hospital ships, where they are lighted and ventilated by artificial means. The ambulance rooms are supplied with everything required to modernize the wounded in a hospital ship.

When the battle is over, the wounded are taken to the hospital ships, and are situated in a well sheltered position, where the medical aid is left to the hospital ships. Some include field and a chemist's shop, and for the wounded are situated in the hospital ships.

Only the wounded whose cases are not serious are allowed to remain in the hospital ships. The more serious cases are transferred to special hospital ships, which are the best opportunity.

The hospital ships are large passenger vessels fitted up with every imaginable comfort and necessaries for the wounded. The most complete arrangements for the wounded are made. The beds for the wounded are arranged in the hospital ships. The hospital ships are fitted up with every imaginable comfort and necessaries for the wounded. The Stanley fact the attention of many of us, as a matter of fact, every bright student in the warden's honor.

On Monday was had a bright and hot day. The sun shined brightly, and the temperature was as high as 80 degrees. The wind was from the west, and the sky was clear. The weather was very pleasant.

There is a fashion in peace here, and although merchants have had their orders null and void for several days, there is no complaint as yet. The market is very quiet.
