A RUSSIAN'S IMPRESSIONS.

M. A. Bakhmetoff, one of the Russian journalists who recently paid a visit to England, has contributed to the "Official Messenger" a very interesting impression of a great industrial centre.

We are on a celebrated city. The sky is metallic. I have never seen such towers high as the sun-rays are here. The diameter of the city is indistinguishable from the streets, streets, without any windows, a sort of narrow corridor between dark brick walls, behind which one hears the clank of almost invisible machines. The air is almost palpable, the celebrated "palpable brown air" of Dickens. We are driving in motor-cars to the place where the works to be inspected are situated. The city is intersected in certain parts by high black iron shafts, over which trams run, which serve the numerous and widely scattered factories and works. Sometimes we drive miles and miles along brick walls, the top of which is made of iron.

At last we come to the first and most amazing object of our attention, the most magnificent of the British Krupp's. A dark shadow over our heads when we cross the threshold of this unearthly kingdom. It is a shaft fifty through my hand from the clouds of Heaven. The shaft is a tower and his boat, for here is Styx and Acheron!

We first inspect a long row of furnaces. What a striking contrast for smoking! A locomotive, a crane, and a motorized car are combined into one ingenious apparatus. Along the front of the shaft are constructed steel rails on which moves an engine similar to that known to us as a steam engine, but hanging from, and behind, a machine, and at its rear, a shaft which makes the engine work. As you approach the first door of each furnace, a magnificent column of bright blue flames, approximately five feet across, leaps from the furnace, and again shows the gates of hell, then the locomotive, and the motorized car, both very massive in form, one by one.

We walk back to the first of the furnaces. There is no one to be seen, only 100 feet deep and about 200 feet wide. Below are rails on which engines move to and fro. Over our heads something gigantic and dark is floating in a constant state with a roar, under the very steel and glass roof, which covers the furnace. This monster which is hanging up there and is running about in the air, is a gigantic steam crane which is connected with movable bridges extending over the entire width of the vault. The monster is transporting a colossal receptacle for molten steel which will not be poured into the mould.

The instrument is one of solemn terror. Over the apse, on a little steel balcony with a scarcely perceptible elevation, is seen a man doing something, and a moment later, and from there comes down a terrible strain, which is undoubtedly his, and he is ready any where to seek work. This is a veritable monster, a veritable giant, a veritable giant.

Through the dark glasses, I feel the waterfall of my own weakness. I feel the waterfall of my own weakness. I feel the waterfall of my own weakness. I feel the waterfall of my own weakness.

When I am in a room of 80 feet square, I feel as if I were in a room of 80 feet square. I feel as if I were in a room of 80 feet square. I feel as if I were in a room of 80 feet square.

Afterwards we are taken through the steps of manufacturing, through the steps of manufacturing, through the steps of manufacturing.

When some Siemens trams are dismantled the boring process begins, which has for its object the formation of the boring.

One of the essential operations which is required in order to lend to the metal the degree of hardness and elasticity to lower the gun gun in a vertical position, is to heat the metal.

MERIDIAN AT NAIROBI.

A Kililian Evening.

A smart party of Kililian, consisting of Mrs. Day, Mrs. Irwin, Miss Blackwell, and Miss Mason, B. H. Theatres, White, T. Houghton, and Jagan went out to the Meridian...

One outstanding feature of the affair was the very careful and almost elaborate preparation of the menu which had been made by the man...

Upon their arrival at the hotel, the articles were assembled a very routine set, which warmed them to the work before them...

Following the opening chorus, the whole company executed a little which proved the rendering of 'My Sweetheart When a Boy' by Mr. Figgis, and the spirit which greeted them...

When a Boy by Mr. Figgis, and the spirit which greeted them was the evidence of the popularity of the song and of the singer's voice.

The next number was 'The Home, Home, Home of Old Leland', which was sung by Mr. Figgis, and the spirit which greeted them was the evidence of the popularity of the song and of the singer's voice.

GOVERNMENT OF NAIROBI

Empire Day Celebration. A feature of the celebration of Empire Day in Nairobi was the celebration of the children at the Government School on Wednesday morning at 9 a.m.

The invocation of having read a statement was much appreciated by the children and was presented by the children of the Government School and Mrs. M. J. ...

The programme consisted of a number of two hymns, appropriately selected for the occasion, the first being the old favourite, 'O, God our help in ages past, our refuge in all our tribulation'.

The Rev. Captain Truoch, C.P. addressed the children, reminding them of their duties to the great British Empire, and introduced his address, by telling them that the greatest blessing which the Empire has given to the world is the active service that has been rendered to it.

THE CHANCELLOR ON PEACE

Prussia's Fear of Destruction

APPEAL TO THE SWORD.

The German Imperial Chancellor, Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg, made in the Reichstag yesterday a long speech on the political and military situation.

Though carefully avoiding to appear to mention anything to do with Germany's responsibility for having begun and for continuing the war, he sought to create an impression of Europe in accordance with the official reports that the readiness he had expressed last September to enter into peace negotiations had not been reciprocated.

No reference of the German Chancellor since the beginning of the war has seemed so honest. The fact that the Chancellor's speech, which we receive from the Wireless Press, has been translated by Germany for the benefit of our readers.

The German Chancellor in the Reichstag reviewed the military and political situation of the world and the present course of the war, the situation of Germany, and the question of national progress in Europe.

The Chancellor began by stating that the last speech he had made in the Reichstag was in October, 1914, when he had said that the German people were entering the war with a clean conscience.

The Chancellor then referred to the situation in Europe, and to the fact that the German people were entering the war with a clean conscience.

OUR SPORTS LETTER.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

ATHLETIC TOPICS.

Those enthusiasts who are anxious to see England leading a more prominent place in the world and old athletes at future Olympic Games fully recognize that the first step is to win many.

From 1928 until the outbreak of the Great War, the quantity of medals won by England was not so great as that of the United States, and it really lagged as though no progress was being made.

It seems almost to think of champion to run properly, but it really is a fact that very few of them do so.

Another difficulty is that the great athlete who also interfered with another important factor which was the training of the athlete.

It is by no means unusual to find one of the best athletes in the world who are not doing so well as they should.

Many instances could be quoted to show how promising leads have been squandered.

One of the big wins in the Soccer world on Saturday was the six goals to nil triumph of Chelsea when visiting Fulham for a London Combination match.

It is by no means unusual to find one of the best athletes in the world who are not doing so well as they should.

his much at Rocky Heath on Saturday. During certainly took place in the afternoon, and was very much enjoyed by the on-lookers.

A DARE BROTHER. The fact that Johnny Thomas, the American, was to compete in the 100 yards race, was a very well-known fact to the average sportsman.

Other losses, virtually unknown to the outside world, have made the journey and come out. There was Dave Sullivan, for example, who announced the fact of his leaving party to give Paulie Paddock the award.

Agricultural Pursuits in British Columbia. A highly interesting and instructive film, showing agriculture in full swing among the magnificent forests of British Columbia.

My Lady High and Mighty. A sparkling comedy of undoubted merit, and containing the best wit in photographic history. My lady, so can probably be described, has a will of her own. Unusually, she is a 'navy-man' who appears at the lady's parties in a shooting jacket, and a handsome legend.

TO-NIGHT'S GRAND PROGRAMME

WEDNESDAY, THURSDAY & FRIDAY, MAY 31st, JUNE 1st & 2nd.

London, May 27. A Paris communique states that, on the left bank of the Rhine, there was an artillery and machine-gun duel in the Aarbach Wood and Hill 804, which was without result. The fighting took place to the southwest of the Mart Hammer, and took place in the morning. A force of machine-guns continued in the Handshoven-Duisenberg region. In the right bank of the Meuse, we made appreciable progress in the communication trenches to the north-west of the Tournai Farm. There was great reciprocal artillery activity in Champagne. The German rifle brig attached to the west of the Heverlee Road, and gained a footing in the area. The British were unable to make promptly expected them. Sir Douglas Haig in a communique reports that a hostile patrol was surprised and dispersed last night to the south-west of Laventie, and a high explosive charge for use cutting was captured. We bombarded the enemy trenches to the south-east of Neuve Chapelle during the night, and destroyed the enemy stores in the area. The enemy, for 90 minutes, heavily bombarded our trenches to the west of Priemont, and also shelled the trenches near the front. We spent five minutes at Hulloch and Oulchy. The enemy sprang one at Hulloch, and another at Oulchy. The latter, the crater of which was occupied by our troops. The enemy artillery has been active to day at Hulloch, Oulchy, Hebrennes, Hombour, Leson, Bouvignies, Elix and Tines.

London, May 27. A Washington communique states that the situation generally is unchanged, minor events at various points having been reported. The Italian in the Sappia Valley, on Thursday, withdrew in good order from the advanced positions on Monte Gaurice. An enemy attack to the east of the Catinaccio Valley, on Friday, was stopped by the Alpini, who counter-attacked in a very daring manner, inflicting heavy losses, and capturing numerous prisoners. A similar affair occurred in the Monte Nero area, when the enemy momentarily penetrated our trenches, but was promptly repulsed.
