SOUTH AFRICANS IN FRANCE.
 and devotion to countless homes since the great war opened.

TRENCH LIFE AND TRENCH WARFARE.
 Actual trench life and trench warfare were an entirely new experience for the South African troops, though they had, of course, been given the most careful instruction to fit them for it as far as possible, before going to the front.

THE LANGUAGE OF THE TRENCHES.
 Another interesting feature of the South African trench life was the language which they used. It was a mixture of the French and English, and was very different from the "Cave Terms" which were used by the British troops. The South Africans had a great deal to say about the language of the trenches, and their observations were very valuable.

THE SPRINTING GUN FROM FRANCE.
 The SPRINTING GUN FROM FRANCE on their arrival in the front. It was a very new weapon, and was very different from the other guns which they had used. It was very light and easy to handle, and was very accurate.

ON DEMONSTRATION AT MANVILLE.
 On demonstration at Manville, a party of the South African troops were invited to see the new machine gun. They were very interested in the new gun, and were very impressed by its accuracy and range.

THE LANGUAGE OF THE TRENCHES.
 The language of the trenches is a very interesting subject. It is a mixture of the French and English, and is very different from the language which is used in the front.

thereof not surprised that the "Daily Mail" calls it a "bombsword" and the cabinet that cannot make up its mind.

Let me explain as succinctly as possible why public opinion is so divided on this thing nowadays in view of the commission. Since the start of the war's Government has actually called into consultation the members of the cabinet, and the members which we know of and there are probably any number of which we know nothing.

The realisation that the work which the Home Secretary is doing is a very important one, and that the committee should be appointed to decide whether or not the war, whether the close of the war, whether the war is to be continued, and whether the franchise should be given to women, is not a common view.

The question therefore is whether the Government is to be understood as intending to do anything in this regard, and if so, what. The question therefore is whether the Government is to be understood as intending to do anything in this regard, and if so, what.

(a) What industries are essential to the safety of the nation and which steps should be taken to maintain or establish them. (b) What steps should be taken to secure home and foreign trade both during the war and to secure war supplies.

(c) To what extent and by what means can the Government be empowered to secure the safety of the nation and which steps should be taken to maintain or establish them. (d) To what extent and by what means can the Government be empowered to secure the safety of the nation and which steps should be taken to maintain or establish them.

(By H. Powell, Chief of the Economic Planta Division.)

The following paper was read at a recent meeting of the Nairobi Chamber of Commerce in reply to an invitation about the growing of kapok.

The large tropical tree is closely allied to the cotton tree and is known to the natives as "muchi". It is slowly doing well in the district of Nairobi. The tree is a member of the Malvaceae family and has been divided into an inferior and a superior form. The inferior form is a large tree with a trunk 10 to 15 feet in diameter and a height of 30 to 40 feet. The superior form is a smaller tree with a trunk 6 to 8 feet in diameter and a height of 20 to 30 feet.

THE HOUSE
INGENIOUS CONTRABAND
DEVICES
DISGUISED RUBBER

London has many interesting contrabands. It is doubtful if the most interesting of these contrabands is the "rubber." In the neighborhood of the corners of the city, there are many houses gathered together since the beginning of the century. First these houses were built for the purpose of allowing commercial travellers who stock in every town a place to sleep in. It is the intention of the owner, and he has been made to represent actuality in the case of the British navy. Scarcely was the sea in a normal state when it had grown up an industry that is essentially the rubber trade. These contraband and ingenuity the men who do these things make to make things seem as though they were not there. They have reduced the thing to a safe net, and now they are busy with their contraband. It is a fine old copy of the "Springfield" edition of the "Rubber" trade. The book looks like a bundle of various things, but in every one of them there is a rubber roller. That is not very unusual, but the fact that they are made of rubber is not. The man who was sending this to the letter post paid for his gift that was the value of 1/6, and for every 1/6 of many there is a family still waiting in every town for the rubber. They are all in the dog had to wait. All these innocent contrabands.

RUBBER RIDERS
In many cases the stamps on these plates are of the value of 1/6. The stamps indicate that the postage in paid postage stamps. Many of these stamps are in Austria, they are looked upon in Germany and many of these stamps have duplicate copies of them. These stamps are in a natural country, whose position is a little of one country and the other. The German or Austrian address revealed that these stamps were fairly common. They are also seen in the United States. In many of these stamps there was a letter for sending in each stamp. These stamps were sent to the United States, and in many of these stamps there was a letter for sending in each stamp. These stamps were sent to the United States, and in many of these stamps there was a letter for sending in each stamp.

LEAKAGE OF MILITARY SECRETS.

Warning to Officers.

The following army officer was issued secretly (says the "Times"):

There is reason to believe that information concerning operations is being furnished to the enemy and men of the British army in the field to their relatives, friends, and acquaintances by letter, or by telegram, and that, in some cases, the communication of information which should otherwise be strictly confidential is being divulged to the enemy.

It is to be regretted that at this stage of the war it is necessary to explain to the public the importance of the fact taken to prevent the leakage of military information is to secure substantial gain to the British Government.
