SHORT STORY. FELONIOUS COURSHIP.

By A. CLARKE LUTHER, Esq., of the "Outlaws."

"It's a clear case of visiting the sins of the fathers on the children," the youth growled as he dug his head viciously into the soft turf on which he lay full length at the girl's feet. "What right have your aunts to oppose our marriage just because a great-grandmother of mine killed a legendary uncle of theirs who was killed at Waterloo? They are a brace of vindictive old bastards!"

"No, Jack, they are not that. They are a couple of dear, warm-hearted, old ladies; only they have such absurd ideas about family pride. They can't forget the century-old episode of your great-grandmother. You see, that was the origin of the feud between the two families, and to accept any advantage from the enemy's camp would mean the uprooting of a tradition, as dear to them as their religion."

"The two things don't go together," the love-sick youth cried angrily. "When I pointed out yesterday that the union of the descendants of erring and injured ancestors might be made the occasion of a reconciliation between the two families, both your aunts declared most unchristian desire to remain in enmity."

Laurels. One by one the girl took the prizes—best dresses from the rooming place, and explained the reason of their value in an excited whisper.

Mistress of Uncle Robert, the identical one gold frame and all that your great-grandmother sent back to him. His Waterloo medal. A silver teapot, said to have been in the family since the time of Adam. Diamond shoe buckle, given to one of the Langtons by Queen Elizabeth. I think that will do. She dismissed, casting a critical eye at the despoiled wardrobe.

"I will take anything tomorrow they might be missing too soon. That's right, as then up in that work-bag and follow me to the garden. The garden he tipped after his guide, till, coming to a thick clamber of bushes, she indicated the spot in which the family heirlooms should be hidden—carefully.

"Now we must make some foot-prints to show the line of retreat taken by the baffled burglar. There are some old boots in the garden, and some other boots you are whilst I go and fetch one."

The youth stood where he was a moment, and wondered at the method employed by the girl, who sped towards the house. A few minutes later she reappeared carrying a dilapidated boot which had once served a manly figure. She crossed the lawn, stopping at intervals whilst the girl pressed the sole of the boot into the soft earth, through kitchen-garden and wilderness, leaving an occasional footprint and stood beside the low brick wall that marked the furthest extent of the Laurels' domain. With a shout of triumph, Phyllis tossed the boot into the field beyond, and, snatching a hasty farewell, her lover made a dash for it through a side gate from the kitchen garden.

It was a pitch black, foggy night when next the lover stood beneath the boundary wall, a good half hour before the appointed time. His zeal had cooled considerably since the afternoon, and calm reflection had shown a score of reasons why the crude artifice to which he was pledged could not stand the searchlight of strict investigation. Had communication with Phyllis been possible he would have turned his back upon the foolish enterprise at the eleventh hour. As it was, he was bound to keep faith with the girl, or incur contempt more prejudicial to his cause than all the roared opposition of her aunts.

With a disconcerting conviction that he was about to make himself an object of ridicule, and the terror of a gentleman of the name of Langton, he vaulted the wall, received the Langton heirlooms, and groped his way across the lawn to the still deeper shadow of a tall tree.

A wax vesta spluttered and burnt to his trembling fingers as the distant boom of the village clock fell muffled on the soldier's ear. But through the blackness flashed no answering signal. Ten paces nearer, and another match was burned without response, though the house stood through the fog. Still nearer, and his straining ears caught a stealthy sound from within.

The windows opened to his touch, and he paused a doubtful instant to listen on the threshold. Suddenly a shaft of light fell through the opening door, and Phyllis entered, a candle in her hand. Then, with a gasping breath, she saw that they were not alone, and that their comrade was like to end in tragedy.

"Betwixt himself, as yet unseen, and the girl a masked and burly figure moved with a short, stout cudgel raised to strike. Petrified with terror, the girl stood motionless, unable to flee or cry for help.

With a bound the youth was on the ruffian and the two rolled in short conflict. In a moment the burglar

OUR POET'S CORNER.

THE MAN AT THE DESK.

The Man at the Desk has patient look. As he writes and writes in his open book. And he sends his back to the tank before. Like a galley slave to his hand-rolled car. Columns of figures he marshals by. While up decimals mountains high. How when to sing to his well-worn brain. His long, monotonous life refrain.

"Doubt, credit, voucher, pay."
Discount, balance, day by day.
Carried forward, interest, done.
So the monotonous river runs.

The Man at the Desk with the patient look. Has followed the rule of the accountant book. "Lary to bed and early to rise."
He's his mother healthy, woe, nor wise.
Heed, industries, other, abated.
To his office cell, he has long remained. Dead of ambition, busy of pain.
Adding up figures for other men.

"Debit, credit, remit, amount."
Carried forward, close account.
Debit, books, interest, done.
So the monotonous river runs.

The Man at the Desk with the patient look. Has written his life in his open book. Has charged up profits with a pen and amount. And crossed off losses as a closed account. Yet bright are the tears in his faded eye. As the columns of figures march by. Black of ink and with mourning leave. He a hot parable to a weary crew.

"Debit, credit," the bugles play.
Discount, balance, voucher, pay.
Carried forward, interest, done.

Fire Protection of the Royal Palaces.

Since the fire which occurred at Sandringham some time ago, and Windsor more recently, steps have been taken to improve the fire protection of the Royal Palaces of H. M. the King. Messrs. Meyerweather & Sons, the holders of the Royal Warrant, have just supplied a powerful "Gem" steam fire-engine for the protection of the royal residences in Windsor Great Park, and the new machine was tested before H. H. Prince Christian a few days ago, with most satisfactory results. The "Gem" is a portable engine, built by Messrs. Castle Steel, Colchester Lodge, Holly Grove, and the royal workshops and stables, etc., will be protected by the new "Gem".

Important additions have also been made to the fire equipment of the palaces. The buildings are protected by a powerful stationary steam engine, and the fire alarm system. The "Gem" is a portable engine, built by Messrs. Castle Steel, Colchester Lodge, Holly Grove, and the royal workshops and stables, etc., will be protected by the new "Gem".

THE Bachelor Members of the Gout Institute Zanibar gave a ball at the Association Rooms last week. Dancing was kept up to a late hour and it was a very enjoyable evening was spent.

THE recruiting of labourers for picking cloves on the Zanibar Government clove fields are now in progress. We understand the total number of labourers required are five thousand.

THE S.S. Bundesraht arrived at Mombasa five days late after encountering very severe storms.

An Opportunity for Investment. The United Services Co-operative Hotel Co., Ltd.

On another page will be found an announcement of a New Company the object of which is to establish a First Class London Hotel with 1000 rooms. The project in the future was a hotel which would be a great success.

Government Servants, especially those serving in Crown Colonies find it difficult to invest their savings and it is a good opportunity to invest in a safe and profitable way.

THE late Mr. Charles Elliot, who owned the estate in a little more than 1000 acres, has been placed in charge of his District.

THE Greek has commenced an action in the Courts at Tangi for alleged negligence of the Company through its servants.

German Perseverance is Telling.

Much has been heard of the tenacity of the German colonial enterprises, particularly those attempted in Africa. The revolution has not lessened their determination to acquire the most desirable lands, have certainly not lessened their determination to acquire the most desirable lands, have certainly not lessened their determination to acquire the most desirable lands...

IT IS SAID

That His Excellency will not discuss the subject of the native of Mombasa. That the longer the equity is postponed the greater the shock to the public. That the value of the cloves is likely to reach 10/6.

THE NEWEST FASHIONS.

The Summer at Home.

Linen and washing materials of the most expensive qualities will be made up into long coats because it is now considered absolutely requisite to have skirts to slip on at any time if the weather be cool during the summer. There are most exquisite materials in the silk and cotton fabrics for instance, or the lines that combine well with the heavy and substantial, and although such beautiful little jackets are smart, they are no smarter than the long coats that have washed and faded and distinctive of the season.

ART OF SALAD-MAKING.

Methods Which a French Cook Adopts.

Every cook, however humble, can boast a child-of-own, and feel a right to a sense of profound superiority, if only in one particular respect. He may be next door to a stranger, but he is "his own master," which can be depended on. He is not a slave of the weather, or temper, or prevailing notions of the deliverer, or parcel post, so long as more from the kitchen than from the street. He is a free man, and nothing seems to be more difficult of accomplishment as far as the average class cook is concerned, than the salad, or, as it is called, the "salade."

THE HOME LAUNDRY.

How to Wash and Get Up a Baby's Robe.

A few hints on washing babies' robes may be useful to mothers who find laundries doing their children's clothes at home. The robes should be taken to the laundry for two or three hours in clean, cold water, to keep the fibres from becoming stiff.

MEMORIES.

CONTRIBUTED.

I've not forgotten the dirt of street, The red-tinted nights, and the quill-sticks In the dirt of your own breast, and so on. When ever a speck of dirt comes in my dream, I dream of that room and its beautiful light. While a wonderful peace, descends on my soul.

This rule the location of both bowls will vary upon the location of both bowls in the mixing bowl, pour oil into the wooden spoon, and stir it up in a clean dish and leave it for an hour and a half. Otherwise dry the oil if possible in the open.

Begin ironing it by attaching the bodice first keeping the skirt covered with a damp cloth. If an extraordinary or insertion should be ironed on the wrong side with a damp cloth. After the trimmings are done turn the robe on the right side, keep it still on the skirt-board and should there be any frills, tucks, or other ornaments, be ironed on the back, raising each as after ironing it with the iron, and with the head of a steam drying rack.

When all the trimmings are finished, iron the robe very carefully, and press the top of the iron up into the garters to get the folds of the robe. It should be ironed on the right side, and should there be any frills, tucks, or other ornaments, be ironed on the back, raising each as after ironing it with the iron, and with the head of a steam drying rack.

METRIC SYSTEM. We have received the following correspondence for publication from the Mombasa Chamber of Commerce...

Dated Nairobi, 20 June 1907. Sir,—The introduction of the new coinage necessitates the recalculation of all our goods and passenger freights...

Present minimum weight 14 lbs. Proposed " 10 " Present goods tariff calculated on 1 cent. Proposed goods tariff calculated on 10 mills.

(1). That calculations of freights will be greatly simplified. (2). That small consignments will be weighed and charged for in multiples of 10 lbs. instead of in multiples of 14 lbs. as at present.

As the change would affect the present use of the Railways and as, as far as possible, to ascertain what are the views of merchants, officials etc. on the proposals...

Occasional Notes.

THE 'Times of East Africa' has ceased to exist.

COURT Vacation at the Coast has commenced.

THE fourth of July was fittingly celebrated by Americans in East Africa.

NOTION from N. E. Rhodesia has just reached 10d and 11d a lb. in London.

FOR two pice in local bazaars enough income can be purchased to drive a motor car for some twenty four hours.

A Steward serving on board the S. S. 'Admiral' committed suicide with a razor when the vessel was lying at anchor in Zanibar.

MRS. Eppie entertained the Members of the Mombasa Sports Club to tea on Wednesday afternoon last, a delightful afternoon was spent in the charming Club grounds.

SUGAR Cane can be successfully cultivated between Changamwe and Mombasa. The apparatus and machinery is very simple and inexpensive.

WE have been asked to draw the attention of the Mombasa Local Administration to the shoking state of the road in Membeni Street.

THE Government have decided to purchase the public granaries made by successive Commissioners and in particular by H. E. The Governor.

LORD Stormont when Governor of Trinidad was asked what were the three requirements of a Colony: he replied 'Roads, Roads and again Roads'.

SOME Indian shop-keepers were brought before the Mombasa Municipal Magistrate on Monday last and fined one rupee for selling liquors containing dangerous poisons in contravention of the Poisons Ordinance.

LORD Lansdale presided on June 7th at the Cafe Royal, Regent Street, London at the dinner at which big game hunters in the world. A majority of them had been in hunting expeditions in Africa.

WE hear that in addition to a freight war between competing steamship lines, the public of Zanibar have now the benefit of an air war. It has been decided by the Imperial, for which Messrs. Smith Mackenzie and Co., are the Agents, to place a factory in offering ice at one price per lb. Presumably it is a bargain for custom and so long as it stands an excellent thing for local consumers.

information, was to-day sentenced to three months' imprisonment for breach of official secrecy. The Court held that the accused could not receive the option of a fine, since in two cases he had manifestly communicated the contents of Official Secretaries' Reports to the Centre Deputy, Herr Erbeberger, with the object of revealing himself upon officials of the Colonial Department...

COLONEL David Bruce writing to the 'Times' issues a warning. He writes the Reuter telegraph. He writes the Reuter telegraph. He writes the Reuter telegraph.

NOW that natives have had suitable benches placed for their use at the Kilindi Trolley Station may we suggest that benches for Europeans only may also be placed in the same place. European Passengers from the steamers find it very bring waiting in the sun for Trolley Cars which arrive only occasionally as the giddy boys think it.

It is to be regretted that the Executive Council has not taken into existence before the Legislative Council, we understand, however, that this was unavoidable. The additional member Colonel Montgomery, etc., we understand, had been in consideration of our Asiatic population.

THE BEST OF BOTH! Abbey's Effervescing Salt. If your head aches, if your tongue is coated and your mouth tastes bad, if you feel nauseated on rising, if you are constipated, it means that your stomach is wrong and you need Abbey's Salt, and need it badly.

Nothing so bad for your health as a disordered stomach, nothing so good for a disordered stomach as Abbey's Salt.

Curing a Headache.

By HUGH H. HEDDER, M.B.

The common ailment in all classes of society is without doubt headache. And considering that the trouble is so widespread, it is amazing how little known its symptoms are.

Down has been the case with the patient in which the headache has been the only cause of the illness. It is a great relief to the patient when the cause is discovered and the disease is cured.

Most headaches then, if one takes the trouble of sitting down and resting the head, will be cured by simple home remedies. To find the cause, which is almost always the same, the headache is to be treated intelligently, it is well to divide headaches into a few groups.

Letting out the severe headaches that accompany the onset of certain acute infectious diseases such as typhoid, small pox, etc., let us consider the first group, composed of the commonest and most annoying headaches, those with lessening disturbances of the stomach, liver, and digestive tract in general.

The ordinary household headache remedies and pills, etc., which aim at a general stimulation of the system, are not to be used in such cases, and will usually be all that is required to effect a cure.

The second common group, which naturally will not respond to remedies stimulating the system, is made up of the headache that accompany anemia.

Anemia may be due to many causes, and the deficiency may be in the quantity or quality of the blood cells, but in all cases of this disease the cause is a very ordinary symptom and they are quite susceptible to cure.

The third group, which corresponds somewhat with the last-mentioned, is met with in young people of neurotic, or hysterical habit. The cause of these headaches is probably the same as in group two, for the treatment here is also the same.

The fourth group, which corresponds somewhat with the last-mentioned, is met with in young people of neurotic, or hysterical habit. The cause of these headaches is probably the same as in group two, for the treatment here is also the same.

A CITADEL OF THE PAST

In many parts of the East, as known to civilized races, the pyreneous rocks of those far off times still remain in abundance, many of them the monuments of the immemorial achievements of an ancient world so substantially and so solidly constructed that they have withstood thousands of years, the devastating attacks of time, the disintegrating ravages of weather, and, in some measure, the visitations of man.

SHORT STORY.

A SOCIETY SNAPSHOT.

The New Child's Guide to Knowledge) The Guide: How many parents have you got? The Child: Two—at present.

THE CHILD: What is the problem?

The Child: What is the problem? The Child: Whether really nine people will ever call upon the heroine again. The Guide: What kind of heroine do you especially admire?

THE CHILD: I hope so. It is the only subject in the course of her education that a woman should take up seriously.

The Guide: But surely you would prefer to be well equipped mentally, rather than corporeally? The Child: By no means. A man detests a clever woman. The Guide: Can you give any reason for this?

THE CHILD: Because, in order to assert herself properly and create a superior impression, she is bound to contradict him; and there is not a man yet born who could stand that.

THE CHILD: Limited curiosity and unimpaired cash.

THE CHILD: Nothing more?

THE CHILD: Why must one be a reasonable woman?

THE CHILD: How do you define "emjoying her life?"

THE CHILD: The giving, and going to, smart parties.

THE CHILD: What lessons are you learning at present?

THE CHILD: The tree of knowledge-of-good and evil.

THE CHILD: How do you define "good"?

THE CHILD: Everything disagreeable.

THE CHILD: And "evil"?

THE CHILD: Everything nice.

THE CHILD: What is Miss Knowall's chief duties?

THE CHILD: Changing the yellow-covered books for the red-covered books in the library, and taking me to my lessons.

THE CHILD: Do you like going to the theatre?

THE CHILD: Immensely. Because the reality of the stage affords such a refreshing contrast to the artificialities of every-day life.

THE GUIDE: What plays interest you the most?

Mr. Winston Churchill. Some Past Performances. The Men We Depend On.

A correspondent has compiled the following interesting and instructive record... If every country gets the Government it deserves...

Before his brief excursion to South Africa, when he escaped by prematurely leaving his fellow-passengers...

This agrees well with one of his earliest pronouncements after his return, when he said at Warkworth, August, 1890...

At Oxford, April 27, 1901, he observed that "the Radical party was not dead."

On June 15 he makes further progress, and says that the world "is not so great as many men think."

This view is not surprising when one reads and finds that at Birmingham, June 1, 1890, he had reviewed Sir... Harcourt's party decided that...

There is much more evidence to justify the regret that he has not continued himself at this vocation. At Manchester, March 19, 1892 he says that the Liberals did not expect the self-government of the colonies to keep the colonies back to the process of formation of political societies...

At Birmingham, December 8, same year, remarks that "It is a curious fact that under Conservative Governments you get just those who are most opposed to Liberalism."

At Birmingham, December 8, same year, remarks that "It is a curious fact that under Conservative Governments you get just those who are most opposed to Liberalism."

There is overwhelming proof of the weakness of his perception as a political seer. As early as May 8, 1892 (at Paddington), he tells the Daily Mail, having been invited to break up Parliament and attack the House of Lords...

Some time before the last general election, Mr. Winston Churchill went over to the Radical party. No definite announcement of the "conversion" was given...

The "circumstances" all apparent are the offer to the right honorable gentleman of a post with a salary of £1,500 per annum. He is supposed to be a candidate to be more modestly packed with "terminological insensibilities" than this...

Since his receipt of the thirty pieces of silver, which it seems that "miserable" Radical Premier felt it would be worth his while to give for the support of the "final" energies of the young abolitionist...

In August, 1900, having just got back from South Africa, he declared that "he was convinced that no shred of independence should be given to the two distant (Central and Orange) but that they must come entirely under British Government."

This paragraph is singularly suggestive. It indicates that early concern for the moral health of the Chinese which was not so conspicuous, and also that expert knowledge of the nature of a lie which was not so conspicuous...

One of the first objects of the new Government is to bound Lord Milner out of office, and in this they displayed unusual unanimity.

It is a curious fact that the Government which under Lord Milner, and under Liberal Governments you get just those who are most opposed to Liberalism.

LOOKING THROUGH THE IRON BARS OF THE NAIROBI NIGGER GAOL.

BY THE EDITOR OF "THE EAST AFRICAN STANDARD."

SIR,—As you are aware I have just been released and discharged from the Nairobi Jail, where I have been doing time, for a charge of which I am innocent...

It is not for me to say whether or not I was a false step, I feel sure they are all of other thinking men will admit. Personal I am quite prepared to admit that, had I not adopted the course which I have followed...

I do not expect any very great things from my nominated Council. In fact I should be quite satisfied if I could get a few questions answered...

—Why such vastly different sentences should be passed on the different nationalities for the same offence or instance, breach of quarantine regulations...

Dear Sir,—Would you kindly permit me to place the following correspondence before the general public, with a few comments thereon...

On June 25th last I wrote the following to H. E. the Governor.

Made your multifarious duties you kindly favour me with an explanation as to why your letter of 20th Oct. 1906...

The Chinese Repatriation.
 Personal and Press Views.

The Westminster Gazette says. We are heartily glad that the last chapter of the "great experiment" is really beginning.
The Daily Chronicle says. The policy of the Imperial Government is being justified by its results.
The Tribune says. The defence of the Chinese experiment will soon become a purely historical exercise.
The Daily News says. Nothing which public opinion can sanction will be more enthusiastic than the guarantee by which the Transvaal will be freed from the Chinese.
The Morning Post says. It remains to be seen whether General Botha will be able to maintain his policy beyond the present year.
The Pall Mall says. General Botha secured his loan in the interest of which the mineowners will pay. What will happen if his policy fails he has not apparently considered.
The Cape Times says. If General Botha's statement reveals no reason whatsoever why the guarantee ought to have been given, leaves not a shadow of doubt why it was given.
The Globe says. Sold for a price. The whole of the South Africa have been hazarded for election pledges. The only gleam of hope lies in the British doggedness to win despite the racial dishonour of Englandmen who wish to see Great Britain leave South Africa bag and baggage.
The Cape Argus says. The change will most seriously continue to affect the industry, and which the whole commercial condition of South Africa, and will prolong the uncertainty as to the future of the mines which has hung like a pall over the country ever since the Chinese agitation began.
The Standard says. Plenty of natives are available, and if the pledge of replacement is to be fulfilled, the Government of traditional slave-holders which the Transvaal, must resort to slavery in the Arab sense. General Botha came to London to get rifles and artillery needed by his army, and this more so.
The Times says. "In view of the economic situation in South Africa, the choice of this moment for getting rid of 16,000 labourers can only be regarded with the greatest misgiving, and cannot easily be justified. It is extremely doubtful whether more in the way of recruiting can be done than by Chinese, so as to give time for the Transvaal to take the risk."
General Botha says. "At the same time, the Government anticipate that the repatriation of the Chinese will lead to the restoration of healthier and more stable conditions on the mines, to a larger employment of white labour, to the more economic and efficient use of the labour, and the application on a larger scale of mechanical appliances to mining operations."
The Rand Daily Mail says. "Replacement may be practicable, but there is very little evidence in support of the theory. We are unable to account for the Government's attitude, save by the mysterious influence of some unknown and unseen force. We refuse to credit the bribe theory. We refuse too much faith in the Prime Minister's integrity—too much faith, strange though it may seem, in the traditions of British government, whether the Government be for the moment Radical or Conservative; but we are left in the unsatisfactory position of being absolutely unable to suggest an alternative duty."

The Daily Telegraph says. The alightness of the effect of the repatriation announced in General Botha's former declaration that the Chinese would not be dismissed till they could be placed. More reliance is placed on General Botha and his Ministers to foster the mining industry than on the Government, whose sole anxiety is to justify its election pledges.
The South African News says. General Botha's statement is directly in accordance with the policy of "Hot Yolk" and Nationalist parties as declared in the election campaign. "We are glad the end of the Chinese labour system has actually begun. If we have confidence in General Botha we can have no sympathy with the magnates, because we have the repeated assurance of the Premier and Government. Surely these Ministers do not stand in the way of renewing licences unless satisfied that sufficient native labour is available."
The Durban Mercury says. Tremendous responsibility is thrown on the Transvaal Government. At least three natives are required to replace one Chinaman, owing to his former's short service methods, which was an eventual demand of 150,000 natives. Everyone will wish General Botha success, but in view of the fact that the native labour in South Africa, and the grave effects of failure, it is impossible not to regard the outlook with much misgiving. The whole position is an economic one which has been obscured and distorted by violent prejudices and political manoeuvres of the most incredible and unprincipled character. The displacement of a third of the most efficient unskilled labour cannot fail to bring about the serious disorganisation of the industry, unless the equivalent be immediately forthcoming. Any serious setback will accentuate the depression, and create a financial crisis. The safety of the country will be replaced and repatriation between now and the next sitting of the Transvaal Parliament. The ability to carry out the terms of the bill, if submitted to a fair test, and if it will, it will still be open to amend the Constitution to permit the re-entrance of the remaining Chinese, so as to give time for the organisation of the native labour.

"There is, however, at last something definite. Almost anything which has the uncertainty and the anxiety as to the future which has prevailed so long, and a great deal may be said for Mr. Leopold Botha's view that so long as the Chinese are bound to cause constant friction, the blessing of release may be prematurely bought too dearly. In the meantime, all we can do is wait events, and hope that the Government will be able to justify its policy, and so restore confidence in the country."

ACCORDING to the latest Government Gazette a law passed in India in March 1906 has been in force here since that time. Sixteen months it has taken for the officials responsible to inform the general public of this fact. Possibly there are some other laws governing us which should be at once promulgated and the public should be informed of them.

WE are told that the Public Works have recently purchased through the Crown Agents, 5,000 bundles of corrugated iron and that the cost in galvanized is a good deal higher than local articles are offering for sale in rail, Mombasa for the same quality including customs duty paid.
IT is reported to us that the Government have been selling land belonging to Arabs in the Malindi District. The land was unutilized but had been in cultivation for many years ago and on which there are many witnesses. Does this mean more actions against the Secretary of State? This country is a playground for lawyers and amateurs of all sorts.
NEW Fees for cutting posts, poles, and trees in Forest areas are promulgated. Such pettiness as is displayed in this new notice surprises all previous attempts to deal with Forest Revenue. If the truth be told the Administration is wearing us down. The lack of attempting to dispute soberly with the authorities and help them out of their blundering is becoming too heavy. Why this new scale of Fees on the verge of the arrival of the recently appointed Forest Expert?
WE have before us a beautifully printed pamphlet delightfully illustrated by that very excellent delay in proceeding under any judgment or order, or of any misconduct or default of the Pleadar, any costs thereof incurred, have nevertheless proved fruitless to the person incurring the same, the Court or a Judge may call on the Pleadar by whom such costs have been incurred to satisfy British and German East Africa and the Congo under the most comfortable and satisfactory conditions.

WOULD the Honble the Executive Council draw the attention of H. E. the Governor of the fact that those responsible for demarcating Forest areas along the Coast from Mombasa to Lamu have demarcated the local natives into starvation. The British Officers administering the bill of have hardly been left room to hang their clothes out to dry. At the same time as the Honourable Councilors have this question of the total they might possibly make an attempt to ascertain why these sort of matters are substantially reported to us before they reach the ears of the Government. Is it that the people are losing confidence in their rulers?
WRITING in the Mombasa Diocesan Magazine under the heading "Mombasa. G. P. W. How we have known charged for in the past the work take the writer into 'various directions' he will have a severe shock and regret he introduced so unkindly under the motto 'Lenga Lupa.' We forgive him this gentle release into precarious as the rest of the article is admirable.

A Correspondent writes us asking for an opinion on the new pasture lands regulations. We have already refused the request to publish the recent Government announcement. The ground that it was in form of an advertisement and not a form of advertisement and was not paid for and in any case we should not like to publish it as we consider British East Africa is unpopular when the services of the world are open to our exposing the stupid notions of some of those who should know better. In this week's World's Eye, the new law on pasture lands, speech recently made by Lord Elgin at a banquet, where he said that the Crown Colonies were not inferior to any other colonies. Lord Elgin really believes what he says how does he reconcile the many important detrimental moves made, and being made here, in indirect haste while he holds the Legislative Council back from us.

THE new Rules of Court relating to the Taxation of Bills of Costs have been published and on the whole they seem to have been framed in a fair spirit, but such rules are generally unpopular. The object of the public point of view. There is one clause which is bound to have a good effect and that Clause 10, which reads: "If in any case it shall appear to the Court or a Judge that costs have been improperly or without reasonable cause incurred, or that by reason of any undue delay in proceeding under any judgment or order, or of any misconduct or default of the Pleadar, any costs thereof incurred, have nevertheless proved fruitless to the person incurring the same, the Court or a Judge may call on the Pleadar by whom such costs have been incurred to satisfy British and German East Africa and the Congo under the most comfortable and satisfactory conditions."

not know whether this reserving judgment is common to judges administering the law or not, but we do know that it is adopted in British East Africa to an extraordinary degree.
AFTER considerable delay proper accommodation is now being provided at the High Court for the jury. On the last occasion when the services of the world were requested the jurymen were most uncomfortable several sitting with their backs to the judge and witness box. The new jury box is a handsome addition and lends dignity to the Court in question.

AT the Ordinary General Meeting of the Mombasa Chamber of Commerce several important questions were discussed including the proposed removal of the Heads of Departments to Nairobi. The Juba coil transaction reported in these columns last week was also discussed at length. Prior to the conclusion of the meeting, the chairman announced that the Annual General Meeting of the Chamber would be held in the first week of August. The report of the proceedings of the annual report would be read, and the Executive Committee's recommendations as to the alteration of the constitution of the Chamber would be settled.

CONSTRUCTIVE ORGANISATION.

(No. III.)

The next step in importance for re-organisation here with the Public Works Department and the Railway. It has been for many years apparent to those who have made any pretence of studying the political economy of our somewhat unfortunate State, that the separation of the Railway Works from the rest of our Public Works, in the matter of economy in buying alone, should be sufficient reason for the two departments to be merged into one. It is common knowledge that when a buyer is striking a bargain with a seller the magnitude of the transaction largely affects the price.

At present we have two departments each buying independently the same and through the orders eventually reach the Crown Agents it is seldom that they arrive together consequently two comparatively small jobs are purchased instead of one large lot with the result the Government loses the advantage of the lower price for the larger transaction.

Again in matters of administration we have a recommendation of several officials where the staff of one Department slightly augmented would suffice especially in this so in the Building and Engineering Department. Just prior to Sir Charles Eliot's resignation a movement was placed on foot a Foreign Office to join these two Departments and in the interim the Railway was largely occupied with construction work; if then the amalgamation appeared to be in the air it would have been the Administration how many more of the Railway and Public Works are almost entirely engaged on the needed work of the Department. It is not to be expected that the hundred other reasons for amalgamation can be entered into in the space of a newspaper article but it is certain economy and efficiency will result from the co-operative policy.

We have little fail to find with the present arrangement that in fact we cannot count on this policy being continued nor can we depend upon our present manager remaining with us permanently, there are many rumors in the railway world particularly in India and we must not be surprised if at any time one of these sums tempts away this present manager and leaves us to a new policy, under a new management.

The great temptation to any Manager of the Uganda Railway at the present time in the adoption of a policy of showing a profit at all hazards. We are indeed anxious to see a profit and a substantial one but not at the expense of the future and this is one of the principal reasons why we would advocate the creation of a Board to direct the policy of all the Public Works of the Protectorate. We do not propose that this Board should interfere in any way with executive work but it should occupy the position similar to that recently advised by the Select Committee appointed by the Cape Parliament.

The Board should be composed of The Commissioner of Public Works, the principal official member of the Board, and two non-official members of the Legislative Council, one of which non-official members should represent agricultural interests.

The general policy of Railway Management and other Public Works. Fixing rates and fares for all classes of traffic conveyed over the Railway.

The Estimates. The expenditure of any sum of money exceeding £1,000 in respect of any one work or service.

All expenditure proposed to be incurred on emergency work or repairs for which provision has not been made. All Contracts and Tenders of a value exceeding £200 by Departments to be entered into by the Departments. Any change in the organization of the Department, or any contract involving the abolition or change of offices of over £400 salary.

Alterations in the scale of salaries, wages, or bonus of employments. All matters in the Railway train service, both goods and passenger.

UGANDA. A TRUESNAKE STORY.

NATIVE'S DINNER.

Last week the survey party of the Telegraph construction had a lively half hour with a huge python. One of the men was in the act of stepping on the monster which could not be seen owing to the long grass when the Munyoro porters called him to retreat. It was a most difficult thing to kill the brute as he was laughing out with his tail in all directions when he was killed it was found that he had made a meal of a large buck which same buck was eaten with relish by the porters. The length of the python was over 15 feet.

A NATIVE PRESS.

For several years the C.M.S. missionaries have been desirous of publishing a vernacular magazine for the instruction of the native Christians but the opportunity did not present itself until the present year, when in January was issued a small magazine, entitled 'Egija' (the word 'Egija', the interpretation of which is 'News of Uganda').

THE FLOGGING INCIDENT APPEAL.

On Thursday the appeals of Ewart and Grogan and T. Gray against their conviction of being members of an unlawful assembly were heard before the Sessions Judge.

MR. W. A. BURR appeared for Mr. Gray and Mr. Allen for Mr. Grogan. Among the arguments put forward by Counsel for the appellants was that the Magistrate who tried the case was wrong in shelving the more serious charges with the view of disposing summarily of the case on the minor charges.

AN INTERESTING CASE.

Mombasa Town Magistrate's Court was occupied on Thursday and Friday with the trial of a Kavirondo man charged with the murder of a native servant of the British Consul-General of the Police. The original charge was of a breach of the Town Regulations and the more serious charge of assaulting the police in the execution of their duty. During the trial the case was referred to a Bench of the Magistrate and the Jury.

A Gharry Accident.

Result of no Brakes.

A bad accident, which might have been worse, occurred on the Mombasa train lines last Thursday morning. It appears a large truck of the F.W. Department used for carrying stone and other building material lost control on the Hill close to the Fort and with ever increased speed. Two European Government Passenger Gharry belonging to the Customs Department, the passenger gharry was smashed and the driver was injured. There is a law relating to brakeless gharry which is rigidly enforced if the owner happens to be a civilian. If the police do not see a motor car it must be taken that there are two laws one for Civilians and another for Governments Departments.

The Mombasa Chaplaincy.

In accordance with an invitation from the Bishop of Mombasa to the Mombasa European Community a number of residents attended at the Memorial Church on Monday evening last. The object of the gathering was to conclude the final details for the creation of a Chaplaincy for Mombasa as a part of the ordinary work of the Church Missionary Society. The meeting commenced with prayer and thereafter the Bishop addressed the present as to the history of the chaplaincy in Mombasa.

It is the policy of the Church Missionary Society that all members and his work should be as wide as his House of Parliament and the obscure is unknown. 'Fratres' 'sister' words are the words of the Christian's witness as well as a man's Conference.

The Conference was divided into three sections. The Missionaries of the Church of England of the Africans was the first dual which. This Council under the guidance of the European workers is trying to secure the self-supporting power of the African Christian, enclosing his hand in the arms of his Teachers and his Kings. It is gratifying to report that year by year forward progress is being made...

The Bishop in his opening address at the Holy Communion on the first day of Conference urged that there should be unity of heart, mind, purpose, will, a plenary of the common of God and in God, who sustained the country, who sustained the whole of the meetings.

REVIEW.

Our Ladies Column.

The Colonial Office Journal.—A new Journal, quarterly, containing interesting evidence and one which is of a strictly novel nature. The Journal is called the "Colonial Office Journal" and is edited by two Government Secretaries namely, Mr. H. H. Mercer, Colonial Officer, and Mr. W. H. Mercer, Colonial Officer. The Journal is published by the Colonial Office Agents who are not to be confused with the Agents mentioned in the Editorial Notes. It is stated that the main purpose of the Journal is to review the books and reports submitted to the Colonies and to discuss administrative questions of State for the Colonies has approved of its institution, but it is confined, and the editors and contributors are restricted to what is whatever it may contain. The Journal is supported by contributions and letters from Colonial Officers, and that questions which they are concerned with are freely discussed. The name of the writer, in accordance with the practice of the Press, will not be given. This appears to be desired. The Journal is not intended to be in any sense a newspaper, and the main purpose in referring to current political subjects will be to extract points of constitutional or administrative interest. It is proposed to devote the Journal largely to the systems of government of the various States and to the constitution of the Colonies, and the regulations and provisions by which colonial officers are governed. It is proposed to discuss manufacturing points will be discussed.

The first number is full of interesting articles in addition to Editorials. It is especially an important feature of the Journal is a feature which appears very largely to improve the work of the Government in the Colonies, a suggestion as to how to deal with the Income Tax which is being discussed on leave will be found helpful and in itself justify the spending of one shilling and sixpence for the price of the quarterly. For other persons letters are Halfway Notes, Notices, Business Notes, Reviews and Notices; Recent appointments in the Colonies; and a list of Colonial Officers on leave and as a proof of the official nature of this latter list we have turned to our own files where we find every name and title of Officers locally addressed are set forth with London addresses etc.

Among the articles is the report of Sir Graham Longden on native affairs. Sir Graham in this report comes as it does from one so conversant with the African natives that we propose to borrow extracts for our next issue and to give the Editor's expressed wish, viz. that the Press will make use of the Journal's contents.

BRIDGE.

(EDITED BY MATEO.)

PLAY TO THE SCORE.

In playing bridge, says Archibald Dunn there is one point which cannot be too much insisted on, and that is "playing to the score." After the game the winner of the match has the best of play and the high road to success. In what the importance of life is well known, but at bridge it is very much increased, as it not only affects the play of many cases, but actually settles, in a great many cases, what the trump suit shall be, and whether it is advisable to double or not. A player who ignores this score not only misses opportunities of winning games, but gives out of his way to lose them, and is consequently a most dangerous partner. Therefore, before picking up your cards, look at the score and play to it.

SOLUTION TO LAST WEEK'S PROBLEM.

A probably holds twelve 10 of trumps, king, knave of diamonds, and queen guarded in hearts. To justify his double he must hold the ace of clubs, and the high road may should hold the fourth best club, as A may only hold the ace and another, or possibly the ace here. A will win the trick, and lead a trump, drawing two for one, after which he has one. A will win the trick, and lead a trump, not a fear of the lead getting into Z's hands, as he is extremely careful in dummy may be forced to lead up to A in hearts, and can get in twice with a trump. This cannot be avoided, and A. B. will only lose the trick.
