DOWN SOUTH.

A Weekly Review of South African Affairs.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

Cape Town, March 13.

DEGREE DAY.

Degree day always arrives in the life of the South African student, and this year's ceremony has lacked nothing in the line of the usual magnificent features of the Vice-Chancellor's address to the students of the University. It is the first time since the war that the ceremony has been held in the presence of the Vice-Chancellor, who in education and dress was more in evidence than any other member of the college. (And indeed he had a record has been made in the history of the University of the Egyptian desert on the plains of Flanders and in the forests of France. They have been awarded degrees face to face by their university in actual fight than by their names and numbered whether in victory or misadventure; many have given up their lives for their country to maintain it.)

ITALIAN FRONT.

Autumn Operations.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

TRENTO AND JULIAN MOUNTS.

The principal operations of war, carried out in the period under consideration (September to December, 1916), may be regarded as belonging to three separate phases: the Valley of the Adige; the pre-emptive raid dominating the middle of the year; and the final counter-offensive in the Trentino, which was initiated in August by the conquest of the Cuneo west of the Valsona, and was continued by strong offensive action. These were inspired by a single and constant strategic objective which was to extend our occupation along the northern slopes of the Falles from north to south, and to permit a vigorous pressure on the enemy, in order to force him to retreat, and to permit, as far as practicable, the recovery of the Italian position.

The principal feature of our activities during this period was the initiative in the operations. This was evinced from the time of the Italian counter-offensive in the Trentino, which was initiated in August by the conquest of the Cuneo west of the Valsona, and was continued by strong offensive action. These were inspired by a single and constant strategic objective which was to extend our occupation along the northern slopes of the Falles from north to south, and to permit a vigorous pressure on the enemy, in order to force him to retreat, and to permit, as far as practicable, the recovery of the Italian position.

The enemy, in order to force him to retreat, and to permit, as far as practicable, the recovery of the Italian position. The enemy, in order to force him to retreat, and to permit, as far as practicable, the recovery of the Italian position.
