PROPOSED CURRENCY COMMITTEE AND THE PUBLIC.
CURRENCY WORRIES.
Kampala, July 28.
At a meeting of the Uganda Chamber of Commerce recently it was decided that a Committee be formed to enquire into Public Expenditure in Uganda is about to be formed, and the Chamber directed their Secretary to write to the Chief Secretary on the matter, asking that an opportunity should be given to the general public to serve the Government, and that such a Commission should not be entirely an Official Committee only.

The matter of a Bonded Warehouse for Kampala came before the meeting, but has been left over pending the reply of the Government on matters connected with the Customs.

The Chamber passed a strong resolution against any increase being made in the fees on registration at the Land Registry. The members considered that the present fees are too high as they stood, and were calculated to hinder development and place an undue tax on transfer of property.

Death of a European Lady.
It is with regret that we have to announce the death of Mrs. Schofield, wife of Mr. Schofield, Telegraph Department, which took place at Kampala from the effects of child-birth. The baby was still-born.

Trade Quiet.
Trade in the Bazaars and elsewhere is quiet. For all that an optimistic note prevails, and we are making the best possible out of trying circumstances.

Gincheon Prevalent.
There is certainly some sort of an epidemic of sickness abroad, and many people are down with ailments which they, from previous experience, cannot diagnose. Many cases of malaria are reported, and it is known that we have influenza amongst us, whilst odd cases of blackwater keep cropping up.

The Currency Debate.
As was to be expected, shilling pieces are being passed on to the unsuspecting natives in lieu of shillings. The 25 cent piece of a shilling is also passed in a simoni, and what between paper money of the shilling denomination and that of the rupee or the dollar we are fairly puzzled as to what the best of us find it all we can do to keep our temper in the circumstances. Conventionally, everything having to do with value is still reckoned as "Rupees," and to talk about shilling pieces when we haven't any in circulation, is very confusing and is always accompanied by the explanation of what cents we do mean.

Another Good Coffee Crop.
I have been told by a Toro Planter that a record crop is on the coffee trees of Mr. Outram's estate. Also it is interesting to note that his record crop is on trees which have been allowed to grow to unusual heights, some of which are described as being 15 feet high. Neither is the crop confined to high branches, as is sometimes the case, but is distributed all over the tree. This is not by any means a unique experience, and in the light of the controversy which takes place at the Planters' meeting on July 29, on the multi-stemmed principle of training coffee trees, it will be interesting to know if any comments will be made thereon. As this planter said to me (and others of experience here admit the improvement) we know very little about coffee growing, and we are still groping in the dark, though eventually we shall get there.

In some parts of the Toro District of coffee has suffered from the drought experienced there. For all that there are good crops in perspective.

C.M.S. Finance.
In the Annual Report for 1921 of the Uganda Mission (C.M.S.) there is a very interesting paragraph dealing with church finance. Says the Report:—"The country has been affected by the world-wide trade slump and exchange difficulties, and money is very scarce. The C.M.S. has been obliged to reduce all grants, and cut out entirely all estimates for buildings; Missionaries have had to be kept back and recruits held up. The diminished collections have resulted in a debt of 1000, on the Clergy Fund, while the debt on the Cathedral building fund still stands at 28,516."

The reverse picture, however, balances up things a bit.

"On the other hand," continues the Report, "Funds which are not dependent on collections show balances: the Secular Fund, derived largely from grants, had 1,600; in hand, the Clergy Sustentation Fund has 4,624; Kiryanga Estate, 2,800; and the Schools Fund, 2,400."

THE IRISH WAR

VALUABLE REVENUE THAT ARE LOST.
RUTHLESS DESTRUCTION.
(From Our Own Correspondent.)
London, July 29.

Civil War is now a new thing but there are times when it can be carried on with a surprising amount of restraint and decorum.

The Free State troops were not sent to save life and limb but to save the property of the British.

GAME AND DISEASE
A CHAMPION OF THE M'LIGNED ANIMALS.
THE FLY AREA.

In reply to a request for the latest information in regard to the relation that is generally supposed to exist between the spread of foot-and-mouth disease, Mr. A. Blayney, Provincial Game Warden, was good enough to give an E. A. Standard representative some interesting particulars.

It would take too long, he said, to go deeply into this very vexed question, but he would like to draw attention to one or two very interesting points that must not be overlooked when putting the blame on the game animals.

The chief fly areas of Kenya are not by any means the country where there is most game; as the coast in particular where fly is plentiful there is little beyond bush-buck and jackal in the game line.

UNEMPLOYMENT - DANCE.
In the Editor "E. A. Standard."
I shall be glad if you will make it known that the proceeds of the dance held on Saturday last...

There were two anonymous cash gifts—and our very grateful thanks are offered to the many ladies and gentlemen, both in Nairobi and on outstations, who have so kindly and generously given an infinite amount of time and trouble in collecting tickets and assisting with the arrangements.

Even the Labour leaders have this week publicly stated that the idea of an Irish Republic was not the cause of the trouble in the Channel Islands.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 3, 1922

THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT having been largely disposed of, with considerable satisfaction to the public as we believe, and the Secretary and Administration Votes being now the subjects of the very close attention of the Economic Committee the public are awaiting with considerable interest the action to be taken by that Committee in relation to the Medical Department. Honours in this connection are as a rule and as alarming as those that have been attached at various times by a public with little reliable information as to its disposal to other activities of the Committee. Rightly or wrongly we assume that the Medical Vote has not been finally disposed of by the Committee, and we desire to reiterate the hope in relation to it that we have expressed in regard to other Departments, that principles will be established or re-established rather than the mere surface expression of good or bad traditions. The Medical Department and its activities concern the public perhaps more than most members of the community realise, and the organisation of the Department is no less, but probably more, susceptible to the effect of changing times and circumstances than any other branch of the Administration. We refer in this connection at the moment to but one or two matters. In the early stages of this country's growth when the only doctors or almost the only doctors were overseas, there was good ground perhaps for according to these gentlemen the right to pursue private practice in addition to their official duties. That time has however, gone, though the practitioners the scheme as many but we enumerate here only the most prominent. The first of these is the desire that such external interests may do, in even the most zealous official doctor, to the attention he is able to devote to his primary and public office. We do not assert that in practice this danger is realised to any noticeable extent, but it is a danger that, easily removable as it is, should be removed, particularly as we believe the salaries of certain medical officials were based originally on a basis of compensation for foregoing private practice. The second objection is that under present conditions the principle of permitting public servants of this class to undertake outside enterprise is an example of government trading of the worst description. For, in recent years, practitioners have grown considerably in numbers, and they are faced with a degree of competition that is unduly keen for as it proceeds from men to whom private practice is an extra emolument and livelihood. For these reasons, and because as it becomes known at Home that official doctors are permitted to invade private preserves, the fact will not encourage more official doctors to come to the Colony; we submit that the method that permits the existing conditions of service must be revolutionised at once. A matter of wider appeal is the relation of the public to Government Hospitals and their staffs. The fees charged to the public who sustain the taxes required for their upkeep are, under present conditions, extremely heavy, and are in fact as we believe in theory an endowment of official patients. Free medical attendance to officials may or may not stand on a similar basis of bad logic and unsound economy with the principle of giving them free quarters. It becomes grossly inequitable and monstrous, in any case when private patients in a hospital to the upkeep of which their taxes contribute, should, while they are laid aside in hospital, be meted out to capable officials, whose arms capacity is unimpeded by illness, to get cheap attendance. The relation of Government Hospitals to the private practitioner, the method under which surgeons for private patients are decided upon, the incidence of fees for operations, the use by Government doctors of Government supplies for private operations and so forth, the principles and implications of official responsibility and its delegation through Missions and private doctors in the districts for the health of the natives, the ability of the Government to dispense with agents, and the duty of the Government, consistently with its equal duty to avoid a suspicion of trading in competition with chemists, to make available, under the advantageous conditions it is able to command, leading drugs for the welfare of all communities—all these are matters on which the Bowring Committee, if it is to effect the good that is expected of it, must consider early and closely. We trust it will not ignore these decision, and that of the construction of the railway to be carried out, without the full co-operation of the public world, who deeply appreciate the attention as to the work and are to be found to the through the railway.

THE PRESENT POSITION OF EUROPEAN CROPS.

Mr. A. H. Tol, representing W. F. Mellor & Co., London, has received from his principal the following Plax Market Report, dated July 9:

Business in Russian and Baltic Flax shows a further shrinkage during the past week, and Speculators have seemingly decided to arrest developments before increasing their stocks of raw material.

The extent of the rise paid by Consumers is roughly about 412 per cent, and the London Government whose stock has now been reduced to 1,000 tons, is presently quoting at 417 over the lowest price whereas they sold about the middle of May, while for Soviet Russian Flax an advance of between 410 and 415 per cent, according to descriptions offered, is being asked. The result of these quotations meantime has merely been to choke off business.

Crop reports from Russia are to the effect that more Flax has been sown than last year, but still the acreage is trifling as compared to a normal pre-war crop. In the Baltic States our people advise that the Flax crop is about 50 per cent more than last year and Latvia 25 per cent more. As against this, however, the carry-over of old crop flax this year in that part of the world will be very much less than it has been during the past two seasons. This coupled with the poor crop prospects in France, Belgium and Holland means that next Autumn there will be a greater scarcity of flax than has been the case since the spring of 1920, unless Russia is surprised everywhere by an exceptionally early and heavy crop, which is not to be expected.

AGRICULTURAL CENSUS, 1922.

The Editor will not hold himself responsible for the views or statements of his correspondents.

Unfortunally he must also undertake very much to improve "moments" from an entirely arbitrary date, i.e., 1st July, 1921.

In this date there is neither rhyme nor reason. As a consequence the officer retiring in 1919 is shown to have been in Kenya's bottomless sink; if retiring in 1921, he will have one year in which to squander money with a rapidity somewhat similar to that of the professional gambler, but without obtaining—in all probability—the fatted calf or other reward.

Stately the common-sense regulation would be to make the three-year period allowed for development start from the date of occupation. Theoretically this is a more equitable arrangement, as it takes the original scheme, as it makes the scheme self-closing on a given date. But its practical effects in many cases must be disastrous.

With respect to the original scheme, before the cessation of purchase price, the less said the better. 100 miles from the railway—charged with the intrinsic value of the land, and charged in the wilds of a country, where the freights on the land railway—had they been less—it would very effectually have prevented any agricultural produce from being sent to market, even locally.

A large number of ex-soldiers now returned to Eng and most feel that they labour under a deep sense of obligation to the authors of this atrocious scheme. The desire to follow the chief local industry of a colony—that of rubber-stitching—is much more evident in the original scheme than any desire to assist the ex-soldiers. The finger prints of Shylock, greed and short-sightedness, can be detected throughout this wretched and foolish fair.

Yours, etc., L. CARPENTER, Statistical Officer, Nairobi, August 2.

RHINGLES AND CORRUGATED IRON.

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard." Sir.—There is in my opinion a lot of its more piffle being spoken and written by interested persons on the advisability of taxing corrugated iron in order to enforce the use of shingles and to keep the money that would be spent in iron roofs in the country.

Can anyone explain to me why one of the leading saw mills in Nairobi, after building a large timber shed and roofing it with shingles a few years ago, stripped all the shingles off and replaced them with corrugated iron (the shed in question can be seen by anyone from up country entering Nairobi from the train).

Again a saw mill recently constructed in this district is conspicuous for miles round for its huge sheds roofed with corrugated iron. Single roofs don't exist although the iron has to be carted to the mill over very bad roads some 20 odd miles from the railway and shingles can be cut on the spot.

UNDEVELOPED LAND TAX.

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard." Sir.—There appears to be a considerable lack of knowledge and regard to the provisions of, and results to be obtained from, a tax on undeveloped land.

In order to encourage more intelligent criticism, either adverse or otherwise, than has recently appeared in the Press, I should be very grateful if you could spare a few extracts from the principal elements of the Land Tax Ordinance 1921.

As the original ordinance was published for public comment and criticism and the amended ordinance, which covers it in all but name into a tax on undeveloped land, was passed in open Council, there seems no adequate reason why the veil of secrecy with which the provisions seem now to be shrouded should not be lifted, and public attention once more be focused on the pigeon hole in which this ordinance now resides.

By the simple process of inserting into the exemptions in fact's bill the few words "all land beneficially occupied," the whole principle of the bill was altered, and for this reason it was recommended to Council by the Colonial Office in order to be introduced as a new measure with a new title.

"Beneficial occupation" for farmers consisted in carrying out to the value of 25 per cent of the unimproved value of the land, improvements being laid down in the Crown Lands Ordinance 1915, with the exception that the cost of a dwelling house could not represent more than 25 per cent of the total improvements. This concession was inserted in order to legislate for anyone who might wish to carry

A CHILD POET. Sometime ago, the E. A. Standard published some poems by the 11-year old daughter of an up-country settler. Below are some further verses by the young lady.

The Violet's Awakening. A violet lay sleeping beneath the dark ground. And all through the winter she slept snug and sound. But a bright little raindrop just tapped overhead, And whizzed and shaken, came out of your bed.

"Awaken, awaken, for Spring's driving near, Come lift up your small head to welcome her, dear." "Winter has fled, Lift up your head, Come lift up your head To welcome her, dear."

The violet awakened and shyly peeped out. A cuckoo was singing, the bees flew about. She put on a garment of blue and of green. And flew sweet and happy, to welcome her Queen.

Perfectly cut, designed on a strictly hygienic principle, the J.B. front-lacing Corset is the ideal model for the woman of to-day. The front-lacing principle allows perfect adjustment, brings the figure under perfect control, with the maximum of comfort and support. Every point that can make for comfort has been introduced in this new model. The closed back gives the fashionable and graceful figure line. Elastic girths under the arms allow free body movement, and the broad elastic web at the bottom of the skirt is an acquisition whose value is a fact.

Masterford construction has also been introduced in this new Model. This feature solves the problem of corset wear, as the back edge is reinforced by a double thickness of its own material, doubling the life of the Corset.

ITALIAN CRISIS

SIGNOR FACTA TO RETURN TO POWER.

SOCIALISTS ALMOST SUCCEEDED.

(KINSHASA SPECIAL'S AGENT.) Rome, July 30. A crisis has been produced by an unprecedented event. Signor Turati, the Socialist leader had an audience of the King after which the Socialists agreed to cooperate with the Constitutional Parties, but nevertheless declined to support a Cabinet in which the Fascist on the extreme right are represented. Consequently Signor Orlando has abandoned the task of forming a Cabinet. The Fascist and Socialist conflict at Ravenna has been renewed. The Fascist bombed and set on fire Byron Hall which was occupied by co-operative societies and subsequent street fighting resulted in the death of Signor Orlando. [BY COURTESY OF THE ROYAL ITALIAN CONSUL.] Rome, August 2. Signor Facta has succeeded in forming a Cabinet, including Signor Schusani as Foreign Minister. The following have accepted portfolios under Signor Facta: War Office—Signor Solera, who held the office of Treasurer under Signor Bonomi. Home Office—Signor Taddei, lately Minister of Turin. Treasury—Signor Paronzo, who was Under-Secretary of State in the Giolitti Ministry. Minister of Justice—Signor Alessi, who has many times been a member of different Cabinets. Secretary of State for the New Provinces—Signor Ludovico. All the other Ministers of the late Cabinet retain their portfolios, including Signor Schusani as Minister for Foreign Affairs, and Prof. Amendola, a prominent Italian journalist, as Secretary of State for the Colonies.

ITEMS FROM FRANCE

THE NEAR EAST

ANGLO-FRENCH AGREEMENT ON NEW QUESTION.

GREEK COMPLIANCE.

(KINSHASA SPECIAL'S AGENT.) London, July 31. It is authoritatively claimed that Great Britain and France have completely agreed in regard to steps to preserve the neutrality of Constantinople but a Greek military demonstration against the placid regarded in Downing Street as most improbable. The whole question of a Greek-Turk conflict is likely to be discussed by Mr. Lloyd George and M. Pinoteau on the occasion of the latter's visit to London. It is learned that the transfer of the 2nd Sussex Regiment from Malta to Constantinople is part of the regular transport programme and does not involve strengthening the garrison of Constantinople. In the House of Commons at question time Mr. Lloyd George stated that the same day that the Greek Note in regard to the occupation of Constantinople had been received the British representative at Athens in compliance with instructions from London, warned the Greek Government of the serious consequences of such a step. The Greek Foreign Minister in reply gave a positive assurance that there was no cause for alarm. The

LADY NORTHEY HOME

A SUCCESSFUL CHARITY SHOW AT THE THEATRE.

SOME NOVELTIES.

A crowded house witnessed at the Theatre Royal on Wednesday one of the very best variety entertainments that has ever been presented in Nairobi. The performance which was attended by His Excellency the Governor and Lady Northey was in aid of the Lady Northey Home, and should have benefited that establishment very materially. The programme opened with a "pas pourri" of dancing by the children of the Nairobi High School. The Dancers. It is a saying, true, but true that childhood comes only once, and memory remains and those of us who witnessed the happy dancing of the little ones on Wednesday night were transported back to the days when we, too, in all the beauty of first youth, found in "dressing up and acting," the joy of a great adventure. The glamour of the footlights has attracted us all at one time or another, and there is something that appeals even to the least sentimental amongst us in the earnest manner with which a child takes her part, makes her bow, advances and retreats in the steps of the dance, feeling, meanwhile that for a brief moment she is a star of the first magnitude.

GOVERNOR ON SAFARI

Discussion with Chiefs of Central Kavirondo

CENTRAL JALOO COUNCIL QUESTION

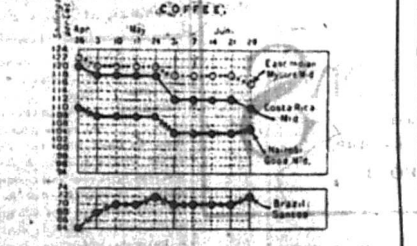

MADEO LIMITED LAND

The following is taken from an official statement relating to the barasa held by H. E. the Governor at Nyanjira Central Kavirondo, on July 7. After the presentation of medals to Chiefs, His Excellency suggested that the Chiefs should raise any questions on which they desired information and in reply to various points, stated as follows: Central Council. His Excellency wished to know the constitution of the proposed Council for all the Jaloo; where would it meet and who would attend? These things were easy to propose but difficult in practice. Would such a Council interfere with the D.C.'s Court? He did not consider that they had yet sufficiently thought over the matter. Two distinct ideas were to his mind, involved; (a) that of a rural advisory council and (b) that of a permanent Chief. He had no objection to the head chiefs of South and Central Kavirondo meeting and holding discussions and putting up suggestions. Large attendance, however, at these meetings was not desirable—chiefs and important people only should be present; each chief being the representative, at this council of his headman and people. He gathered that the questions to be discussed would be similar to those which were brought before him now. When this Council was first instituted, they should invite the Senior Commissioner to help and advise them. Once a quarter he himself had similar meetings of the Senior Commissioners, over which he did not preside but which he attended to listen. The question of a permanent chief was far more difficult. Uganda had been brought forward as an example, but was an entirely different country; there the chiefs were hereditary. Who would preside over their central council? He quite understood their desire to do more for themselves and especially their own people, but there was an English proverb that a child must walk before it runs. They would have to have a chairman. Whom would they appoint? He must remind them of Harry Thuku, who led to run before he could walk and fell over the cliff. They should learn to go pole-pole and should understand that they had much to learn about these things. Did they realize that it had taken over a thousand years for the white man to learn those things? The older chiefs must be very careful of the young men who had learnt a little and thought they knew everything. Mass Meetings must be stopped. He could not allow them. All the wishes of the younger and educated element should be brought before him but must be brought before him in the proper manner. Mass meetings were bad and dangerous and he would not have them. They must remember that all these questions came before him, but must come through the proper channels. No matter how busy he was, he would do the best he could for every man who wished to bring a question before him. He wished them to invite the Senior Commissioner and the District Commissioners of South and Central Kavirondo to listen to their central council's meetings. They must know that they had Mr. Wanjau's help. He wished to emphasize that the Senior Commissioner also would help any proposed chairman to learn his job. He anticipated difficulty over the installation of a chairman; as he had not met the Chiefs of Central Kavirondo would be appointed as chairman. He suggested that at first the Senior Commissioner should be invited to preside. (Continued on page 2)

GOVERNMENT EX

is to be leased for the detailed terms and conditions we must refer our readers to the Official Gazette, a publication read by the few rather than the many.

It may be due to the economy of the moment or it may be due to a mistaken impression that the Government publication is the best means of advertisement, but the fact remains that the advertising columns of the local press are ignored so far as an announcement of the proposed terms of a public commercial transaction are concerned.

There are doubtless many who see the Official Gazette but there are more, we believe, who do not. We are not seriously concerned with the business aspect of the question but we are immensely fascinated with the business acumen of the official who, looking back, has had the foresight to see that announcements in the Official Gazette have invariably been copied in the local press, on some occasions word for word, and have as a result, been conveyed to the general public without expense to the Government.

We cannot on this occasion or on any similar one in future, in regard, say, to Mazara or Kabete Farms, extend the hospitality of generous donors. The terms and conditions attached to the lease of the farm at Mazara which comprises something over 100 acres are however characterized by proposals that compel comment by their very folly, and in regard to these we cannot refrain from reference. Details, as we have said will be found in the Official Gazette and we refer the curious in those matters of official and agency to that organ. In the first instance the lease is for six months when the farm may be terminated and the farm put up to auction, or assigned for Government purposes. We cannot see that there is much likelihood of these terms being acceptable to European settlers, for the obvious impossibility of being able to accomplish any remunerative farming is a deterrent in itself, while the possibility of having to hand back the farm at a time when his six months' effort is beginning to show signs of bearing fruit is one that all thinking persons will keep before their mind's eye. No guarantee of a water supply is another of the attractions offered and those who have their Mazara, and the Government farm, will appreciate to the full the meaning and perversity of this stipulation. No reference is made to the fact that at the best of times one may much attention was paid to the upkeep of this farm, and that since it was closed down deterioration of plant life to a greater or less extent, must have taken place. We cannot but believe that the authorities, when the terms of tender were drawn up, intended or at least fully anticipated, that the future holder would be an Indian, an Arab or a Swahili, one who, with existing interests in the district might be disposed to pay a small sum for the exclusive right to the various tropical fruits that the farm might produce. In that case why not hand over the entire fruit of the Uganda Railway at a fixed sum or auction it and avoid the irritating parody of a proposition that intelligently made and conditioned might have some solid attractions, but which at present is neither a land owner's nor a fruit grower's advertisement.

A FIRE

DAMAGE OF ABOUT £100 DONE.

PROPERTY INSURED

A rather remarkable fire broke out during Wednesday night at the residence, on the Hill, of Mr. Cole, the local manager of the Royal Exchange Assurance Co., Ltd.

It appears that the occupants of the house retired to bed fairly early the previous evening, but were not alarmed until 6 o'clock the following morning, by the house-boy, who reported the fire.

The house, and the four walls of the house were of stone, so that the fire did not spread, but most of the furniture was destroyed, as was the flooring and other woodwork.

How the affair began, it would be hard to say, but it is surmised that it was caused by a spark from the grate in which a small fire had been left burning at night. The spark smouldered the carpet and set up a conflagration, which had continued without burning out. The fire was finally extinguished by means of buckets of water.

The damage done amounts to about £150 all told, and it is understood, covered by insurance.

REPEAT PERFORMANCES.

To the Editor "E. A. Standard."

Sir, A letter appears in your contemporary appealing for one or more repeat performances of "The New Boy" at half price. The appeal would appear justifiable in these bad times but I fear the writer has not sufficiently considered the pros and cons.

The public generally are probably aware of the very heavy expenses incurred in a production of this kind, the heaviest item being the cost of hiring the Theatre which is incurred each night, and were the piece in question repeated as suggested it is very doubtful whether expenses would be covered.

My experience in the past has been that, no matter how many nights are advertised, few performers have the thousands of seats available to half-empty houses on earlier nights because the public plan for the last night, and leave their booking till the last moment, with the result that a considerable number are unable to purchase seats.

One does not quite like to say "never this right" but as long as there are rows of empty seats at any of the advertised performances it is unwise to ask the performers to undertake repeat performances.

The Spanish Dance by Gerda Kopperud, Simultaneous Dance by A. and G. Kopperud, Katie Taylor, Rosemary Bates and Sheila Flynn, and the Dutch Dance by A. and G. Kopperud, Katie Taylor and J. Juretsky, all contributed to the greater enjoyment of a very pleasant evening.

If in the near future, as we may sincerely hope, our eyes are again regaled with the youthful ballet, we suggest that a little more expression, even an occasional smile on the faces of the dancers would greatly add to the pleasure of the entertainment. Such a serious row of small faces made one feel a sense of a dance which should not be present in a dance which is the essence of pleasure and joy.

A Poet's Point indeed, leaving with us a lingering fragrance of youth and all that is best and sweetest in our lives.

One great difficulty the children had to contend with was the change of accompanists, always a mistake, where dancing is concerned. The orchestra played very much too slowly, and in conducting them, their steps to the music the little ones lost much of the spontaneity which they exhibited in their previous performance.

Miss Adams is to be congratulated on the presence and imagination she displayed in her careful training.

"Chrysanthemum."

The second item of the performance was Mr. H. H. Thompson, assisted by Miss Malah Blackwell, Mr. Adams, and Mr. Schwartz, in "Chrysanthemum," a sketch in which, we believe, these excellent artists have been seen previously in Nairobi, though never so convincingly than on Wednesday. It has to be confessed, however, that its immediate sequence with the child dances somewhat detracted from the effect of the opening of the sketch. Mr. Blunt and Miss Blackwell seldom act so well when associated, and "Chrysanthemum" is one of the most complete instances of exact sympathy and harmony of talent.

There followed the Thika Players in the old domestic servant comedy "Between the Soup and the Savoury," which was an unequalled popular success. Mrs. T. B. Swift was the star, Frank Allport the parbrmaid, and Mrs. Rutherford became the kitchenmaid around whose destined fate the sketch revolved, at 24 hours' notice, in a most convincing performance. Miss Wade's inability to take it. She was a triumph: the pathos, awkwardness, pettiness, fun and absurdity of the linned white apron that proved the born actress; the parbrmaid was the very superior maid, and the cook the domestic of every self-respecting household with a healthy critical sense of their absence to those above stairs. The Thika Players have fixed their position in the theatrical firmament of Kenya.

A New Pierrot Troupe.

The last section of the performance introduced a new pierrot troupe comprising Miss Fuchs, Mesdames Franklin, Hyma and Taylor, Messrs. Austin, Hill and Sells. They, too, in a very lively and well-acted, and the only criticism is that the costumes were somewhat bizarre and gave to the ladies of the company especially an appearance of deformation. The additional black and white are still, it is suggested, must be the most attractive. The songs and dances were extremely well done, and the contribution of the party comprised two exceptionally good novelties, Mr. Sell's hammering of the saw producing several excellently played melodies, and the bottle orchestra with which their performance concluded. This new exhibition showed to many members of the audience for the first time the good things that can come out of empty whisky bottles. They must be seen again.

The evening as a whole went almost without a hitch, though one or two details should be guarded against in future performances. The lighting effects, unless in the hands of experts, are apt to lose their value and to become distracting; dogs still form part of the modern in the Theatre Royal; and the system of curtains and the method of handling bouquets and chocolates to the players leaves much to be desired.

During an interval, Mr. H. H. Schwartz, presiding in a very personable and successful manner a number of hand-painted programmes, depicting scenes from the children's dances, the gift of the "E. A. Standard." These included a very gratifying sum of Shs. 650 which went to the credit of the Lady Northey Home. The programmes, which were also presented by the "E. A. Standard," were sold in the auditorium by a number of local ladies.

and in fact all the seats have very heavy support of those who came to see the play. Yours, etc. ALGERNON H. SMITH, Nairobi, August 1.

DEED PLANS

THE CASE FOR RETENTION OF THE SYSTEM.

A SAFEGUARD.

The resolution of the Chamber of Commerce in favour of the continuation of Deed Plans of land (Growth and Leasehold) granted from the Crown and from Assignments of subdivisions of such land is one fraught with considerable danger and inconvenience if carried into effect.

Where there exists the great safeguard and convenience to the community of a survey and registration system such as we have in Kenya full advantage should be taken of the system and personal representation with identifying figures, angles, sides, etc. of the land affected by the grant or assignment should be available to the owner and to business men with whom he is dealing.

The principle that every title to his land shall have a plan clearly representing it should be maintained inviolable. The expense is not great and one who sells his land retains (and then enters with his consent) upon the owner. From a business point of view the advantage of the plan is considerable as the buyer or lender, at a glance, the situation, extent, boundaries, etc. of the land with which he is asked to deal, without the tiresome necessity of searching by himself, or an agent at the Survey Department. It may be added that if (as is done elsewhere) to the convenience and safety of those concerned, subdivisions of land when sold were laid off by the surveyor upon the plan of the land from which they are derived, it would be an inestimable boon to business men.

A Dangerous Proceeding.

The system of selling off subdivisions without deduction made on the original plan attached to the seller's title is distinctly dangerous, and improper use may easily be made of the system. The Deed Plan goes far to promote safety and clarity in land transactions and anything that promotes safety and clarity of tenure should be maintained as such. An owner's title should show exactly from time to time the full extent of official endorsement and laying-off of subdivisions upon the original plan of land. It is actually held under his title. One is confident of the convenience and safeguard which would be to business men.

The Real Trouble.

This question of Deed Plans is closely related to the inappropriate engineering system introduced into this Colony. To that system (which is the growth of utterly dissimilar conditions in Great Britain) and not to the Deed Plan is properly attributable the high cost of engineering in the Colony.

The Deed Plan should be maintained against all attacks as a great safeguard against misunderstanding and litigation.

Building Estates.

Where "building estates" are concerned the owner of the land, when adding the reserve price of the lot, takes into account as a matter of course the cost of survey and of subdivision diagrams which is allocated proportionately to several lots and actually is paid for by the buyer. The fact that a land speculator in building lots naturally desires to save himself initial expense in cutting up land is no argument whatever for an attack upon the Deed Plan and the principle of the Deed Plan. If the safeguard of the Deed Plan is eliminated from land transactions the day will arrive when buyers will fall into confusion with the cost of expensive and needless litigation.

plans but it would also prevent the natives from acquiring the land themselves. By the present arrangement their land was safe for all time. They did not understand the meaning of title deeds.

At a time when expenditure was being reduced, a demand for increased pay—either for Europeans or for natives—could not be entertained. The pay of the Europeans, including himself, being very greatly reduced. His own pay next year compared with last would be reduced by nearly a half and that of all other officers in the proportion. Under these circumstances they would see that it was quite impossible to increase the pay of officials. In order to reduce their tax, the other day, he had to find in some other way, a sum of nearly £200,000. A large part of this was found by reducing the European pay.

Maseno Limited.

The land had been granted by the Government to Maseno Limited for the benefit of the natives. By mistake, his personally held land was not understood, the Company would be able to sell the land if not previously preferred by Government. He personally was trying now to effect a change of what the question was not yet settled, and to keep the land for them.

Upkeep of Roads.

This question had been previously dealt with by Mr. Maxwell and His Excellency did not propose to discuss the question further.

Colony and Protectorate.

The C.N.C. had, at the previous baronet, answered their queries regarding the change from "protectorate" to "colony." He personally considered that it would be necessary to explain fully the changes introduced by the alteration of the name but the principal result had been that they were able to borrow money to build railways, etc. which when the country was a protectorate could not have been done.

As far as tenure of land was concerned they were much satisfied.

In conclusion, His Excellency repeated that it had given him great pleasure to meet them, and that he deeply regretted that he had been unable to come before them. Now that they had seen him he wished them to understand that all their troubles had had and would have his best attention. He was there to look after their interests.

Now that they had seen him he wished them to understand that all their troubles had had and would have his best attention. He was there to look after their interests.

He believed that the Karamoja, especially the Juba, had a great future in front of them if they would work out their own salvation on the lines of what he had said today. It was the Government's intention to help them in every possible way. He wished them especially the young men to understand that he would always come to listen to and to help them, but that everything must be done through the proper channels. Not only did their administrative officers spend their whole time looking after the Natives' interests, but in Mr. Tate they had an Officer who had spent his whole life in looking after the interests of and doing his best for natives. The best friend in the world was Mr. Montgomery; and anything they wished would be brought up by Mr. Montgomery to him. He hoped that they and the Chiefs of South Kavirondo would talk over all these things together with anything further they wanted and inform their District Commissioners who would put the question before him. He wished to thank the Juba Chiefs on behalf of the Government; whenever these two Chiefs walked about with their medals, others would know that the King had appreciated their loyalty. He felt quite sure that this loyalty they had always shown they would continue to show. His Excellency wished to thank them for their long attendance and careful attention. He believed they had had good rain, and felt sure that trade was improving and that that they would prosper, and wished better times were in store. He knew then all possible prosperity.

J.B. Mather
CORSETS

J.B. Mather Corsets are the latest invention of England's designer. In line and style they embody the latest idea in corset construction.

Particular attention is given to the new front-lacing models illustrated.

Particularly one, designed on a strictly hygienic principle, the J.B. front-lacing Corset is the ideal model for the woman of today. The front-lacing principle allows perfect adjustment, brings the upper portion perfect contact with the bosom and of comfort and support.

Every point that can make for comfort has been introduced in this new model. The closed back gives the fashionable and graceful figure line. Elastic girths under the arms allow free body movement, and the laced elastic web at the bottom of the skirt is an innovation whose comfort is a feature.

Masterful construction has also been introduced in this new model. This feature solves the problem of excess weight on the back, which is relieved by a double thickness of its own material, holding the life of the Corset.
