N. M. S. RALEIGH. UNITED STATES' OFFER OF ASSISTANCE. TEN MISSING.

(THROUGH BUREAU'S AGENCY.) London, August 11. The Admiralty announces that 10 men are missing from H.M.S. "Halahak," and are presumed to be dead.

Halifax, August 11. Six of the crew of H.M.S. Raleigh, which was on a gun-boat, are reported to be missing.

Washington, August 11. Admiral Sir W. Pakenham gratefully declined the United States Navy Department's offer of assistance for the H.M.S. Raleigh, as the personnel had landed safely.

Whoever or not they are danger to themselves, we are producing them. Every agency, be it Government, or commerce or philanthropy, which seeks to equip and train natives for work of a higher order than they can do without education, is contributing to their education.

IRELAND. NATIONAL FORCES OCCUPY CORK CITY. RAGING FIRES.

(THROUGH BUREAU'S AGENCY.) London, August 11. Step by step the Free State troops seem to be closing in on Cork and are assisted by the capture of Glomel, one of the strongest points in the irregular line.

All military barracks, Government House and other central buildings were enveloped in flames. The brunt of the fighting was borne by troops which landed at Passage West and who scattered a band of irregulars established in a line of posts within a short distance of the borders of the city.

It is reported that irregulars in Dublin attacked the Post Office last night, overtook the guard, and set fire to the building. Telegraphic communication with Dublin has ceased.

KENYA HIGHLANDS. An English Orchard Set in Equatorial Africa. THE HISTORY OF A GREAT PIBEER INDUSTRY.

Mr. Bromhead, in the fourth of his articles relate the story of the Mus Park Orchards. The large estate near Athi that Mr. and Mrs. Langridge have turned into a large and profitable English Orchard and flower garden, and describes the work at present proceeding there.

On the very highest point of the Mus Hills, that is east of Nairobi at a distance of about 35 miles, and at an altitude of 5,000 feet, is situated the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Langridge. These landowners had a large and profitable English Orchard and flower garden, and describes the work at present proceeding there.

Over the Plains. If one does not make out direct from Nairobi Athi River is the station at which to descend for Mus Hills. There are some 20 miles over the great rolling plain dotted with farms and, after the rains, spread with a sea of grass like a wheatfield ripening for harvest; a multitude that some day will give place to a forest.

An English Orchard. But it is in the orchard that the greatest interest comes, for there one continually comes across beautiful fruits that entirely upset all the preconceived ideas of newcomers as to what is possible in an equatorial country.

From the crest of the hills is the grand panorama of hundreds of square miles of virgin country with Kilimanjaro on the horizon; Nairobi in the distance; and a very narrow strip of sea, the Indian Ocean, stretching across the plain like a caterpillar some twenty miles away.

Its Own Climate. The climate on the Mus Hills is, keeping with its deep forest soil, peculiar to itself. Cool and fresh, with a gentle rainfall and an almost perfect absence of the malarial fever which is so common in the lowlands.

MARTIN'S APOLASTEE

The coffee grown on the slopes of Mt. Kenia is of poor quality and not so good as the coffee grown in the East African Colonies. It is a very inferior quality and is rather erratic in quality. As its taste is not compatible with the coffee, per excellence of Costa Rica and Jamaica, of its worth it is hardly saleable. Opinions are to a permanent and genuine raising of its quality, but the majority of the best informed seem to have distinctly to the view that it is capable of reaching and maintaining a very high level indeed. The bodies of shallow soil and frequent drought come now in a fair way to be overcome by scientific agriculture. A special collecting place for grading and for marketing export is very much needed, and the frequency of incomplete certificates of origin emphasizes this.

In Jamaica, the Blue Mountain coffee of the hills is probably the finest in the world, but the small capacity of growing it is now reached to such an extent that it is not available in large quantities.

The chief producing countries in the Empire are the following, their production in 1921-22 (in thousands of bags) being shown in parentheses:—British Africa (120); British West Indies (50); British East Indies (100).

The Fruit.
 At the present time he is planting plums as rapidly as he can turn out the young trees; and all his budding is done on his own stocks by Wakamba natives he has trained to the work. This fruit appeals to him for two reasons. It bears extremely heavily; he already has trees of four, five and six years of age that produce several hundred-weight of marketable fruit annually. And there is a constant demand for them either fresh, dried as prunes, or made into jam. The last process but one is now receiving attention on the estate and an attractive article, that will keep indefinitely, is being increasingly supplied to local consumers. First-rate jam is also being made.
 The fruiting seasons on Mwa Hills are as follows—and a careful perusal of them will show how much more prolonged and varied they are than those of fruit-growing countries, such as Australia, Canada and South-Africa, situated a long distance from the equator:—
 Apricots, November-December.
 Very early apples, November-December.
 Plums, November-March.
 Grapes, March. Pigs, March and April.
 Peaches, March and April.
 Pears, February and June (two seasons).
 Pineapples, February-April and June-August (two seasons).
 Main crop apples, June to March, and May to July (different kinds different seasons).
 Oranges, August to October.
 Limes and lemons all the year round.
Beginnings.
 It must not be supposed that this wonderful pioneer enterprise grew up by accident or has not required shrewd judgment and continuous endeavour on the part of its principal. Mr. Langridge began his labours in Kenya with the initial advantage of being a trained and practical agriculturist probably born and bred to the work. He was, indeed, on his way to British Columbia via South Africa, having participated in the Roor War and remained some years as a resident in the sub-continent; when he heard of Mombasa of the lion-shooting to be had in the Highlands. He left his ship for sporting reasons, with no idea of settling in the colony, fully intending to continue by a subsequent boat—and he is still here. He definitely states that he is never going any further afield and that he has put down his stakes on the Mwa Hills for good and all.

 Yet it was some years before he finally chose his orchard site. With cautious deliberation he watched conditions carefully before deciding, giving a sportman's life and experimenting with orchard farming in the meantime. For it is to be imagined that he, like other people had a load of prejudice against equatorial conditions to shake off before he got down to facts. Now he has made good after years of effort and expense, and those for whom this pioneer has broken the road will have a comparatively easy time to follow in his footsteps.
An American Testimony.
 All sorts of strange folk who have heard of Mwa Park, drift across that twenty miles of Altin Plain and ascend the great hills to see for themselves the miracle of an English orchard under the equator. No greater or more sincere testimony to his success has been paid to Mr. Langridge than that given by a quiet, long-headed American who turned up one day and claimed the privilege of the open-handed hospitality for which the estate is famous. He explained that he was from California and was just hobnobbing through Africa, looking for a place to settle himself, his wife and eleven children. After wandering alertly through the orchards for some hours he sought out Mr. Langridge, and asked for a business chat. When they had achieved privacy, he addressed his host as follows:—
 "Look here, my friend, I've just been seeing up the proposition of yours and I guess Burbank has been wasting his time down in California. I've never seen growth and promise to equal your exhibits in any other part of the world and I've decided to come in. Hyar's my wad, so shake hands and then give me aigger and ver mule shay and I'll jest hike off right now to Athi and wire the wife to come along with the family."

 Undoubtedly the answer wasn't looking for a partner. (He has the best of partners in his active help-mate, Mrs. Langridge). But he nevertheless regards the offer as the finest compliment on his work in Mwa Hills that he has ever had paid him.
 One more illuminating insight into Mr. Langridge's success is his attitude towards his trees. It is not too much to say that he loves them and believes they respond to that all organic things that human beings are intent on protecting and developing respond—to the power of the heart; to the kindly, general, brooding spirit combined with steady industry of the individual, that is revealed by that beautiful old English word—husbandman.
 There is undoubtedly something in the idea that a psychological effect on life is caused by benevolent, mentally-constructive attention. It has been noticed and even turned, I believe, into a rural motto in Ireland, that a watched pig is always fat. To paraphrase a beautiful quotation:—
 "He farmeth best who loveth best. All things both great and small. For the good God who watches us. He made and loves us all."

HOME ATHLETICS

ENTRAN PREPARED FOR OLYMPIC GAMES.

INTERNATIONAL MEETING.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
London, July 12.

It was believed that the holding of a triangular athletic meeting in London, Ireland, and Scotland, this year, might lead to the development of better-class men for the Olympic Games.

Our authorities recognize that British athletes do not get enough level competition, and efforts are now being made to alter this. Saturday's fixture at Hampden Park, Glasgow, was marred by a downpour of rain, which never allowed the sports to start. Under the circumstances, a crowd of 7000 was excellent, whilst the performances were generally above the standard.

A year ago at Belfast, the Scotch athletes were successful, but this time the English cracks almost carried the board, and that too without the help of Howard Baker. The second high-jump holder, Norrish, did not get into top speed so readily as L. C. Boyle and W. A. Hill of England, and though he passed the latter, Boyle led by a foot at the finish, the time being 10 3/5 secs. on grass. The pair did another great race in the four mile, when the placings were the same as in the 100, Boyle's time being 22 3/5 secs. The Surrey A.C. sprinter is a coming man and certainly deserves to be considered the best of the English sprinters.

Great Half Miles.

Early in the afternoon E. Mountray and C. Griffiths, who had taken a great race to the English half-mile championship, easily outpaced their rivals. Hopes of another great duel were not realized, however, as directly Mountray led the opposition had been broken off, he allowed up. Griffiths trotting past the post together, without racing in 2 mins 1 sec.

Later in the day Griffiths easily won the quarter in 51 3/5 secs. and with G. Hildred and W. M. Oatwell leading first and second in the five miles. England covered all along the line in the running events.

The long jump, shot-put, and hammer-throw also went to England, W. H. Childs securing the first prize with 22 feet 3 1/2 inches and B. S. Woods the shot with 61ft. 6in., whilst M. C. Nokes threw the hammer 160ft. Nine English won nine events, Scotland taking the high jump and Ireland the hammer. E. H. Smith and B. S. Woods tied in the former at 58 ft. 6in., whilst P. B. Gaby, the new English champion, fell at the last handle, when winning.

TO-DAY'S FOOTBALL.

REPLAY OF JOHN BOYES CUP.

GYMKHANA vs. RAILWAY.

The replay of the semi-final for the John Boyes Cup between Gymkhana and Railway, will be played to-day on Gymkhana ground. The following team will turn out for Gymkhana: Wood; Procter and Norrish; Webster, Cruden and Watson; Merriman, Tupman, Polham-Burn, Winter and Finca. Reserves: McCarthy and Beynon.

International Match: England v. Scotland.

The following players have been selected to play for "England" at Mombasa on 19th inst.:—Goal: Capt. Woods (Gymkhana). Backs: Hodge (Parklands), and Procter (Gymkhana). Half-Backs: Higginson (Mombasa), Bayley (Parklands), and Farquhar (Mombasa). Forwards: Merriman (Gymkhana), Mulholland (Parklands), Ibbott (K.A.B.), McEvoy (Nakuru), Mann (Gymkhana). Reserves: Winter (Gymkhana), Connell (Railway), Burton (Civil Service), Pearson (Railway).

Harry Edward, the coloured man who won the sprinting championship at the A.A.A. festival is a star in more ways than one. He competed in a sprint race at Cropton on Saturday and then hurried off to the local aerodrome where he boarded a flying machine for Paris. He had promised to compete at an international meeting at Colombo on Sunday and did not fulfil the best crossing.

Edward was beaten in the 100 metres by Lorrain of France, the time of 11 1/5 secs being slow for 100 yards. He ran better in the 200 metres (219 yards), winning from Mourion of France in 22 secs.

Another notable athlete competing was P. Nurmi of Finland who won two English championships recently. He outclassed his rivals in the three miles race at Colombo and ran the journey in the shortest time of 14 mins 22 secs. Another Finn in Hannes Kolehmainen, the Olympic Marathon champion, and a Belgian stayer defeated for second place in 15 mins 3 secs.

Cycling Championships.

Another of the National cycling championships for amateurs was held at the Fallowfield ground, Manchester, on Saturday, when G. Owen the brilliant local rider, added to his laurels. H. E. Ryan of London and A. White of Southampton were the other cracks who reached the final in which Owen won so decisively that his prospects for the coming world's championship look bright. He finished two clear lengths in front of Ryan, which is a big margin in a quarter.

DAVIS CUP

AUSTRALIA QUALIFIES FOR THE FINAL.

FRANCE DEFEATED.

[THEODORE BERTER'S AGENCY.]
Boston, Mass., August 12.

The Davis Cup contest between Australia and France was continued to-day. G. L. Patterson and P. O'Hara Wood (Australia) beat A. H. Gobert and Cochet (France) 6/0, 6/8, 4/6, 6/1, 10/8.

R. O. Anderson (Australia) is suffering with slight pneumonia, and is not participating in the games.

COUNTY CRICKET

MIDDLESEX THROUGED AT CANTERBURY.

YORKSHIRE WINS AGAIN.

London, August 11.

At Canterbury, Kent defeated Middlesex by six innings and 80 runs. For Kent, F. E. Woolley took 13 wickets for 70 runs. At Birmingham: Nottingham defeated Warwickshire in the first innings. For Nottingham, W. Patten scored 108 not out.

At Bristol: Yorkshire defeated Gloucestershire by six wickets. For Gloucestershire, C. Parker, who was taking his benefit for this match, took nine wickets for 36 runs in Yorkshire's first innings.

At Derby: Derbyshire and Essex drew the first innings not having been completed. For Essex, Mr. P. Perrin scored 100 not out. At Manchester: Lancashire defeated Hampshire on the first innings. At Leicester: Leicestershire defeated Glamorgan by 228. For Leicestershire Major Fowler scored 98.

At Derby: Owen also competed in a ten miles scratch race, but gave up at five miles. He is concentrating on speed and devoting attention to the "jump" or sudden effort, which the Continental cracks have brought to such perfection that in the past they sometimes "stole a march" on our men.

Owen has gained by his visit to Denmark, and the confidence derived from his victory against the Olympic champion (Peterson) is bound to help him at New Brighton.

DANGEROUS DESPATCH

Churchill and the Public of Kenya

IMMEDIATE DIFFICULTIES AND THEIR ORIGIN

IS POLICY GOING TO BE CHANGED

From the Secretary of State, Mr. Edward Churchill, a document has been received which carefully sets out the changes in essential details that all our eyes are of local importance.

Department's unreserved approval. Loss an "existing difficulty" than a step to a nearer goal the occupant and obstacle to which at the moment is Mr. Churchill himself.

An Alternative.

And since there are "existing difficulties" and since they have originated largely in Downing Street why not apply the remedies suggested locally under the regime now being terminated instead of changing the local regime?

Sir Robert Coryndon has had a distinguished career in the administration of native territories rather than in the development of new countries, and his experience gained elsewhere under his head will doubtless stand him in good stead in Kenya.

Why Discontinue?

The argument for the change from a Military to a Civil Governor has already been dealt with in these columns. It is sufficient to add that work has been done to do so.

BY DAND

OUR FUTURE RULERS AT SCHOOL AT LONDON.

ENCOURAGING PROGRESS.

There lies before us a copy of the third issue of "By Dand," the School Magazine of Kenya Grange, Lumbo, an institution that appears to continue to flourish thoughtfully and to meet the most exacting demands for Public School education in Darkest Africa.

Sport and Politics.

Greeks and Trojans met at many games, and a compromise is made with history in the sweeping success of the Greeks in Cricket, Football and Running against their equally severe defeat in Boxing and Shooting.

We are told that some of the young adepts—their names suggest hereditary talent—have been most original and have delivered their speeches with a certain amount of vigour.

The school is now on holiday till September 14, and the pupils are given a holiday competition in acquiring a collection of butterflies, birds' eggs, wild flowers, etc., and these collections are to be signed to form the nucleus of a Kenya Grange Museum.

A report of the "Parents Day" which has already appeared in the E.A. Standard, the youngsters' entertainment and of their fathers, at sport and art was most successful; while a later Boys' Concert is also reported.

Poole's Treasure.

(A short story by J. S. de Poer) I sat, steady on there, I'm hungry too, you know. It was Jim Buckle who spoke to his chum, Harry Stone, as they were going out from Fearedeale were going out from Fearedeale were going out from Fearedeale

TRADE COMMISSIONER

CHARGE OF FRONT BY LONDON PRESS.

A STERN FIGHT.

From Our Own Correspondent, London, July 23. The following appeared in The East African Standard in the week which has just arrived in London.

The Times' Amazed at Proposed Withdrawal.

Under the heading "A 10-10 grade Step," the Times Trade Supplement has the following: "We are amazed to learn that the Government have virtually decided to abolish the Post of British Trade Commissioner at Mombasa, Uganda, Tanganyika, and Zanzibar, by Colonel Franklin, who now has the mortification of knowing that the enthusiasm which he has put into the organisation of the British Trade Commissioner's Office at Nairobi is to be brought to naught by pay for officials in London! This step is to be taken almost synchronously with the appointment of an Indian Trade Commissioner at Mombasa, which serves to emphasize its unwisdom.

The only criticism I should like to make is to repeat the well-known proverb: "Fine words butter no parsnips."

When the Geddes Report recommended the suppression of certain posts in the British Empire, such as the one in East Africa, but the entire suppression of the Department of Overseas Trade, was there a single London paper of any sort which had a good reason to say for this momentous suggestion?

As a matter of fact, it was the smelly Dog's Head, which was most attacked by the Geddes Committee, merely because that body selected a page or two of small text which it had been carrying out a large scale of work, a suggestion which enabled the newspaper to sneer at the activities of a Department which dealt in shillings and pence.

They began to dig at once, and they soon heard the clug of iron against the ground, and Jim mounted back, while Harry pushed off on his bicycle for the police, who immediately turned up, and they had examined him, found out that he was a criminal.

AFRICAN ECONOMIC CRISIS

Important Analysis of Home Views on Kenya

A COERCED ATTACK ON EXPENDITURE

NO HOME ASSISTANCE FOR LOANS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

For a long time past a feeling has been organizing at the Home of Colonial policy which causes intense dissatisfaction. This is more especially the case with regard to East and West Africa.

No Home Assistance. It is probably quite true that many of these development works are needed—especially in the case of the smaller islands, but the present policy of the Government in almost every respect is ill-considered and those, therefore, in East Africa and Uganda who contemplate financial assistance from the Home Government should disabuse themselves of this idea as soon as possible.

A Coerced Attack.

It will be as well for both East and West Africa to realize that a coerced attack is about to be made on Government expenditure in both East and West Africa. The situation is far simpler than in East Africa. There the Colonists are generally more prosperous and it is thought that, with the reversal of the hitherto-existing economic policy, such as the abandonment of the Export Duties on minerals and the encouragement of native enterprise, this part of the British Empire may see increased prosperity.

Our Bankrupt Sales.

The case is quite different with regard to East Africa. Mr. Ormsby-Gore, who cannot be accused of being an extremist, generally does regard in the House that the Colony was bankrupt and he is finding a good deal of support for his view.

through the leg. The tramp fell to the ground, and Jim mounted back, while Harry pushed off on his bicycle for the police, who immediately turned up, and they had examined him, found out that he was a criminal.

MASENO, LIMITED.

To the Editor "E. A. Standard."

Sir.—On my return from safari at the close of last week I found interesting news from England dated July 6 in which a Director of Maseno Limited, categorically states that prior to June 3 the only proposal to sell the estate made by the Directors was to the C.M.S., and that since date up to July 6 the only proposal for sale was made to Government as suggested by friends of the Mission in Africa. Further, it is stated that "nothing was further from their thoughts than to sell in any way that would be prejudicial to the native interest."

Early in May, the late manager stated to several persons, including myself, that he had received a cable definitely instructing him to sell the estate if he could obtain a certain figure, but it is clear from the letter now received that this was a mistake on his part; possibly the cable got mistaken in transmission. Owing to his lamented decease it is impossible to clear this detail up at once, but in view of the feeling that has been expressed on the understanding that the land was to be sold in the open market it is only fair that the above statement of what the Directors have really done should be made public without delay, and personally I very much regret that the information we received here, which was evidently incorrect, led to such serious misinterpretations of the Directors' intentions.

Yours, etc.,
B. S. MOMBASA.

To the Editor "E. A. Standard."

Sir.—On reading the notice in the advertisement columns of your paper published by the Kenya Wine and Spirit Traders' Association, and also, Major Leonard's well-researched article my belief is confirmed and I come back to the old conclusion on that this country is suffering from:

(a) Too many Commissioners, Legislators, Associations, Unions and groups of other bodies too many to be detailed here.

With regard to (a) if instead of the amount of time wasted in tax people had to get down to work, and hard work as advised by H. E. better results would have been obtained.

With the increase of the Customs Duties Kenya acquired another body as described above, composed of Traders, obviously out to safeguard their interests, the aim of which according to authentic information, is to bring pressure on the Local Government. In other words it is in direct opposition to the new Fiscal Policy, which is tantamount to saying that the members of that Association are determined to see the Ordinance repealed.

All this sounds very well. But why fix the rates? Especially I am unable to fathom their reason. The crucial fact as it appears to me, is that as in all such cases the innocent suffer, so in this case the consumer (those with fat salaries and huge incomes excepted) who can hardly stand the trying times we are experiencing, is forced to look the bill.

In view of these frequent Government experiments of raising revenue and the resultant opposition from the respective sections of the community the question arises as to the necessity of having a Labour Organisation here, which would safeguard the interests of the working-man—an organisation which would take premier place to some of the existing bodies and certainly would prevent strangling the man in the street—I mean those coming under the category of Labour in the sense as applied to the Labour Party in the Mother Country. If that is impracticable then the only alternative is to sweep the present crowd at the next Elections.

With regard to (b), any student of local politics, bearing in mind the intricate political history of this country for the last two years will bear my statement out. Take the salient cases, such as the Currency chaos, the arbitrary interference in exchange, the Income Tax (introduced as the instance of the unworkable element which kept new capital out of the country), and the new Customs duties under the guise of Fiscal Policy. Unfortunately there is also the lamentable tendency of rushing Bills through the Council with the result that a stream of amendments appear in the "Official Gazette" within a short period.

As a case in point we have the new Customs Duties Bill, which was rushed through the Council without any reference to the Associated Chamber of Commerce, and without any opportunity being given to the public to discuss same. Major Leonard has now conclusively proved with facts and figures that the object of these Duties has been defeated. In fact, this result was foreseen before the Duties were actually in operation. It is my considered opinion that the death of this experiment is not far distant; will them at last these experiments cease?

Yours, etc. P. C.

THE EAST AFRICAN STANDARD

THURSDAY, AUGUST 17, 1922.

It doubt for Sir Robert Coryndon why more pain or difficulty or delay in the process of adaptation and adjustment than will be the experience of the people he comes to rule. The process will be softened and facilitated on both sides by an unreserved confidence the one in the other, by a joint determination to make good and by a recognition that difficulties are matters to be surmounted rather than to be mere occasions for blackening reputations and encouraging suspicion. Sir Robert Coryndon has an opportunity at the moment for effecting an auspicious entry to his administration of Kenya. Uganda has not accepted the recent amendments to the Kenya Customs tariff, and has exaggerated a difference that is dated mainly by the utter dissimilarity of conditions as between the two territories; representatives of the Chamber of Commerce in Nairobi yesterday met the Economic and Finance Committee in connection with the revision of the Customs Tariff, and will report to the Chamber to-day. An opportunity arises, which we cannot doubt will be welcomed by both parties, for communicating with the Government of Uganda, and inviting Sir Robert Coryndon, as Governor of Kenya, and Governor-elect of Uganda, and Governor-elect of Kenya, to interest himself before his departure from Uganda, in the possibility of effecting a compromise that will relieve the Customs Union from the disorganization that the necessities of Kenya and the freedom of Uganda have contrived to inflict upon it. Sir Robert Coryndon will doubtless be able to call to mind matters in which the assistance of Kenya may relieve Uganda, and which stand as a quid pro quo. We cannot at the moment suggest details of any such equivalent, but we are assured that any indication of any appropriate line conveyed by Sir Robert Coryndon would be welcomed with gladness and alacrity by the public of Kenya, and the manner of its submission, no matter what its ancient history if it were not a novel request, would go very far indeed to make its re-consideration less unwillling and less finally unanswerable to Uganda. The Customs Union is a very valuable asset to the two countries, and the very strongest endeavours should be made to retain it in undiminished force. We believe that no more happy inauguration of a Governorship from which we legitimately expect very much is conceivable.

(Continued from page 1) which either the most militaristic of Governors, or the wisest of civil administrators would be as foreign as was Sir Edward Northey and would demand credentials that are in no other measure apparent in any member of the Imperial Service.

He has been educated in Civil Administration. Familiarly with the requirements of a post and ability thus to serve it well is the potent but unwarmed ground of refusing promotion to Sir Charles Bowring. Why should it be the only declared excuse for the dismissal of Sir Edward Northey?

It is not for the public of Kenya to criticise the references in the Despatch to Sir Edward Northey's personal point of view of his future. The value as comfort of the perhaps unintended reminder that Sir Edward has lost four years' valuable military service may be assessed by any with imagination - and the quite gratuitous suggestion that a Governor would seek removal from a post on his conduct of which his Chief has seen fit to compliment him, because it entails too much work, is credible only when the temperament, the dangerous versatility and the history of the writer of the despatch are considered with some care.

KEEP SMILING

To His Excellency, Sir Edward Northey. Sir, These lines by Ella Wheeler Wilcox ought to cheer you up. Things are never as dark as they look. Smile a little, smile a little. As you go along. Not alone when life is pleasant. But when things are wrong. Care delights to see you frowning. Loves to bear you sigh. Turn a smiling face upon her - Quick the dame will fly. Smile a little, smile a little. All along the road. Every life must have its burden. Every heart its load. Why sit down in gloom and darkness. With your grief to sup? As you drink Fate's bitter tonic Smile across the cup.

Handour (Undeatable) Casement. Tussock, Saxe, Rose, Mauve, Green and Black, 50" wide. Shillings 4-6 per yard, upwards. Telephone No. 126 & 477.

Smile upon the troubled pilgrim. Whom you pain and meet; Prowns are thorns, and smiles are blossoms. Off for, woe's feet. Do not make the way seem harder by a sullen face; Smile a little, smile a little. Brighten up the place. Smile upon your undone labour; Not for one who grieves. O'er his task walks wealth or glory; He who smiles achieves. Though you meet with loss and sorrow. In the passing years. Smile a little, smile a little. Even through your tears. Yours, etc. "DISCUSS WITH THE WAY YOU ARE TAKEN." Nairobi, August 18.

DAILY WEATHER REPORT. Weather report for 24 hours ending 9 a.m. Wednesday: Mean absolute temperature 63 deg. Mean maximum temperature 74 deg. Minimum temperature 52 deg. Maximum temperature in sun 145 deg. Rainfall nil.

An Inquest. A short while ago the E. A. Standard reported an unfortunate accident in which a European lady resident in Nairobi had drunk a cup of Lyle's with disastrous effects. The lady has since died as a result of the accident and an inquest was held by the Resident Magistrate held by the coroner, after taking evidence from witnesses who were present at the inquest. It was found that the lady had taken a quantity of Lyle's which she had mistaken for gin and tonic.

A Letter from London

THE House of Commons this week had the Debate on the alleged dismissal of Sir Edward Northey, and as is always the case, vast crowds turned up to try and obtain admission, particularly the Americans, who seem to be present in London in very large numbers this year. Only the smallest percentage managed to obtain admission to hear the Prime Minister make a very long, very serious and rather laboured defence, in which he denied the various charges; declared that political honours were only a comparatively small percentage of honours, threw upon the House the responsibility of deciding whether the system awarding Party Honours should be abandoned, and finally offered a Royal Commission to investigate the whole question.

Other Problems. All these Excursions and Alarms are more or less engendered by the Press, which seizes any opportunity to attack the Government, the latest being a very vigorous campaign over the alleged deficiency in our Air strength. In Ireland, too, while the Free State are gradually establishing authority, and have cleared the insurgents out of all parts except Cork and Limerick, the policy of suppression adopted is rather weak, so much so that outrages are not punished as they ought to be. This may be policy, but it is not the policy of the British and Protestant sections, who are always the victims. This warfare will probably last a little longer than people think though it is exceedingly popular in Ireland, where the currency is being treated as robbery and plundered by men who seem to have no interest in life but to destroy and make themselves a general nuisance.

The Debate. Mr. Aquitt took much the same view, holding that contributions towards Party funds should not be a disqualification, but for having so far exceeded and exceeded that it was the duty of people who took politics seriously to contribute to the limit of their powers towards the Party Funds. Of course the Labour Party disapproved any such system. Up to this point the proceedings have been quite sane, but then Colonel Page Croft offered, when the Royal Commission was established, to give the names of six improper cases, and Mr. Ronald McNeill bitterly attacked Lord Waring not for personal corruption, but for having so far exceeded his business that the shareholders got little or nothing, while when an opportunity in the War occurred for doing Government work at the White City, he made off with a huge fortune for himself on this point. Lord Waring, who was occupying a seat in the Distinguished Strangers' Gallery, called out: "That is a false statement," but it was repeated that his action was out of order, and he left the Chamber.

Mr. McNeill then proceeded to attack Sir Archibald Williamson, who is now Lord Peres, suggesting that the agents of his firm traded with the enemy during the War on the Western Coast of South America, and that the Foreign Office regarded its conduct as notorious. Oddly enough, after Sir A. Shilley Benn had defended Sir Archibald Williamson and Mr. Austen Chamberlain had made the same for Lord Waring, the Debate was taken up by Lord Hugh Cecil. On the following day, Sir Robert Balfour, who is the head of the firm of Balfour, Williamson & Co., made a long personal statement in the House of a rather bitter nature on the personal attacks which had been made on his partner, denying them to be false, saying that the Government knew everything that had happened, and declaring that the charges were without the least foundation. Lord Peres made a precisely similar, if longer, statement in the House of Lords, while Lord Waring, declaring the White City business was solely carried on by his firm, not by himself, has come before the public on very much the same lines. Undoubtedly the most bitter nature of the personal attacks which had been made on his partner, denying them to be false, saying that the Government knew everything that had happened, and declaring that the charges were without the least foundation.

Society and Affairs. To read the newspapers of today you would not imagine that there was anything particularly wrong because they are wise enough not to lay too great stress on the gloomier side of life. At the same time it is not too entertaining. We had this week the divorce suit which is still being heard, of Lord Amptill's wife, against his wife, and the evidence throws a remarkable light upon the post-war Bohemian methods of existence. We have finished the trial of the murderers of Sir Henry Wilson, and they have been condemned to death, though the defence, a foregone conclusion, attracted little attention, the more so as the Judge did not allow a political oration, prepared by the prisoners, to be read in Court. Mr. Bottomley now announces that he will attack the House to oppose the Home Secretary's motion for his expulsion and it is rather pathetic that every Sunday paper is exploiting his career by buying reminiscences from his friends, and going through every detail of his life on generally "muck-rack" principles. Crime always seems to attract the public, who invariably criticise every judgment of a Judge, and some of any kind so give any decision of any kind which does not come under public discussion, either from the point of view of those who think he ought to go further, or those on the other hand, who consider he has gone too far in the direction of his punishment. The newspapers naturally join in to such an extent, that a single newspaper is now an amalgam of news, comment and pamphleteering, and it is very difficult to tell which is which.

Government Disintegration. This is one of the many signs of disintegration within the Government, though whether it is seriously attacked, it always seems to be able to hold its own. Three hundred members signed the Petition for a discussion on the subject, yet their opposition, whatever its strength may have been, stopped on the day. The whole agitation is really started on by the so-called Die-hard Party, who have just dismissed Lord Salisbury as their leader. They represent the older Conservatives, and under Lord Salisbury's bitterness is rather a novel thing. They cannot attack his policy. They cannot attack his person, because with much enthusiasm, because there are so many Unionists in the Government.

An Autumn Session. Parliament is expected to end on August 4, and it will only adjourn. There must be a long and strenuous Autumn Session, which will deal with the question of Ireland and possibly with the Reform Bill of the House of Lords. The Government programme on the latter subject is, however, still meeting with some opposition. They were with some enthusiasm, they were bitterly denounced by nearly every

CORRESPONDENCE

The Editor will not hold himself responsible for the views or statements of his correspondents.

HE'S RECALL. To the Editor, "E.A. Standard." Sir, - When I was packing my traps, two years ago, to go to East Africa, I received a letter of acquaintance, informing me that I would never again see you, and that I would be going to the Colonies. The information was inspiring, but I think I should have stopped to remember that my chosen Colony was under the guidance (sic) and control of Mr. Winston Churchill, himself the greatest political failure in modern political history. I should have changed my plans.

UNITED STATES TAKE THE DIAMOND SCULLS.

Milo. LENGLEIN'S TENNIS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Soldier Jones of Canada soon gained a place in English boxing circles, his happy smile and natural wit in the ring pleasing supporters of the fistie art. No one suggests that he is a finished boxer, but he can hit hard, whilst his tear-awful tactics are liable to upset many who stick to the orthodox. It was believed that he was meeting a man of a very like nature in George Cook of Australia, consequently when these two stalwart sons of the Empire entered the arena at Holland Park on Monday night there was a big attendance. The bout was staged by the National Sporting Club being the last of the season.

It was a clean and interesting encounter. There was little holding and no suggestion of foul tactics. Indeed it was such an important match, as indicated on such lines. Jones acted as though he were merely indulging in a training bout, so far as his conduct is concerned, the two were completely evenly matched. Frequently he stood in the centre of the ring, watching his opponent to his corner. It was really a good fight, and the expression of the Canadian and the nod of his head, as much as to say: "You are getting tired, old man, I shall get you soon."

After one hard rally when Cook was really groggy, Jones actually helped the Australian to his feet when the going signalled the end of the round.

So far as the scientific side of the encounter was concerned, Cook was the better man and he was at long range and also at close quarters, enclosed him to gain and retain a lead of points. Undoubtedly Jones expected to win by a knockout and from what we saw, he really should have secured. Quite early in the bout he took Cook shaking at the knees, but he gave in with no unusual tactics, changing all his positions probably have ended matters. It has been stated that Jones put his hand in his training and early in the bout he felt the impact, so much that he was afraid to put full power into his blows.

Many good judges who were present made a mistake in the early part of the usual tactics. They thought they were natural, but they were not. The Henley Regatta is a mistake. It is a mistake to think that a sculler has natural strength, he must hit cleanly and with correct timing. Cook's win on points puts him in line for another contest with Beckett and it will be a surprise should they have a return.

Henley Regatta
The racing at Henley Regatta this year was exceptional, and very close finishes being the order of the day. This was very unfortunate that the conditions were very unfavorable and the wind spoiling matters from the natural side of the river. The Henley Stewards had to seal the last year to meet expenses and a loss this year will be a heavy one, so that sportmen will have to rally round.

Chief interest naturally centred in the racing on the 2nd day, the "Norse" made a creditable showing in the Grand Challenge

Lawn Tennis.
Had matters been arranged, it would not have been possible to put a more interesting final at Wimbledon than the meeting of Milo. Lenglein of France, and Mrs. Malloy of the United States for the deciding match in the ladies' championship. A lot has been written and said since the French player lost reputation by the manner of her retirement, after being beaten in the first set against Mrs. Malloy in the American championship, last year. Illness was advanced as the excuse for her defeat, and after what we have seen at Wimbledon, it seems clear that Milo. Lenglein was not at her best when beaten by the Norwegian lady who has an American husband.

Milo. Lenglein has been brilliant at Wimbledon, and this particularly applies to the final. She showed no signs of stammering against Mrs. Malloy, and apart from her brilliancy, she was brimful of confidence. After winning with the utmost ease (6/2 and 6/0) it is only doing justice to the French woman to say that she outclassed her rival, and there can be little doubt that she is the greatest player ever seen among the fair sex.

The meeting of Gerard Patterson and J. O. Anderson in the semi-final of the men's singles was the other great thrill at Wimbledon. The two Australians are brilliant players and the struggle was worth of the occasion. Patterson easily won the opening set, but Anderson soon asserted himself and he was leading two sets to one after sixteen games. Patterson evidently thought a special effort was necessary after changing his shoes, he tried new tactics. Abandoning his aggressive play he set traps for his rival, trying to tempt him into taking risks.

The new method paid and winning the next two sets he secured the championship, the scores being 6-1 3-6 7-9 6-1 6-3. This indicated what a keen struggle it was, particularly the third set. Patterson won most largely in the final, and naturally won easily.

RIFLE SHOOTING

PRACTICES NOW IN FULL SWING.

On Sunday last, the first of a series of practices, primarily instituted for the encouragement of beginners, took place on the Nairobi Range. It was a pleasant meeting and the shooting was quite satisfactory.

Such practices are now a regular institution on Sunday mornings and it is hoped that beginners will take advantage of them.

On Sunday next "Grouping" will be continued at 100 yds. Individual "Grouping" is an exercise in firing a series of shots (usually five) at a definite aiming point without alteration of aim or sighting during the series. The term "grouping" is used to define the diagram made on the target by the series of shot holes. The value of such a group is determined by the relative closeness of the shot marks. It is measured by means of rings of various sizes, and points are allotted according to the size of the ring which will contain all the shots, or, when specially prescribed, all the shots but one which is called a "Wide shot."

"Grouping" practice is of great importance for the shooter, as it indicates approximately the error of the rifle, and gives information as to any constant fault of the firer.

K.A.R. Football Club.
There will be a practice match on the K.A.R. Ground on Friday, the 18th instant. Will all K.A.R. players please turn out. There will be a general meeting of the K.A.R. Football Club immediately after this match.

Parklands Cricket.
The following will represent Parklands Sports Club in a cricket match versus the Parklands Boys Club on Saturday on Parklands Ground. Play commences at 2 p.m.: J. MacDonald, D. Green, I. Davies, E. B. Donovan, E. Robinson, C. Ogilvie, Rev. A. C. Valdeu, V. A. Wiley, A. Newton, H. C. Willbourne and B. M. O'Keefe. Reserves: G. Logton and D. E. Morgan.

Parklands Sports.
Attention is drawn to an advertisement appearing in another column in which the Parklands Sports Club announce their intention of holding an athletic sports meeting on Saturday, October 14. Such meetings supply a long felt want, and it is hoped that athletes and the public generally will rally in support of this progressive club. It will be noticed that popular prices are being charged, namely 2s per event, and there should consequently be no doubt of a large field and in consequence some keen competitions.

INDIAN RULE.
AN AMERICAN'S IMPRESSIONS OF THE NEW ASSEMBLIES.
TALKERS AND WORKERS.

Sir Frederick Whyte, as one time a member of the House of Commons, and now President of the new Legislative Assembly of India, visited Mr. Claude H. Van Tyne, head of the Department of History in Michigan University, to visit India, and an account of that visit appears in the "Atlantic Monthly."

"I sat in the Bengal Legislative Council watching at their work the lawmakers for forty millions of people," writes Mr. Van Tyne. "In Delhi I listened for two weeks to the debates in the Legislative Assembly, and held converse with members of every faction in it. I talked with rajahs and maharajahs and nobles. I went with collectors and sub-divisional officers into villages, and there, through the kindness of some other local officer, asked questions of the assembled villagers. Into courts, high and low, into offices of collectors and commissioners, wherever Government touched the people, I went, in the hope that I might learn for myself the facts in the strangely complex problem of Indian politics."

A Contrast.

"When I saw the 'squalid splendour' of Benares, and passed down to the river bank through throngs of pilgrims who parted thinly before me when my guide (a miserable little rat, who would have passed unnoticed, alone) shouted, 'Make way for the Sahib,' I said to myself, can this timid, covering head ever hope to win and maintain self-reliance? But later at His Excellency's dinner at Government House in Lucknow, I walked among nobles and rajahs and maharajahs, glorious fellows, proud of carriage, with full-crested glittering eyes, dark, black alms, black, brightly ornamented, who dressed in long, close-fitting coats of smooth velvet, ornamented with gold chains, and whose hair heads were wrapped in rich dark turbans.

"I wondered, as I saw that standing right in front of me, whether the men were justified. Again, at 'Fortugal Lodge at Delhi, as I sat at the state dinner in honour of the Prince of Wales, and looked with admiration at the noble forms, and aristocratic bearing of rajahs and maharajahs, and famous Indian ministers of state, and noted their strong, dark faces, and receded from the previous day the long columns of splendid Punjab soldiers. I began to wonder and to admit that the problem of India has many aspects."

India's M.P.'s.

"To an American, an Indian legislative body is very entertaining and the most picturesque parliament in the world. The provincial councils I will let pass, but the Legislative Assembly at Delhi must be described. It was disappointing to find not over one third of the members present. It was overrun with chairmen. Some had offered a resolution against Government and then become alarmed; some did not wish to commit themselves on a vote that would make them unpopular; some refused to sacrifice private business to public interests; and others, I was told, were disgusted with the whole affair and thought it not worth the candle."

"I first noted the superficial aspects. Dark Indian faces greatly predominated; some black with white moustaches, some black with white beards, others just plain. There were eight white turbans, one gold embroidered, one red fez, two black ones, and one dark red and gold. One had a gold and red and white coat, and near him was a Hindu with a large V-shaped caste mark on his forehead. Circulating among them were men-pages, christians, whose red robes were gold trimmed and whose turbans were white with gold. Most prominent on the Government benches were Sir William Vincent, home member, and Malcolm Hailey, finance member. With them sat

Baron and Major, Indian members.

The President.

"Proceeding over them all, and with a hunched, black and gold-bordered turban, standing behind him, sat Sir Frederick Whyte. With all the dignity of the Speaker of the House of Commons, he sat in black robes, with a white cravat hanging six or eight inches from the white collar. A grey judge's wig topped Sir Frederick's graying hair, and his eyes, always dignified, but on occasions lighted up with a gleam which often preceded a dry humorous comment upon his ruling."

"Always fair and just, and sure of his House of Commons precedent, it's ruling are accepted with the most notable members said of the House with respectful and unreserved impartiality, with an austerity that is not oppressive, and an accessibility that cannot be presumed upon."

"His close, strong, firm voice, and his serene mind, always cool and unperturbed, compel confidence in his decisions. He has drilled and disciplined the embry parliament in the best traditions of the House of Commons. It will ever be indebted to him for leading the twig in the way that any parliamentary tree might take pride in being inclined."

"As one looks to the debates carried on, with few exceptions, in English—the only tongue which all understand—certain peculiarities come to the fore. Although the Government benches represent an unremovable executive on the one side, faced by a large opposition, the other there is manifest an eagerness to explain fully the Government's aims, and a strong desire to meet the opposition decisively if it be politically possible. Indeed, to my knowledge, there has been no direct sparring of the will of the majority since the new régime opened. The Indian member who at first came to the Legislature, thinking as they came from the decision whether they really did have anything, have been to gain confidence, to lose that confidence, to lose it, and to send Government home every time."

Business as Usual.

"One of the first speeches I heard was from the 'strong' Representative, telling Government for maintaining an army to protect it against its own people. I had expected to find the clashes chiefly between the Indian-elected members and the representatives of Government, backed by the European members; but the bitterest debate I found was between Mohammedans and Hindus on the resolution to withdraw martial law from the Malabar region. The Indians were afterwards plainly championed at the exhibition of their lack of real unity. Three or four declamatory were masters of relevant argument, and moderate of high order. There were unable to do more than read, monotonously written by their baboo secretaries. Such efforts were employed the House. The Madras members cheer all the highest debating talent, with Bombay next, and Bengal, a low third."

"Yet brilliant as was some of the oratory, and subtle as was some of the thought displayed by the members of the Assembly, I should not like the task of having to pick an Administration out of the body; they will need years of experience and drill before they can give the concentrated attention, the devotedness, the watchfulness, the devotion to duty, and day out attention which makes an efficient Administration."

The English bring new blood constantly from the investigating air of England. They, too, would lose force and vigour if they were to stay generation after generation in India."

A COMPROMISE WITH UGANDA

Spirit Taxes Meet with Approval.

A special general meeting of the Nairobi Chamber of Commerce...

The Report.

The Report stated.— The Report stated.— Our Committee will undertake...

The Committee reported at the beginning of May and submitted...

It is now announced that His Excellency after weighing the various statements submitted...

Lists of the assessments may be seen at the Office of the Treasury, Nairobi...

over, he thought, would be well advised to agree to the lower duties on the articles over which Uganda was in conflict...

In regard to spirits, brandy and gin, Major Ward put forward the following resolution...

In seconding, Mr. Jacobs said it had been revealed to them in evidence yesterday that the Government recognised that the proposed duty of 60 per cent would not produce the revenue that was expected...

A similar resolution was passed in regard to the items of salt, beer, and stout.

Turning to the item of tobacco and cigarettes, Mr. Schwartz proposed that it be recommended to the Economic and Finance Committee that an ad valorem duty be imposed instead of a specific duty...

The Nairobi Chamber of Commerce are in agreement with all other Chambers of Commerce in Eastern Africa, that a Customs Union embracing as much territory as possible in Eastern Africa, is essential to the trade and commerce of the territory...

Customs duties are interdependent upon railway rates. There is no getting about that. The amount of the charge possible in one direction, when the other principle factor that goes to form the total up-country landed cost, is unfixed...

and since these figures had been obtained competition had fallen. He did not see how they could argue that local timber required any further protection.

At the present moment people will not buy imported timber if they can obtain the necessary article locally. Continuing, Capt. Ward said it was important to consider the position as the Coast, Egitly or wrangly it was considered by the experts that local timber will not suit the purpose of some of the specifications, and imported timber is being used.

Mr. Davis remarked that he understood that the handbook of the timber industry was the high railway charges.

Mr. Aronson said many people were under a misapprehension in regard to the local timber industry. There was no timber concern in this country making a profit and unless they had some form of protection they would have to close down.

Mr. Jacobs thought generally speaking local industries should be protected. For ordinary building purposes the local timber was especially satisfactory, but it did not fulfil the requirements of the furniture trade, with which he was concerned.

Mr. Aronson's amendment was agreed to by 16 votes to seven. Capt. H. P. Ward said the next item was that of cement. The present duty was 10 per cent, ad valorem, and the Committee had agreed to a specific duty of Sh. 4 per 100 lb.

Mr. Tannahill moved that the rate of duty on cement be reduced to 20 per cent, ad valorem, and the Committee had agreed to a specific duty of Sh. 4 per 100 lb. Mr. Tannahill moved that the rate of duty on cement be reduced to 20 per cent, ad valorem, and the Committee had agreed to a specific duty of Sh. 4 per 100 lb.

much as possible. He thought that cement could stand the suggested amount on account of the needs of the country at present.

He moved the adoption of the suggested figure. Mr. England seconded. Mr. Moulton said that cement was a most important material for the country. Heavy duties would kill construction work, owing to the present price.

Mr. Green supported. Mr. Ashworth pointed out that a local industry had started for making cement bricks, and it was up to them to help local industry. This duty would affect it to a very great extent.

On being put to the vote, Mr. Moulton's amendment was lost, and Mr. Jacobs's motion approving of the suggested figure was carried with six dissentients.

Medical Preparations.— The question of medical preparations, other than those mentioned in other parts of the schedule, was then raised. The suggested duty was 50 per cent.

Mr. Ashworth carried with two dissentients. In regard to sugar, it was stated that it had been imported in bulk as jaggery at 15 per cent. It was now suggested at Sh. 12/ per 100 lb.

Mr. Jacobs said he would be in favour of the duty when the country was in a position to supply its own needs, but he thought it was too heavy at the present time. On being informed that the country would be able to supply its needs shortly, he said he would withdraw his objection, as if there was only a few months to go, people would start dumping before the duty went up.

Motor Spirit.— Mr. Galton-Fergus pointed out that the extension figures under the head of motor spirit were wrong. The intention was to reduce the revenue by £1,000. He moved that attention of the Committee be drawn to this.

Friday, August 18, 1922

The Nairobi Chamber of Commerce yesterday received the report of the deputation to the Economic and Finance Committee in connection with the proposed new Customs-Tariff. The terms of the meetings that have taken place have arisen from the very great and valuable opportunity that is afforded by the transfer of Sir Robert Coynon from Uganda to Kenya and the redemption of the scheme thus offered 'd' doing much to facilitate the co-ordination of the policy of the two countries on this matter. It does not mean, we gather, that the scheme is finally settled or will be immediately applied. The idea of haste is a powerful consideration in which we would give all possible weight and we would go far to adjust or reduce our local prejudices and to take swift decisions if need be in order to seize the valuable moment. But we have much ground for believing that it is not necessary in doing this to risk grave danger or to incur an immediate loss, as we believe, adequate.
