Two Local Poems. THE LAND OF HONEY.

Farewell to my pains, for beneath the plair.
The sun's hid his tropical beams.
My head is like lead, and I'm off to bed,
To the fairy land of dreams. I'll dream I'm afloat, in a fairy boat,

With a princess by my side; While the waves gleam bright in the soft light, As we gently drift with the tide.

il dream I'm seross, my good war horse. In the days of tournaments gay; That I've just laid down, the Victor's crows That proclaim her Queen of the day.

Wa will ride through the meads, on fairy stee As a knight and a princess should; the will not have a fear, since I am near, Of the dragon that lives in the wood I'll dream of a ball, in a stately hall,

And a waltz by a fairy band; il gaze on her face and not change my place To be crowned king of Fairyland. Il dream of a bride, of a knot being tried,

Alas! in the morn I shall wake with soorn, To find I'm a slave driven back: To find I'm a slave driven back:
And earn-my pay by spending the day,
In watching over the tricks of a black
