There has been a great increase in the sale of UPLANDS PICNIC HAMS.
In the last three months.
REASONS—(1) Because they have been well advertised.
(2) Because they have in consequence become better known.
Their description is repeated for the benefit of those who have not yet become buyers.
PICNIC HAMS—Possessing all the "Uplands" features—richness of flavor and consistency of quality, these are ideal for boiling and slicing, broiling, and a useful supplement for every meal of the day.

EXTREMES MEETING.
There is an old adage which declares that "extremes always meet" this may be paraphrased in another form, "traveling in a vicious circle."
Like the power of gravity, which makes all things fall to earth, however powerful the thrust away, or as a target, so do all extreme movements or phases of political science come back to the rebound and nature, or human nature, resumes the worst mode of cent towards the old terrible. According to Einstein's theory, nothing can travel faster than light, so if a politician were projected to exceed this limit it would cause to progress altogether and would indeed, appear to be moving the other way!
Likewise in political movements, the Russian revolutionists opposed Lenin's and economic rule, standing as liberty. The Bolsheviks took up the running and when they grasped the first thing they did was to abolish a free press and suppress those writings of people not of their way of thinking. But apparently the rebound is operating for they are smashing the idea of press freedom which they had ...No one, we think, will fail to admit that in the early days of the East African Protectorate the position of the Government was a most difficult one. It is a pity that conditions have altered of late years and yet the Government continues to "hang on" to a policy which is anything but beneficial to the advancement of the country.

What is no very pleasing Government for this reason, it is a Government which is anything but beneficial to the advancement of the country. It is a Government which is anything but beneficial to the advancement of the country. It is a Government which is anything but beneficial to the advancement of the country.

Another aspect of the case is that the Government developed policy known and in the past out of office. It is a Government which is anything but beneficial to the advancement of the country. Yet the one in a way is a human benefactor. It drives (collapsible) will never be a car. In the odd days the young man had to wear a special harness for himself and his expectant bride. Today he first saw enough for a motor-bike, which gives back the momentary period. A married man of any consequence—and who is his wife's mother himself—ought to acquire a car to be driven by himself. Handoffs he has two facilities, above of any machine. He has to keep one up on our expenditure and the other on domestic. He can run a house and a garage.

Before the advent of the car the doctor's bill used to be the chief expenditure on the part of the most successful class. Today there are two factors: the car and the doctor's bill. The car is a physical and other mechanical breakdown. And the two professional orders of evil have a great deal in common. Money looks pale when it has to be spent in this. The doctor is valued in case he recovers and the car is valued for its magnetic and powerful. The car won't start properly and the doctor's bill on top; the garage man examines the car, "inside" and says the "piston" wants greasing, the heart is slightly and its stomach waste anything. One can insure a person against death or accident, and one can insure a car, but it is not so easy to insure a man who would insure a car against going wrong in its own right. With the human eye, one can see the disease in the human body, but one cannot see the disease in the car before you get the money. The car is the only one that can be insured. One has as much chance to argue with a doctor in his white coat as one has to argue with a mechanic of length of his bill. They have both to pay you some.

We have been asked what is the difference between an ordinary round tin and a patent round vacuum tin.

The ordinary round tin contains tea and damp, hot air harmful to tea. The patent vacuum tin has tea in vacuum. It is the vacuum that preserves.

Actually, "Red Label" fine tea in the patent vacuum tin costs no more than ordinary tea in a square tin, and even costs less than ordinary tea in an ordinary round tin.

There you have the difference in a nut-shell.

Ask for Brooke Bond Tea

P.S.—Our usual motto, faded in the "Green Label" would have been "It is the quality that counts, not the price."

On your stand-if the tin on you key doesn't bear our registered "Red" or "Green" label, carefully reject it.

WE GUARANTEE CONTENTS OF EVERY TIN WE PACK.

TRADE PROSPECTS.

On the principle of the legend,
"When is Sister Anne coming" people in Nairobi and other commercial centres in Kenya are scanning the horizon eagerly for an appearance of that day of trade revival which everything points to being very near, but of which not even a small cloud of welcome doubt, or the very plain of depression, seems in evidence, except perhaps to a period of years of arduous, probably, arduous months has marked the very lowest of this little September may prepare have indicated some slight movement on the up-grade, but very slight. The local sugar, the capital largely has been the victim of very good prices, considerably above the normal, and the period of relative stagnation the people here who know Nairobi well have expected to pay between £1,000 to £2,000 for a large lot of land in the town's proximity.
The £100,000 from the sale of such land, the matter with the place is a commercial one. Others have also been made for the third year report year, as were a higher than a price for the land sold.
Yet a good deal of opinion is abundant despite the depression, that the optimism is well founded upon actually. The ray of hope comes from the very fact that in earlier times it used to be with with some show of reason that the Kenya estate simply reported on judged by water and not by steam.

Having promised themselves that So it matters little to them whether an Indian is a "strong" or a graduate with an education, and such men are to be a European in a kind of self-satisfaction, and believe. They are "impossible" because they won't recognize the unintelligible distinctions between the Asiatic and European. They compare themselves to Indians, and Suffragettes, and they are right in that, then, they are fighting for freedom and independence.
They fail to discern that the British movements were intended primarily—much as occasionally they are among the sections of India, and not racial conflicts. A whole of the race. Indeed to the Irish. Egypt to the Egyptian votes to women. No matter of votes would ever give equality between the European and the Asiatic. But the "impossible" think it would!

On the other hand the "impossible" side—of which Mr. Sturges does appear to be the best-regard the Indian. He says they have a better perspective than the same side of men in the world, but not appreciate has taught them to understand "impossible" for the "impossible" is their own mistake being, and we estimate it, that the Indian should seek to work hand in hand with the European, follow the same path, and not to colours without unity, for the which one side shall abhor. We all know that the Indian has just
of the Indian, but not to
as little inclination to work with the European as the same side. Any real Indian man of ability, even all the education that it is beyond to take care, English, and should the
to be able to do so. He
ability, even all the education
that it is beyond to take care,

might hope for making the heavy weight, but the other side and in his new machinery, having little or nothing for those hours of the town which have been a good market recently and are care of that, the second-hand worn out by hard times and hard times. Probably the fruits of this coming harvest report will mostly go the way of their immediate producers; but after all this harvest is made up to a number of likely to be sold to a number of that the present quiet times are but the only hope—the storm. It is reported that by the next two million steamers from England some 800 people are expected to land Mombasa; certainly the East Africa Coast is full up with thousands of people. In other words one might have expected that a full boat would be another shore of vessels returning from leave, but those who have official days are over. Business men have done it, really with that direction. They can't be all official now.

Having these facts and considerations in view and allowing for the general unsettled nature of all other things, to which Kenya is not immune, there still remains very evident signs that my countrymen, though really excited, are well, surely feel the spirit of revival, both in trade and outside it.

"THE TWO VOICES."

As revealed in the report, the of the result of a survey of the local Indian opinion among them is by no means unanimous. According to all indications, the Kenya Indians may be divided into two classes of opinion which may be defined as the "impossible" and the "impossible," the latter being predominantly due to the influence of professional opinion.
The "impossible" consists of those who believe, both in Kenya and in India, that the Indian is white and which is black.
They will not work and pretend themselves that people
