settlers in each district are quite capable of stating such their own case and if they have reason to believe that their advice and cooperation is required as regards any of the administration, they will be generously responsive and a feeling of mutual confidence will be trusted of conduct relationship and good final result. We believe that the Government already appreciate the fact because the Thompson Falls settlers are being encouraged to provide the facilities of an economic survey in support of their request for a loan and as the Railway authorities have very wisely made application (410,000) for compiling data in regard to possible extensions they would not say solemnly in answer upon the individual producers to the State. We want nothing of the nature of stipulation or display of anti-district rivalry, personalities or one-grudging simply a common sense co-operation between those who believe that a little forethought will in the future avoid much of the bitterness and disappointment now being shown on the Plateau.

A Needless Nuisance

PEOPLE who tolerate spoiled tea, do so needlessly.

Tea is at its best in the form of cardus brewing, or cardus tea-making, or both.

Cardus brewing will ruin the best of tea. Cardus buying may lead you to the tea that has deteriorated before you get it.

Be on the safe side by always getting Brooke Bond in the vacuum can. The vacuum-sealed cardus tea is in a container which sets to cause deterioration. This fine tea reaches you in the shape of perfection.

Empire Cotton.

THE SUDAN AND KENYA SUPPLIES.

The Kenya Market
In Kenya the field is more restricted than when people thought it to be generally, but the district capable of producing good quality crops is certainly more extensive. Chiefly they are the portions of the Kavirondo river around Lake Victoria, and on the Uganda border certain maize areas in the north of Mount Kenya and the Jambani and Ngari districts. The latter is the best, but the season of the rains is not so good a possibility. The Lamelaine in Kenya are not comparable with those in Uganda and Tanganyika, when the lower districts are not growing so well. The whole thing is to leave nothing to chance, but to be active and to be bold as well as to be prudent. The market is already being developed on a different time by rubber, and to some extent the rubber is a large source of revenue and a source of population. Indians and the Poll Tax
QUESTION RAISED IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS
In the House of Commons on May 13, 1934, Mr. H. H. Greenwood, Secretary of State for the Colonies, was asked by Mr. J. H. Thomas, Member of Parliament for the district of the East of England, whether he was aware that the Indian Government in Kenya were proposing to impose a poll tax on the Indian population of Kenya, and whether he was aware of the fact that the Indian Government in Kenya were proposing to impose a poll tax on the Indian population of Kenya, and whether he was aware of the fact that the Indian Government in Kenya were proposing to impose a poll tax on the Indian population of Kenya.
