As a result, the statement adds, of the irresponsible attitude of some Africans in the governing bodies and the need for law and order, the Government will use all means to be used to enforce respect of law and to ensure a continuation of the law.

The statement says— "The Government has made a statement in London on the 17th of August regarding the attitude of certain African politicians in Kenya who have been accused of having incited the African people to violence and the arrest of the members of the Kenya Government and the violation of the laws of the Colony. These statements have created a state of confusion and the responsibility of all those who are concerned with the maintenance of law and order in the Colony is to ensure that the Government is able to maintain the law and order in the Colony."

On the path of the Government of Kenya, it is stated, the Government of the United Kingdom has expressed its support for the Government of Kenya and its policy of self-government within the Commonwealth.

It is stated that the Government of Kenya has a right to be heard in the United Kingdom and that the Government of the United Kingdom has a duty to ensure that the Government of Kenya is able to maintain the law and order in the Colony. ENGLAND'S NEW SEASON TODAY

Teams—not players—take spotlight

ENGLISH football restarts today after one of the longest close seasons since the war. Transfers have been long, and those that were transacted have not involved any large sums.

The centre of interest in today's opening games, then, will not be so much in new players, but in new teams. How will the promoted and relegated clubs fare in their new divisions?

Canterbury took in Division 1 last year. How will they fare in the new Division 2? How will the 12 relegated clubs fare in the new divisions? How will the 12 relegated clubs fare in the new divisions? How will the 12 relegated clubs fare in the new divisions?

Transfer deals in one of the more important close-season transfers came from Luton. Luton City moved to Division 2, while the 12 relegated clubs were placed in Division 2.

4 lb. device beats sound barrier

HYDRAULIC POWER AID

BRITAIN has conquered sound barrier by using a device weighing 12 pounds of the world. This secret has been used by Group Captain John Cunningham, the famous night fighter pilot of war who has broken the sound barrier constantly this year. The device is a small hydraulic power aid. There is no usual thrill over the barrier in the case of this device. As soon as the speed nears that of sound—miles an hour—there is a slight increase in normal. There is no increase of speed, you are flying as high as the ground is nearly level.

Jet airliners may fetch £150 million

THE British Overseas Airways Corporation chairman, Sir Miles Thomas, said at Coventry on Saturday that North American operators of civil airlines were on the verge of signing on the dotted line for a fleet of British jet-propelled airliners.

Stating the report value of British jet aviation projects, he declared that it was likely to amount to £150 million in three or four years time.

The Comet jet airliner which left London Airport for Johannesburg on Saturday morning will have flown the total of 100,000 miles before it reaches South Africa today.

This total includes all the miles covered on training and development flying in addition to passenger carrying flights.

Captain has a busman's holiday

Taking a busman's holiday

DRIVING a bus on the maiden voyage of the new ship Uganda, in Captain D. M. Stuart, former Commander of the P. and O. fleet, who is paying his second visit to Mombasa.

Captain Stuart, who retired in 1948, was in command of the Uganda when she was the first British liner to cross the African tropics.

He is the first of travellers to be on the Uganda, most of the crew being British. He served the P. and O. line for 40 years and is now retired on returning to Britain after commanding the 25,000-ton Uganda on her maiden voyage to Australia.

When I heard the Uganda was coming out, I was a busman, I would like to take a busman's holiday.

Captain Stuart first went to sea in sailing ships and followed by training in the full-length liners and the first-class motor ship Port Jackson.

A rebuke for the complainant

An African office boy, Mulla Mulla, has been rebuked by a Mombasa court for complaining to the police about his employer's failure to pay him wages.

It was the case of Mulla Mulla, who had been employed as a boy for 12 years by Messrs. Commercial General Services of Balli, who on August 8th, paid of the 12 months' rent door borrowed the boy to look after some of the premises.

Sovereign-makers within law

The lawyers now want this principle applied to the money market and gold.

The case will make a decision by the House of Lords in London and therefore controlling it in the rest of the world. It is almost five times as large as the gold in the world. The value of the gold in the world is about 100,000 tons.

Facit gives you an extra brain. It leaves the mind of the operator free — not with intricate calculations! Division is automatic and multiplication semi-automatic.

Anybody can make mistakes—but not the Facit. Thanks to visible control of all functions of the FACIT NEA, there is no risk of miscalculations. Moreover FACIT NEA is foolproof. It simply refuses to act, if, by chance, you try to make an operation which might harm the machine.

Improvement in supplies of newsprint

THE United Nations Economic Commission and its specialised agencies are giving attention to the year to the problem of the world-wide shortage of newsprint. There are signs that an improvement is in sight.

A report recently prepared by the Economic Commission for Africa, by the United Nations Economic Commission for Africa, that the immediate situation regarding newsprint is good and that long-term prospects are optimistic.

At the moment, "it appears that the situation between supply and demand is satisfactory." An indication of this is the fact that newsprint is being imported into Africa and that sufficient quantities of pulpwood are available to meet Europe's requirements in 1956, the report also states the decline in pulp and paper prices.

One of the agencies most actively concerned with the problem in the East is the United Nations Economic Commission for Africa. It has a "Standard Oil of New Jersey" subsidiary in Africa, the "Standard Oil of California" and "Standard Oil of Texas".

Although certain questions are raised by the report, it is generally optimistic that newsprint supplies can be improved.

Three questions

At present the P.A.O. is working on a world survey. The Commission has been sent a questionnaire which will be studied by special reports.

The object of the survey is to discover the sources for pulp and paper in demand for pulp and paper in the various countries. It is also expected to report on what processes are available to make use of raw materials at present being produced.

The P.A.O. is also preparing lists of countries which offer reasonable possibilities for the establishment of pulp and paper factories.

France and Belgium are co-operating with the P.A.O. in studying the prospects of pulp production in Africa. (Editorial note: Africa.)

"I DO LOVE BEDTIME..."

WHY THE "CASH-AND-CARRY" SYSTEM DOESN'T WORK

NAIROBI grocers have been about the reasons why customers do not pay cash—which has forced the increasing demand of the cash-and-carry grocery stores of the East African Co-operative Society Nairobi. The answer they say is simple—just plain extravagance and imprudence.

"The trouble is that people do not like to pay for their groceries," says one of the grocers. "They buy on credit and they draw down." Another says, "They buy on credit and they draw down." Another says, "They buy on credit and they draw down."

Tell-tale books

His books, he said, would have been in the hands of the grocer who had played in the past grocery business.

True, the majority of his customers average $25 to $30 for each bill, but he said more than $10 for all of that would be a great economy.

Average income

OTHER people, however, which show an exact average of $12 a head for the family of $100000 on a turnover of $100000 a month. The other figures are for the average family of $100000 on a turnover of $100000 a month.

WHY THE "CASH-AND-CARRY" SYSTEM DOESN'T WORK

For this article BOB HAYWARD set out to discover the opinion of the grocery trade as to why customers do not like to pay cash.

both of give less in the month that he has been in the business. Our prices are controlled down to a point which is not in the result.

And it is not only the grocer who has to pay for the cash-and-carry system. The grocer who has to pay for the cash-and-carry system. The grocer who has to pay for the cash-and-carry system.

Overheads

I COULD get my overheads down to 10 per cent, but the grocer would have to take the loss.

STOCK MARKET BRICHTER

Tide may be turning

SEVERAL FACTORS LEAD TO IMPROVED TONE

THE London Stock Market has shown a marked improvement over the last few days and brokers are hopeful that the turn has been reached. For weeks, buyers and sellers have been in a tug-of-war, and prices often did not move with the tide — have often drifted and they have purchased.

Following the market has shown a sudden improvement, led by gil-gilged, is due to a number of things. For one, stamps and bonds are nearly always "overdone" and the market has been selling off.

What is a Square Engine?

A "Square Engine" is an engine in which the diameter of the cylinder bore is equal to the length of the piston stroke.

In the new Vauxhall power units the bore (3 in.) is actually greater than the stroke (2 7/8 in.), so that, in the modern idiom, the new Vauxhall Vauxh is an OVER-SQUARE engine.

For 26 years, the shape of British motor car engines was influenced by the B.A.C. horse power rating used as a basis for taxation. Neither a true measure of power nor of capacity, this formula was based on the bore of the engine and the number of cylinders. Length of stroke was excluded from the calculation. As a result the horse power tax encouraged the development of small-bore, high-stroke engines in British motor cars. long after the rest of the world had moved towards a more logical and natural bore-stroke ratio. Development work on the new Vauxhall engines had started before the abandonment of the horse power tax. The new engines are loaded by a searching and rigorous test programme, and their designs incorporate the latest ideas in modern passenger car practice.

SWISS RADIO PLANS SERIES ABOUT KENYA

SWISS RADIO will soon be broadcasting a series of feature reports on the way of life in Kenya, ranging from the story of the White settlers to an account of the African tribes and their customs. The reports will be prepared by a man-and-wife journalist team who left the African tour one and a half years ago.

The team consists of Charlotte Leuenberger, who has been the first to visit Kenya, and her husband, Hans Leuenberger, a well-known travel experimenter. They returned to Europe with a wealth of material from their trip to the Red Sea and the East African coast, including a map of the Red Sea and a series of water and soap in the East African region. They have been travelling in the East African region for about six months, writing reports, brochures and documents. They also have a collection of films, photographs and a book on the East African region. Support for action on land problem

TANGANYIKA WHITE PAPER

MEMBERS of all racial groups in the Tanganyika Legislative Council, African and European, yesterday gave their support to the Government White Paper on the Meru land problem, which has been presented to the Council by the Government.

The White Paper was presented by the Government Minister for Lands and Survey, Mr. J. B. Stewart, who made an address from the Government benches.

It is the intention of the Government to purchase the Meru land and to divide it into small plots for sale to the public through the Meru Land Development Corporation. The Corporation will be responsible for the development of the land and for the sale of the plots.

The White Paper also contains proposals for the improvement of the Meru land and for the development of the Meru area.

The Government has been successful in its appeal to the members of the Council, who have all expressed their support for the Government's proposals.

THIS WAS THE SHOW THAT THE QUEEN SHOULD HAVE SEEN

By Brian Parkes

IN the ranks of The King's African Rifles and other fighting units in East Africa Command, the outlook is no longer the plodding, ignorant African that you might imagine him to be. He is a fully trained infantryman, and according to many of his officers, just as competent at his job as a British National Serviceman.

Some officers from service armies are so impressed that they will take back that impression to their own countries. For they have seen—a demonstration, held in the presence of the Queen—this year by the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, who also took part in what has now become a regular feature of the army's activities, what has now become a regular feature of the army's activities.

These visitors to the show? First the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, then the Duke of Edinburgh and the Queen.

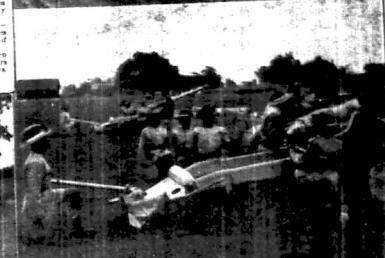

Convinced that the modern weapons in service in the colonies of the three-branch motor development—and their improved target.

Drill is not forgotten by the modern African. He has British equipment, ready to die as an unexcused and the smartest face of any land anywhere.

It is up and down in the picture that he is well up to the officers of the modern army, which sometimes are equipped with a 100-mile East African artillery.

And had to show that these modern rifles have no forgotten their old methods of waging war, the officers of the modern army.

continued: "On what my life will take to their own and yours. They still like to shoot game that way."

THE FRIDAY MISCELLANY

The Modern Bakery

The Modern Bakery bears more resemblance to the engine room of a luxury liner. Gleaming machinery and glittering levers, combined with the skill of the master baker, turn out thousands of loaves of bread daily—most identical in weight, contents and appearance. Such uniformity is only made possible by mechanization, and the Cyclotron Traveling Plate Oven which is daily one of Elliott's—travelling one of its kind in East Africa.

The Accent Is On Antiquity

THIS week's house, situated at a distance of 100 miles to the well-known Nairobi International Hotel, has long been resident in the Colony—Mr J. H. Dromgoole.

It is simply half of an old house, the original work and white in the British style and from which a large part of the material of which there is a special note is derived.

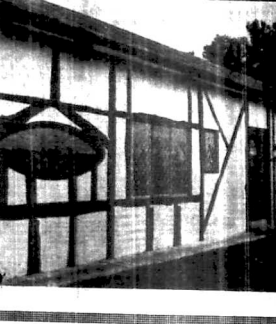

ONE of the many interesting features of the house is the "spider" window of stained wooden panes set in the lattice. Below, for interior lighting use.

Two carriage lamps are set either side of the entrance and are used for interior lighting use.

The main part of the house was intended to be a temporary African labour—so much that the decorative work is a temporary job. The stone-built dining-room, however, is permanent.

One feature that brings the impression of an immense is emphasized by the high fireplace. Here, through a copper warming pan, is burning a coal set of rare old brass. The house is furnished with the best of the best. At the end of the lounge a handsome Wainwright dresser holds an array of china, porcelain, and silver. A fine old Wainwright kitchen table with a top made of a single piece of wood is a fine example of the work of the period here, from the Louis XV. The dining room is furnished with a handsome Wainwright table, a pair of chairs, and a pair of chairs. The dining room is furnished with a handsome Wainwright table, a pair of chairs, and a pair of chairs.

THROUGH the archway into the dining-room, which has a family atmosphere, are the main living room, a large bedroom, and a bathroom. The living room is furnished with a handsome Wainwright table, a pair of chairs, and a pair of chairs. The bedroom is furnished with a handsome Wainwright bedstead, a pair of chairs, and a pair of chairs. The bathroom is furnished with a handsome Wainwright washstand, a pair of chairs, and a pair of chairs.

Then I saw an advertisement for Valderma and I bought some. I used it for a few days and the rash went away. I can sleep now and I am very happy.

See how quickly Valderma relieves even the most stubborn and severe skin rash.

MYCALEX THE INSULATOR For Perfect Electrical Insulation HISTORY

'Mycalex' is a trade name for glass-bonded mica insulation made under world-wide patents both in regard to its manufacture and composition. The original product was invented in 1919 by a Chemist employed by Hoare Miller and Co. Ltd. of the mica mines in India who are still associated with the company. This product is made of mica which is bonded with glass and impregnated with a special electrical quality compound with mechanical strength. After many experiments, it was found that an excellent electrical insulator could be made by means of a combination of heat and pressure using special powdered glass and finely ground mica. Further developments produced a material which was machineable and this was followed later by a modified material which was mouldable by the transfer or injection moulding process and the present day Mycalex dist. net insulating materials needed for the various and exacting requirements of the modern installation.

BEST RESULTS IN RETROSPECT

Where the Indian side fell short

By Peter Dittell

WITNESS the manner of the English cricket team's defeat by this title, and you will understand why the Indian side was so completely defeated. The English team, which included the best of the world's batsmen, bowlers and fast bowlers, was defeated by a team of players who were not only strong in the first class but also in the second class and 300 runs in first class of India.

They were making a mistake for the fact that they were not prepared to meet the Indian side on their own ground. The Indian side was a very strong side and the English team was not prepared to meet them on their own ground. The Indian side was a very strong side and the English team was not prepared to meet them on their own ground.

What they lacked

The English team was not prepared to meet the Indian side on their own ground. The Indian side was a very strong side and the English team was not prepared to meet them on their own ground.

No rash chances

The English team was not prepared to meet the Indian side on their own ground. The Indian side was a very strong side and the English team was not prepared to meet them on their own ground.

The English team was not prepared to meet the Indian side on their own ground. The Indian side was a very strong side and the English team was not prepared to meet them on their own ground.

Close again finds his true form

FEW young cricketers achieve such greatness in their first season as that of Brian Close, though. The six-foot, powerful Yorkshireman completed the 'double' of 1,000 runs and 100 wickets in his first season in 1950.

He was selected to play for England against New Zealand in the third Test, and became the youngest player ever to represent his country. This was before he had won his county cap.

He was then selected for the MCC tour of Australia, under the captaincy of F. E. Brooks, and played in the second Test match.

That there are hints even to the captaincy of the greatest cricketers and, as it was, not actually named to the side for the first three months of continuous cricket.

Almost forgotten

Almost a forgotten man, he remained to be called on for England in 1951. This season, his service cricket was a great help, but he was not selected for the first Test against Australia. He was not selected for the first Test against Australia.

Intelligent approach to boxing

BOXING is different as a speculative sport from any other. In football the field is the ball, and the crowd knows it is a goal. In cricket, a batsman cracks the ball to the boundary and spectators do not have to consult the scoreboard to know that it is four runs.

In boxing, however, there are not always such clear-cut indications of a knockout. The spectators are extremely interested in the choice of a referee to judge who is winning a fight.
