The rationing of flour is not so strict as it was in the previous year. Many people are still buying flour in bulk, and the rationing of flour is not so strict as it was in the previous year.

FARMERS REPAIR NOW FOR A YEAR THAT WILL BE TOUGH

NO MAN can bid himself about the world that is coming up. It will be a hard year—tough and dangerous for the Armed Forces—tough for the men and women on the farms.

Every farmer wants to make good in a big production year for Agriculture. His own livelihood demands it and the life of the country is at stake. He knows that machinery will be short. He knows that new machines will be very scarce and hard to get.

What can he do to prepare? What can YOU do? Because that is what counts, the country over! The most practical thing that you can do is to put every piece of your equipment in shape for its maximum use when the time comes. Go over your machines now, while all your heads are fresh in mind. List the worn parts, list the work needed, check up on all services, weaknesses in your tractor, machines, and tools; put workable, disused implements back on the job. Dedicate your equipment—pledged to Victory!

Remember spare parts are also scarce. Don't wait until the machine is broken before you order. It may be possible to have your old part reconditioned in case your one is not available, but this requires time. ACT NOW and save delay in the field later.

"Good equipment makes a good farmer better"

WOODMAN, SPARE THAT TREE!

A SONG which was popular a little time ago both on the radio and on the concert platform, made the rather self-evident statement that only God can make a tree. Sentimentality and 'trepreneur' are not, however, in any circumstances to be considered as a class like other plants.

The period of growth and their time of life is very long. They are not so fastidious as we are. They are not so easily killed as we are. They are not so easily killed as we are. They are not so easily killed as we are.

Prior to the coming of the European, forty or fifty years ago, the destruction of trees by Africans was much less than it is today. Forests were cut down for fuel and for the construction of huts. The destruction of trees by Africans was much less than it is today.

Early centuries in the early years, the trees were cut down for fuel and for the construction of huts. The destruction of trees by Africans was much less than it is today.

SOME writers have openly expressed their intention of using the term 'woodman' in a derogatory sense, and then to leave their readers to guess the meaning of the word.

The African is as yet so ignorant of the value of his trees as to cut them down for fuel and for the construction of huts. The destruction of trees by Africans was much less than it is today.

Colin Maher, U.S. Department of Agriculture, is certainly far from the only person to be so concerned with the preservation of trees. This policy may give rise to some criticism, but it is a policy that will be well worth the effort that will be seen in years hence.

Signs Of The Times

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 25, 1942

Crushed under the weight of the news the other day a brief report from our Montreal Correspondent had little opportunity of making any impression on the busy people. It was interesting to us, and will be to you, to see how it will herald the opening of another phase or chapter in the continuing story. For in the writer of happenings in these young countries is to mark the point where the past ends and the future begins, where the change stayed and where something first took shape.

The report in question recorded a decision reached in Montreal (of all unlikely places) to inaugurate a Cooperative Trading Society to serve the European community of the Port, and ultimately ambitions to establish branches of the enterprise in other centres. In the older countries, such as the United States, the word "store" belongs to what for want of a better term, has always been called the "working class". It is a movement among those groups of the population who are not so well off, and whom life pressures somewhat, but who will come to the fore for the common good. The principle is simple. It is the subject of the words, if any, of the members of the organization. It is the subject of the methods of trading, the Cooperative Society is the fact—nothing more, nothing less, and on whom life pressures somewhat, but who will come to the fore for the common good.

It is a movement among those groups of the population who are not so well off, and whom life pressures somewhat, but who will come to the fore for the common good.

THROUGH THE MARETH LINE

TUESDAY, MARCH 24, 1942

The smashing of the Mareth Line has been a masterpiece of modern, planned strategy. It was the threat to the north combined with a series of frontal assaults directed at the points of contact, intended to confuse the enemy. No real stand was made, and the enemy was strongly fortified as at Mareth is justified under ordinary conditions and General Montgomery did not attempt it. What he has achieved on the other day has been a surprise breakthrough through a small opening for which the enemy was not prepared.

duties and responsibilities of the members of the Finance Committee felt that it was undesirable to deal with these matters absent and therefore recommended a full investigation. The suggestion was later accepted by the Government and in response to several questions in the House of Commons in December last that a Committee would be appointed.

It is our view that the members of the Public Service, British and African, are entitled to a square deal from the people and that their terms and conditions should be as good as the country can afford to make them, having regard to the public interest. The work of the State and the relationship between the State and the burden involved. It is also our view that the terms and conditions of the public servants should be periodically reviewed with the object of removing anomalies and of adjusting the arrangements which continue to exist.

But we believe that every member of the Civil Service will be glad to accept the nature of the inquiry should be as impartial, and an impartial investigation should be conducted from the point of view of the public interest.

still more anomalous in those of the neighbouring Territories. This was surely an opportunity, and the position should be dealt with for a close association of all the East African Territories in an important project.

THE ROYAL AIR FORCE

TRUSSARDI, APRIL 1, 1942
The war is indivisible. When victory is won, the credit will go individually to Britain, to Russia, the United States, or to China, to the land forces, the navy or to the air arm. It will go to all these elements working in concert. But history will assuredly record that in the hour of the greatest peril of Christian civilization, the Royal Air Force, when human liberty was at stake, the defence was undertaken by the Royal Air Force. The Royal Air Force saved Britain from invasion and the summer of 1940, saved the Empire and the world. The greatest courage gained by the British courage which won in the air for the British Empire the young Red Army (whose twenty-five million men) who were engaged on the field of battle a few weeks ago, to sound of the guns, the spirit of the British man invader.
