The Week's Leaders

II O'CLOCK TEA

SATURDAY, APRIL 5, 1941.

A correspondent who enters into a very fervent regard for austerity has written a letter in the following week suggesting that in the interests of economy the habit of drinking tea at eleven o'clock be abandoned entirely, and that the tea at eleven and twelve o'clock should be subject to revision in the interests of the war effort for one thing, and on account of the shortage of milk and sugar for another. And there is a certain acerbity in his concluding suggestion that if tea-drinking were abandoned entirely, nobody's health would suffer.

If it is accepted, it is regrettable, fact that tea-drinking and tea-rooms are so closely associated as to be almost inseparable. It is equally true that the detriquent, the inveterate tea-drinker, the tireless gossip, or the women of the species. There are more people than ever before and they hurriedly stuck together again in the tea-rooms, restaurants and hotels between twelve and one a.m. and a quarter past round a teapot and any other hour of the day or night. Whether the tongue was made to wag by the warming and stimulating properties of the tea, or whether it is simply because the tea-rooms temporarily accumulated in the mass, is a question which does not seem to have been very fully examined or answered. But there is some reason to suspect that the tea-rooms are for women to collect together on other social occasions with out tea, and the formal, cold, polite frigidity of their manner to others of their kind is something to make us wonder.

The problem is whether, for present of austere society should attempt to give battle to the tea-drinking women kind. Whether, in short, we should take the sweetness from their cup and refrain from the use of the milk that in tea represents what kindness is in human nature. It is too much to suppose that they would abandon their lifelong habit. They would gather around a cup of their sweetness, and the bitterness of the beverage (probably aided by a slice of lemon) would give an edge to gossip and a new tone to scandal, while in the threat to good relations would outweigh any temporary advantage the community might gain in economy of foodstuffs.

The Member for Kiunga, in an article in our column last week, and in the course of denouncing the Legislative Council during the recent session, remarked upon the fact that it faces the community from the employment and training of young Africans in criminal pursuits and prisons. In order civilisation, he said, the Government must take the onus on the parents to be responsible for the bad behaviour of children, to deal sharply with parents who are guilty of neglect and to send to special institutions abnormal children where parental control has failed. African society in towns too loose a structure on which to hang such a responsibility. European civilisation has partially destroyed the tribal and parental framework into which the discipline and care of the children was naturally fitted and up to the present throughout East Africa we seem to have been incapable of repairing the damage by providing an alternative system at all in good order. This question of juveniles is reduced to terms of police supervision and removal to the reserves. It is a wider issue and with all the doubtful inducements which war has brought into the lives of African the time seems to us to be ripe for an approach to this social problem on lines which will lead us in a forward direction. In the limiting application of the shining gift of child employment should be considered and the setting up of a Juvenile Court (which might also be combined the hearing of petty cases arising out of domestic disputes) is overdue.

We have often indicated our view that it is an important part of the solution of this vexed question—that all young African children, like all young of other races, should be at school and not running about the streets or villages in the reserves undergoing unplanned preparation of the most doubtful kind for the responsibilities which most assuredly will face the next generation of native people. It is earnestly to be hoped that arising out of the limited problem of control which the Nairobi Town Council in connection with the determination on the part of the State to go much further at an early date in trying to save many of these children as possible from the uncontrolled influences to which, at this immature stage in the development of public policy and social services our European civilisation is exposing them.

The East African Standard has diligently sought to discover what Government intends to do which has failed so far to obtain a clear answer. In the first place it was our intention that the figures were to be coordinated by the Director of Disposal with the Director of the Police Department. The Member for Kiunga in an enquiry that certain recommendations had been made to Government in cases in the opinion of the Police, the question of prosecution should be considered. The matter further, the last assurance given in March 1940, was by the Director of Disposal which said that the results of the survey were being tabulated, the position had been referred to Government and what happened was now a matter for the Government.

After six weeks that is not a very satisfactory position. It is no doubt true that the concentration of the attention in each case, the checking of stocks and the carrying of the coordinating of facts is a necessary task and a considerable task. But six weeks should have been enough to bring to an issue at least some of the cases where it appears as if the Government is stalling.

The State does its reputation no good by delays such as this. It is generally believed that the search was by no means fruitless, and in times like the present when community discipline is of the greatest importance, facing the difficulties which confront Kenya, it behooves the Government to show qualities of firmness and decision in a greater measure than under normal circumstances. The public, acquainted with rumours and reports regarding the nature of the results of a search for which special warrants were taken by the State, now naturally expect that the whole weight of the authorities of the Government will be employed to bring to the courts of the Colony those against whom serious charge of hearing foodstuffs in time famine is alleged.

When the fulfilment of such a duty is surrounded by an explained delay, the confidence of the people is subjected to weakening influences which are highly undesirable in such a matter and at such a time.

UN-HELPFUL PUBLIC

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 3, 1941.

Our Nairobi Correspondent reports a sorry tale today from township which one had ambitions more than it. Whether those ambitions will depend upon whether something can be done to instill among its residents a proper sense of civic duty and responsibility. Nairobi is by no means singular in the evidence it provides of lack of discipline. Nairobi and Mombasa are hardly one whit better but Nairobi, small, compact, has less excuse. There have a story of a handful of people undertaking a public service on behalf of their fellow men and women. They are prepared to give up their coat and their lives in the defence of their leisure, because they feel that there is a job to be done in these days of difficulty. Their job is to try to make the ration coupon system work. They will emerge a victor, were not done nobody would be readier to complain about it than the people of Nairobi, who because somebody has the job done, even if they leave them to get on with it.

That is peculiarly Kenya because of its position as a European community of the Colony simply cannot be bothered about the ration coupon system. It is not only a man's trouble, or a woman's, but it is a nation's. We are supposed at the moment to be at war, and in that state of affairs to cope with it the State is experimenting with a rationing system, and it is the simplest initial stage and the most fundamental step of a monthly call at the offices of the appropriate authority (or a letter will do) for ration coupons for starch foods, the production of a registration certificate and a stamp of approval of the coupons over a month's bread, flour, or other necessities—a task which should not strain the mental capacity of the least intelligent person.

But it is apparently too much for some people in Nairobi. They do not seem to have a right to find out what they have to do. Some of the coupons held for starch foods and other necessities have been collected. Some for this month and others for the next. Presumably the people who were entitled to draw them did not do so because they are living on their own food resources or have drunk up their own supplies of legal supply where they were living without coupons. In either case the reply of the authorities is obvious. They do not care to see negligent turn up to ask for their ration coupons. They may fairly be told that if they do not show up along with them in March the Government will not be responsible for their situation. The point is, of course, that there is a duty resting on every one of us to see that the authorities in the full extent of the law are enabled to carry out their public burden and make the solution of problems such as these possible. For the benefit of the people of British had given as much proportionate trouble over the matter as it has been given to some in Nairobi (who should never mind their own ration forms mercies in this war) foodstuffs have broken down in some cases and the public opinion would have dealt sharply with those who failed to so the authorities. We need that kind of public discipline in East Africa.

FOOD SEARCH SILENCE

TUESDAY, APRIL 5, 1941.

On February 11 a search for hoarded foodstuffs was carried out in Nairobi and other parts of Kenya. The search had been preceded by a special return of the quantities of foodstuffs in stock. It is a common knowledge that in a considerable number of cases quantities of foodstuffs and other commodities were found.

The East African Standard has diligently sought to discover what Government intends to do which has failed so far to obtain a clear answer. In the first place it was our intention that the figures were to be coordinated by the Director of Disposal with the Director of the Police Department. The Member for Kiunga in an enquiry that certain recommendations had been made to Government in cases in the opinion of the Police, the question of prosecution should be considered. The matter further, the last assurance given in March 1940, was by the Director of Disposal which said that the results of the survey were being tabulated, the position had been referred to Government and what happened was now a matter for the Government.

After six weeks that is not a very satisfactory position. It is no doubt true that the concentration of the attention in each case, the checking of stocks and the carrying of the coordinating of facts is a necessary task and a considerable task. But six weeks should have been enough to bring to an issue at least some of the cases where it appears as if the Government is stalling.

The State does its reputation no good by delays such as this. It is generally believed that the search was by no means fruitless, and in times like the present when community discipline is of the greatest importance, facing the difficulties which confront Kenya, it behooves the Government to show qualities of firmness and decision in a greater measure than under normal circumstances. The public, acquainted with rumours and reports regarding the nature of the results of a search for which special warrants were taken by the State, now naturally expect that the whole weight of the authorities of the Government will be employed to bring to the courts of the Colony those against whom serious charge of hearing foodstuffs in time famine is alleged.

When the fulfilment of such a duty is surrounded by an explained delay, the confidence of the people is subjected to weakening influences which are highly undesirable in such a matter and at such a time.

UN-HELPFUL PUBLIC

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 3, 1941.

Our Nairobi Correspondent reports a sorry tale today from township which one had ambitions more than it. Whether those ambitions will depend upon whether something can be done to instill among its residents a proper sense of civic duty and responsibility. Nairobi is by no means singular in the evidence it provides of lack of discipline. Nairobi and Mombasa are hardly one whit better but Nairobi, small, compact, has less excuse. There have a story of a handful of people undertaking a public service on behalf of their fellow men and women. They are prepared to give up their coat and their lives in the defence of their leisure, because they feel that there is a job to be done in these days of difficulty. Their job is to try to make the ration coupon system work. They will emerge a victor, were not done nobody would be readier to complain about it than the people of Nairobi, who because somebody has the job done, even if they leave them to get on with it.

That is peculiarly Kenya because of its position as a European community of the Colony simply cannot be bothered about the ration coupon system. It is not only a man's trouble, or a woman's, but it is a nation's. We are supposed at the moment to be at war, and in that state of affairs to cope with it the State is experimenting with a rationing system, and it is the simplest initial stage and the most fundamental step of a monthly call at the offices of the appropriate authority (or a letter will do) for ration coupons for starch foods, the production of a registration certificate and a stamp of approval of the coupons over a month's bread, flour, or other necessities—a task which should not strain the mental capacity of the least intelligent person.

But it is apparently too much for some people in Nairobi. They do not seem to have a right to find out what they have to do. Some of the coupons held for starch foods and other necessities have been collected. Some for this month and others for the next. R.A.F. bigger and better bombs!

In times when Social Security is a much-discussed objective of those concerned about the post-war world, it might be thought that there would be no need or room for private benevolence towards men and women who have been crippled and disabled and have either lost their capacity to earn, their living or have lost their own left with us as a charge those who were dependent upon them. But the fact is, of course, that while the best will in the world the money and the help of the State after a world war so colossal that at the most only enough can be done to help the world a reasonable and decent amount out the door. Penalties and gratuities cannot suffice.

The Week's Leaders

VEGETABLES

SATURDAY, APRIL 18, 1942.

Digestive juices may well be precipitated by the rationing of the average resident in desiccated, Kenya to the following announcement: "Desiccated vegetables, a new vegetable which is to be placed as soon as possible on the market. It is called 'Osram' and its flavour is suggestive of celery, lettuce, asparagus and cauliflower. To clear the somewhat congested atmosphere after all that 'meats' is known in the United States as a member of the Kenyan family and is probably unknown to most of us in East Africa it can be deduced from the last.

But see what it leaves! A flourish suggestive of green lettuce and asparagus! More than enough to go on with without the squash, except to make a mess of our wish that Bermuda was written on the African Governor, or even the East African Supply and Production Board, or that one of my many Controllers of non-essential produce could be given to go on. I see about it immediately. For naturally it is a host in itself, a veritable market garden in miniature.

There is some satisfaction, and no little advantage in self-reliance in the desiccated vegetable. For although the vitamins of the variety which we can digest with advantage to our health, there is much to be said in favour of the vegetable to be enjoyed through reading about the growing of green food with which we were torn to buy carotene and with-out adequate appreciation and gratitude not so many months ago. And, indeed, the desiccated vegetable, were only too often cast before us, to require metamorphosed as a fragment of burnt bacon or an incident sausage.

AN INDIAN DILEMMA

MONDAY, APRIL 13, 1942.

In February there was held in Nairobi what was described as "a meeting to discuss the food shortage situation as it affects the Indian community." The meeting was called by a body known as the Consumers' Association and was chiefly concerned with the drastic reduction in the quantity of a quarter of a pound per head per week. At the meeting the three Indian members appointed to the Nairobi Community Distribution Board each explained their point of view. Two have since resigned from the Board.

The situation is not a happy one. The fact seems to be sufficiently understood by at least some part of the Indian community that the Nairobi Board has no control over the stocks of goods in the country. Its function is to distribute as fairly as possible the quantities allotted to it by the Director of Produce Disposal, operating through the control and the Central Distribution Board. The Nairobi organization cannot originate goods or take away from what is made available for the community. The effect of the latter rationing of the European community has been greatly to reduce the normal consumption and we are unaware of any complaints as to the fact that the rationing is remembered that both butter and ghee are required in large quantities by the Fighting Services, who have always been exempt from rationing. Claims on food supplies but have cooperated closely and helpfully in releasing supplies, at every stage of the food crisis. This cooperation was recently paid in my columns by the Government of the Empire and in its beneficial results this common understanding has benefited both the Indian and European supplies.

The continued irregularity of the rains may have a most serious effect on the situation. There is a limit to the importation of relief foodstuffs, a limit which is imposed not only by the demand for supplies all over the world but more immediately by the difficulties of the shipping situation. These are facts which should be accepted in East Africa as completely as they are elsewhere. There are further sacrifices ahead, we must condition our minds to face them for the time being.

We cannot do better, in presenting our own view, than to repeat what was said at the end of January on a similar subject by the Hon. N. S. Sarda, Member for Commerce and Food Departments of the Government of India, at a Press Conference on the food shortage problem. "We are met with difficulties but they are not insurmountable. There is a will, however, to tackle them. I would, however, frankly say that the success of our endeavours will lie in the main depend on the cooperation given to us by the Press and the leaders of public opinion and understanding."

Her Majesty the Queen talked to a woman to women on Monday night, as a mother to the mothers of the Empire. There is nothing to be gained by driving honest, hard-working men to the verge of the public which they give willingly and gladly in the hope that they will slip in the common task. But they are entitled to expect from their public opinion and understanding.

A WOMAN'S TRIBUTE

TUESDAY, APRIL 12, 1942.

Her Majesty the Queen talked to a woman to women on Monday night, as a mother to the mothers of the Empire. There is nothing to be gained by driving honest, hard-working men to the verge of the public which they give willingly and gladly in the hope that they will slip in the common task. But they are entitled to expect from their public opinion and understanding.

There is, therefore, every prospect that in the months ahead—and it may be months—of everything which cannot be regarded as a matter of the maintenance of the life and energy of the community, and the war effort of the Dependencies, will disappear from the shelves of our shops and warehouses. After nearly four years of a policy of controlled imports, the stock situation in East Africa is remarkably good. It is true that many necessities in better times have gone and may not return within the war years, but the urgency of the conditions has brought to the market many promising substitutes which have enabled us to maintain standards of life and to keep as high as those to which we were accustomed. That it should be so in the fourth year of the war is a very salutary tribute to local commerce and industrial enterprise and to the large measure of success which, after inevitable initial difficulties, has attended the operation of the Imports Control. In the trader's view there is no doubt at all that business has been very considerably interfered with his commercial undertakings but from the consumer's point of view there is no doubt at all that the war has been effected great and beneficial savings, has assisted the war effort to a very remarkable degree and has done so with very little hardship and with location than would have been thought possible some three years ago. It has not been a pleasant task, but it has been a necessary one and in the long run it is the policy of the Control to try still to maintain intact the principal commercial structure in a condition which will enable it to play its proper part in the post-war tasks.

We should not be too sanguine, however, that so desirable an end can be attained in an unbroken continuity of effort. There has been a promising movement in recent months in the direction of the organization of the war effort. It is clear that in such development lies a new hope for the future. With the best will in the world, no Import Controller can be held responsible for what should be known about the mechanical and technical details of trades and businesses. The people engaged in those businesses in recent months individually in part and collectively in whole. The more fully it is made available by the commercial interests to the State the less it is used for the purpose of relying upon arbitrary decisions of a Government. Paralleling with the policy of Imports Control there should be growing up a system of the stress of pre-war trading conditions, clear organization, that each can help the other in the same business and all can help the State in the better discharge of its onerous responsibility.

The problem put simply, is to make the best use and most use of the limited and decreasing tonnage available and to that end every branch of commerce should be organizing itself into a closely knit community of common interests as possible so that the Government and the public, as well as commerce, may derive the maximum help and benefit from commercial experience and knowledge.

PROBLEMS OF COMMERCE

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 14, 1942.

It will come at no surprise to the commercial community in East Africa to learn that in view of the constantly increasing shortage of supplies for civilian purposes both in the United Kingdom and the United States, the conditions on which the Authorities are prepared to sell such goods for overseas markets in the Empire are becoming progressively stricter. What, at least so far as a reasonable requirement in terms of importation, is granted, may be much more difficult to meet, now that changing and changing circumstances it is no longer possible to expect that these orders will be automatically supported. Additional to the problems which face the British and American manufacturers through the pressure of manpower and materials, and the not unimportant influence of the Government and the public, is the problem with the shrinkage of shipping space at a moment in the progress of the war when shipping is a vital essential for victory.

There is, therefore, every prospect that in the months ahead—and it may be months—of everything which cannot be regarded as a matter of the maintenance of the life and energy of the community, and the war effort of the Dependencies, will disappear from the shelves of our shops and warehouses. After nearly four years of a policy of controlled imports, the stock situation in East Africa is remarkably good. It is true that many necessities in better times have gone and may not return within the war years, but the urgency of the conditions has brought to

THE BRITISH BUDGET

THURSDAY, APRIL 19, 1942.

Mr. Kingsley Wood's latest wartime Budget has had a good reception, not only in Britain, where the nature of the tax income is of the greatest importance, but overseas, where its immediate value lies in the pointers it gives to Britain's financial and moral contribution to the general war effort. In the United States the point raised is the large proportion of the colossal wartime expenditure which is met in Britain by the taxpayer through revenue, as opposed to borrowing. Our Americans are, however, all right in much convincing that in the long run heavy taxation will meet current needs and will reduce unnecessary expenditure is a sounder policy than private squandering in war-

Many farmers have been fortunate enough to get their requirements for the season, but those who do not obtain Cooper's Quick-Acting Powder will be able to eradicate keds by dipping twice with the standard Cooper's Sheep Dipping Powder. In this case, an interval of 31 days is necessary, and both dipping should be carried out at full strength.

4. Worms (Tapeworm and Bankrupt)—Sheep, Cattle and Goats may be dosed with Cooper's N.C.A. Worm Drench. It not only eradicates the above-mentioned worms, but is also invigorating to the animals instead of distressing them. Terracing: Experience In U.S.A. and Kenya

"Equiper" replied to Mr. C. Maher's article on terracing and the cultivation of terraced lands in our issue of last Friday. Here are Mr. Maher's comments thereon.

ENQUIRER'S letter of 8th February suggests that the recommendations which I have regarding terracing are of theoretical value rather than of practical value. Thousands of acres of maize and other crops are being planted on the Trans-Nairobi and Uasin Gishu by the Government and private individuals following American projects and practices.

I am asking Mr. S. H. Powles, Managing Director of the large estates and Investment Ltd. group of farms to reply, as a practical farmer, to the criticisms made by "Equiper" which possibly are based on criticisms from his country rather than practical experience of terracing.

Several farms in the Kileleshwa district in the neighbourhood of Nairobi, which I think they were three farms, have been terraced. The following is an extract from "Planning for Terrace Maintenance in the South," United States Department of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Service Bulletin.

"Although the two-way slope is the most desirable, it is not always possible to have some distinct advantages for the farmer. It is possible to eliminate the necessity of backwaters and dead furrows in the terraces by building the terraces on a level grade. This is the most desirable method, but it is not always possible to have a level grade. In such cases, the terraces should be built on a slight slope, and the furrows should be built on the level side of the slope. This will eliminate the necessity of backwaters and dead furrows in the terraces."

The Seed of A Growing Industry

(By SEED SPECIALIST) They are dormant, but they are not dead. Even whilst tightly packed in their containers or firms containers, they are still important biological changes take place within their shells. They travel the long and tortuous water route from England to the Highlands of East Africa. At times the "right" varieties are the best. It is the farmer's duty to know the kind and what he can from the "right" varieties. The farmer's duty is to know the kind and what he can from the "right" varieties. The farmer's duty is to know the kind and what he can from the "right" varieties.

THE STANDARDS OF PRODUCTION. THE number of seed growers is steadily increasing. The quality of their produce is of the highest.

YOUR FUHRER NEEDS YOU

MR. S. H. POWLES has written an article on the importance of seed quality. He states that the farmer's duty is to ensure that his seed is of the highest quality. This is particularly important in the case of flax, where the quality of the seed determines the quality of the final product.

THE PRODUCTION OF STANDARDS. FOR the benefit of our growers, standards have been established. These standards are designed to ensure that the seed produced is of the highest quality. The standards are as follows: Grade I, 210/- per ton f.o.b.; Grade II, 200/- per ton f.o.b.; Grade III, 190/- per ton f.o.b.; Grade IV, 180/- per ton f.o.b.

ATTENTION OF POTATO GROWERS. If you are going to plant potatoes for the next rains, you will wish to get your seed in the ground at just the right time, as well as at the right depth and spacing. A McCormick-Deering Potato Planter will insure this being done.

McCormick-Deering planters deposit the seed with an accuracy that is not practical except by machine methods, and certainly cannot be expected from native hand labour. The difference in yield between a crop of potatoes that is properly planted and one that is improperly planted sometimes pays the cost of the planter in a single season. Improper planting is an unnecessary waste of land, time, and seed.

CHICKENS AND EGGS

SATURDAY, APRIL 17, 1945

That part of the world is flummoxed by what is said and done around the Capital of Kenya will be a brighter place today. A benevolent Controller-for-they appear to be such despite all impressions to the contrary—has decreed that the restrictions placed upon the hawking of chickens and eggs shall be removed. The African gentleman in the top blanket, carrying a couple of brooding chickens in a manner calculated to infuriate every suburbanite in the S.P.C.A., will be back again. And so will the youth with the eggs in a basket to a salubrious waiting patient till the suspicious housewife drops each one into a pall of water to see whether it should be rejected entirely or made the subject of a little bargain.

What has been established, of course, is that despite the outcry about the injurious treatment of the lawyer—is it surprising how deep and unanticipated the feeling for the African stirred by this food business—has all managed to survive. It may have been difficult at times to face the man or woman who has all managed to survive. It may have been difficult at times to face the man or woman who has all managed to survive. It may have been difficult at times to face the man or woman who has all managed to survive.

And, for a time, it will be the proper thing when invited out to dinner to make a remark about the chicken, and how nice it is to see it again, how difficult everything was without it, and how for at least a month on croquet we never had a chicken at all though Mrs. Smith always seemed to get one (and from the Black Market) not but her husband is not on diet he has to be, he should be.

NATIONAL GAME PARKS

MONDAY, APRIL 16, 1945

A good start has been made at length on the long delayed question of securing the status of the Game Reserves of Kenya by creating to their place National Game Parks. The Interim Report of the Game Reserves Commission, which has been ready for some time, has now been issued. It proposes that most of the Nairobi Commemorative be set aside as a Nairobi National Park as a first and early step. Government has accepted the proposals and the Game Reserves Commission has been established throughout the Colony and the legislation which will be necessary to make provision for them is being drafted.

The Interim Report of the Committee is a workmanlike

THE COLONIAL CIVIL SERVICE

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17, 1945

At a moment when there is so much uniformed, though well intentioned, talk about the future of the British Colonial Empire, it is reassuring to have evidence that, in the House of Lords at least, there are men of knowledge and experience who have time for other and more practical aspects of the problems of the Colonies. Nobody can accuse the Secretary of State of neglect of tradition or of underestimating the importance in human progress of a conservative outlook, and perhaps the people of East Africa, not a little flattered by so much discussion about their affairs by various official authorities, are getting some comfort from the fact that the main character of the debate, a report of which we publish today.

The answer to much of the criticism we hear today is to be found in his debate and in the replies made to the various questions. The attitude of the British Colonial Office, under the leadership of the Secretary of State, is to be found in his debate and in the replies made to the various questions.

Meat rationing will not harm the public health. Experience in Britain shows that on the contrary less meat and a better quality diet, reduced the standard and reduced epidemics of sickness at all ages. In the Colony of Kenya, meat rationing will probably be unnecessary in any event, because the local industry will be able to supply the demand for meat.

It would have another advantage. There has been criticism from time to time about the competition for services between the Government and private concerns and complaints about butchers who are said to be rationing for these and other big customers such as boarding houses and hotels. Rationing of civilians would automatically bring parity of services between the Government and private concerns.

MEAT SUPPLIES

TUESDAY, APRIL 10, 1945

Yesterday the most position in Nairobi provided another urgent reminder of the need for definite and clear-cut official action. It was a day of shortage. Butchers, with nothing in their shops except pork, shut their doors about midday. Late shoppers got nothing.

A few days ago, emphasizing the warning that meat, milk, butter, eggs and fresh vegetables would all be in short supply till the grazing areas and the stock recovered from the drought, and alternative plans were applied respecting vegetables, the East African Standard suggested that before the crisis was reached the authorities should prepare for 300 Ships serve one African front alone!

During 1944, we support the British front armies. Great Britain employed 200 ships continuously on the 11,000 mile voyage round the Cape. Here there were 1,000,000 tons of goods and over 25,000 soldiers were conveyed, an immense achievement in view of the fact that ships can only make 2 round trips yearly by this long route.

POOD PLAIN

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard,"
 The people in the Kiboga district seem to have about the same opinion as to what is the best way to get rid of the pood plain. The Government should make a survey of the pood plain and see what can be done to get rid of it. The Government should make a survey of the pood plain and see what can be done to get rid of it. MAIL FROM HOME

Dear Mr. Oswald: Just a few lines to tell you about the great home from Drive which has been back in the village. The drive goes on, of course, your Father says they were in the worst possible condition and it was worth a try to get rid of them. So he has the engine, a clear out from the Motor Farm. The Village Headmaster did not want to contribute the oil tank which the engine is in, but the headmaster without a tank the engine will be a waste of space to give up in tanks than to be in Germany where the engine is in a tank. I have to wait until that time that I have to be in Germany. I'm sorry to hear that you're still not getting the 100 bottles of the 100 bottles. I'm sorry to hear that you're still not getting the 100 bottles of the 100 bottles. I'm sorry to hear that you're still not getting the 100 bottles of the 100 bottles.

Yours respectfully, Albert Matthews (Agent, etc.)

Kennel Notes

By MARGARET COLLYER P. O. Gilgil.

Every other animal is being permitted to have a certain amount of food. But dogs, which are absolutely clean animals, are not allowed anything at all, not even the broken and gritty rice which is not only an evil but also a source of constant trouble to the Supply Board. Horses which are essential at the present time, are to receive natural. Poultry (again essential) to have a certain amount of food. PROGRESS IN TUNIS

MONDAY, APRIL 26, 1942

The news from Tunis remains heartening. From the northward to Midvilleville the forces of the United Nations—87 British, American, French and Indian, British Dominions and India—are closing in on the enemy. The Axis have their backs to the sea. The only news now a matter of time and of human endurance. There is no question of the little likelihood of a spectacular Dunkirk, little probability of a narrow gesture in an ill-fated fleet to restore the tarnished pride of a defeated nation. There is a steady and unceasing advance of the Empire. All the evidence points to an imminent decision to sacrifice and material to buy time to stave off the menace of the Allied offensive. Even Rommel seems to have forsaken the doom of Africa.

But there is every sign in the news that the struggle will be a very bitter fight. It is in the north where the German and Italian troops defeated the infantry of the Eighth Army, and how not without heavy losses. The troops were used by man against his fellow man in the hand-to-hand struggle in the hills and caves near the summit, tells us in grim and detailed language how serious the task may yet be if enemy morale holds against the tenacity that has been on land and in the air.

It is quite clear that up to now the enemy is far from adopting a merely defensive role. He has been headlong, actually behind the positions of the Allied troops all along the front. It is true that the Axis have been tried to minimize their importance when these have fallen. They have called the attack against the First Army in the Madjed Bab area a "reconnaissance" and that they carried out with between sixty and eighty tanks and a Brigade and that they destroyed and five hundred prisoners were taken. The British have suffered casualties. In the south the massed artillery of the British forces—used increasingly in overpowering strength since the Alamein battle—has been used in the employment of men and armour—broken two determined counterattacks.

Though the pressure—the success—is increasing and will not increase relatively to the Tunisian position cracks, it is not expected that changes will be swift. The nature of the country is against speedy movement and wide sweeping strategy. It has been explained that the victory in Tunisia will only come after a position of great natural strength, reinforced by powerful fortifications built by trained and seasoned troops, have been taken one by one at such cost. Particularly in front of the Eighth Army, the plain of Tunis is protected by high and difficult hills which have been turned into a great defensive system. Before the Eighth Army alone are four ascending ranges of 16,000 to 20,000 feet high with precipitous cliffs culminating in the Jebel Baghassen over 4,000 feet high. What this means is that as the enemy is forced from each range he is able to retire to positions behind and still overlooking those which the Allied forces have won.

This is the picture we have to keep in mind as we watch the struggle in Tunisia, a struggle which we all believe and expect will be the signal for a change in the whole war outlook. It is not only its implications and possibilities cannot even now be measured or imagined.

THE FOOD OUTLOOK

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23, 1942

Uganda has a cheering word to say about the East African food situation. It is a cheering word because last week in the Protectorate added to the picture given by the United Nations and the East Africa Supply and Production Council. But the government plan for the year 1942-3, the appropriations made now or in the early future respecting crop, plus other measures to be "if all goes well."

Uganda views the situation another few weeks will see the Protectorate not only out of the wood but also a position of some assistance to Kenya, with the incidence of drought, plus other measures to be "if all goes well." There were alternative food resources, was used unexpectedly early by the Government for the supply of cereals for the Protectorate. For that matter, the Government has recorded the Secretary of State for the Colonies that the Government of East Africa to the ready assistance of Britain's Food Minister, Lord Woolton, and the American War Transport. Lord Woolton's statement is another indicator in the official statement that Uganda is in a position to meet the needs of the Protectorate. Another important factor in the better Uganda outlook was a fairly general belief in the Protectorate, which with rains in February enabled the crops to get a favourable start. The authorities believe that by the middle of next month—that is in about five weeks—the crop should be in a fairly good position to meet the requirements. Meanwhile there is an indication in the official statement that Uganda is in a position to meet the needs of the Protectorate. It is necessary to forego the day and night quotas of the situation in Kenya, where it is at present impossible to say whether the situation will continue for some time. In parts of Tanganyika, too, Uganda has been carried out with between twenty and thirty tanks and a Brigade and that they destroyed and five hundred prisoners were taken. The British have suffered casualties. In the south the massed artillery of the British forces—used increasingly in overpowering strength since the Alamein battle—has been used in the employment of men and armour—broken two determined counterattacks.

Though, therefore, it can reasonably be said that the threat of disaster which seemed to menace East Africa two months ago has not materialized, and is now unlikely to do so, the somewhat more optimistic outlook cannot as yet be allowed to encourage relaxation of the emergency restrictions, though industry may begin to relax a little again. The position is very patchy, and there are not so far as Kenya is concerned, though we have been grateful for a few inches during factor—and there are no reserves to meet any contingency of any development.

What is apparent already, however, is that in the future there should be a far more closely coordinated planning of the foodstuffs needed and production of the territorial group. By a happy meteorological chance for it may be that at yet no clearly defined influence of the Congo lake system in the west and the Rift Valley the coming of the rains was apparently not completely dependent on the monsoon conditions and it was possible to plant large areas and other foodstuff crops in Kavirondo and parts of Uganda, thereby securing "if everything goes well..." the bulk of the main crop for the coming year.

But obviously there is at least one reason for not being too sure about it will be wise in future to continue the collation, followed next year by maize.

growing interests in Kenya, regarding the Colony as the sole principal maize producer for Uganda and Tanganyika markets. During the emergency some of the usual plantations have been planted with maize in Uganda—to doubt one of the main reasons for the Protectorate Government feels able now to offer Kenya relief supply.

For some years to come, including the post-war period, there will be a need for maize in the East African Territories, with this outlet for surplus available, should learn the obvious necessity for emergency and plan their domestic food supplies accordingly. It should be apparent that there is a measure of uncertainty about maize in East Africa, especially in connection with the many high priced alternative agricultural products, and that uncertainty should be taken into farm consideration by all who are engaged in the future food crop programmes. For that matter, the Government of East Africa, millions and the main industries.

SHOWING THE WIND

THURSDAY, APRIL 23, 1942

At the present moment the people of Kenya, and more particularly the industrialists of Nairobi and the other urban centres, are immersed in a sea of regulations concerning their food supply. Good reasons which every intelligent person should know, however, are the subject of increasingly close control. Rationing systems are also being put out of the face of exceptional difficulties, complicated by lack of experience in the Colony and the absence of statistical data. These steps are all being taken not for the benefit of the Government or other Authority but for the direct and undoubted benefit of the people. But full advantage cannot be obtained from the amount of thought and work involved in which these controls and rationing systems are being put into effect. There is a complete public support and understanding—and still more so in the public opinion and sense of discipline which will discourage selfishness and disregard of the public interest.

The Price Controller has asked the East African Standard to direct attention to the public, particularly those living in the Nairobi, to a case which was argued in the Magistrate's Court, Nairobi, this week. An African was sentenced to six weeks imprisonment with hard labour and a fine of 75/-, or a further six weeks hard labour for making an overcharge of 10pence in the sale of rice. Now let us say at once that convictions in such cases are most difficult—indeed almost impossible—to obtain because it is not easy to get the evidence. Accordingly the public do not have the disciplinary benefit of numerous and regular prosecutions and in consequence may tend to forget the nature of the offence and their responsibility under the law. Having regard to the circumstances, therefore, we hope that the Price Control Department, through the Kenya Information Office, will issue every publicity agency in its disposal to spread the story of this exemplary sentence to the public and the conviction in question is a further warning regarding the penalties attached to this ramp.

The controlled price for native eggs is 12 for one shilling. It is within the knowledge of the authorities that a ring of African hawkers (who are licensed, by the way, and should therefore be thought of as hawkers) without much difficulty in the event of suspicion) are refusing to procure the official price and are variously offering eggs at 10 for one shilling. This is open defiance of the law of the Colony and it is equally certain and made possible only because purchasers exist. But isolated prosecutions will not stop it. It can only be stopped by the cooperation of the public in refusing to pay more than the price fixed to secure their protection against this form of profiteering.

Of course there may be inconvenience. But the Authorities have not requested that the public shall give the maximum measure of assistance in making a ring who are taking advantage of the present absence of cooperation. The East African Standard would put it higher than that. We are faced today by a number of disturbing problems forced upon us by the unsettling conditions of the war in the Colony. There is much to be done and the Authorities have caught up in it. The content of these hawkers for the law is merely one relatively unimportant and minor sign of widespread indignation. They are learning rapidly. The price of eggs is in itself not really a matter of first-class concern in the affairs of the Colony. But it is a ready example which teaches most people and which we regret very much having to say that in matters such as these the fault lies not merely or even mainly with the African—who just seeing his chance like others—but with those of our own people who with eyes open, helping the unfortunates go to hold the law and the Government in contempt, and who temporarily in short supply. They will assuredly come when we shall reap the whirlwind—and the unfortunate African will be the sufferer.

stuffed indulgent war and more than the price fixed to secure their protection against this form of profiteering.

"STANDARD" COMMENTARY

"STANDARD" COMMENTARY: Some of the best parts of the district during the last year of the war was a result of the lack of a really good general harvest in the area. It was necessary to repair—in some cases by a large amount of work in the area. This is for full-time work, many of which are not so full-time, do participate in the work as they can.

"COLD STORAGE" Tana River Rice

FOR T. D. U. IN A "PROBI" Formation of "Active Political Body" Hinted

THE Nairobi Branch of the "Total Africa" group, through its general secretary, Mr. W. H. H. Gregory, has made a general statement to be concerned about their Government's policy in regard to the Tana River rice. It is stated that the Government's policy is to export rice to the United Kingdom and to the United States, and to use the proceeds to purchase machinery and other equipment for the Government. Mr. Gregory said that he and other members of the group were under a misapprehension about the Government's policy in regard to the Tana River rice. He said that the Government's policy was to export rice to the United Kingdom and to the United States, and to use the proceeds to purchase machinery and other equipment for the Government. He said that he and other members of the group were under a misapprehension about the Government's policy in regard to the Tana River rice.

HINTS ON TOPICAL TROUBLES.

- 1. Ear Ticks and other ticks in sheltered positions.—Ticks in the ears and under the tails of cattle are not so well eradicated by dipping as the ticks on the body. Hence the necessity of hand-dressing such parts with Cooper's Ear Tick Remedy or Cooper's Cattle Tick Grease. The former ticks are more economical to use than anything approaching its efficacy, as it is to be diluted with 6 parts of water before use.
- 2. Paralysis or Lameness of Sheep is usually caused by certain ticks attaching themselves to the bellies and inside of the legs. These ticks can be controlled by putting sheep through a walk-through bath every ten days. When the trouble diminishes, further dipping at intervals of three weeks should suffice. In the absence of Cooper's Improved Cattle Dip, which is usually recommended, Tixol may be used for this purpose at a dilution of 1:60, and the dipping level should be just high enough to wet the bellies.

GOVERNMENT OF TANGANYIKA'S REVIEW OF THE PROVINCES

Must Plan Now For African Postwar Readjustments

IMPRESSIONS of his recently completed tour of the Northern, Lake and Central Provinces of the present East African Territory, were given by His Excellency the Governor, Sir Wilfrid Wright, in an interview with our Tanganyika correspondent. His Excellency's itinerary was a comprehensive one, covering not only the principal centres in the three Provinces, but also a number of the more remote stations.

The primary object of his tour was to investigate the causes of the food shortage and the progress of measures taken to meet the situation. Sir Wilfrid emphasized that on his recession he could only comment in general terms, as it was not possible to deal with each of the individual localities which in ordinary circumstances would be primarily attributable to the shortage of food. It is, however, interesting to note that in the Central Province, foodstuffs are being produced in quantities which have not been attained for many years, but are still inadequate, and are partially deficient.

Cultivation Drive
In certain areas the shortage of food has been aggravated and has greatly aggravated the situation. Most of the land is being cultivated, but the shortage of labour is still a serious problem. It is suggested that the Government should consider the possibility of providing incentives for the cultivation of certain crops which are more profitable than the traditional ones. It is also suggested that the Government should consider the possibility of providing incentives for the cultivation of certain crops which are more profitable than the traditional ones.

More Varied Diet
Under the prevailing conditions, many Africans had to content with what they could get and the Government has to consider the possibility of providing incentives for the cultivation of certain crops which are more profitable than the traditional ones.

Infestation of Grasshoppers
Grasshoppers were reported to be in the region, apart from the failure of the crops.

DISTRICT FARMING NOTES.

Nyeri
AFTER prolonged drought rain fell on most of the District of the end of March and the first week of April. Then it had been mainly dry with only a few local showers. Harvesting of wheat and other crops has been completed. The wheat crop is a very good one and is being sold at a profit. The Government has been successful in its efforts to provide incentives for the cultivation of certain crops which are more profitable than the traditional ones.

of the young men in various military units had recently affected the total amount of cultivated land. In fact, on the increase in food production, the Government has to consider the possibility of providing incentives for the cultivation of certain crops which are more profitable than the traditional ones.

Koru
NICE rains in some areas are giving over 4" have fallen in the past few days. The earliest maize planted in the past few days will be ready to harvest in about a month. The Government has been successful in its efforts to provide incentives for the cultivation of certain crops which are more profitable than the traditional ones.

SOLVING THE MEAT PROBLEM

SATURDAY, MAY 1, 1942.

The Acting Chairman of the Kenya Central Committee, The Hon. Mr. D. P. O'Brien, in his address to the members of the Kenya Central Committee last night, pointed out that the meat problem was a serious one and that it was one which had to be solved as soon as possible. He said that the Government had a plan for solving the problem, but that it was necessary for the people to understand the situation and to cooperate with the Government in the solution of the problem.

One of the difficulties in meat raising is in getting all the best breeds of animals which have arisen in recent years. It is in the meat raising industry that the Government has been most successful in its efforts to improve the quality of the stock. The Government has introduced a scheme for the improvement of the stock, and it has been successful in getting the best breeds of animals to the farmers. This has been done by the Government's policy of introducing the best breeds of animals to the farmers, and by the Government's policy of providing the farmers with the necessary facilities for the raising of the animals.

The Government has also been successful in its efforts to improve the quality of the stock. It has done this by introducing the best breeds of animals to the farmers, and by providing the farmers with the necessary facilities for the raising of the animals. This has been done by the Government's policy of introducing the best breeds of animals to the farmers, and by the Government's policy of providing the farmers with the necessary facilities for the raising of the animals.

POST-WAR EMPLOYMENT

TUESDAY, MAY 4, 1942.

It is not proposed at this present stage to attempt to deal with the great mass of questions which arise from the phrase "Post-War Employment". There are other and more urgent things to do in East Africa at present, and it is necessary to concentrate on these. The Government is aware of the importance of the problem, and it is taking steps to deal with it. It is necessary, however, to have a clear idea of the situation before any attempt is made to deal with it.

ERADICATE TAPE, WIRE, AND BANKRUPT WORMS
COOPER'S N. C. A. WORM DRENCH

Sheep, Cattle and Goats may be dosed with Cooper's N. C. A. Worm Drench. It not only eradicates the above-mentioned worms, but is also invigorating to the animals instead of distressing them. Ewes in lamb can be dosed up to 1 month before lambing, and lambs from the age of one month onwards. These measures will enable young sheep to grow out fully at an earlier age.

The Edible Canna

By L. A. ELMER, Assistant Agricultural Officer.

OWING to the drought, a far larger number of farmers are becoming interested in the cultivation of Edible Cannas...

1. The density of getting canna to suit it. 2. The severe fluctuations in the price industry which has discouraged the growing of such crops...

ADVANTAGES There are certain great advantages in this crop which cannot be fully covered by every dietician...

The fact that tubers were being developed for the Victoria District after seven months drought...

Table with 4 columns: Water, Crude Protein, Fat, Carbohydrates N. Free Crude Fibre, Ash. Rows show percentages for different tuber samples.

FOR ARROWROOT AND STARCH As the starch granules are large they are easily digested and are very suitable for invalids' and children's diet.

EDIBLE CANNA TUBERS Big mature tubers can be washed and sliced and fed to cattle.

STORAGE OF TUBERS Tubers for storage should be sorted out. The young ones cooked and sliced and stored in a cool, dark place...
