PROPOSED ESTABLISHMENT OF COFFEE INSTITUTE.

C. P. U. to Discuss the Subject. ANTIKATED ADVANTAGES. A special general meeting of the Coffee Planters Union of Kenya and East Africa will be held in the Memorial Hall, Nairobi, on Friday, June 21, commencing at 10.30 a.m.

In forwarding his motion, Mr. Bergamini explains that the formation of a Coffee Institute under Government Charter would embrace all coffee planters, office managers, millers and warehouse etc. Amongst the objects for which the Institute is proposed it is suggested that the present Union and its branches shall be dissolved.

Reorganized Services. It is further suggested that the Institute will organize the coffee services under the following headings:—the Administration of the Coffee Laws and inspection of coffee plantations; the establishment of research services; the establishment of cultural service; the control of licensed warehouses; the establishment and control of a local "Milling Lane"; provision of arbitrators; the amendment of the Coffee Ordinance to abolish the annual registration fee of Shs. 30 per acre, the collection of other fees etc.

Flying Booms.

CLUBS ANTICIPATING A RECORD SEASON. A good indication of the ad- vance being made in air traf- fic in Great Britain is the float- ing of two new aeroplanes dur- ing the past few days, and the rumours that several more are shortly to appear for trials to enable them to commence operations.

It is proposed that the Institute would handle its funds in the following manner—The Institute would take over the existing ve- hicles to the Department of Agriculture, and would rely on its planter members an expert tax of say, Sh. 1 per bag of bulled coffee, 50 cents per bag of parchment, 20 cents per bag of oil, and on its other members an annual sub- scription to be determined by the members. This would be an equivalent sum to that obtained from the tax anticipated some available next season, £20,000.

Figures quoted show that the approximate average yield during the last ten seasons has been 3 1/2 cwt. per acre. Of this it is estimated that 2 cwt. can be ex- ported from trees aged ten to three years. The average yield therefore from trees aged three years and over has been 3 cwt. per acre.

Mombasa Politics.

A CAMPAIGN BY THE TEMPORARY M.L.C. Mombasa, June 6. Mr. F. Arthur Benister, having been duly notified officially that he has been appointed to take the place of Mr. Cumming on the Legislative Council, during the absence of the latter gentleman on leave, contemplated a campaign to enlighten the citizens of the island to a full sense of their political responsibilities. This is no mean task to attempt. Mombasa is a somewhat rural place and its politics are confined chiefly to efforts to evade interference with the commercial life of the recent debates in the Chamber of Commerce on the "Eton-Yang" matter, which the members sought to differentiate between the political and political matters, typifies the attitude of the island. None the less, the citizens capable of being stirred into ac- tivity at times, Mr. Benister, realizing this, is determined to make an effort.

His campaign will open on Fri- day at the Kilindini Railway and Harbour Institute. In this respect Mr. Benister proposes to make a few departures. In the past the tendency has been rather to ignore Kilindini. The meetings are almost invariably held in Mombasa proper—that is, somewhere in the vicinity of the Manor Hotel or the Mombasa Club. Yet, Kilindini boasts (and other population) a large and over-growing European (and other) population. Many of the island's small shops and (Public) employees are also housed at Kilindini. As Pauling has been for a number of years, he has been in the vicinity of Mombasa citizens. Mr. Benister will appeal to the meeting to support him in every way possible in the Legislative Council. He has no wish to do anything for ever and as Mr. Cumming is likely to be absent for over a month, Mr. Benister will have ample time in which to do some good work for the constituency.

Whether or not Mr. Cumming will resign as such, at the moment, however, there is some talk of his resignation before he left and he was perfectly willing to do the public duty it would be in the interests of the community. It was left, however, that if Mr. Cumming did resign there was a danger that the many prelimi- nary results to the Town being represented at the forthcoming session of the Legislative Council

Valdictory Dinner.

THIKA TRIBUTES TO MR. AND MRS. J. T. FOKES. Some 60 residents of Thika District on Wednesday evening attended a dinner given by Messrs. Mr. and Mrs. J. Theron Fokes, who are leaving for Thika on their farm in the hands of their son, Mr. J. Theron Fokes, to develop more estate they have recently purchased. The dinner was arranged by the Thika District Association and Thika Sports Club, and was held at the Blue Point Hotel, where Mr. and Mrs. Fokes were cordially and admirably for the large company. The dinner was presided over by Mr. Fokes, senior, who as a former member of the Chamber of Commerce, expressed the feelings of all present in paying warm tribute to the public work of Mr. and Mrs. Fokes who have done so for the district and political matters. This is no mean task to attempt. Mombasa is a somewhat rural place and its politics are confined chiefly to efforts to evade interference with the commercial life of the recent debates in the Chamber of Commerce on the "Eton-Yang" matter, which the members sought to differentiate between the political and political matters, typifies the attitude of the island. None the less, the citizens capable of being stirred into ac- tivity at times, Mr. Benister, realizing this, is determined to make an effort.

Tanganyika Mining Law. An important alteration to the mining law of Tanganyika is com- pleted by a Bill published for information and criticism. The measure consolidates the present provisions to meet the requirements of operations on a large scale by uniform with one which Kenya companies propose to adopt subject to modifications dictated by local conditions. Mr. Benister was requested to retain his seat and nominate a Deputy. Possibly he may decide to resign in view of his contemplated long absence from the island in the next few months. Mr. Benister would secure the seat. Part of the new mining law's plan is to establish a Mining Committee or a political associa- tion of some sort, many of which he, personally, will be kept in touch with the will of his constituents. A live and virile body is needed and efforts towards this end are to be made. Mr. Benister leading the way.

MR. SASTRI'S FINAL MESSAGE TO NAIROBI.
An Dispassionate Plea for Reconciliation.

DECLARATION BY MR. SASTRI.
Fidelity of Political Animosity.

During the several addresses given by the Mr. H. V. E. S. Sastri during his stay in Nairobi, none was quite so brilliant in beauty of language and wealth of expression as his parting message to the Indians in Kenya, given in the Theatre Royal on Sunday forenoon. It was unfortunate that so few availed themselves of it, but the opportunity of hearing so distinguished an orator by the side of the audience reserved for Europeans, however, was well filled.

Mr. Sastri who was introduced by Mr. B. S. Varma, the President of the Kenya Central Indian Association, made a few unusual, if characteristic, remarks before proceeding to address his fellow-countrymen on a "Young and Ourself".

He was no longer a young man, he said, and for some time he had felt his health falling. He had had grown upon him wherever he had an important thing to do, an important document to sign or an important speech to make, of repeating what he was doing as a thing which he might never have the opportunity of doing again. Thinking that he was leaving people in Kenya altogether he favored him to speak like one in that predicament. No untruth, no evil suggestion and nothing that he did not sincerely feel must pass his lips that day. They might not be asked for their patient attention.

To the Indians of Nairobi he expressed his gratitude for their kindly reception and for the many acts of hospitality and courtesy which had been rendered at their hands. He wished to pay them a debt which he believed they had during the years of struggle a sense of unity and corporate life which was very remarkable and standing in vivid contrast to the spirit in the Motherland in circumstances much more adverse. The sense of unity was a primary requisite. He believed he could take back to India a useful lesson from the people of Kenya. There was discontent there but on the whole when the Central Kenya Indian Association had taken a resolution they had generally been able to carry the rest of the Kenya Indians along with them.

He said a tribute to them for holding the Kenya Indian community together and for taking a proper course of action which had, on the whole been the guiding line. He hoped that feeling and united action would persist for all time.
It seemed to him that the events in Kenya, small so it was, and towers forward a great many of the journey from their original bases, had incurred sacrifices in pursuit of what they regarded their proper course of action in an exceedingly creditable manner. By standing out from the Legislative Council and the Municipal bodies, and possibly from other committees, they had necessarily drawn upon themselves much unfair criticism, and they had suffered much. They all admitted that a place on a Legislative Council or a Municipal body, one of influence which if asserted not for one's own personal benefit, would suffice, carried out, to reduce greatly to the minimum those who were persecuted by abstention from these seats of power the community had suffered and although those who were pessimistically inclined might say that there was nothing anyone could do and that the world was full of unhappiness and misery for ever he had found out that the community was now taking out of the stocks and those who were injured. He believed that when the story of the struggle was written down credit would be given for the sacrifice and extraordinary action on their part.

A Primary Condition of Progress.
Having given the proper words of praise Mr. Sastri said he intended to speak another word to them. The primary condition of progress anywhere in the world, amongst all communities, and especially those which were highly organized such as those under the British flag, was peace and a friendly understanding in the various elements composing the population. It was idle to expect that when there was discord, dislike and unresponsible hatred between any two elements anything like advance could be achieved. The wisest men would plan, the strongest men would set but all in vain so long as communities that ought to exist in peace were there only to fall apart. That must be ended if possible by the united efforts of all to recognize the sovereign need of peace and they must sit together in concert to discover the necessary means for conserving it. He could understand quarrels about property and certain misunderstandings about religion but political animosity was not natural to man. It was largely a creature of man's activity. Men who ought to know better, who spoke appealingly, and who wrote convincingly, these people instead of using their power for good were sometimes hampered in using their power for evil. The political animosity was the unfortunate result. When there was political animosity the institutions were not the only things that suffered, as everything else was occupied at the scene. The man placed in power did not always realize that by his kind of power in order to further the public welfare. Often when they were away by their political animosities they used the power for the ennobling of public life and for the understanding of civil progress and welfare.

If the European here were swayed by political animosity and thought they would cut off the funds provided for the education of Indian children the result would not merely affect the Indian children and the Indian community, but in the long run the whole community, even the Europeans themselves, would suffer. He remembered a case in South Africa where the education of Indian children had been diverted into general revenue and this had been attributed to political animosity.

Political Animosity.
In Kenya there is political animosity between the European and Indian communities, occasional Mr. Sastri. "I have spoken to Englishmen and Englishwomen with whom I have been brought into contact during these few days and believe me I found them to ring true of the magnanimity of the English nature. Everyone who, in addition, in the direction of medical services and in other ways, I have not treated the Indian community quite justly. I have asked—We do not like their politics do not appeal to us. "If you suffer as a community in this vital department of your communal life it is because between you and the European community who rule here there is a divergence of political aim, want of an approximation of a common standard, and therefore this most wretched feeling of political animosity. I appeal to all Englishmen and Englishwomen to drop that political hatred, to look upon the Indian community as their brethren and as their fellow citizens. By their means with they cannot stand away the Indian community. They are here and will remain here and they have the right, the same as British folk, to remain here and to make good for themselves. With that understanding must be made. There is an example that. But no one has yet told me—I am going to have those Indian people all my life. You cannot argue me out of that previous feeling and I believe there is a general disposition to arrive at a basis of understanding if it is possible.

"FULL SPEED ASTEM"

Intricacies of the Difficult Art of Reversing a Car.

PRACTICE ESSENTIAL IF DAMAGED WINGS AND BODY PANELS ARE TO BE AVOIDED.

With the possible exception of gear changing, the greatest difficulties a driver has to master in learning to drive are undoubtedly in connection with reversing. Some motorists, incidentally, never really learn how to handle a car neatly and with certainty when travelling astern, but this is no excuse for the nervousness and the responsibilities in this direction. To become proficient will almost certainly require definite practice. But the fact that skill in reversing will enable a driver to avoid damaging wings or body panels, or any nothing of saving hours in the course of a year when the car has to be driven out of awkward places, should be a sufficient incentive to encourage him to give up a spare half-hour or so to learning the reverse act.

Those who learn to drive in a salon car will certainly find reversing more difficult to master than they would at the wheel of a lorry, for the view to the rear is obviously much more restricted. Even with the average open car reversing is once difficult today than it used to be on account of the modern fashion of low seats and high body sides; but these increased difficulties should serve rather to encourage the beginner definitely to practice rather than to make him adopt the attitude "it will all come in time." This outlook is applied to reversing in all any, it is a very mistake one, or unless the basic principles which govern the control of a car when travelling backwards are grasped at the outset, little real progress will ever be made.

Why Reversing is Difficult.

To begin with, it must be understood that a car behaves in a totally different manner when being reversed. There are two reasons for this. The first and most important is that when a car is travelling in a circle, the rear wheels describe a smaller circle than the front. This is why if the front wheels are taken too close to the kerb when turning a corner to the normal way the rear wheels will skid on the kerb, or even the pavement. Everyone knows this, but a beginner does not always realize that the opposite is the case when the car is driven backwards; that is to say, the rear part of the car to pass a given point (in this case the front wheels) will describe an arc of a greater radius. The rear wheel actually swings bodily sideways when a reversing is this, although very confusing at first, can be turned to good advantage, as will be pointed out later. The second point which must be grasped is that it is by no means easy to stop a straight course backwards by a sudden comparatively slowly there is a tendency for the steering to "take things" and to send the wheels over on to the full lock. (Those drivers who have been obviously accustomed to those two characteristics of travelling backwards by will never find this self-complexity at sea, although, actually, they may not be able to place his car exactly where he wants it at the first attempt until he has had a little experience.) The best way to get about learning to reverse is to find a quiet lane away from any bends or side turnings. Here a driver can familiarize himself with the feeling of going astern, and he should at first try to steer a dead straight course, afterwards practicing reversing into a gateway.

It is opportune to mention at this point that it is an offence to travel backwards for a greater distance or time than may be necessary. Strictly speaking, therefore, practicing such as we have suggested is not in conformity with the letter of the law, but provided a suitable place and time are chosen no harm will be done.

Make Yourself Comfortable.

It is important to take up a comfortable position at the wheel, and probably the best attitude in the case of an open car is to sit slightly on the back with one's right hand on the wheel and the left arm resting on the slack of the seat. This gives adequate control of the car and allows the driver to have a clear view astern.

With a closed car it is a debatable point whether it is best to sit in the attitude just described and to look through the rear window, or whether it is better to lower the driver's window and look out at the side of the car. Actually, both attitudes are suitable in certain circumstances.

If, for instance, one is reversing in a fairly wide space where there is little risk of fouling wings on a wall or gate post, it is usually easiest to look through the rear window, but if the driver is trying to manoeuvre the car into a space only just large enough to hold it, the best way is to look out of the outside window and to concentrate on leaving as small a margin as possible on this side. If this is done, and the driver is quite sure that there is sufficient space for his car, the rear side can be left to look after itself. As has already been pointed out, the front of the car swings bodily sideways when the steering is locked over fully, and it is necessary in confined spaces to keep an eye on the front wings. For the same reason it is impossible to steer away from a wall in reverse if the car is very close alongside and the proper course is to drive forward until well clear of the wall before reversing.

A precaution which should always be taken is to make absolutely sure that there is no one behind the car which is invisible from the driving seat, and this applies particularly in the case of a saloon.

Having dealt generally with the broad principles of reversing, we now turn to a number of particular cases which often arise.

Hints on Parking.

In these days when a car cannot always be left anywhere, but may have to be placed in a park, it is important to know the best ways of getting into a gap which is only just large enough. Slightly over-engineering is the case of times being slightly on the slow to the kerb—in the most common way of parking and with this arrangement it is generally easiest to drive in full first. To take up a position in a "side-by-side" park a driver should approach on the opposite side of the road and stop about a car's length beyond the vacant space, from this position it should be possible to reverse straight into the gap in one movement.

A point worth bearing in mind is that when the back wheels are touching the kerb, the rear portion of the car will overhang the pavement appreciably, so that if there is a lamp post just behind the car it may be taken not to let the car run right back against the kerb.

In cases where cars are parked alongside the kerb it is also best to reverse into position if one has to take up a place between two other vehicles. It often happens that a motorist wishes to turn in a narrow lane, but is unable to do so, making use only of the width of the road, is to look for gateways or nearby always to be found at frequent intervals and by driving into them.

several manoeuvres may be avoided.

Generally speaking, the easiest way is to proceed straight on, when going to take up a position in a "side-by-side" car park. That is to say, the car is driven full-down the gateway, from which position it can be driven straight out. Before this plan is followed, however, it is wise to make sure that the ground on to which the rear wheels will be driven is quite firm, as it is otherwise a risk of becoming stuck with wheelspin.

The car as reversing is controlled, will, as a rule, find it best to drive straight in and reverse out, the reason being that such great economy in reversing will not be necessary. On the other hand, of course, it will not be so easy to drive out in a hurry, and the driver should weigh up the pros and cons of the two methods and decide which is the better to follow in his own particular case.

When a garage is very awkwardly placed it is well worth while to spend half an hour or so trying various ways of getting in and out, and, having found the best, to make a mental note of the various positions, and when during the manoeuvre, so that the car can be driven in and out without making any false moves.

A Final Tip.

Finally, there is one tip which it is well worth remembering in connection with reversing. It occasionally happens that for some reason or other a car is taken up in a position which is more awkward than usual, and in his effort to get out afterwards only in placing the car in a still more awkward position. Obviously if the car has been driven out in this way it can be driven out; but to do so may involve too many manoeuvres, and it is far better to find some method of reversing the car bodily sideways. If two jacks are available this is quite easy. After raising one or other of the axles—according to the end of the car it is desired to move—the car may be placed sideways so that it falls off the jacks. This will result in moving it some six to eight inches, which is necessary, but not too overcome the difficulties, but naturally the procedure can be repeated if necessary. In one case, moreover, of course, a pair of garage blocks would be available, but seldom available, but seldom available, but seldom available.

Meeting of Settlers of the District.

VOLUNTEERS ENROL.

Petition Explained by Deputy Director of Agriculture.

["STANDARD" CORRESPONDENT,
Kisumu, June 6.]
A public meeting called by the Trans-Nzara Farmers' Association,
was held in Kisumu on Friday,
May 31. Major Thompson, presided, and there were present on the platform, Mr. E. Harrison, Deputy Director of Agriculture,
Mr. Stone, Provincial Comptroller,
Messrs. Munn, Pritchard, Mr.
Crompton, District Commissioner,
Kisumu, and Captain Fitzgibbon, Honorary Inspector. The meeting was very well attended by the public, some 170 farmers being present.

Mr. Harrison in outlining the present position, stated that three weeks ago 12 locust swarms were sent to the Kerio Province. More than half the Locust Destruction Staff and equipment was already in the Kerio Province.

He greatly appreciated the interest displayed by the district and even more so the offer of assistance in the shape of volunteers. He pointed out that there were several large laying areas beside the Turkshana and Suk in Tatambora, in the Sudan, in Tigris, Ghigi, and the Maso
Reserve.

"It is," he said, "impossible to expect to exterminate the locust danger with the present facilities. Many of the laying grounds are inaccessible and we must expect flying locusts. The most that can be done is to tackle the large accessible swarms
with all the means at our disposal. There is no doubt that a lot of damage can be done to the locusts and the more assistance

he received, the greater the extent of the damage."

Destruction by Arrive.

If it were possible to leave the Suk area to local efforts it would mean that he could transfer his force to Turkshana which would be of very real assistance. Mr.
Harrison said that he had heard that there was an idea in the district that the Administration had banned the use of arsenic. This was not the case. The Administration had banned the uninter-minate use of arsenic, which was a very different matter. He explained that the Turkshana were a staff of white ants, and that apart from anything else, if there were serious losses of stock through arsenic poisoning, the Suk and Turkshana, which had given much voluntary assistance in dealing with the locusts in the past, would naturally abstain from giving valuable information concerning hopper swarms in the future.

He said that the "bread-basket" of destruction was, and would be, and wherever possible,
and that this kind of grass had already arrived. Mr. Harrison informed the meeting that the Government had never refused any request for funds or material to deal with locusts, and that no difficulty was anticipated in the future in this respect.

Volunteer Assistance.

With regard to volunteers, Mr.
Harrison suggested a force of twenty. Tools and camp equipment would be available, and volunteers would be paid at the rate of £1 per diem, provided they were willing to work. He also appealed to farmers on the border of the Reserve to give what assistance they could.

In answer to a question, Mr.
Harrison said that the matter of insurance against locust damage had been gone into carefully but the conclusion had been arrived at that it was impracticable. Englishmen had been made in industrial countries which suffered from locusts and in no case had any practical scheme been evolved.

Use of P. W. D. Staff.

Mr. Waller asked whether it would not be possible to transfer some of the P. W. D. force at present working on the roads in the Trans Nzara to assist in the campaign and Captain Robin, Assistant Engineer, P. W. D., informed the meeting that he has some 400 natives working at the moment on the considerable quantity of road-making material.

After some discussion, it was proposed by Mr. Kirk and seconded by Admiral Crompton, that a committee be set up to investigate the matter. It was the opinion of the meeting that it was the wish of the District that the local P. W. D. force be employed on locust destruction.

It was finally decided that a meeting of the Local Locust Committee should be held that afternoon at 2.30 p.m. and that volunteers should be asked to report at that meeting.

MOTOR COACH STATIONS.

["STANDARD" CORRESPONDENT]

London, May 16.
If the proposals of British Roadways Organisation Ltd. are put into operation motor-coach stations will be erected on all the main routes of the country. These will be provided with time tables, restaurants and kitchens and will offer in addition various facilities
to private motorists such as petrol supplies and garaging.

In addition to this the company will aim at amalgamating all the Motor-Coach services on the routes from London to Leeds, Manchester, Newcastle, Liverpool and Birmingham together with any intermediate services on those particular routes. There is no doubt that this amalgamation and the erection of stations will help in many ways to improve the motor-coaching facilities of the country but one of the chief disadvantages of the motor-coach will probably disappear, i.e., their willingness to set down passengers wherever they wish, which, in the case of those who live some distance out of the towns, is a very definite convenience. It also seems a pity that the railways cannot make more of an effort to make their services more popular. The roads are quite crowded enough already and motor-coaches are the least desirable of additions.

Mombasa Health.

INTERESTING FIGURES IN M.O.H.'S REPORT.

The Medical Officer of Health, Mombasa, reports in an annual report, several interesting facts
which come under the general heading of statistics. They deal with the unusual strength of the various communities, the incidence of disease and the unreliability of the present statistical information.

The European population of Mombasa is given as 885 made up
as follows—392 men, 197 women and 196 children.

The Indian population numbers
7,590, Goanias 527, Arabs 7,026 and Africans 20,906. In all cases
there is a disproportionate number of women as compared with men on the island.

The total population is given as 14,177 and there are over 10,000
children of all races.

The total population is given as 14,177 and there are over 10,000
children of all races.

The European death rate has increased considerably between 1927 and 1928. In 1927 the figure was 7.91 and in 1928 it is 10.29.

The malarial figures are interesting and show a considerable fall, being only 6.6 per cent in 1928 as compared with 15.5 in 1927 and 10.8 per cent the preceding year.

Displacement.

NATIVE WHO THOUGHT HE WAS IN THE P. W. D.

An unusual example of the working of the native mind was given in the Resident Magistrate's Court, Nairobi, yesterday when Ekywa was called as a witness in a case against an alleged pick-
pocket.

The examination opened—
You are Ekywa—Yes.
And you are employed by Messrs. Isherwood?—No, I am employed at the P. W. D.
Where were you working last month?—At the P. W. D.

When were you employed by Messrs. Isherwood?—I have never been employed there.

The Prosecutor suggested that the wrong person had been called.
The witness he wanted was certainly employed by Messrs.
Isherwood. The Prosecutor
again questioned P. W. D. man, and ascertained that it was, in fact, Wanyapi, the first witness for the prosecution.

The Prosecutor then asked for the man's initials which showed that he was employed by Messrs.
Isherwood and not by the
P. W. D.

A native C.I.D. man stated
in evidence that he saw the accused lying money from Wanyapi's
pocket.

The Magistrate found the boy
guilty of the theft of Shs. 15/-.
His previous convictions were recorded, one at Kisumu in July 1924 when accused was ordered to receive six strokes for theft, and the second at Nairobi in November of last year when he was fined Shs. 40/- for a similar offence.

The Magistrate sentenced him
to six months rigorous imprisonment.

KENNEL NOTES

by Margaret Collyer

Miss Collyer, glad to show all correspondence in connection with "Kennel Notes" should be responsible for accuracy of statements, based on information as applied by her correspondents.

I asked in an answer to a question I had with regard to deafness in bull-terriers. Miss Tracy (Bradford 7), Matangi, Nairobi writes as follows:

"In your 'Notes' of March 18 you mentioned deafness with regard to kennel bull-terriers. I have only kept them for two years, but neither of them show any sign of deafness. The friend from whom I bought my first dog has bred them for a great number of years, and tells me that she has never known a case of deafness, though in the white bull-terriers she used to keep, it was quite a frequent occurrence. I am hoping to breed from the two I have now (both imported) at the end of the year, and hope in time to learn more about the breed. They are of course smaller than the white ones: my bitch who is 12 months old weighs 32 lbs. the dog is 45 lbs. If you know of anyone else in the country who breeds the dog or Staffordshire bull-terriers, it would be very glad to have their address, as it is difficult to get the name of the person who did have a couple, or more, of the Staffordshire breed. I rather fancy they were bred not far from Nakuru. Perhaps the publication of Miss Bradbury's letter will help to bring her into communication with the fanciers of 'brindle bull-terriers'."

This is fancy is a much older breed than their snow-white brothers which are more or less bred for the show bench in later years. The original dogs of the breed were brindle and white, and fancy fallow, or even black and tan. The original bull-terrier was no doubt a cross with any ordinary terrier and the bull-dog; some of the largest specimens might have a deal of mastiff thrown in. They were bred entirely for fighting and rat killing. The dog that fought with Worcester's lions at Warwick in 1825 were large bull-terriers, and not bull-dogs as stated in the journals of that day. It is not so very long ago since that wonderful "spout" (77) of fighting dogs was given up. Towards the end of 1802 two bull-terriers were made up a place called Bladon, somewhere in the West of England. The dog fought for an hour and a half, one dog being killed, and the other died shortly afterwards from the wounds received. One of these was a brindle and the other a white and both weighed 25 lbs each. A more brutal sort of sport than dog fighting cannot well be imagined. Dog-fighting was bad enough, but as it requires brains to out-wit a single hand which can suffer in comparison with a light sensitive and human animal such as a dog. The reason that the bull-terriers were crossed was to save their ears from being torn to bits in battle in the same way that Rugby football players have their ears up in a cap to prevent them being utilized as handles in a scrum. Lord Camelford paid £24 for a fighting dog which he presented to the boxer Jim Fitcher. He considered that it was just that the champion human fighter should own the champion canine-fighter. This dog was a fawn coloured specimen, bawped in the ear, and a direct cross of bull-dog and a coon's terrier.

The rat catching records of some of these early bull-terriers are very interesting. "Slava Jacks" who died in 1880 succeeded in killing sixty rats in 2 minutes 40 seconds; 100 rats in 5 minutes 20 seconds; and 1,000 rats in 100 minutes. It is inconceivable to think even in a rat-pit. I well remember one day when staying at Greatham for some hunting, my horse being lame. I arranged to go riding with a boy friend. We were to take some ferrets and drive traps to take some disgusting old heap near the town. I had my Irishman "Boys" of course, and he had a small fox-terrier bitch. Never have I seen so many rats before or since, but fierce snout eating fellows that attacked the dogs. When we had put a couple of ferrets into the heap the rats came out like bees from a hive, we wanted 6 or 7 dogs really. Boys and the little terrier killed 70 in the hour, and twice we bunged up the holes and took the dogs to a stream near by so that they could get their mouths free of filth before returning to the fray. By the end of an hour both dogs were utterly exhausted from weariness. They were also getting bitten badly, so we had to grab up the ferrets as soon as they showed above ground, and knock off the rats. We considered that the dogs having killed over a rat a minute had done wonders. This gives one an idea by contrast as to the ancient "Jacks" nationally, our dogs were not in training, and they could not live at the pace. The rate of killing in all directions bewildered them a good deal.

Fort Ternan Note.

A MAIN ROAD WHICH NEEDS REPAIRS.

"STANDARD" (WOLFFSBURG, E.). In Fort Ternan, June 6. In spite of the considerable shortage of rain throughout the district everything looks well. Main was planted nearly two months late, but is now well advanced and looking and promising in general for a fair yield. Labour is plentiful but seems to consist mostly of tolos, out to earn his pay. The district now has a local telephone service, and it is hoped that other areas will join in, as it is such a convenience to isolated farms.

Our main road still needs a lot of attention as very little has been done to it since it was originally constructed. I wonder if the F.W.D. has forgotten all about it? We shall see a gang on the Fort Ternan-Lumbwa road, and for a trunk road it is in a disgraceful condition. Recently this stretch of highway was impossible to traverse. One can see the foot-roads from Escarpment to Lumbwa, but when meeting Fort Ternan one has to discover the track and circumnavigate the many boulders which obstruct it. Recently repair work was started, but in the middle all the boys were taken off and sent elsewhere, so we are in the same position as we were at the beginning of the year.

Food Control. There is much dissatisfaction in Nyamira on account of the Government having fixed the price of maize. Farmers contend that the Government should therefore fix the price of flour and coffee and the salaries of its servants. How are the maize farmers going to start if their expenses are the same, but the yields reduced through drought and locusts, and when their potential legislators stop us getting the best price for our produce. Are our coming crop going to be sold under the same arbitrary measures? The local Association has asked the Administration to throw open to other settlement some 1,500 acres in the district, but it has been intimated that this block of Crown land is still to remain idle and unused. It seems a pity when the country is in need of new settlers, and this land has been unused for years.

Miss Mining in Tanganyika. A new Belgian company, the Miss Mining Corporation, S.A., of Antwerp, has been acquired by Miss Mining in Tanganyika. The latter the property of Chevalier Egon Fr. Kischstein, the well-known East African explorer. Mr. J. A. Van Mining Geological, Mr. J. A. Freeman, formerly of the East African Co., Ltd., has been appointed local manager of the new company.

NEW PREMIER'S MODERN METHODS.

Uses the "Talkies" to Speak to the Nation.

CABINET MINISTERS INTRODUCED.

Film Taken in the Garden of No. 10 Downing Street.

Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, the Premier, is taking advantage of every possible type of modern invention in his effort to get into touch with the people of Great Britain.

He has now adopted a more recent invention for his purpose. On Monday he introduced the members of his Cabinet to the public by means of a talking-film.

The film was taken in the garden of No. 10 Downing Street, where Mr. MacDonald, with his colleagues gathered round him spoke into the microphone, while he introduced the Cabinet Ministers one by one, the film recording the proceedings.

Another appointment has been made to the Ministry in Mr. Ben Turner, as Secretary for Mines. He is one of the moderates of the Labour Party.

The result of the election for the Scottish Universities has added two Conservatives and one Liberal to the total of seats.

THE KING'S HEALTH IMPROVES.

Again Able to Go Out of Doors.

A WALK IN THE GARDENS

(THROUGH BUREAU AGENCY.)

The King is making progress. The above is diminishing in size and his general health is good. The King was out to-day for the first time since his second illness developed. The doctors declared in view of his progress and the excellent weather that the King should benefit by the fresh air. Accordingly His Majesty spent half an hour in the grounds of Windsor Castle.

Unjust Weights.

TWO LOCAL TRADERS FINED

(By Special Correspondent.)

When an Indian named K. D. Patel was charged before Mr. Owen in the Resident Magistrate's Court yesterday with having in his possession one ounce of opium which was unweighed, one of the two local traders was fined for the same offence.

(By Special Correspondent.)

In another case an Indian named Abdul Rahman was charged with being in possession of one ounce and four untanned weights. The weights were found to be 24 grains in a four ounce weight. The accused admitted his guilt but said that the weights were not in a fine of the 14 grains imposed on the first charge and the weights were confiscated.

SIR A. CHAMBERLAIN AND THE LEAGUE.

A Personal Reference to His Colleagues.

UNFINISHED TASKS

(By Wireless.)

On June 4 immediately after the resignation of the office of Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain telegraphed as follows to the Council of the League of Nations now in session at Madrid.

I deeply regret that it is impossible for me to attend the present session of the Council to fulfil the particular tasks which I have charged me to fulfil during my absence. I desire to thank them and all for the great kindness and consideration which they have shown to me. I shall cherish the memory of friendships which I have formed and shall always regard it as a privilege to have been permitted to take part in the League's beneficent work.

"E. A. Standard" Special Cable Review.

THE PRINCIPLE OF TRUSTESHIP.

THE ILLITERATE MASSES

(By Special Correspondent.)

London, June 11. Sir Michael O'Dwyer, last Governor of the Punjab, in a lecture before the new Government, urged the necessity for steadily adhering to the principle of trusteeship by Parliament and the ignorant masses by education and training.

He applied this both to East Africa and to India. He considered the former case to be the more important one.

(By Special Correspondent.)

The Trustee is an editorial which states that any honest general opinion of these countries is that the Government should have the responsibility of raising the standard of living of the masses and of encouraging the Government to pursue an active economic policy.

MR. AMERY'S PLEDGE TO THE EAST AFRICAN SETTLER.

present, as the ultimate goal, and I adhere to the declaration of Mr. Winston Churchill in 1922, namely, that we do not contemplate any system which will prevent East Africa looking forward to self-government in the process of time on Cecil Rhodes's principle of equal rights for all civilized men.

Wonderful as have been the changes in recent years, the curtain has only just been rung on the future development we have a high responsibility. May we prove ourselves worthy.

Mr. Ormsby-Gore.

Mr. Ormsby-Gore said: "What of the problem created by the contact of our scientific and material civilization upon peoples who for centuries have lived the primitive life, far removed from all outside contact? I have no fears for the future of the Negro peoples, for whom we say to-day as leaders and trustees. Their capacity for resistance to anything that may be put upon them is truly wonderful. The Negro peoples are a sturdy stock, racy of their soil, who cannot be disturbed. They laugh as we laugh, they enjoy as we enjoy, and I am convinced that the contact will be for the good of us both, if we realize that we must give them of our best and that we must first learn. Probably the greatest misunderstandings have arisen from failure to realize that the Negro peoples, having those powers of resistance, have in them an intense conservatism, and have adapted themselves to their environment in a way to which we shall have to adapt ourselves. It is therefore a great thing that one of the leading features of the African Society should be to encourage the study of a science sometimes called ethnology, sometimes called anthropology. Settlers, missionaries, and traders are not approaching a blank as all sense of all civilization; it is a civilization that must be studied objectively and scientifically if we are to do any good at all."

Mr. Amery has said very wisely that it is impossible to lay down here and now exactly what is likely to be the ultimate goal of the future of the ultimate way in which these problems will work out. Far-reaching prophecies in Africa are, I believe, vain. One of our errors has been the attempt to fix beforehand a definite goal—a goal used in the Hilton Young Report—consistent policies throughout the whole continent. I am rather doubtful whether such a policy is either possible or desirable. The genius of British Colonial effort has been the genius for improvisation.

"The tropics have amazing capacity for production. There, in that great belt round the Equator, where there is no winter, little if any change of season, where life is always one incessant surge, where the capacity of production per acre is far in excess of all we know in the temperate zones, where, indeed, the figures are almost astronomical, is the new great world for human science to conquer. Yet guarding these resources stand most formidable armies with flaming swords preventing man's entrance. These armies, I once said, have the wings of the little mosquito. That is surely one of them. The thing which has kept back the Negro peoples has been their inability, and until quite recent years our inability, to understand the laws of plant life, of animal life, and human life, which in these areas are so very different from those in this little island of ours."

The Colonial Office Ministers

"The immediate task before the Colonial Office is an ever greater concentration upon these fundamental problems of medical research, veterinary research, forestry research, and anthropological and ethnological research. If we can so transform the Colonial Office in England that we can utilize an ever increasing stream of the very ablest scientific brains to the study and conquest of these problems, then I believe our political and constitutional problems will solve themselves, but you can never have an effective grasp of what is valuable in white settlement or the advance of the Negro peoples unless a far greater effort is made in those scientific directions. I look forward to a very different Africa in twenty, thirty, or forty years if that work is zealously continued and if we can attract to it the interest not merely of administrators and politicians, but of our leaders in commerce and Nanyuki Notes.

THE "BLACK SEA" NOW IN GOOD CONDITION.

(STANDARD CORRESPONDENT.)

Nanyuki, June 7. With the exception of occasional blunder showers in North Kenya the rains in this area may definitely be considered to be most promising. The weather remains fine and sunny with warm days and exceptionally cold nights. Rainfall for May was 6.87 in, as recorded at the Silverlock Hotel and for the first week of June 12 in only.

Work has now been commenced on roads at the vicinity of the Township and the P.W.D. are certainly making a thorough job of the main road especially the celebrated "Black Sea"—480 yards of bituminous black butter—which no car could face in wet weather, is now a "shell of solid red masonry. Where last November sixteen bullocks failed to shift a light two seater, that same machine's speedometer needs no registers 40 miles per hour and more. All one now needs is a few hundred advertisements of patent medicine to imagine oneself howling down the Portsmouth Road.

The only fly in the ointment is found when a brace of natives meandering along the "roads" centre, do their best to commit suicide by jinking opposite ways.

A hundred pounds is to be spent on a real road up to the residential plots above the racecourse, which above all, our scientific men. It is a world which calls for the highest effort and the greatest personal sacrifice.

"One of the tests applied by historians will be 'What did Great Britain do with her opportunity and her responsibilities in Africa?' I am confident that, while there are many things one would like to see adjusted, at any rate in the last thirty years the foundations have been well and truly laid, and at present there is every where a real desire that everything done in Britain's name should be to the credit of Britain's renown in history and above all a desire that there should go out to Africa the very best men that we can get from all parts of our Empire. We need not shrink from the future, for that I am convinced."

should do much to open up these highly attractive properties.

Sport and Social.

Excellent weather favoured the tennis tournament which was attended by some 90 to 100 people at the Nanyuki Sports Club. Numerous players came from Nyeri and some even from so distant Meru and Italo and the courts presented a scene of great animation. Five-shooter took place in the afternoon and also a gymkhana, the events in which proved most interesting. The children's events were specially successful. For those not interested in such frivolities, there were the quiet trout-fishing on the Lik River, where sport-fishing is known to lurk.

A dance took place in the evening and next day, Sunday, tennis was proceeded with, Miss Adams and Mrs. Skelton in the mixed doubles proving the winners. The tournament and amusements were organized and carried through by our general secretary Mr. P. D. Townsend and thanks to his untiring energy a thoroughly enjoyable week-end was spent by everyone.

Trout Fishing.

Trout-fishing is in full blast again now and good catches are made almost daily. A prominent railway engineer from Uganda recently staying at the Silverlock Hotel, had a very busy time, and though an amateur fisherman never failed to bring in good catches, finally leaving Nanyuki highly satisfied with sport shown on the local streams. Private fishing on the Orishali is now available and a 14 lb. rainbow was recently taken out of a pool there, after a big fight.

Certain riparian owners have however constructed dams in this river and opinions differ as to the necessity for fish-ladders to enable spawning fish to pass these.

Personal.

Doctor and Mrs. Gallagher have arrived from England and it is believed will take Mr. C. H. Randall's house at the old Saw Mills. It is a considerable time now since Nanyuki had a resident doctor and local people, especially parents with young children, feel less anxiety now that they have a medical man in the centre of the Township. Major Younghouse and his bride have returned from their honeymoon in Mombasa and are concentrating their activities on "Brighter Nanyuki" with untiring vigour.

The following articles, which should be of interest to all motorists, are culled from "The Garage," the organ of the "Automobile Club of Kenya."
 The principal points to be considered by the motorist in effecting his car insurance are set out in such a manner that he can do so with ease, by reference to the policy, whether it constitutes adequate protection. That is to say, adequate in the light of experience, because some out-of-the-way and altogether unexpected happenings are always possible. Writing generally, however, if the policy meets the conditions as set out, the holder possesses the full and complete protection in a present state of knowledge.

THE GRADE OF OIL TO USE
 What reasoning has led a number of motorists to believe that the use of an oil heavier than that recommended will give them the greatest satisfaction? There are a number of reasons for this strange line of thought. The still fairly widespread and absolutely false impression that the body of oil—referred to as viscosity—is a measure of oil quality. That this is untrue we all know for if this line of reasoning were followed out to its logical conclusion (Garage's Model "C") would be the best of engine lubricants a rather absurd one. Necessary in worn engines in that it will seal worn and oil-fitting piston rings more successfully than will the oil that is recommended. It is unfortunate that this belief has received the sanction of many manufacturers for the "You may have heard the expression "The compression in my motor engine is much better with the heavier oil than with the oil you recommend." Without question, this is a perfectly correct statement in its statement and under the usual conditions of testing compression by hand with the engine comparatively cold no doubt the very heavy viscous oil will give an apparent compression better than that provided by the lighter oil. The difficulty here, however, is that the method of test does not represent in any degree whatever conditions present while the motor is running.

With hand cranking the motion of the piston is very slow and the temperatures of cylinder wall and of the oil film on the cylinder wall are low. Compare this with the high speed and high temperatures of the oil film when the engine is running. These are the conditions under which the difference in compression should be measured, for they are the conditions under which differences in compression will affect engine performance. And under these conditions operating speeds and temperature—the apparent advantage of the heavier oil in providing more perfect sealing of the worn rings with corresponding greater compression, disappears. Thus the car owner enjoys no actual advantage through the use of the heavier oil under such conditions, but has himself open to possible engine trouble due to the use of an oil too heavy for that particular engine and service, and undoubtedly less power output from the engine due to increased oil churning.

In mountainous regions especially we find still another thought for the use of a heavier oil than that recommended. Here with the frequent and continuous use of the lower transmission speeds, the temperature of the cooling water in the radiator reaches the boiling point and the water supply is boiled away. Under these conditions many believe that a heavier oil will cause the engine to run cooler and prevent this rapid evaporation of the cooling water.

When the radiator is being filled away of the cooling water simply indicates that the car is being operated beyond the limit of the cooling and is a condition upon which the engine oil effect an improvement. So much for the "heavy oil" effect on improvement. We have seen that in no case is there any real benefit to be gained through the use of an oil heavier than recommended.

ROAD CORROSION
 The would think that riding a prominent bituminous road surface would compress the material sufficiently to withstand traffic effort, but in practice the compression due to rolling is actually less than the lacquer film delivered by the rear wheels of a car. The effect of rolling depresses until no further compression is viable, whereas the effect of motor traffic is just the opposite, for each passing vehicle delivers a compression which tends to move the surface and gradually increase the depth of the depression formed. The force of the blows delivered is variable, and depends upon the springing weight of the vehicle, the square of the speed and the square of the obstruction or depression. It may

NAIROBI TO BE ONE OF THE TRANS-AFRICAN AIR STATIONS.

The concentration of rain both in time and in space is such that the rainfall in East Africa cannot be considered as a homogeneous one. The rain conditions in East Africa are much better than in England.

Favourable Winds.
Rain, too, would appear to be favourable as those in the interior are rarely strong. Violent dust-storms and mist-storms which are a common occurrence in the hot part of the day during January, February and March, particularly in the Rift Valley. These reach a height of 5,000 feet.

East Africa continued Mr. Tymms, is not hot. Nowhere are the low temperatures of India, Iraq and the Sudan experienced.

Turning to the more interesting side of the development of civil aviation in the territories Mr. Tymms outlined the route which will be followed by the Cairo-Cape Town Air Service, and explained that this will pass through each of the countries with which he was dealing.

Over Nairobi.

The flight of the Royal Air Force Sir Alan Cobham and Captain Gladiators have been the chief instruments in consolidating the knowledge of the route. Sir Alan said Mr. Tymms, "As a result of these flights and recent investigations, it has been decided to modify the aerial route from Lake Victoria to Northern Rhodesia, from Nairobi to Lake Victoria, it will pass over some settled regions viz: Nairobi, Arusha, Dodoma and M'bera, joining the original route at N'dola in Northern Rhodesia, thus eliminating Tabora and Abercorn and the sparsely populated bush region lying between. From N'dola south, the route will practically follow the Cape railway.

The chief centres of commerce in Central Africa lie along the Congo: Mombasa, Tanganyika, Dar-es-Salaam etc. The chief centres of industry lie outside British territory. The Kilo-Metro Mines and the mineral zone of Katanga lie in the Belgian Congo. The chief areas of settlement lie in the Kenya Highlands, Arusha, the Iringa Highlands and the Fife district.

The Cairo to Cape airway with its varying conditions requires both aeroplanes and seaplanes. From Cairo to Khartoum the Nile is an uncertain river crossing several sandbanks. The terrain is desert where landing grounds may be easily prepared and maintained, and sea emergency landing grounds are abundant. So over this section land machines will be used.

From Khartoum to the southern border of the Sudan the soil is either black cotton or swampy which precludes the making of suitable landing grounds. On the other hand the Nile and Lakes provide admirable bases for seaplanes.

South of Lake Victoria the route is more practicable for land machines and therefore, Kinross will be a change-over station, in which purpose it is well suited as an emergency landing place to the show.

Cairo-Kinross Section.

The first part of the trans-Continental air route to be opened will be the Cairo-Kinross section with an extension to M'bera. Kinross has recently been connected by a branch line with Tabora. This linking-up would mean that the main railway arteries of Kenya and Tanganyika would be in direct, air-line communication with Cairo.

The three routes, said Mr. Tymms, which will for early development in East Africa are: Be-Belombani—Tanganyika—Nairobi—Mombasa; Nairobi—Dar-es-Salaam—Moshi; and Nairobi—Arusha—Dodoma—Iringa—M'bera. The administrations of the three East African territories which will result in the establishment of landing grounds approximately every 500 miles along these routes, while in Kenya, through the activities of the Aero Club of East Africa, a start has already been made with the provision of landing grounds at other centres of settlement in the Highlands, which will make it possible to reach most important places in the Colony by air from Nairobi. A very detailed list of the sites chosen for the three main internal routes was given by Mr. Tymms, followed by full details of the topographical features of the routes describing the country over which machines would have to fly from station to station.

Future Routes.

These followed some possible routes of the future. "With the exception of one, they all had the Belgian Congo as their objective. The exception was a seaplane route connecting Mombasa, Zanzibar and Dar-es-Salaam with an extension south to Lindi, Mombassa, Beira and even Durban.

"It is to be expected that East Africa, with its peculiar type of white settlement," said Mr. Tymms, "would not lag behind in the matter of private flying. In July, 1927, the Aero Club of Kenya was formed as an association of aviators of all flying services and others interested in aviation. With the spread of interest in 1928, the Aero Club was charged to the Aero Club of East Africa and branch organizations were established in Entebbe and Dar-es-Salaam. The Club is affiliated to the Royal Aero Club, and proposes to foster the development of flying clubs. Proposals to this end have been made to the Government of Kenya.

In referring to the work of the pioneers of aviation in this part of Africa Mr. Tymms pays tribute to the work of Mr. John Chubbery who has done much to familiarize the Kenyans with flying, and to dispel the idea that there is some peculiar and unexplained obstacle to flying in the East African atmosphere. "The late Mrs. Carberry's unopposed flight from Mombasa to Nairobi (800 miles) over desolate bush country, in three and a half hours against fifteen by train, also did much to show the possibilities. Mr. Tymms emphasized the fact that one of the greatest aerial needs in this part of the world was for serial survey and the matter was dealt with under the heading of economic surveys, agriculture, forestry, rails and roads; and topography.

The Commission's View.

The difficulty of financing the more rapidly completed air survey is an obstacle here as elsewhere, but it is significant says Mr. Tymms that the Hilton Young

Commission in drawing attention to the very large number of surveys required for development purposes, particularly in connection with railways and settlement in Tanganyika, stressed the fact that survey resources of the territories are insufficient to deal with the problem sufficiently promptly, and advised the augmentation of local capabilities to meet this need.

While the Carter Union Commission did not specifically study aviation in relation to the development of the East African Territories," concluded Mr. Tymms, "his report is a document of such far-reaching importance in this connection that it is worth while quoting their main reference to the subject, as showing the probable trend of development—

"Great possibilities for the probable trend of development as a help towards administrative union lie in the development of air routes. A service of communications by air cannot be organized save by the common effort, administrative and financial, of all three territories."

Mr. B. P. Mayer who was invited by the Chairman to give his views explained the value of an air service to commerce in East Africa where transport conditions were seriously handicapped internally by the rainy seasons and externally by the long sea journey from England. He pointed out that the Aero Club of East Africa was a very active body and he had no doubt that the number of machines in the territories would be increased at an early date.

Zambezi Bridge.

MR. AMERY'S HOPE FOR AN EARLY START.

Sir R. Thomas (Liberal, Angloway) asked the Secretary of State for the Colonies in the House of Commons last night what was the present position regarding the Zambezi bridge project.

Mr. Amery: I am unable at present to add anything to the statement which I made on 30th April in Committee of Supply, namely, that the technical problems concerning the proposed site of the bridge have now been surmounted, and that I hope that it will not be long before any other difficulties which stand in the way will be overcome, and that the scheme will enter the field of practical construction.

to the measure creating a Roads Board give power to that Board to delegate its wide authority to any smaller body within itself. If that involves concentration of power in still fewer hands and is not merely an administrative convenience, its purpose should be explained. In regard to the measure for the control of transport, upon which we have already expressed our views, we believe that only one course is open to Council. The principle at issue is so important and the interests affected so widespread that the Bill must either be referred to a Select Committee or be delayed by some other means until the country has had an opportunity to consider the problem in all its bearings. We do not think that Government has any other intention, but the approach to a solution of a difficulty which is growing in urgency with the passage of time may be guided if Government will take the sentence of any controversy the whole facts at its disposal upon which the policy has been framed. In the best interests of Kenya the Legislature must discover and adopt the procedure which is best calculated to create informed public discussion of a Bill the significance of which is not now - but for the future. The question of control of road transport is only a phase of a much larger one - the policy of development of communication to be followed throughout Eastern Africa as a whole and it is with that reality as a background (keeping in mind the inevitability of Railway amalgamation) that it should be considered.

FLOOD NIGHTMARE

Tents, Equipment and Foodstuffs Swept into the Nile.

A cloudburst at Murchison Falls on the Nile, brought sudden termination of the work of the Metro Goldwyn Company who are producing "Trader Horn" in East Africa.

The storm broke shortly after midnight and a torrential downpour had gashed in a cutting behind the camp sweeping into the river. The damage to the wireless set and the camp were done with their headquarters for four days.

DELETED BY

The wireless set last year and it is known to be a very great loss to the station. It is now in the hands of the Government...

The flood waters subsided three days later when it was found that the ground was strewn with dead animals, trees and bushes.

ALLEGED MURDER IN A PANGANI HOTEL.

Somali Charged With Three Year-Old Crime.

A GAME OF CARDS.

The Resident Magistrate's Court presented an animated appearance yesterday morning.

In introducing the case, the Court Prosecutor, Inspector Crisp, stated that the alleged murder was committed at the Pangani Hotel.

At about 5.0 p.m. Mohamed Ali and another Somali came to the hotel and sat near the table which was carrying...

Fetally Slabbed.

When he got near Mohamed Ali he struck him on the head with a kukoo which he was carrying.

The King's Birthday.

HOW IT WAS OBSERVED AT NAIROBI.

[FROM A CORRESPONDENT.] An interesting ceremony took place at Naikher, Police Station on June 8, when E.P.C. Sweney, the officer in charge of the station, held a parade of the soldiers under his command in honour of the King's Birthday. Fortunately at 10 a.m. the electric machinery on the parade ground was broken down to the tune under the flag-staff from which was the Union Jack.

Lieut.-Colonel Brainer-Croagh, at the request of E.P.C. Sweney, inspected the parade and then addressed the soldiers. He explained and emphasized the significance of the honours conferred by European and Native alike under the authority of the Union Jack.

These cheers were then given by His Majesty the King and, at the call of E.P.C. Sweney three more bands assembled Europeans. The general turn-out and hearing of the music was most excellent and the great credit is due to our keen and efficient police officer, E.P.C. Sweney.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the assembled Europeans returned to the Police Station where they were entertained by E.P.C. Sweney.

Bicycles for Natives.

MR. K. BOWDEN REPLIES TO MR. LYDGE GEORGE.

[STANDARD CORRESPONDENT.] London, May 15. I take the following from "The Daily Telegraph." Sir—Mr. Lloyd George recently mentioned in this country to the Prime Minister's reference to the export of bicycles from this country to Africa. To the Liberal leader, who thinks only in millions of pounds sterling, it is a big job. On the question of a huge job. On the question of a huge job. On the question of a huge job.

It may perhaps have been seen on the hoardings a poster of an African native riding a bicycle. This poster had been in the hands of the Government for some time. It is a very interesting thing to see a native riding a bicycle. It is a very interesting thing to see a native riding a bicycle.

CORRESPONDENCE.

DEPORT AND FEES.

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard." Sir—The correspondence discloses the existence of much trouble to fast, constant, of the matter of deport and fees.

Therefore it is the duty of the State to take action and to pledge the revenues if necessary for the better provision and the prevention that will insure increased production.

The value of our agricultural produce exported 1917-1918 varied from £2,000,000 an increase of 5% to £2,100,000 at interest at 1% = £200,000 net.

Yours etc. WALTER KIRIBON.

RAIL VS. ROAD.

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard." Sir—Now is the time for our Elected Members, the Associations representing the different communities and the newspapers in particular to take up the rights of the inhabitants of this Colony in fighting tooth and nail every claim of the arbitrary bill about to be introduced to the Legislative Council.

The General Manager of the Kenya and Uganda Railway hopes to be able to provide the means of transport for the people of Kenya and Uganda. It is a very interesting thing to see a native riding a bicycle.

NO RAILWAY MONOPOLY.

NAIROBI, June 11, 1920.

A COFFEE CERE.

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard." Sir—Kenya's coffee should have the honour of the C.P.U. which was a coffee cere which was the result of the C.P.U. which was a coffee cere which was the result of the C.P.U.

In your issue of June 1, we read that you had an objection to a proposed campaign against the coffee cere.

The C.P.U. want to tax coffee marks when more than one is used—on most up-country estates there are three different quantities of coffee in an ordinary grade.

(1) Coffee already pay special tax—the 50% registration tax and practically an Export Tax because the wharfage has been raised from 10% to 15% per ton.

(2) Planters generally lose money. Railways and shipping companies are ignorant of the cost of production of coffee and the average Kenya crop is only three shillings six pence extra wharfage and cost will be equitable.

(3) The investigation of Kenya insects should be a capital charge and is not a case for recurrent expenditure.

to the coffee interest—as far as is fair. (2) If planters hold their goods to the year, their share of the £150,000 will be spent on some other object such as a palace for a Governor-General.

PLANTER.

NAIROBI, June 8, 1920.

SUNDAY "SPORT."

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard." Sir—We all wish to thank you very much for the article on the coffee cere.

The sun was falling off to sleep upon his clouded bed. You seemed so him think his eyes.

And I had his weary head. A lark was singing in the sky You had it far away.

With blessings of the folded food And hum of insect play And all these gentle sounds which fill the slumber of the day.

But in the glory and the peace Which clouded had flaming breath Out and pitious sound was heard.

A little bobbing breath Where wounded under broken floods. A lark had hid to death.

Cawford's LIQUEUR

For my Gentlemen!

A. & A. CRAWFORD, LEITH - SCOTLAND.

We Hear from London

[STANDARD - SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

London, May 9. — "Resolute" Members of Parliament will lead the "resolute" and "policemen" in the protests ask for the last time "Who goes home?" But the "resolute" members of the Members is not "Who goes home?" It is rather "Who is coming back?"—and there will be not a few surprises in this direction. Many of the "resolute" members will have without or surrendered to attacks from members of the aristocracy who have been wise enough to include amongst their weapons the "democracy" which the aristocracy of women will have the opportunity of taking personally into account, the candidate including a "Dellian" strong (if not silent) hood, standing six feet four inches in his socks, and a gentleman who won that emblem of domestic felicity, the "Dumour" (Fitch) which certain has been hung up. On with the motley! (I won't open by saying it will be all that some hundred years hence!)

Barnacle.

I was surprised to see that a member, speaking at a Council Meeting of the National British Women's Total Abstinence Union, suggested the abolition of barnacles on the plea that they are a greater impediment for men to drink than the actual liquor itself. My experience in those cases, reformers of other people's habits are hampered in the effort of getting their mission to the masses mixed. For instance, it was my misfortune to have a number of sets of films dealing with social hygiene, and these pointed out that, no one ever "reads" a fair girl unless he had passed upon the wine when it was red; and how the total abstinence people receive the argument and suggest that the lady is the primary cause! The matter apart from their arguments, however—which I am utterly incapable of following with the intelligence I am sure they merit—does not the great O. K. Choderloe (in his wonderful book, "White Roads of Kent") who does full runs with the foaming ale at the end of the journey) say that there is a phase in the life of every young man, no matter what his social standing, when he feels the need of a thing with a barnacle? For this I am sure that the demand is a thing which is better for the child; and as such she must be left alone! I cannot remember ever reading of a barnacle whose exploits furnished occasional matter for the columns, but I think of evangelical ladies who shouldn't like to have in my family!

The Courts.

Scanning the list of presentations that are taking place at the week's Royal Courts, one is forced to the conclusion that if golf is a "Royal and Aristocratic game, tennis is beginning to run its very close from a social point of view, for nowadays the "resolute" stand about right up from Wimbledon to St. James's! An interesting detail is that Miss Anne Dore, the address in private life the Hon. Mrs. Maurice Brierly, Miss Angela Brock, is a granddaughter of Lord Palmer and is reported to be ambitious to become a diplomat, whom, and if they "dabble" in the great social official recognition in that capacity in this country. Meantime she is working hard, as a "trial," at the Foreign Office. A proper or "working" daughter?—of the Hon. Mrs. Brierly, I notice that Miss Nancy "Barnacle," daughter of Sir Malcolm Brierly, is now residing in her father's constituency on the subject of having been to America and "take account" of the job. She was equal to the occasion, however, and quickly responded that there were jobs for all in America: a condition of affairs she desired to be established in this country!

Mary's Veto.

It must be a matter of great relief to many thousands of Miss Mary Fickford's admirers to find that she has not the voice of the traditional cornucopia. Anti-liturgical merchants have predicted for us many shocks when our heroes and heroines opened their mouths, suggesting that in their case silence was indeed golden. We have had these shocks again; but, as I said, Mary wasn't one of them when she spoke for the first time in "Cognate."

I was admitted to notice the other day that a film critic wrote "I have yet to see the American film in which a great emotional crisis is handled in terms of sincerity and logic"; for this is precisely my own view. I have thought it out from every angle and see find no excuse for this missing of the mark, except that the "pictures" are in the hands of the wrong people! The few film people I have met did nothing to undermine this conviction.

Whenever I drop in at the movies I nearly always have a small girl with me—she is, in fact, the reason I stay and her ingenious comments (she is not one of your "super-mature" juveniles, thank heaven!) constitute a testimony to the producer's inability to hit the nail on the head. As for instance, in the case of a child whose mother opens her life in rushing round the world after him, and manifesting a criminal inability to take care of him when she recovered him; a child, by the way, endowed with more lives than the proverbial cat—after enduring the vicissitudes of this unfortunate family for three weeks, my impatient pool up "Why does his heroine, poor little thing, she doesn't seem to know how to act after him?" We had had more than our money's worth. But the "little more," how much better! That's what I mean when I protest that the legitimate drama has nothing to fear in the long run.

Epic Stories.

Mr. Everyone who has witnessed "Shandy's" last play, "Journey's End," and marveled at the extraordinary power and truth of it, is glad to find that his next play will not deal with the South American Expedition from the point of view of the end of this heroic venture. To attempt to add more to Captain Scott's last diary, or to dramatize times which in themselves achieve the height of drama, would in all probability result in artistic and commercial failure—and that Mr. Sheriff has any need to fear the latter! He has stated, however, that his next play will deal with other phases of the gallant expedition to the Pole, and his admirers await his production with the warmest of interest.

And this reminds me to add that the playwright who has experienced "Up and down" with his first play has only to read the history of "The Infantine Shookabak," which is now being played at the Comedy Theatre, to take heart again and buckle on his or her armour for fresh assaults against the buttresses of the charmed circle.

Vindictive.

Norman Macowan first wrote the play in June 1914, and when he was in Palestine during the War, he sent for the manuscript, read it, decided that only the first act could stand, and with admirable pluck set about re-writing the others. After he was demobilized he started it on the merry-go-round of the managers' office, and only Geoffrey Hearnik liked it, but even then no one came forward with the necessary backing it seems. Everybody else said there was "no money in it,"—a stock phrase for a "turn-down" by a man who has something else up his sleeve, by the way. (Another excuse is "not quite West End, my boy"—as if anything that went on in the West End was "too facts" or "unlucky success!")

Well, to return to poor, harassed Macowan, he then decided to alter his happy ending—usually it is the other way round—and allow the heroine to die. Again it went the rounds, and at last it was taken on by Miss Mary Newcomb, who has been hailed as one of our foremost leading ladies. Even she had to be persuaded very hard before she would do it. Obviously the slogan for the successful playwright (or, rather, the playwright who manages to be successful) is: "While there's life, and the manuscript hangs together, there's hope!"

Miscellany Light.

This time our statisticians have addressed themselves to the light of London, and we learn that Franchis' Glass—also has of the address, according to romantic records, if not in actual fact—was the place for having the greatest number of colored balls sparkling in our country. One slender ball in the Circus is lit and extinguished one hundred and twenty thousand times every night; ten miles of wire and two thousand balls are used for one single "illumination"; and there is a sign which weighs no less than two-and-a-half tons.

Moving signs first appeared in London thirty-five years ago; the slender ball in the Circus is lit and extinguished one hundred and twenty thousand times every night; ten miles of wire and two thousand balls are used for one single "illumination"; and there is a sign which weighs no less than two-and-a-half tons.

A Roman Relic.

One of the most interesting survivals of the Roman period in London is the Old Roman Bath. It is to be found half-way down Strand Court—number five, to be exact—a narrow byway adjoining King's College. It is a genuine relic and for its protection has been known and used. There is a continuous flow of water from it, and it is about fifteen feet long, six feet wide, and five feet deep.

Apart from the Roman relics preserved in London, there are only three other Roman buildings in the Metropolis and that is at the Coal Exchange, near St. Mary-ab-Hill in the vicinity of Lower Thames Street—a part of London to which only the earliest sightseer goes, as near for the Tower of London. But obviously a tour of London is one thing, and an intensive search for Roman relics is another, for the guide books tell us that "there are more remains of the Roman occupation than in generally understood."

HAIR-WAVING PARADE

[STANDARD - CORRESPONDENT.]

How puritan gloom still lurks in various corners of England is well shown by the regulations that have been made up for a new girls' secondary school that has just been opened down in Somerset. The rules state that the girls must have their hair cut back and no fancy styles of hair-dressing are allowed. If hair-ribbons are worn they are to be black. The same applies to stockings, Jewellery is also banned. In other words, every little attempt to make themselves look attractive is to be strictly checked.

It is hoped, presumably, that instead of loitering about having their hair waved they will concentrate on algebra and geography. Of course they will do nothing of the sort. They will merely associate their school going with flowers and petty treachery, and in the resulting attitude of mind, learn less than they might have done otherwise.

Quaker Oats is nature's ideal health food, rich in the very elements required for the sturdy, healthy development of body, bone and muscle. Its unique building qualities are derived from its abundance of carbohydrates, the protein built muscles and tissues. Vitamins, phosphorus, all are present in generous quantities in this ideal health food which nature has given us.

Quaker Oats for the first time of the day provides us to work through the long morning hours without hunger or fatigue. It supplies the energy and vitality which replenish the forces sapped up by study or play.

Delicious, economical and easy to prepare, Quaker Oats should form a part of the daily diet of everyone.

Always buy only the Quaker Oats. Look for the full name Quaker Oats and the familiar Quaker Faces.

K-MINER NEW COLONIAL UNDER-SECRETARY.

Boilermaker-Barrister at the Home Office.

MINISTER ANNOUNCED.

Demissions Not Enamoured of Mr. Sydney Webb as Chief.

Mr. Ramsay Macdonald has now completed his list of Ministerial appointments.

Mr. W. Lunn who succeeds Mr. Ormsby Gore at the Colonial Office, became a mine worker at the age of 12 and was a miner for 20 years. In the last Labour Ministry he was at the Department of Overseas Trade.

The well-known ex-Liberal Minister of Health, Dr. Addison, is back in Parliament as Labour member and goes to the Department of Agriculture.

The Under-Secretary for Home Affairs, Mr. Alfred Short, was a boiler-maker who became an M.P. a few years ago and while in the House of Commons qualified as a barrister.

Karl De La Warr, brother of Idina, Countess of Erol, goes to the War Office as under Secretary.

There are three Eton men in the Labour selection.

TRADE UNION INFLUENCE?

(STANDARD CORRESPONDENT.)

London, Tuesday.

The Labour Government's Colonial Office appointments are regarded as very unsatisfactory. The demissions are disappointed when the selection of Mr. Sydney Webb as Secretary of State.

The nomination of Mr. W. Lunn as Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies has been dictated solely by the trade unions without regard to the question of fitness. When he was at the D.O.T. he was not regarded as a success.

Mr. Posenbury, the Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, holds among Independent Labour Party workers. The I.L.P. is the advanced wing of the Party.

ANOTHER WOMAN APPOINTED.

Bugby, June 11.

The following appointments to junior Ministerial posts have been announced:

Demissions and Colonial. Mr. A. W. H. Posenbury has been appointed Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies.

Mr. Posenbury who has been a member of the I.L.P. since 1924, was a Liberal M.P. for Stirling from 1910 to 1918, in the third year of his term he was Under-Secretary for Home Affairs and held, Oxford and was a Member of Honour to Queen Victoria.

He was in the Diplomatic Service at Constantinople and Baghdad, and at the Foreign Office from 1918 to 1922. He was a member of the late Sir Campbell-Bennet's Ministry. He was Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs in the last Labour Ministry. Mr. William Lunn, M.P. for Bedford, was appointed Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies.

Mr. Lunn is a miner, having been a chock-maker at the Midland Colliery, Leeds, for 20 years. He has been a member of the Bakers' U.D.C. and of the United Board of Examiners. He was Secretary for Overseas Trade in the previous Labour administration. He was a Labour Party Whip in 1924.

An ex-Liberal Minister. The Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. W. Lunn, is a member of the Under-Secretary to the Secretary of Agriculture in the Appointment of Royal Commission Revoked.

POWERS STILL DELEGATED.

(STANDARD REVIEWER'S AGENCY.)

London, June 11.

The "London Gazette" contains an Order-in-Council revoking the Letters Patent which empowered a Royal Commission revoking the King's behalf during his first illness. The order declared that while His Majesty is able to resume many of the functions of State it is still advisable that certain functions should be delegated. Therefore, the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Justice Sankey and Mr. Ramsay Macdonald, or any two of them, will be empowered to further signification of His Majesty's pleasure to set on His Majesty's behalf in certain specified matters.

Among the duties which His Majesty is now able to assume, following the Order-in-Council will be business connected with Demission affairs.

TOWN RE-NAMED.

(STANDARD REVIEWER'S AGENCY.)

Cairo, June 11.

The ceremonies in connection with the opening of the Benguella Railway, which many distinguished people, including Prime Arthur of Connaught, are attending at Luao, began with the Portuguese Governor for the Colonies renouncing the town of Oala, "Robert Williams" in recognition of Sir Robert's services in building the railway, while Lady Williams unveiled a monument for the occasion.

The railway runs from Lohito Bay to Luao where the Belgians will continue the line to Katanga, eventually to link up with the Cape to Cairo line. The railway will bring England 2,500 miles nearer to Rhodesia and other centres in Central Africa with copper deposits and fertile uplands suitable for European settlement.

ADVERTISING THE CHAIRS OF BRITAIN.

Formation of a Travel Association.

AN EXCELLENT PROGRAMME.

The following has been issued by H.M. Trade Commissioner—

"A new development in England which will be of interest to travellers is the formation in London of the Travel Association of Great Britain and Ireland.

The new movement which takes the place of the old "Come to Britain" Movement, has the same objects but is on a much broader basis and embraces practically all the interests concerned—agents, steamship and railway companies, hotels, motor agencies, motor sales, and others. The President of the Association is the Earl of Derby, K.G., a former British Minister and British Ambassador to France, and one of the most popular and respected figures in England. He is supported by a strong Executive Committee—Mr. Douglas Hacking, O.B.E., M.P., Secretary, Department of Overseas Trade; The Rt. Hon. Lord Ashfield, Chairman of the Underground Railway; Mr. R. Baillie, Chairman, Uster Tourist Association; Alderman F. Britain, Chairman of the Conference of Health and Pleasure Resorts; Mr. John Buchan, M.P.; Mr. F. H. Cook, C.B.E., Chairman of Thomas Cook & Son, Ltd.; Mr. J. W. Douglas, G.B.; Representing the Irish Free State; Mr. S. J. Lester, Manager of the Grand Steamship Co.; Mr. Walter Payne, O.B.E., President of the Society of West End Theatre Managers; Sir Felix Pole, General Manager of the Great Western Railway; Mr. H. Selfridge (Jr.), Chairman of Selfridge & Co., Ltd.; Sir Francis Towse, G.B.E., Managing Director of the Gordon Hotels Ltd.; Lord Suddall, President of the Newspaper Proprietors' Association; M.P. G. R. Hall-Gane, G.B.E.; M.P.; Sir Gilbert Vyle, a past President of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce; Sir Harry Brittain, K.B.E., C.M.G., L.D., M.P., founder of the Imperial Press Conference and Vice-President of the Pilgrims' Club; Mr. R. Waller, representing Wales.

These names, which carry great weight in business circles in England, are sufficient indication that Britain is determined to organize the tourist business.

Aims and Objects.

Every aspect of the organization of tourist traffic will be the concern of the Association. Its duties will be twofold, first to make known to the world the many attractions of Great Britain and Ireland and, secondly, to remove any obstacles that may impede the flow of tourist traffic and to ensure that visitors enjoy their stay in Britain. On the first head the Association can, owing to the time of the year, embark on a most modest programme, though, even before the formal incorporation of the Association, it has secured a small folder containing a message from Lord Derby recommending the world its formation, its aims and objects, and giving a diary of forthcoming events, social sporting and commercial, likely to be of interest to foreign visitors.

Next year the Association hopes to undertake a more ambitious programme, including, probably, the opening of offices in other countries. At home it will review conditions affecting tourists, and, in addition to this, its full weight will be thrown into the line to use its influence in the direction of opening doors for the tourist to functions and places that hitherto been closed, or difficult of access.

That there is scope for the work of the new Association admits of no doubt, since the comparatively small number of visitors from overseas to Britain is due to a very considerable extent to ignorance of the fact that an interesting and attractive holiday can be spent there at a reasonable cost—a cost indeed no higher than that of a similar tour in the Continent of Europe.

Britain has a contrivance of a delicate charm unequalled anywhere in the world, and its natural beauties are supplemented by countless works from the hand of man, magnificent feudal castles, monasteries and abbeys, ancient manor houses, old world villages, towns and cities and the most delightful gardens in the world. Britain is, in fact, almost alone among modern nations in retaining an old-world atmosphere while keeping in step with modern progress.

It is to these attractions the unique programme of world-famous sporting events at Henley, Wimbledon, Ascot, Epsom, St. Andrews and many others. The visitor who does not find something here to interest and charm him must indeed be hard to please.

Work for Britain.

The following overseas contracts have been obtained by British firms, all members of the Federation of British Industries—By the North British Locomotive Co., Ltd., Glasgow—For eighteen heavy type locomotives for the Rhodesia Railways; thirteen locomotives for the South African Railways; by the Vulcan Foundry, Ltd., Newton-le-Willows—For six 4-8-2 engines and tenders for the Tanganyika Railways to the order of the Crown Agents for the Colonies; by Robert Stephenson & Co., Ltd., Darlington—For two 4-8-0 engines and tenders for the Tanganyika Railways to the order of the Crown Agents for the Colonies.

SUGGESTED BEGINNING OF CLOSER UNION.

Central Authority For Railways, Customs and Posts

E. A. BOARD TOPIC.

(STANDARD) (CORRESPONDENT), London, May 15.

At the May Meeting of the Executive Council of the Joint East African Board the following were noted as individual members of the Board—Za. Col. M. Harrison, C.M.G., D.S.O., The Rt. Hon. Lord Inverforth, P.C., W. A. M. Sim.

The Chairman welcomed Colonel Walker to the meeting, and said that the Executive Council were very pleased to have those interested in East Africa present at their discussions. Major Duffin, to whom he had issued an invitation to attend, had unfortunately not been able to accept.

The Chairman reported that the committee consisting of himself, Major Crowley and Mr. Sim set up to consider the question of the representation of East Africa in the Association, on the Executive Council of the Board had met on the 11th April and now presented a unanimous report for the consideration of the Council. This document was read and it was resolved to circulate copies to all members of the Council for their consideration.

Major Walsh, stating that a meeting of the East African Board had been called for the purpose of suggesting that it was undesirable for the two meetings to take place on the same day and asked that this should not recur if it could possibly be avoided. Sir Humphrey Leggett replied that in the special circumstances of the case it was unavoidable on the present occasion.

Protective Duties.

In connection with the subject of protective duties in Kenya and Uganda a memorandum prepared by a committee of the Members Chamber of Commerce was handed over to the Chairman. The view of the Chamber was that modified protection of certain industries might be necessary at the present stage but that such a protection must not prevent the continuance or the extension of customs union with neighbouring territories. It was resolved to await further developments from East Africa.

A memorandum on Tangi Harbour dated 29th April by Major Duffin was read to the Council. Mr. Wigglesworth referred to the memorandum prepared by a com-ministry of the Board consisting of Mr. Sim, Major Walsh and himself dated 29th July 1928 in which it was recommended that the Board be reconstituted to be headed by Tangi Fort as small local committee should be set up in each of the territories for the supervision of the development of port facilities. The Tanganyika Board in another memorandum setting forth their view of the case and the Major Walsh said there was no need for the appointment of such a committee. The Chairman agreed that the Board should not take this answer as final but should refer to the Colonial Office. It was suggested that the Major Walsh should emphasize the need for such a committee. Mr. Wigglesworth was authorized to draft a letter to the Colonial Office referring to the Council all at their next Meeting.

The Chairman stated that he understood that the East African Chamber of Commerce was also considering the question of the Board and was desirable for the functions of the Board and the Chamber of Commerce to be combined with a committee overlapping in their work.

Sir Humphrey Leggett pointed out that the Board was concerned with matters of principle, for example, that ports should be open to the hinterland and that the Government should profit by their experience in the case of the port of Mombasa, while the Chamber of Commerce was concerned with the information in the shape of facts and figures, and the Board and the Chamber of Commerce should be combined.

Cable Service.

The Chairman read a letter dated 2nd April which he had received from the Association of Chambers of Commerce of Eastern Africa requesting him to use his influence to request the Government of the Eastern Telegraph Company and the Government of Kenya in regard to the introduction of the submarine cable service between the East African ports. The Council were in agreement that no effect should be spent in such a direction until the settlement of their question.

The Chairman pointed out that it was unlikely that any action would be taken in regard to the Hilton Young Report until after the meeting of the new Parliament, but that he felt that the three services, namely, railways, telegraphs and cables, should be urgent transfer to a central authority. He suggested that any scheme for closer Union might find its starting-point from the present administration of these three services. He proposed that the Board should be set up shortly in a memorandum for the consideration of the Council.

THE OLD SCOTTISH TONGUE.

Preparation of a National Dictionary.

A BIG WORK.

The scheme announced for the production of a great Scottish Dictionary is based on command itself not only to British subjects of Scottish birth or descent, but to all who value the contribution made to Scotland to the development and prosperity of the Empire.

It is a common error, even amongst Scots themselves, to regard the old native tongue as a mere dialect of Standard English. In actual fact, Scots is so much closely allied to English that Dutch to Flemish, Danish to Swedish, or Portuguese to Spanish. The two languages, that is to say, are derived from the same source, but have been moulded by diverse influences, geographical and political. Though there are several distinctive Scottish dialects, there is also a standard form, which is descended from a Middle English dialect in the same way as modern Standard English is descended from a Middle English dialect, and which was the language spoken at the Scotch Court from the eleventh century when it succeeded Gaelic to the seventeenth, when on the accession of James VI. to the English throne, the Court removed to Edinburgh for London. This, too, is the form used by Scott, Stevenson, and practically all the best Scottish writers up to the present day, and now with the dawn of Scottish literary renaissance the old language has taken on a new lease of life.

Over a century has elapsed since Jamieson published his famous Etymological Dictionary of the Scottish Language, but though a remarkable achievement for its time, even its latest edition is very defective in vocabulary, phonetics, and etymology, and much new material has since been gathered. For the last twenty years a small group of Scottish scholars and enthusiasts have been quietly at work, and their labours, the results of which have already been published, in part, in the Transactions of the Scottish Dialects Committee, are now about to culminate in a long elaborated project—the publication of a great national dictionary. The plan is to gather together all the material now scattered in several dictionaries, word lists, and dialect studies, and after its scientific treatment by philological experts, to present it to the nation in one comprehensive whole. The completed work will not only help to preserve the old native tongue for future generations, but will, incidentally, throw much valuable light on the traditions, customs and habits of thought of the Scottish people.

A Thorough Investigation.

In order to ensure a thorough investigation, the whole country was surveyed and a number of voluntary workers, who called characteristic words and phrases out from the speech and literature of their respective districts. These were written on slips of uniform size and sent to headquarters, where they are carefully filed. With all this wealth of material in hand, the work has come to move forward. The Scottish National Dictionary Association has just been formed, with Lord Methuen of Agnes and Dunrobin as its Honorary President, Sir Joseph Dobbs, President of the Burns Federation, as President, and with many distinguished names including the Duchess of Atholl, the Marquess of Aberdeen, the Earl of Eglar, Sir Robert Horne, Sir Donald MacAlister, Sir George John Rankin, Mr. John Buchan, Mr. Charles Murray, and Professor Grierson of Edinburgh among its Vice-Presidents; whilst many prominent Scots or descendants of Scots in the Dominion and in the United States are also supporting the scheme. The Scottish Dialects Committee continues to act as an Advisory Committee to the new Association, and in order to place the enterprise on a sound financial basis, a Finance Committee has been formed, consisting of business men interested in our old language and literature.

The production of a Scottish National Dictionary is, of course, no ordinary business enterprise, and the Association issues no shares. Despite the immense amount of voluntary work done, the cost of producing, and more particularly of printing a work of such magnitude is bound to be heavy. The total has been roughly estimated at not less than £10,000 and the success of the undertaking depends on the hearty cooperation of patriotic Scots and those of Scottish sympathies the world over.

The subscription to the Dictionary, which will appear in nine instalment volumes, is £15, if preferred, a part payment of £10 will be made at the end of five annual instalments. Donors of £5, or original subscribers who contribute in all not less than £20, will be elected Patron; and a list of Patron and Original Subscribers will be published in the final volume of the Dictionary. British Arrested.

INCIDENT IN PORTUGUESE EAST AFRICA.

Another instance of alleged high-handed treatment of a British subject by Portuguese officials, re-mission of the Brewer case, was mentioned in the Rhodesia Ledger, last week recently.

Captain Borthwick stated that he is a well-known Englishman named Parlett, who was visiting Rhodesia, was sent Portuguese territory to hunt elephants after paying for licenses and Customs duties.

Mr. Parlett accidentally shot a cow elephant and wounded an elephant when the party were in danger of being ruined by a herd. He decided to report to his nearest post. He went to Vila Guayana, and on his arrival was placed under an armed guard, while his native boys were arrested.

"Told to Shut Up." One of Mr. Parlett's friends protested that the law had not been broken. He was told to "shut up," or he would be imprisoned as well.

Incompetence of Private Drivers During Holiday Time.
HEAVY ROAD TOLL.

(STANDARD OBSERVERS).
London, May 22.
All good motorists are to be puzzled at the exhibition of bad
manner and general incompetency
by private motor drivers
which was obvious on the roads
round London during the Whitsun holiday.

Just when motorists have been driving their cars with a light and more leniently by the State, it seems a pity that they should provide a good argument for taking them out of existence.
The beautiful weather brought motorists out in their thousands.
Every road was crowded, but this would not have mattered so much if some heed had been paid to common decency and the rules of the road.

The Kingston-by-pass road was a mass of confusion, and the competent drivers, though scarcely enough to be called competent drivers, the slower the
the worse they were, and many of the old and middle-aged men
drivers seemed to have fallen near their seats.
Many made desperate attempts to pass cars capable of speeds very much greater than their own, with the result that they were almost knocked off the side of the road,
and the incompetency of the private car driver was shown up very forcibly in contrast with the driving of the omnibus and very much less of the motor bus.

One of the worst trippers was driven by a man who was driving a motor car. The driver is well known as Guildford, Surrey, coming on Monday night when a line of motor cars, east and west, crossed London.
The driver of the motor car was driven from the roadside fields into the congested traffic, and many of the main roads leading to London were congested with thousands of motor cars from early in the evening until midnight. For more than a mile and a half the traffic was packed three and four abreast of the road, and it was a puzzling sight to see the procession towards London.
Twenty-one cars were stopped on the westward on the roads are reported, mostly amongst motorcycle drivers and passengers, and under the circumstances it is improbable that the total was not much higher. The weather was wonderful, and thousands of holiday motorists were able to walk in the sun, very few places in the country having been able to escape
the sunshine. London needed the visit with 18 hours, and a record was set on Monday evening of 37,000
lived with the Zoo.

The toll of such mounted contributors with people returning holidays over Tuesday and Wed-

A SQUAWK VALVE

It is not unusual to hear a mystical squawk in a new engine or one that has been run only a few hundred miles. The noise is somewhat peculiar, and is sometimes described as a squeak. It is more than probable that the cause of this squawk is a slightly fitting valve, which while the lubricating oil has not yet penetrated. The method of removing the squawk is to adjust
the form of upper cylinder lubrication
by squirting oil through the cartridge at the intake with the throttle
open sufficiently to make the engine run fairly fast. The oil will be drawn in at the cylinder head, lubricating the valves and the passage, and in all probability the squawk will cease in a few moments.

SHAKEUP LUBRICATION.

It not infrequently happens that the lubricating passages in the spring shakeup link become so clogged up with solidified grease that it is found impossible to get the bearing surface with a grease gun
of the ordinary pattern, and special "squirter" guns can be obtained, giving a pressure up to (it is claimed) 2,000 lb. per square inch. It is not necessary, however, to purchase one of these special guns, for if the load on the bearing is removed by jacking up the frame of the car, it will be found that the choked passage ways can easily be cleared and fresh lubricants forced in with the ordinary gun, or even with the old-fashioned grease cup.

REPAIRING CRACKED
WATER JACKETS.

A simple and effective method of repairing a small crack in a water-jacket is first to find the full length of crack and then to plug it with overlapping brass wire. Start at one end of the crack, using a G.I.A. or I.B.A. tapping drill; having tapped the hole and inserted the screw stud with the surface of the nutting, the next hole is drilled half an inch and half in the direction of the crack.
The process is repeated until the extreme end of the crack is reached,
and the final operation is to pull the screws with light blows from a ball pen hammer. This method is used largely in steam practice and will withstand a pressure of 200lb.
per sq. in.

ready and was brought up to
at least forty-five. The outlook for a general holiday is nowadays spoilt by unhappy thoughtfulness, and people are more likely to be seen in the streets than in the country. It is probable that some separate efforts should be taken by the State in authority to try to stop the increasing holiday casualties.

"EVERY MAN HIS OWN HEALTH OFFICER."

Recommendation for a Kenya Scheme.
PERSONAL PROPAGANDA.

Commendation of the Kenya Medical Department's health insurance scheme is contained in a recent article in "The British Medical Journal." The returned correspondent writes:
There is an inclination both
among those holding official positions in health departments and among the population whom they serve to think that healthy conditions of living can, and should be, created by official action. The private individual, though rarely enough to admit the fact, is inclined to regard healthy conditions as a disposal to blame
"Government inactivity" rather than to think that the health officer is the person who is responsible for the health of the population. It is the duty of the health officer to see that the individual in his own health
department is the person who
is responsible for the health of the population. It is the duty of the health officer to see that the individual in his own health
department is the person who
is responsible for the health of the population.

CLEANING OIL-UP
PLUGS.

An engine which is addicted to clogging up the sparking plug is a constant annoyance, and a constant source of trouble. The trouble can generally be cured by the substitution of plugs with thinner electrodes (off which the oil will burn), especially if these be so disposed as to prevent the oil accumulating between the plug points. However, if a plug should oil up when on the stand, it is not always necessary to take it out and clean it with petrol. Often, if the high-tension lead is detached while the engine
is running and held at a distance of about 12 inches from the sparking plug, a firm
external spark will be formed
which causes the film of oil between the plug points to be broken, and the plug once more functions normally.

Varying Conditions.

Even in Great Britain much
might come of some such scheme.
There are two factors which make it especially valuable in the tropics, where the problems of the two
homedsteads are identical.
Taking malaria and dysentery as examples, the problems of the two
homedsteads are identical.

"Flora of Africa."

A WHOOPING IMPRESSION OF NAIROBI.

An exaggerated idea of Kenya properly is conveyed by a paragraph which recently appeared in the "Loveday Press and Mercury."
A friend newly back from Nairobi tells me that the development of the country is proceeding at such a pace that the holders of office positions and ranches are scarcely able to keep up with the demand for their services.

kept in the dark. Government had his opportunity yesterday to take the country into confidence and thereby to give the trend of future discussions and outstanding problems an interested character. The opportunity was neglected. There remained a select number of Members of the Executive Council who were invited Government to make a comprehensive statement. It is not expected that Government will be prepared to deal in detail with the work which has been done in the past year. No doubt Sir Edward Frigg's participation here led to a position to review his mission at length himself when he next addresses Council. But the Colony is really entitled to some indication of the decisions if it is to be in a position to relate them to the policy it expects the coming Budget to embody. Yesterday His Excellency the Acting Governor announced the Government's intention to proceed at an early date with the two important measures which provide for compulsory fencing of stock farms and dipping of cattle. These Bills are only a part of an important scheme of economic progress which includes, it is clearly obvious, the Land Bank Bill. It is perfectly correct that with out the aid of these Bills the stock and dairy industry in the Colony will continue to struggle along with its present conditions. It is perfectly correct that to another strengthening its foundations. But it is equally certain that the Government will be unable to proceed with the provisions of the Law. The Land Bank was supposed to be an important function in that connection. We do not doubt that Government intends to apply the measures without making provision for the vital financial side of the scheme yet the country was told nothing yesterday con-

Hoped Signs. The address delivered by His Excellency the Acting Governor at Kenya to the Legislative Council on its reception yesterday was notably brief. It is some time since we have had so brief a speech. Brevity is an excellent quality but perhaps there are occasions when it might, with advantage, be less conspicuously used. No further meeting of Legislative Council will normally take place after the present gathering until the Budget session towards the end of the year. Since Council last met it is understood that important decisions have been taken in London on 'lower settlement' schemes, the Land Bank, Civil Service conditions and the various questions discussed by the Government of Kenya with the Secretary of State. We have had the return from London and the unexpected departure of an important official of the Kenya Government who was closely connected with these domestic situations. Yet the Colony is still cerning the outcome of the Land Bank negotiations carried out in London by the Acting Governor. It is surely necessary that the new and more important measure made by the Acting Governor was that of dropping the mystery of the Agricultural Commission. Government has advised the present and anticipated making an early start upon the heavy task which faces those who are willing to undertake it. The country may, in the conditions of the agricultural industry in Kenya is one of the most important investigations proposed by the Colony for some years. Its success or failure will depend upon the conception of its character and scope both by the Commissioners. From that point of view the whole subject of the terms of reference will be especially scrutinized by the Colony. The demand for the investigation was not particularly one. An important study of the progress of the industry and the place it occupied in the economic life of the Colony by the responsible Department has convinced many thoughtful people that the whole subject is large though it is, calls for a thorough examination. We hope that no further delay will take place. The running Budget and the Agricultural Commission have a very close relationship. It is sufficient time between now and the introduction of the Bill for a Commission to gauge the requirements and those requirements must be made to examine their full influence upon the character of the financial programme for next year. The hurried special 'Maidy Bug' vote, an illustration of how things should not be done. The country is determined to have an agricultural policy and present proposals have not and adequately answered and it looks to the present Commission to lay bare the case for re-examination. That case should be known, in its broad aspects,

...to be a large number of non-returned. Some of the surplus balance has not reached the approval of the Secretary of State who has indicated that it is possible all expenditures should be met from the year's revenues. Some expenditure estimated to be met from surplus balances, as on. Manages to meet revenue, includes new services and revenue. These and other unforeseen expenditures such as famine relief will render necessary supplementary estimates, the first of which will be asked to consider at this session.

These estimates have, as far as possible, been confined to items which it is considered can be spent during the year. Supplementary estimates to meet the 1929 account will also be presented.

Mrs. Leonard Henry.

The latest information received and it is obvious from the reports that we shall have to contend with large quantities of imported goods in both settled areas and native reserves. A sum of £20,000 was provided for the latter, but a resolution of the Council. A further sum of £20,110 is included in the supplementary estimates which will be laid before you. On the other hand, famine relief to the greater part of which is due to the destruction of crops by locusts and to meet which a sum of £200,000 was provided by resolution of the Council on February 22, 1929, is now expected to cost no more than £100,000 this year.

Agricultural Commission.

The personnel of the Agricultural Commission has been settled and it is hoped that the consent of the registered members to serve will speedily be obtained, and the work of the Commission begin. The delay has been entirely due to the increased duties thrown on the locusts and the Traffic Committee and other urgent matters. As well as the supplementary estimates to be placed before the Council, members will also be asked by means of a resolution to provide funds for the entertainment of members of the British Association in the Colony, for the provision of better roads in the Northern Frontier Province and Turkana and for measures to be taken for the control of the mauling bug pest which appears to have appeared with increased violence over a large area in the Kenya, Ruiri and Thika districts respectively. In addition to this, there will be a resolution including grants and advances for Local Government purposes and for an educational loan.

It is Government's intention to proceed at an early date with fencing and dipping legislation.

NEW COLONIAL SECRETARY.

Welcomed by the Council.

Before the Council proceeded to deal with the items on the agenda, the Hon. Conroy Harvey (Lodge) said that, with Sir Kenyan's permission, he should like to be on behalf of the Elected Members to extend a cordial welcome to the Hon. the Colonial Secretary and to assure him of their hearty co-operation in all measures for the welfare of Kenya, which had always been a feature of their relations with his distinguished predecessors.

Mr. Attorney General said he was sure he was voting the same as every member on the official side of the House in supporting them very cordially with the welcome which had been extended to the Colonial Secretary.

His Excellency also associated himself with the welcome.

The Colonial Secretary, replying said he very sincerely appreciated the manner in which both the official and unofficial members had welcomed him on his being sworn in as a member of the Legislative Council of Kenya.

New Legislation.

The first readings of the following bills were taken, and notice of their introduction at a later date for second reading was given:

Men's Beauty Bill.

IMPROVING FIGURES FROM AMERICA.

(LONDON, MAY 10.)—Men are always apt to peer and so naturally they are apt to spend more on their faces, but after reading the figures of the men who regard themselves as handsome things, they should be inclined to restrain their desire. It is stated in a New York paper that the amount spent by American men during the past year on facial preparations was 1,000 million dollars, while the amount spent by women was 1,921 million dollars.

Probably American men are more in the habit of their high-powered saloons than are those of other and more conservative, but there is little doubt that the average man does spend quite a lot on his shaving materials and hair tonic, and that in the aggregate this totals a very large sum. It is not surprising that the man of to-day and the example of those few exotic creatures is not likely to be followed generally, just yet.

CORRESPONDENCE.

GILGOL—THEOMOR'S FALLS ROAD
The Editor, "E.A. Standard"
Sir—Who is responsible for the appalling state of this road? The bridge at Mile 27 from Gilgol has been down for 14 months out of the last 18. No work of any sort has been started on the Nakuru District section from mile 27 to the Falls.

Nothing was done on this part of the road either last year or the year before save to repair and bridge and to seal on or drag over the road on three occasions in the two years.

Local Government is at present responsible for this section. Our welcome is as it cannot possibly be worse than the old regime but it is indeed surprising that the local committee have not more to their credit in that District that is apparent in their activities as far as the road conditions are concerned.

Thomson's Falls must always have an attraction for visitors and tourists. This should be worth cultivating. Does the District Road Committee, whatever their designation, in any way realize this?

Owing to the Branch Railway Construction here the P.W.D. gave out to contract the making of five road deviations. Of these only two are passable in the rains even after the slightest rain. The other three are mere deviations and are perfect examples of the latter being made with no regard to anything but the lightest motor traffic ever still. To avoid this one has to cross the railway where there is a level crossing, a proceeding which in some cases, especially here, takes more than an hour or more than one occasion. I have drawn the attention of the P.W.D. to these deviations but to no result. The Secretary of the E.A.A.A. has, as my request tried to get something done but has been fruitless.

There is heavy rain on the road daily at present and it is appalling to see just how much mud is being thrown up.

I am thinking, however, that you are right. It is a pity that the public have not more readily advanced their views on this road. But that recently was published for criticism, dealing with the limitations of road and rail cooperation, any giving preference to any form of preference to certain sections, is giving preference to any form of preference to certain sections, is giving preference to any form of preference to certain sections.

One really can appreciate the Railway's point of view for just so long as the railway staff is based on a form of preference to certain sections, is giving preference to any form of preference to certain sections, is giving preference to any form of preference to certain sections.

But the Colony has suffered a great deal from short-sighted legislation. Statutes have been made to give special remuneration that quickly have proved ineffective.

live and have had to be repaired or an altered in form that subsequently they have become very little if any remembrance to the Bill, that originally came before the Legislative Council.

It is a difficult matter to say how much of the public mind is made up by legislation and has almost always failed wherever it has been tried. Kenya Colony might be well advised to profit by the experience of other countries and to try before taking a step that may only lead to trouble and wastefulness.

Easy transportation for goods and things from place to place makes a nation strong and great. It is said that great American statesmen, Burke in an undevoted country such as Kenya, every impulse should be given to encourage transport facilities, every other method should be found to facilitate the Railway who are undoubtedly benefiting a fortune at the present moment.

The whole question really arises itself into a question of the present system of taxation in the Colony and the present proposals for the continuation of existing provisions, tariffs and other schemes for the maintenance of road production.

It was the wish of the members of the E.A.A.A. if I am not mistaken, that the present system of taxation was introduced through the medium of a Bill. It is not surprising that the present system of taxation was introduced through the medium of a Bill. It is not surprising that the present system of taxation was introduced through the medium of a Bill.

There are many more suggestions that could be made to overcome the difficulty other than the undersigning to maintain revenue by the limitation of private enterprise in such important functions as the Colony as the development of communications and transport services.

DEVELOPMENT OF RURAL TELEPHONES.

Government Urged to Give Encouragement.

REDUCED RATES

Report of a Committee of Investigation.

Being of the opinion that it is essential that the best type of service will be attracted to those parts of the world where there is a reasonable hope of the obtaining such service as the telephone, the committee proposed to consider the question of rural telephones, the Government should give the rate of subscription as present in force and the cost of erection and maintenance.

The committee proposed that the rate of subscription should be reduced to 10 per cent of the present rate, and that the cost of erection and maintenance should be reduced to 50 per cent of the present rate.

The committee proposed that the rate of subscription should be reduced to 10 per cent of the present rate, and that the cost of erection and maintenance should be reduced to 50 per cent of the present rate.

The committee proposed that the rate of subscription should be reduced to 10 per cent of the present rate, and that the cost of erection and maintenance should be reduced to 50 per cent of the present rate.

The committee proposed that the rate of subscription should be reduced to 10 per cent of the present rate, and that the cost of erection and maintenance should be reduced to 50 per cent of the present rate.

may, being stated on the value of the telephone in rural areas as a method of saving time in such cases, and giving an opportunity to the Government to consider the question of rural telephones, the Government should give the rate of subscription as present in force and the cost of erection and maintenance.

Post Office Policy

The Postmaster General in formed the Committee that he had had available figures of construction costs of a rural system which had just been completed and he was able to make a accurate comparison between cost and revenue. As a result of this, the Department as the Postmaster General told the Select Committee on the 1928 Estimates, proposed to recommend a revision in rates. The attitude of the Department is that in considering the relation of capital cost to revenue in the case of rural telephones only direct costs should be taken into account and administrative and general charges should be left out.

The Committee agreed that these proposals as in effect a subsidy going as far as the interest could be met.

Reduced Charges

The reduced rates proposed are as follows:
For portion of line up to five miles radius. No charge.
For the whole line up to five miles radius. £2/15/- per mile per annum instead of £4/10/-.
Mentals of instruments. £1 per head per annum instead of £2/10/-.

Operating fee of 10/- per head per annum instead of 20/- per head per annum. The Committee points out that very little interest has been taken in the reduced rates which are granted in cases where the subscribers provide poles, labour and materials, and that the proposals are therefore proposed.

Taking the Molo system which has been in operation for some time and 60 miles of wire as an example of how the reduced rates would be worked out, the annual subscription would be as follows:
Present rates £13 8 0
Proposed rates £11 8 0
Savings £2 0 0

It is pointed out that as some pole routes have to be erected in cases where capital construction costs are necessarily high but will be covered as determined percentages of the cost of existing routes by new systems. It is desirable that when this occurs subscribers' rates should be adjusted.

The Committee proposed to leave to the P.M.G. function of the period during which subscribers are required to undertake planting a line.

A Police Scheme
The Committee considered a scheme of police telephone requirements to link up the different stations in the Colony. The scheme involved the construction of 900 miles of new telephone trunk lines at an estimated capital cost of £25,000 and an annual cost of £2,500. The Committee considered that police stations in the vicinity should be provided with the police direct.

EAST AFRICA IN LONDON.

PERSONAL NOTES AND NEWS.

London, May 23. The East African Agency staff is very busy these days, and there are always about a dozen waiting for information. Major Cuthbert is, of course, still in Edinburgh looking after the Exhibition, which is going very well indeed. Among the letters have been Mr. C. W. Lane of Mombasa, Mr. Ernest Adams Chairman of the Advisory Committee Dar-es-Salaam, Captain Downey, and Mr. W. Downey of Kenya, while other Kenya letters include Mr. D. S. Wansah, Mr. H. A. Che, Mr. and Mrs. J. Twiss, and Miss Shulita Ward.

I understand that Sir Ronald Ross's archives, which were purchased by Lady Houston last autumn and then presented to the British Museum, are to be housed in the Ross Institute at Putney. The Institute proposed that the archives should be sent there, as they would be invaluable for reference purposes, and the British Museum, after several meetings, agreed, making the provision that should the Institute, which is not endowed, cease to exist, the archives should be sent to the Royal College of Surgeons. They will probably be moved from the Museum this week.

I referred last week to the arrival of the hunting trophies of the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Gloucester. It is now stated that these will soon be sent to Sandringham, where there is a private museum. The Prince has opened the case containing the tusks of the elephants he shot in Uganda, to make sure that the ivory was unadorned. The Duke of Gloucester's heads, while, unlike his brothers, were mounted in Nairobi before being sent to England, are now in a room adjoining the Duke's suite at Buckingham Palace.

Among the callers at the East African Office this week have been Mr. M. Blundell, who is staying at Sheffeld Terrace, Kensington; Mr. R. E. Robins, Assistant Superintendent of Fisheries; and Mr. Robins, who are staying at Basingstoke; Mrs. B. T. Ambler, Director of Marketing; and Mrs. Sydney Tate, of Nairobi; Colonel J. D. Bingham, of Kenya, who is staying at Devizes; Mr. Donald Seth Smith, of Kenya, who is staying at the New Universities Club; Mr. C. K. Dain, the Treasurer of Uganda, who is staying at the Copeland Hotel; Mr. C. E. Thomas, of Kisumu, who is staying at Grosvenor Green, near Walford.

graduate and 7 Associates were elected, amongst them being the following of interest to East Africa: Norman Rhodesia, Livingstone, Capt F. E. Jones, M.R.C.S. Kenya Colony; Hayes Ridge, A. F. Twilliter, Nairobi; C. S. Littlefair, Nakuru; Reginald F. Mercer, Uganda Entebbe; George Semple, Kenya; and elected Sir Percy Bates, G.B.E., George Fisher, Sir Alfred T. Paton, K.B.E., Prof. Warrington Fyfe, M.D., The Hon. J. H. Hofmeyr and Lady M. Stubbie.

A wedding of interest to East Africa took place at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Chiswick, on Tuesday. The bridegroom is known in East Africa—Commander R. A. Yonge, and he married Mrs. E. Allan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harrow Allan, of Northwood, Chiswick. The bride was given away by her father and wore a dress of green and white, and a large cluster of orange flowers. Sprays of these flowers attached her hair of old Brussels lace. Her bouquet consisted of blue and white roses. She wore a diamond pendant the gift of the bridegroom, and carried a bouquet of white carnations and white roses.

Mr. John Stanning, whose death in Kenya has just been announced in this country, was the subject of the following obituary taken from the Times: "Mr. John Stanning, a member of a well-known Lancashire cricketing family, formerly of Leyland, has been killed in a motor accident in Kenya Colony, where he had lived for over a year. He was 51. Educated at Rugby and Cambridge. Mr. Stanning gained distinction as a public school athlete for Rugby against Marlborough in 1883; he played an innings of 152 but did not bring his school career to a close with a batting average of 28. Going up to Cambridge, he failed to score his blue until 1901. Against the M.C.C. he scored 120 and in the University match 21 and 60, obtaining 284 runs for Cambridge during the season with an average of 27. Playing for Lancashire between 1900 and 1902, he had an aggregate of 843 runs in all first-class matches during his career. He leaves two children: his wife, now in England."

At the last meeting of the Royal Empire Society, at which Sir John Sandeman Allen was in the Chair, the Hon. R. B. Sedden, 21 Non-Resident Fellow, 1 Under-Rhodesia's Capital.

NEW SITE MAY BE CENTRE OF AFRICAN STATES.

Much lies behind the proposal to move the capital of Northern Rhodesia from Livingstone, almost on the Southern boundary, to a more central site says The Observer. The situation of the relations of the white States north of the Zambezi to the tropical colonies dominated African politics from Sierra to the Cape. An election on the very near it now in progress.
