RUSSIA LEADERS DISMISSED

KREMLIN PURGE

Mr. Krushchev victor of anti-Stalin purge

POWER STRUGGLE
NEWS of the dismissal of four of the highest-ranking Soviet leaders — Mr. Molotov, Mr. Malenkov, Mr. Kaganovich and Mr. Shepilov — in the greatest purge since Stalin died, was regarded in the world capitals yesterday as a triumph for Mr. Krushchev, the First Secretary, in his struggle for power with the Stalinist "old guard."

The Communist Party Central Committee dismissed the four from the Presidium, Russia's ruling body, for anti-party activity and created a new and larger Presidium with 15 members. The four were also expelled from the Central Committee.

Obstructed peace moves
And late last night Moscow Radio reported that Mr. Molotov, Mr. Malenkov and Mr. Kaganovich had also been relieved of all ministerial functions. Mr. Molotov was Minister of Foreign Affairs, Mr. Malenkov was a junior Deputy Premier, and Mr. Kaganovich was Minister of Electric Power Stations. Mr. Shepilov, who had been appointed as Minister of State Control, was also relieved of his duties.

The party committee announced the purge of the group of hindering the Soviet Government's policy of peace and singled out Mr. Molotov in particular for being measures intended to ease international tension. It was attacked for his policy towards Yugoslavia and the Balkans as a whole.

The general verdict of the British Press yesterday was that the purge was a necessary step to clear the way for the Soviet Union to discuss the disarmament talks which the news agency had announced. Speakers at a meeting of Moscow Communist Party branches attacked the anti-party group.

Party chiefs expelled in Rumania
The Rumanian Communist Party announced the dismissal of its top leaders yesterday, including the Premier, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, and the Minister of Defense. The purge was seen as a move to clear the way for the Rumanian Government to discuss the disarmament talks.

BRITAIN'S SMART WOMEN POINT THE WAY TO FASHION

Women in the news

By SUSAN VAUGHAN

WHAT makes a woman the top of the fashion list? What angles her out from all others in the expert eye? After talking to ten of the season's 'best' models, I know the answer.

There is no trick, no short cut. It's knowing what suits you, and sticking to it in spite of the fashion trends. And what may be their even more important reason is their favourite bit of the season proves my point. The designer who is the classic example of sticking to her individual style is the one who has made a name for herself and has managed to remain the same shape and size for years.

In London she says her new-cut version of an old favourite—the short skirt with the belt.

Smart New Yorkers have worn wearing these neo-beater dresses.

Points from the Leaders

AFTERMATH OF THE EMERGENCY AND THE NORWICH SHOW

THE most important points in the first four of the leaders were: (1) The African Standard during the past week.

Aftermath
TUESDAY, JULY 4, 1957

Little in the villages of the Kikuyu Reserve poses difficulties that become more pressing day by day. They include the size of the package to be sent, the need to face them and find a satisfactory solution is increasingly apparent as the effects spread and take on a wider significance.

The problem in the subsistence level of the villagers. It arose when, during the Emergency, the Kikuyu were uprooted from the settled areas and sent back to their reserves. This step was essential to prevent contact and the passing of food between them and the terrorists. But when they returned to the tribal districts they found in a great many cases, that all the land was under cultivation and there was little or none for them. The Kikuyu clan system provides for its own, but this big influx has been living on short rations for a long time.

As the fighting emergency recedes and rehabilitation gets under way, their situation must be considered. Many of these unemployed people would be thankful to return to the settled areas, where they are in need of land and a wage as farm labourers, and possibly some land to cultivate. A growing number of farmers would be glad to have them back, but the face of it this has not seemed to be done. The Emergency is not yet over and while the administrative staff has had a great deal of doubt as to whether to allow them to leave their reserves and settle in the areas, it is now clear that the Government is not yet ready to do so.

THURSDAY, JULY 4, 1957

By all accounts Kenya's exhibit is proving to be one of the big attractions of the Royal Show at Norwich. Not only the stand itself commends attention—through its contemporary design and bearing on the steps to the Sun for Sikeres; it is in the way of things that it contains that interest.

Indubitably this venture will be a success. It is the 21,000 spent on every exhibit has had a great deal of publicity in the newspapers and it is not clear that it is not a success. # SILVER JUBILEE SWIMMERS - WITH A LONG WAY TO GO

R. ROBINSON, Kenya Swimming Champion from 1931 to 1947, contributes this article on swimming - part of our series on local sports written by East African experts.

Kenya swimming really began in earnest in 1931 when the Salisbury Swimming Baths were opened. The club then formed was the "Salisbury Swimming Club" and the first president was Mr. H. J. May and D. Westlake were and, under their guidance, the club progressed and quickly formed a junior section and a senior pool section.

Up to the outbreak of war, some 400 children were taught to swim, which was an important contribution to the Colony. During the war years part of the club was transferred to the Forces. The club was re-formed in 1946 and renamed the Nairobi Swimming Club.

At that time, as in all sports, there was a dearth of equipment. For example, the 100 yds race for 100 yards was run down from 20 seconds to 1 minute 30 seconds. The club was re-formed in 1946 and renamed the Nairobi Swimming Club.

It was not until 1948, that the club was able to acquire a few more items. The club was re-formed in 1946 and renamed the Nairobi Swimming Club.

Ismaili leaders from London join family at bedside EAST AFRICA MOURNING ARRANGEMENTS

THE Aga Khan, head of the Ismaili Muslim sect, died yesterday at his lakeside villa near Geneva. He was 79.

His wife, the Begum, and his two sons, Prince Aly Khan and Prince Sadruddin, and his grandson, Prince Karim, were at his bedside. Six Ismaili leaders arrived at the villa by air from London shortly after his death.

A statement issued at the villa by the Aga Khan's doctors said: "His Highness the Prince Aga Khan passed away peacefully as a result of a long illness today, Thursday July 11, at 10.30 a.m. at his home Barakot, at Versoix, near Geneva."

Ill over ten years

The succession to the spiritual leadership of the 20,000,000 Ismaili Muslims, which the Aga Khan has held since 1950, is not automatic, but by nomination of the Aga Khan himself. So far his decision has not yet been made public.

The Aga Khan had been ill on and off more than ten years earlier this year with broncho-pulmonary trouble. Three weeks ago he was brought to his home Barakot, near Geneva.

'Very staunch friend' to many

MESSAGES of condolence to the Begum Aga Khan were sent by the Government of Tanganyika and Uganda. In his telegram, the Governor of Tanganyika, Sir John Twiss, said: "I can assure you that we deeply mourn the loss of a very staunch friend and that we will be deeply mourned by the Ismaili Khwa community but by a very large number of people who have held him in the highest regard."

A message of sympathy from the Government of Kenya was also sent by the Governor, Sir John Twiss, to the Begum Aga Khan. The message said: "I am sure that the people of Kenya will be deeply mourned by the Ismaili Khwa community but by a very large number of people who have held him in the highest regard."

Advocate removed from Roll by court

FIVE years after starting in practice as an advocate, Mr. C. M. Argwings-Koibach, described as the only practicing African barrister, has been struck off the Roll of Advocates yesterday for professional misconduct.

At last week's hearing of the case it was stated that while acting as advocate to a woman who was an addict, Mr. Argwings-Koibach collected and received over on his behalf but failed to put the money into a trust account.

The court, in the Supreme Court, Nairobi, presided over by Mr. Justice Ridd, sitting with Mr. Justice G. H. G. Hooper, said the case was one that well justified any order that Mr. Argwings-Koibach should be struck off the roll.

Not truthful

Although the specific misconduct set out in the Advocate's statement was not substantiated with evidence, Mr. Justice Ridd said that the Advocate's statement was not truthful.

Shocking example

The Committee believed that a shocking example would be set by the Advocate's statement. The Committee has decided to strike Mr. Argwings-Koibach off the roll.

ROYAL INTEREST IN AFRICAN FABRICS

MUCH interest was shown in African fabrics by the Queen and Prince Philip when they visited the Kenya pavilion at the Royal Show at Harare. The Queen and the Prince spent 15 minutes at the stand which was also visited by the Princess Royal and the Duke of Gloucester.

The Kenya Minister for Agriculture, Mr. Blundell, and his wife (left) spent much time at the stand. In a B.C.C. interview recorded on the Show Mr. Blundell said Kenya was greatly interested in the new and interesting agricultural returns in the Colony.

SEARCHING FOR THE UNKNOWN WONDERS OF THE ABERDEARE

THE UNKNOWN WONDERS A WAIT THE VISITOR TO MOUNTAIN PARKS

THE unknown wonders which await the visitor to the Aberdare and Mount Kenya National Parks are described in this article by ERIC BAYLES, a second article will deal specifically with the flora of the areas near the mountain and glaciers.

KNRY and fauna, the first unacquainted, the second unappreciated, await visitors in every corner of Kenya's national parks. Unfortunately, both the Aberdare and Mount Kenya are closed to the public. Mercurians made them their stronghold at the height of the Emergency and, with between 100 and 200 unaccompanied far and potentially dangerous still at large, restrictions must remain.

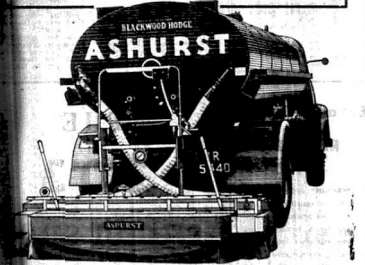

THE austere grandeur of Mount Kenya can be viewed from a distance but the splendours of the Aberdare must remain a closed book to most until the Emergency comes to an end. There is another visitor to both.

THE tracks generally are very fine and the vegetation is very dry, with occasional patches of grass and scattered trees. The slopes are steep and the soil is very hard. The vegetation is very dry and the soil is very hard.

THE weather makes some sections very impassable. The tracks are very dry and the vegetation is very dry. The slopes are steep and the soil is very hard.

THE old route is a comparatively unknown area. Before a track was made, the area was very dry and the vegetation is very dry. The slopes are steep and the soil is very hard.

Wild game threatened in India

By V. M. NAIR

INDIA has launched an intensive drive to prevent amateur hunters from exterminating her wild animals.

POachers in India have been a serious menace and violent forest rangers have a strict watch to prevent offshoots in the form of wild animals.

To preserve some of the fast-disappearing wild animals, the Indian Government has drawn up an ambitious programme to set up a network of national parks all over the country where these animals can roam without fear of being shot by poachers and professional hunters.

The new restrictions, however, have come too late to save some of India's most valuable wild animals. The most beautiful and probably the most coveted trophy of the big-game hunter in India, has vanished.

A creature of the wild open spaces in the drier parts of the Indian continent, the tiger has been almost exterminated by Indian sportsmen. The last tiger was shot in India in 1947. The tiger has been almost exterminated by Indian sportsmen.

Critical stage The great Indian buster, a new bird, is also believed to be on the verge of extinction. While the brown-and-red dove of Manipal, in north-east India, has not been seen for years, Indian tigers, though still plentiful, are being greatly driven deeper into the jungles of forest reserves.

AROUND AND ABOUT MOUNT KENYA

Bamboo to icy peaks

THREE aspects of the Aberares and Mount Kenya National Parks, which await the visitor when the areas are opened up again after being deemed safe from terrorists.

Top left, a ranger looks from the forests of the Aberares across the wooded and mountain ranges towards a majestic Mount Kenya, whose glaciers show up clearly in the late afternoon sunlight.

Above, is a waterfall seen by very few people. Cascading more than 100 ft. it is worth the difficult trek through giant tree trunks — with trunks three feet and more in width. Later, an appropriate track is to be built to make the journey a simple one.

We're going to have a white Christmas

The leafless lanes of England are silent, save for a snapping twig or the lonely caw of a robin. The dark fields have scolded patiently for their long winter sleep. In the North Country snowflakes scurry across the mist, sweeping the sheep into a huddle. Turkeys and geese hang fat and festive in Smithfield Market and people are saying to each other: "We're going to have a white Christmas."

On Christmas Day your friends and relations at home in Great Britain will all be thinking of you. HALF THE FUN OF CHRISTMAS IS GIVING PRESENTS — especially nearer to you. It's all so simple. All you have to do is to make your choice from our 1957 free illustrated Christmas catalogue. Send your order. # SLOWER APPROACH TO GOLF BY MODERN PLAYERS

BY HENRY LONGHURST

Not many people under the age of 40 remember golf as it was played before the war. It was a slow, deliberate game, played on a course which was a pleasure to walk on. It was a game which was played for its own sake, and not for the sake of winning. It was a game which was played in a spirit of sportsmanship and fair play, and not in a spirit of rivalry and competition. It was a game which was played in a spirit of enjoyment and relaxation, and not in a spirit of stress and strain.

DRUGS-A SPORTING PROBLEM

The "nose" has been a common sight for many years, and it is a natural result of the physical nature of the sport. The players are subjected to a great deal of physical stress and strain, and this causes the nose to produce a spray of mucus.

The spray is a natural defense mechanism which helps to protect the nose from the dry air and the dust which are present in the stadium. It is a natural and necessary part of the game, and it is not something which can be controlled.

CEREALS RESEARCH TO HELP FARMERS

Growing meat waste because of measles STABILISATION PLANT SUGGESTED

CATTLE infested with measles, which are at present being slaughtered at the Nakuru abattoir and fed to stock and swine, may in future be culled or frozen in place of being sent to human consumption. This step is being considered by the Public Health Commission of the Municipal Council because of the large and increasing amount of meaty waste which is being wasted.

It has been reported that nearly 200 sheep, 1000 lb. each, are likely to give to £2000 lb. a year.

The Chief Health Inspector, Mr. S. Murray, has recommended that the meat of the animals be frozen or freezing it, possibly may be bought from the Nakuru abattoir and sent to the S.O. and then sterilised and sold for about 60 cents a lb.

PLANS to establish a cereals research advisory committee in Kenya to help farmers on problems of growing and wheat-growing in various areas are being considered by the Director of Agriculture, Mr. J. M. Seymour, when he returns to the country.

The annual meeting of the Kenya National Farmers' Union at Molo on Thursday night will be the first of the new committee which will be set up in co-operation with the Government. Cereals research is considered to be one of the most important of the work of the Government and the research is being carried out by the Government and the University of Nairobi.

The Government is also carrying out research on the problems now connected with the main crops of cereals, research work which has been going on for the last two years when it was found that the cereal crops were being attacked by a new disease, which is now being spread to a great extent than in the past.

On the other hand, the Government is also carrying out research on the problems of wheat growing in Kenya. It has been found that locally-bred wheat has made a good crop.

THE COCONUT, A PALM OF FRIENDSHIP FOR EAST AFRICA

By GEORGE HAINES

MOST people automatically associate coconut palms with a tropical setting — and rightly so. They think of moss-bale boxes, slender trunks, fan-like leaves against a blue sky — hot sun and moonlight and an ocean voyage to strange lands.

How many, I wonder, realize that this tree has much more to offer than a unique beauty that it provides not only copra for which it is chiefly valued, but food and drink, roofing and timber, soft fibre on which to lie and lounge, too. Those who know, how to use its gifts place high value on the coconut palm and its fruit.

A study of the coconut palm in Kenya shows that it is the most widely grown crop in the Coast Province and occupies a place of prime importance in the economy of the province.

Infructuous, in the past, this situation has been paid in this way by the African coastal growers, who have taken what benefit they could from the labour of the slaves.

Today a change is taking place. Growing areas are being long-term plan, the Kenya Government, through its Department of Agriculture, is making coconut improvements in the coastal areas systematically, location by location with as far as can be seen the first results will not be known until 1961, considerable success.

TREMENDOUS TASK

The coconut is some time at the general improvement of this valuable crop by the elimination of dead, weak and unproductive palms, grafting and extension with its proved seedling and the reduction of loss and waste.

It is a tremendous task which has behind it agricultural officers of enthusiasm and drive. The African planter is realizing the necessity for such a literature has quickened and is spreading.

The scheme came into operation in the Coast Province, districts of Kwale and Kilifi. The improvement takes place in both areas of from two to four square miles annually with a concentration of 200 in each area.

Problems in the districts were, in Kwale, in case of spacing and extension, in Kilifi

SUREF PROGRESS

The Department of Agriculture surveys coconut plantations in the Coast Province, Agricultural Officers mark the dead and unproductive trees to be removed and destroyed by burning.

At the same time, they mark the trees to be grafted and extended. This allows for inter-cultivation of other crops, especially are occasionally found at a higher altitude.

It likes a high humidity and adequate rainfall. On the Kenya Coast, rainfall appears to be the most important factor for the coconut.

RAIN LIMITATION

The Department has a complete record of every week's rainfall and seedlings are sold as soon as the rain rate starts.

Agricultural officers make the ground for planting. Allowances to growers is given according to what such survey reveals and no man whose land has not been surveyed is issued with seedlings.

The coconut has a growing rate to seven years before it has its full crop. In Kenya the productive life is between 48 and 59 years, but it does live from 80 to 90 years.

Undoubtedly, the life of the coconut palm in Kenya is sometimes shortened by abusive soil and crop or insect pest penetration.

There are some of the most interesting facts about the coconut palm. It requires a mean temperature of between 25 and 30 degrees Fahrenheit and, therefore, normally is growing only from the sea level to an altitude of 1,500 feet. In Kenya, it has

'SCENES OF CRIME' METHOD AND TECHNIQUES

RONALD WILKINSON overviews the third and final article in our series dealing with the method and technique of the police officer.

OVER the past few years, with the enormous expansion of technical facilities at the Colony CID headquarters, the lot of the criminal has become steadily less attractive. This department, which makes more arrests than all other branches combined, can boast not only of the range and quality of its equipment, but of a progressive outlook in which continuous research is the improvement of methods and techniques.

Experimentation, improvement, re-organisation. Day by day, work is carried out which makes it more difficult for the criminal to evade detection. As an example, for the first time in the history of the CID, we have considered the recent procedure of Chief Inspector W. Howson in the problems of photographing fingerprints on mirrors.

Prints on plain glass are easy to photograph and these are the only surfaces have an image which remains obvious to the naked eye.

Chief Inspector Howson believes that he has evolved a new method of photographing prints on mirrors. One man has been seen to take a photograph of a mirror in the British Police Academy, by using a special method of lighting.

An expert in many fields

At Masville, the first of the specialisation of the CID, the expert has become part of the CID. The "expert of crime" is the CID. The CID is the expert in many fields. The CID is the expert in many fields. The CID is the expert in many fields.

Fingerprints are checked in the "library" at police headquarters.

Portable kits aid police

Three models of "rooms of crime" kits (shown) are taught to take scenes of burglary, theft, a bottle and a shoe are examined for fingerprints and the results are compared with the drawing of a shoe at the Ministry of Defence.

Delight heart of Sherlock Holmes

Made in their own design, they will contain everything that would assist the hunt of a criminal. The kit is being used by the CID. The kit is being used by the CID. The kit is being used by the CID.

New impetus for 'science'

Scientific aspects of CID work will have new impetus in October. The post of scientific officer, an important addition to the establishment, has been created.

Dark-room officers throw light on crime

Just before the end of the year, the CID will be the expert in many fields. The CID is the expert in many fields. The CID is the expert in many fields.

Macabre task for department

The department is busy with the photographic section, which is fully equipped. The only drawback is the increasing number of dark-room officers. Expansion of the dark-room will be given top priority when building extensions, first planned six months ago, are provided.

Police were seeking to establish if the skull was that of an African, when it was killed in a photograph. The skull was photographed and an enlargement made to actual size.

PETULA PIG BRINGS HOME VERY LITTLE BACON...

BY ANN PERRY

PETULA and Timothy had been friends for quite a while. Timothy's father bought her a pig from the market when she was only a very little pig.

TUNING-IN TIME In a bit of a hole

I DON'T know how you'd like to be dropped down a hole by your brothers and left there.

When our new radio works, there are two things you can do. We can get up and grab the radio or we can get up and grab the pig.

Jumped out

Petula was very puzzled and did not want to leave the farm at all, and in particular, she did not want to leave Timothy.

She began to look back at the farm. She was very worried and she did not want to leave Timothy.

So exhausted

"What's happened?" she asked. "I'm tired and I don't know what to do."

Three hours later Timothy's father had been brought up in his car by Timothy's father.

INCOME TAX EVASION AND EMERGENCY TASKS IN MALAYA

THE most important points from two of the leaders which appeared in the East African Standard during the past week are given below.

Tax evasion

UNUSUAL, says a leader, is the NAIROBI Chamber of Commerce, on the report it adopted on Thursday night, has crystallised in unambiguous terms what the African tax-paying public has been thinking for years on the question of income tax evasion and the Government and High Commissioners have failed to give the recommendations their serious and immediate attention.

This is a highly pertinent statement. It is a pity that the report of the Chamber of Commerce, which is the voice of the whole of those territories under the British flag, is not more widely read. # Improved petrol and power

the way to East Africa

By G. W. JOHNS, A.M.I. Mech. E., B.E.S.E.,
Asst. Mgr. of the Shell Co. of East Africa

Over many years motor-car engine designers have endeavoured to obtain more and more power from their engines and this has been achieved largely as a result of the improved compression ratios.

The average compression ratio of new car models available at the British Motor Show was 7.25 to 1, with some engines having compression ratios up to 9 to 1, 10 to 1, and 11 to 1.

Similar increases have been made in the compression ratios of American and Continental cars of power, and today these are 8 to 1, 9 to 1, 10 to 1, and 11 to 1. In fact, the compression ratio of 7.25 to 1 was some 20 years ago.

ANSWERS FOR MOTORISTS

A typical question is "What is the difference between petrol and diesel engines?" The answer is that petrol engines are internal combustion engines of a spark ignition type, while diesel engines are external combustion engines of a compression ignition type. The petrol engine has a spark plug and the diesel engine has a fuel injection pump. The petrol engine has a higher compression ratio than the diesel engine, and the diesel engine has a higher torque than the petrol engine. The petrol engine is lighter and more compact than the diesel engine, and the diesel engine is more durable and has a longer life.

QUITE HARMLESS

Concerning the question of whether petrol engines are more polluting than diesel engines, the answer is that petrol engines are more polluting than diesel engines, but the pollution is quite harmless.

COST OFFSET

The improvement in quality of the higher octane number petrols has been made possible by constant research and development work by the oil companies and the use of the latest refining techniques in modern plants located where they can supply at economic cost, the maximum demand being made over them.

JOB FOR EXPERT

This is not a job to be undertaken by a layman. The work of an expert should be carried out by an experienced mechanic. It may be found that, with these precautions, the engine will run smoothly and efficiently, and the work will be done in a satisfactory manner.

HIGHER COMPRESSION RATIOS BEST MEANS TO BOOST OUTPUT

By M. D. HENRY, Technical Engineer, Standard Vauxhall Oil Company

All other things remaining the same, any increase in compression ratio of an internal combustion engine must yield, among other things, the following most important advantages:

(1) Greater "Specific Output", i.e. increased brake-horse-power throughout the entire range of throttle openings from touring speeds (at part throttle) to full throttle at peak power conditions.

The technical statistic which is most commonly used to measure the overall performance of the internal combustion engine is the indicated mean effective pressure (IMEP). This is the average pressure in the cylinder over one complete cycle of the piston.

It is the average pressure in the cylinder over one complete cycle of the piston. The IMEP is a measure of the engine's ability to do work. The higher the IMEP, the more work the engine can do.

Preventing pinking and roughness. However, in the present state of knowledge, these very important benefits cannot be fully realized unless the fuel is of a high quality.

Chemical and dynamic tests have shown that the use of high quality fuel is essential for the best performance of the engine.

Presently the same principle is being applied to the design of the engine, and the use of high quality fuel is becoming more and more important.

High cylinder pressures. The transition from normal compression to high compression is a gradual one, and the engine must be designed to handle the higher pressures.

This is not, perhaps in the strictest sense, a new development, but the normal combustion process has been improved by the use of high quality fuel.
