EAST AFRICA STILL FORGES AHEAD

Progress in face of adversity — reports

RECORDS BROKEN

From the Kenya Commissioner's report on the keynote of two reports on progress over the past year, just published at a Press conference that the United States Foreign Board's officials are taking the possibility of teaching a peaceful settlement of East-West tensions. He said these reports were neither pessimistic nor optimistic.

Asked about the possibility of a conference between the United States and Russia, President Eisenhower said the United States Foreign Board was studying how full a conference could be held, and every opportunity to relieve the tension would be taken.

He said how and when such a conference could be held, and a final decision had not yet been reached.

President Eisenhower was then asked about the possibility of a conference between the United States and Russia. He said the United States Foreign Board was studying how full a conference could be held, and every opportunity to relieve the tension would be taken.

HOME GUARD CAPTURES TERRORIST GUNSMITH

Made 30 firearms 'for profit'

AN African, who admitted being a professional gunsmith for gangsters, has been captured by an African Home Guard leader in Kenya. The man, who had made a total of 30 guns at the rate of five a month, said he had done it purely for the profit motive and not for any political sympathy.

His capture was made by Mau Mau forces near the town of Kapanga. The man, who had made a total of 30 guns at the rate of five a month, said he had done it purely for the profit motive and not for any political sympathy.

Faith fights battle on Athi plains

AT Athi River Internment Camp— a mass of red and black buildings squatting on a hillside in the open plain 15 miles east of Nairobi—a score or so Europeans and Africans, armed with little more than faith and foresight, are fighting the second round against Mau Mau.

Their enemy lies in the vile attributes of the Mau Mau movement—fanaticism, fear and frustration. While the militia and the police continue their successes against gangsterism and thuggery, many are engaged in the task of rehabilitating those tainted with the crude terrorist doctrine.

Having started less than four months ago, the scheme is much too young to show any signs of definite success. The European and African instructors already begin to detect a lessening in the obduracy of a few of the detainees, a few have also voluntarily confessed to Mau Mau crimes. That is perhaps the most that can be said.

STRONGLY SUSPECTED

Inside the nine barbed-wire compounds of 1,180 men detained under the Emergency Regulations, those who have actually been convicted of Mau Mau offences though all are strongly suspected, frequently get detentions here for the same reasons. Mau Mau crimes which could not be taken to court for lack of evidence. They are Kikuyu but where there is some hope of regeneration; both young and old men who may one day see their names in the annals of orderly and law-abiding citizenship. At present, they will be a long time before the authorities can entertain the notion of putting them back into the reserves.

HARD WORK, DISCIPLINE

Whether one calls it psychological warfare, decontamination, indoctrination, rehabilitation or any of the other terms that have entered modern vocabularies, the basic idea is the same. It is to set the mind against the Mau Mau. It might seem at first glance, for similar post-war schemes have been operated in Greece against the Communists, and more recently in Malaya against terrorists, with reasonable success.

The general policy has been described as "the rehabilitation of the detenus by hard work and discipline, by propaganda, by religious instruction and by other means."

Cooks chosen from the detainees prepare the food in the camp kitchen.

EXPERIMENT TO RID AFRICANS OF MAU MAU DOCTRINES

and other means." Since the project is experimental, it must necessarily proceed slowly as it progresses, rehabilitation does not work to a time-table. The man to whom the project has been entrusted is Mr. R. H. Fontaine, who is in charge of rehabilitation work, aided by a staff of church ministers, European and African educationists and trade instructors. The camp commandant, Col. A. Knight, is responsible for the proper execution of every activity in the camp.

It is a tedious camp. In the early morning the detainees are made to do physical work between rigid discipline and the heavy manual work of the camp. They are held out to them as they are by the camp commandant, Mr. Knight. There is a strong road sign which has no end and a light road.

NO PROMISES

Inducement is unobtainable. The most common hope that ever crossed your mind is that, perhaps, this may be anything that promotes the success and progress of the camp. We cannot say any definite thing that those people who remain in the camp will be able to know what we wanted of them, but they would immediately go out of their minds to do anything by doing everything we told them to do inside the camp.

RELEASE HOPES

The detainees on the whole favour hard work. Some of them have been under detention since the start of the Emergency and the schemes of the welfare department have been heavily on their minds. The hope of release makes some of them co-operative. There is nothing spectacular about the camp set-up. Detainees do their own work, and are given about 30 people, set in communal groups. They are not given any religious classes, and take their own hours of rest. The camp commandant, Mr. Knight, said that the scheme is a long-term one.

£25,000 scheme for street lighting in Mombasa

NEARLY ten miles of brilliantly lit streets will be a feature of Mombasa's commercial centre when a new £25,000 Mombasa City Council scheme for street lighting is completed. The scheme is controlled by the Municipal Board's plan for wide dual carriageway streets in the town's centre.

The scheme is being prepared by Messrs. B. B. Roberts and Co., Ltd., of the Victoria Road, and along the waterfront of the town. The scheme is being executed by Messrs. Power and Lighting Company, which is carrying out the work.

Gun stolen

The theft of another firearm in Nairobi has been reported by the police. A .43 calibre semi-automatic and five rounds of ammunition in a slip case were stolen from the Nairobi Police Station on October 5.

Talking of HAIR... how is yours?

Too many men and women take their hair for granted. Only when it becomes dry and brittle or comes out on the comb, do they realize that, to look well, their hair must be well. To understand hair health you must understand how hair grows.

As you can easily prove by pulling a hair from your head and examining the "root", your hair begins beneath the skin. From a bulbous end it grows up through the scalp, drawing nourishment from special fluids produced by the body and supplied from within.

16 Essential Ingredients
The hair's secret food consists of 16 essential substances in which Silvkrin has given such names as tyrosine, arginine, glycine, aspartic acid, and amino acids, the "raw materials" of the hair. It is the failure of the flow of these "raw materials" through the scalp, that causes hair falling thin, comes from neglect, and subsequent fall which, if neglected, eventually leads to baldness.

Shows Instant Results
In this line of hair health, it is not a matter of days but of months. You can get a good result in 30 days if you give your hair the right conditions of life and vitality which Silvkrin offers. Unusually hair conditions (1) come from lack of sleep, (2) poor diet, (3) excessive use of hair oil, and (4) over-washing.

The treatment is called Silvkrin and consists of a combination of tyrosine, arginine, glycine, and amino acids.

RONEO visible records

Every undertaking — commercial, industrial or professional — must keep records. Records of stock, accounts of salaries, records of expenses, etc.

As these records are the time spent in entry and subsequently in extracting information is unproductive. The best time occupied in these activities is more available for productive work that is why the modern trend is toward records cover better and more easily handled.

Roneo Visible Recording methods are the outcome of long and painstaking research into this problem. They result in the least possible time spent in recording, immediate access to all information, and a clear indication of those matters which require attention. By filling in the details below, further details will be sent by return.

The Civil Service
None will seriously dispute the wisdom of keeping the Civil Service free from outside control and the resulting conservation of public funds.

Behind the lighters' wharf at Kilindini in the reclaimed area and the sites of the berths jetties running out into the sea.

Lighters will supplement Kilindini berths
WHEN the construction of the Uganda Railway started in 1896, one of the first difficulties experienced was in the unloading of stores at Kilindini.
Three lighters had been obtained, but there was no pier and they had to be unloaded on the open beach.
This was an unsatisfactory arrangement and in order to improve matters, temporary wooden tidal jetties were built which constituted the first lighterage facilities at Kilindini.
When the general development of British East Africa's considerable expansion of port facilities was under way, it was found that the existing facilities were inadequate to meet the requirements of the port.
The Government decided to construct a new pier and wharf, and this was done in 1912.
The new pier and wharf were built on reclaimed land, and the construction was completed in 1914.

Where Transport MUST BE DEPENDABLE . . .

...you'll find the flying 'A'—the symbol of dependability. The Austin commercial vehicle range is a wide one. There are trucks of carrying capacity varying from a half ton to five tons. In the larger vehicle range there is the choice of petrol or diesel engines. The five ton long-wheelbase truck is the largest of the standard production models and is a solidly built vehicle with an engine of great pulling power and a body of exceptional load capacity. The dependability of an Austin is the guarantee of every job well done.

Only light showers expected over inland areas

The general weather situation has shown little change since the past week and there are no indications to suggest that any significant developments are likely during the coming week. Precipitation will remain fairly light in the south and there are no signs of any marked shifts in the Mediterranean.

The inter-tropical convergence zone, which at present lies across the South, is unlikely to move appreciably southwards. Weather conditions over East Africa will remain generally as at present. A few scattered showers are expected over the coast and over inland parts of Uganda but over inland parts of Kenya very scattered light showers are expected. In Tanganyika a few showers are expected from a low mainly light rain-bearing system which will drift across the Eastern Province and into the interior.

KENYA

East of Rift: Occasional light showers, generally well spaced, throughout the day, with a few scattered showers over the coast and inland parts of the country.

West of Rift: Occasional light showers, generally well spaced, throughout the day, with a few scattered showers over the coast and inland parts of the country.

TANGANYIKA

North East: Some variable amount of rain, generally well spaced, throughout the day, with a few scattered showers over the coast and inland parts of the country.

South East: Some variable amount of rain, generally well spaced, throughout the day, with a few scattered showers over the coast and inland parts of the country.

As informal entertainment, Nona Cooper, dressed in purple grey and wine, combined aptly and with an appealing manner.

The immediate past President of the Association, Mr. and Mrs. F. Blake were present and their success for 1951, Mr. and Mrs. S. McKinnit Executive Director of the Association, Miss M. J. East Africa deserves thanks but unfortunately they cannot be named. They do not except here where they are good.

ALTHOUGH both sets of the Doreen Linn School of Dancing were in exquisite form at a rehearsal in the National Theatre on Monday afternoon, Doreen in black, and the girls were practicing a scene from Snow White. Later the sets were joined by the Corps de Ballet who in their white and gold costumes, some of whom have decorated their wings with the most regular attendance has been April Perry.

All are members of the Kenya Ballet Company which was started when it became known as the Kenya Ballet. They were to be seen at their best in the formation of a resident company.

ALARGE crowd of well-dressed people attended the Limuru race last Saturday. It was a sunny afternoon with a nip in the air and tall-topped hats were much in vogue.

RACING AT LIMURU

Among those who enjoyed the racing at this popular course was the Governor accompanied by the Lady Mary Baring and their son, Lady Mary who was very smart in blue and white.

One of the highlights of the afternoon was a young boy aged about nine who walked across the track between races. When he saw the Governor he ran to him and he was able to get a quick getaway, but Sir Evelyn certainly invited him to stay where he was.

THE HUNGRY WORLD

By Susan Strange

entire world, Russia excluded, are to be found. North America and Europe.

Less encouraging

The recovery in world food production after the war is qualified by the fact that most of the recent increase in production has been in the cereal crops and in the few materials such as wool, rubber and wood which are not basic necessities of life.

The changes that are taking place are also having important effects on the pattern of world trade in foodstuffs, and of great importance to any country which exports or imports food brought from abroad.

The effect of the underdeveloped countries to keep more in agriculture with the growing numbers, plus the fact that in order to earn foreign exchange, especially dollars, they are on the whole maintaining and even increasing their production of raw materials. From the land means that the food-producing countries are increasingly dependent for their food on the North American, Far East and other countries. The balance that they are food on is heard that they will be unable to meet their needs. The result might be that they would have to import more food than their present population would be able to produce.

And closer to starvation than ever. But in fact the drive for economic development, especially in industry, is driving people away from the patterns of world food production. The effective demand created by these new industrial

A quick rub with Vim... and they're bright and clean

Tiles and woodwork gleam and sparkle with a quick rub with Vim on a damp cloth. Vim cleans quickly - smoothly - keeps surfaces bright and polished, without a scratch. Use Vim for floors and sinks and baths - all your cleaning.

Simple reason

THE reason is simple: output of food in each economically developed country is increasing quickly, much more quickly than the population. This trend is marked that in food production has been carrying large surplus stocks of food in the United States. Most other countries do not do this, or allow the surplus to be sold to other farmers to eat.

Meanwhile, in the economically underdeveloped countries, particularly in Latin America and the Far East, the number of mouths to feed is fast outpacing the growth of the number of mouths to feed. In the United States, the population is increasing at the rate of 1.5 per cent a year. In Latin America, the population is increasing at the rate of 1.5 per cent a year. In the Far East, the population is increasing at the rate of 1.5 per cent a year.

Putting the figures together, the population of the world is increasing at the rate of 1.5 per cent a year. The population of the United States is increasing at the rate of 1.5 per cent a year. The population of Latin America is increasing at the rate of 1.5 per cent a year. The population of the Far East is increasing at the rate of 1.5 per cent a year.

Brutally frank

AN introduction to the report of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, which is published in the United States, is brutally frank in its assessment of the economic situation of the world. It states that the economic situation is highly unpredictable, and that the world is likely to be in a state of economic chaos unless a more concerted effort is made to increase production of raw materials and foodstuffs.

The report also states that the world is likely to be in a state of economic chaos unless a more concerted effort is made to increase production of raw materials and foodstuffs. It states that the world is likely to be in a state of economic chaos unless a more concerted effort is made to increase production of raw materials and foodstuffs.

Touring The English Lakes

I ARRIVED in the Lake District of England on a Saturday night and just managed to get the last bed going in Borrowdale, a few yards from the edge of Lake Windermere.

It was a fine sight, the lake and the trees along the 12-mile shore with Burnham Fell in the background. Their gentle heights breaking up to the north to form the jagged edges of the Lakeland Fells.

AS I brought my bag in I bumped into an American lady who was just leaving. She and 14 other ladies from Alabama, in the Deep South, were touring England in a bus. How are you finding it, she asked her?

"Wonderful," I answered. "What part of England have you liked best?"

"The Lakes," she replied. "I've even better than our friends had. How do you find the people up and down the country?"

"Wonderful," I couldn't be better. "Don't you find them a bit anti-American?" she asked.

"Anti-American?" she repeated. "Oh, I get one all the time," she said. "Only I never cross that in the London newspapers."

"This was one of the occasions on which I made a particular point of not mentioning that I was an American."

"Business and Windermere are rather disappointing villages," she said. "I thought you had two perfect lakes, but I thought both were in the same county."

"I've never been to the States," she said. "I've only been to the States in the London newspapers."

lational look about them. The limit is to the north and west, rises the reservoir's ground. Arrived at a picturesque point for starting — possibly the best — early as six o'clock on a Sunday morning. It was as busy as a town street in the lunch-hour. Shows of hikers, with tiny shorts and sun-banned legs, descended from bus after bus, pulled out an eye around the place, and marched. Two more girls and positively goose-looking for a minute or two and examined their plans. Two carried plastic rucksacks from their backs without apparent effort. I almost asked them if they could give me a lift.

The bus ride through the 20-mile drive I think, the best taken drive I have ever seen through of narrow wood and Dunmail Raie between Rydal Fall (about 1000 feet) and Helm Crag and St. Michael's (1410) on the right and Helm Crag and St. Michael's (1410) on the left. Then, with the back of Thirlmere, with Thirlmere rising about a few miles further on and so the map of the Sandeiman to your right from there ahead.

I'm sure that you've seen it and immediately they really desperately had the idea of going to the top and getting a good idea of its shape, and a few days you can get a satisfactory picture of it from any angle. I do not look from view, visible only when you have passed and see it from the top and see it from the top and see it from the top.

I GOT into conversation with another fellow sitting at the table. We talked about prospecting. They were British prospectors. The young man would say, like their father did. It turned out that this chap was a well-known fossil collector from a place not far from Liverpool.

I WAS talking to — last week — he told me something about nationally known. He said that he would go 60 years of age into a pit because this was his knowledge. Why how to work and the young man's feeling rather young.

THEY had things made too easy for them," he said. "They've been brought to a world where short hours, high rates of pay, safety regulations and good working conditions were ready never had to work. They've tried. And they've never had to work. They've tried everything for me. I went back to Grannere."

I REACHED the lane with Dove Cottage in it. I had always imagined, since Wordsworth's writing of it, so wonderful a natural site that its windows would open but as we of its side the building is a few feet away. A view of the mountain opposite. It is quite a decent one. It is quite a decent one. It is quite a decent one.

I WALKED down into Grannere, and went to see Wordsworth's grave in the little churchyard. The grass on it grows greater than any grass I have ever seen. It is the culture of its spirit gives the greenness. It gives the greenness. It gives the greenness.

Record crop congests Maize Belt railways

NORTHERN RHODESIANS

The latest news of the week came with the publication of final estimates by the Government Maize Control Board which showed that the country can export an all-time record maize crop this season. The crop is more than 1,000,000 bags, an increase of more than 400,000 bags over last year.

NORTHERN RHODESIAN COMMENTARY

It is probably true to say that the railway is a single wheel of the Maize Belt. It is the only mode of transport which can carry the bulk of the crop to the coast. It is also the only mode of transport which can carry the bulk of the crop to the coast.

Import decision

Difficulty is always experienced in the Maize Control Board's decision on the import of maize. The Board has decided to import a considerable quantity of maize from the United Kingdom. This decision is based on the fact that the local crop is insufficient to meet the requirements of the country.

LONDON FASHIONS By Dorothy Barkley

Fur And Leather In The News

THERE is always a feeling of bewilderment in the excitement at fur shows. As the luxurious mink coats glide past, we ask prices, we wonder, £200 or £2,000?

Most expensive item in the show, given recently by the London Furrier was also the smallest. It was an evening bolero-style in a new shade of pink. "The smallest" price, £250.

Most of the first appearance among mink, sable, seal and other high-established skins was Australian opulent, champagne-colored. It is a good fur for a country.

For fur and hand-pipe, £2,000 for a mink in the latest "slung" line. It is going to be out of date by the time you read this. The mink is so dark that the white will not take. It is a good fur for a country. The mink is so dark that the white will not take. It is a good fur for a country.

LEATHER is trying to lay back ground to plastic. An exhibition at the Festival Hall recently illustrated the way it is doing so. The main selling line seems to be that, though leather is not as cheap as plastic, it wears better, lasts, but I've yet to be persuaded that a plastic handbag these days can't be mistaken for real leather.

Here are some of the unusual uses for leather I noted: Dark green leather top and skirt, with pink suede blouse for a sporting outfit; smoking in fine suede coat; leather collar and cuffs on coat and suit.

Called attention to a pair of leather shoes for the season's new light-colored—suede—shoes. One of them—trimmed with black silk tulle.

Invited to direct a play in the Theatre Workshop. I was listening to recordings by various drama students.

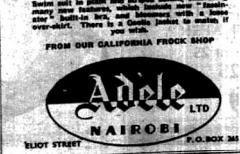

A spirited performance by a tall, powerful young man, attracted my attention.

I TALKED to him later and he invited me into his office near the Piccadilly for coffee.

WHERE THE DEAD LIE

By Patrick O'Donovan

As you see the world, like a map or a globe, the high spots of British expansion, the living and the dead, are scattered over the globe. The only evidence that the world has been there is the name of the place.

It is the only way to know the world today is to go to the place. The only way to know the world today is to go to the place. The only way to know the world today is to go to the place.

These are the graves of those who were killed in the war. The graves are scattered over the world. The only way to know the world today is to go to the place. The only way to know the world today is to go to the place. The only way to know the world today is to go to the place.

PRISONER OF WAR AND GUARD SEVEN YEARS AGO ARE NOW ALLIES

YES, it is in Kenya that British Army Sergeant George A. Stephen is pointing on the map to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's Southern Europe headquarters in Naples. Less than seven years ago, his prisoner-of-war in a camp in Rome. And one of the guards at that camp was Sergeant Giuseppe. Today they work side by side as NATO allies.

Vivid memories

Major Clinton, a native of London, had been serving in Africa for years when he was captured by the British in Somalia in 1941. He was sent to a prison camp in Kenya, where Giuseppe was assigned later as a guard.

Promoted to major

Clinton was promoted to major in the British Army. He is now a major in the British Army. He is now a major in the British Army. He is now a major in the British Army.

FROM HERE... AND THERE

DOCK crews sawing the heavy cranes over the ship's side, officials beamed, crowded together. Clayton's helicopter had arrived from the United States.

THE HAGUE

John Andrew, Canadian Minister of State for External Affairs, announced today that the Canadian Government would send a mission to the Hague to study the work of the International Court of Justice.

ROME

Long before the Allies got to Rome, the city had been a hotbed of resistance. The city had been a hotbed of resistance. The city had been a hotbed of resistance. The city had been a hotbed of resistance.

The Stage Is Set For Kenya's Royal Show

Royal Agricultural Society of Kenya to make the forthcoming Show at Park, Nairobi, the first of its kind.

Other remarks of my in August were to the effect that I should be described as a "showman" and that I should be prepared to be congratulated on the very fine arrangements which have already been made. Not only are all the stands showing but several smaller stands have been taken up and a very fine effort is being made.

The Society deeply realizes that the state of Emergency is with us but even so it is aiming to make this show one of the greatest ever to be staged in Kenya.

It fully realizes how difficult things are for many farmers and it is giving it all the more attention.

However, the Emergency and the country's present troubles cannot diminish the fact that agriculture is the basic industry of Kenya and due to the limitations granted by Government and in the work of planning and farm machinery, agriculture has made considerable progress. Kenya may be the great rolling plains of Canada, Australia or Argentina for the production of livestock, except perhaps for better cattle, but this fertile land can produce quality as has been seen from the splendid exhibits at previous shows.

A Post-President of the Royal Agricultural Society of Kenya, MAJOR J. W. MILLIGAN, explains the aims and objects of the Society and its Shows.

Trade, Native Industries—anything in fact representative of the Colony's production. The Trade and Native Industries are very important and we are to be congratulated on the very fine arrangements which have already been made. Not only are all the stands showing but several smaller stands have been taken up and a very fine effort is being made.

The Society deeply realizes that the state of Emergency is with us but even so it is aiming to make this show one of the greatest ever to be staged in Kenya.

'Show-minded'

HAVE no doubt that Kenya is becoming more "show-minded" and it is hoped to make it even more so in the competitive effort, the en-effort by showing what you can do better than others, that establishes and only helping themselves but this fair land Kenya.

The basic function of shows is purely educational for those who attend as well as for those who compete and in Kenya, with its wide variety of agricultural industries, areas and climatic conditions, the need is for the several showgrounds so that the educational process may be carried out regularly in suitable centres where Towns and Country meet, for it is the link between Town and Country which is so helpful to mutual endeavour and understanding and which abhors no preliminary nor none two great sections of the community are so wholly dependent on one another.

It is also of the greatest advantage that a main show, showing for the benefit of the United Kingdom and other countries, can be held in representation as possible of all the country's products.

Furthermore, the holding of a show in the big variety which encourages that friendship and co-operation between the different races of the Colony which is so desirable and more so than ever today.

Young farmers

THESE are the days, and it rightly so, when so much is being done to assist young organizations and the Society is very keen to foster the formation of Young Farmers' Clubs in the present. There will be judging by young farmers at the show which should be a great help in advertising it as a career and in developing a love of the country among boys and girls.

What a wonderful advertisement and propaganda for Kenya was the fair portion which the Society erected this year at the Great Rural Show in England at Blackpool, showing what this country can produce. And also that splendidly organized Kenya Pavilion at the great Rhodes Exhibition in Southern Rhodesia.

It will be appreciated that in the organization of the show, the Society is performing a function of the greatest importance and by the encouragement of the past few years that the Society's responsibilities have been more than doubled but the trouble is that the organization has totally insufficient funds and such tremendous organization can only be made possible if sufficient funds are available.

The Government has indeed helped the Society greatly but it is not right to rely only on Government. The Society is endeavouring to stand on its own feet and it is by means of its shows that it obtains the wherewithal to exist and carry on. While, of course, funds are obtainable from various and sundry sources, it is most important that it should be able to maintain their own subscriptions, but to point out to all member farmers and across the wide is a non-member that it is in their best interests to join and take their part in assisting to run the show which is to fulfil its functions which is to be considered most beneficial to the farming community.

They Locked in Their Bosses

INDIAN clerks in Calcutta wanted a holiday for a week—three months pay. The British directors, good fellows all, offered 14 months pay.

It wasn't good enough. Craftily the clerks walked into the three directors and 14 other British members of the firm (British and Indian) were taken into their offices.

Then they snatched the locks on all the doors. The Britishers spent several uncomfortable hours till rescued by local police. They stalked back and they stalked off. Now the Indian directors has suggested official arbitration and advised the clerks to go back to work—and turn their employers loose.

It's the Inside that really matters

If you had dissected a Healey Charger in this advertisement, it would have told you nothing. The outer appearance does present an attractive picture if it is a sporting motor and handy vehicle and instrument, but it does not tell you what is inside—and it is the inside that really matters. No picture can show the care and precision that goes into the manufacture of HEALEY CHARGERS. No picture can show the experience of very many years of specialisation, that has gone into that manufacture and no illustration could possibly show the thousands of Healey Chargers daily use throughout the World.

HEALEY CHARGERS are available for all purposes, please ask us for further details.

AN OLD, OLD QUESTION

REMEMBER that old-time riddle which says that you should choose as being available for our children "why don't the chickens cross the road?"

Just to humour our readers we should recall the only possible answer: "To get to the Other Side, of course!" So it is not surprising that many chickens have been dispatched for example, to the United States and other far-off lands.

Consider the family car. It behaves violently and a gentle approach towards a roadway will result in a smashing into two wheelers. A sudden stoppage at a junction will result in a collision with the car. It is not surprising that many chickens have been dispatched for example, to the United States and other far-off lands.

deparatively in the dust & exhaustion at the Outer Side. And so it flows on, and one all this death on the road, being would give the chickens a reaching the Other Side, having limited, or just no sense? Surely you could satisfy this wild urge often enough, quietly and without any fan, when there was no traffic about. So, how ever many times they may do that, they still have to go over to the Other Side, in the path of a car.

They have to get there—dead or alive. And still no one knows why.
