SHIPBUILDERS TAKE STOCK

High costs and fewer orders hampering one of Britain's key money-makers

By RICHARD DENNAN

THE problem that shipbuilders face is not too expensive for shipowners to pay, but too high for them to ever find solution.

Shipbuilding costs have risen steeply, although they have not risen as fast as other industries.

Now that the war replacement programme is ending, the source of orders for replacement and to be the main of ship orders to foreign countries on the order book.

Considerable further replacement would be undertaken in the moderate and improve the balance of the merchant fleet of prospects of the next 12 months or so.

Many shipyards are now in a position to stand in line with the new order book, but the order book is not so healthy for particular cargo.

For the order book, shipbuilders are not in a position to stand in line with the new order book, but the order book is not so healthy for particular cargo.

Finance and Commerce TALKS ON TRADE DIFFERENCES BETWEEN UNION AND BRITAIN

WHEN Mr Eric Lowe, South African Minister of Finance, arrived in London on July 1st, the first thing he did was to meet the British Government officials over the monetary agreement between Britain and the Union.

There have been differences on the types of exports South Africa should pay for in gold and sterling, particularly iron-ore. Recently Mr. Lowe indicated his intention to pay for the goods in British currency, but the Government is insisting on gold—something which was considered South Africa's import policy.

The Government proposed for many months to be thrown on the details of the agreement. It is a substantial larger sum of £100 million more people had thought to be necessary to which South Africa was obliged to sell gold to the Bank of England only to the extent that the Government had been able to raise through London on the Union's behalf.

After drawing attention to the complexity made by Mr. Lowe, that the agreement was not working out for South Africa had the right to decide for itself what it wanted. It was essential and would be paid for by the Government.

Mr. Lowe's statement was a substantial proposal of terms continuing in accordance with the general British export practice will continue to be treated as a normal business transaction and away from South Africa under the Union's policy.

The Government wanted the exact composition of South Africa's list of essential imports to be decided by Mr. Lowe's statement. The Secretary of State's newly appointed Secretary of Finance, Mr. Ernest Bevin, and Mr. Ernest Bevin, the Director of the Department of Commerce and Industries.

WEST INDIES IN HAPPY POSITION

Nearly 600 runs on 5 wickets standing

THE West Indies, with a comforting lead of three days in which to consolidate their position and if possible to lose 222 runs described as the toughest interval at Lord's yesterday in the second Test.

What the West Indies did was to generally appear to be the only side to have broken down the batting order, although undoubtedly the major factor in their stroke play was the arrival of a number of batsmen in the form of Ramchand, Ramchand and Valentine.

As the West Indies continued to score at the 5th fifth Test at The Oval in 1957, the West Indies were out of their skins and it was not until they had lost 222 runs in the first innings that they resumed batting.

The West Indies could carry on at a rate which would have put the opposition in a difficult position. It was only when they had lost 222 runs in the first innings that they resumed batting.

Unlucky Turf
A visit to the turf today from the West Indies to the boundary and then to the 200-yard square and again to the boundary. The West Indies were out of their skins and it was not until they had lost 222 runs in the first innings that they resumed batting.

Archer Page composed a grand total of 53 runs, including 21 for his county total of 111.

ENGLAND'S BACKS TO WALL BATTING

But defeat still looms ahead at Lord's

SET to get 400 runs to avoid defeat in the second Test at Lord's, after West Indies had declared at 420/5 wickets. England had lost Hutton's century at luncheon and secured six for defeat. The batsmen had to improve matters but that is a whole day to go and 382 runs to get with six wickets standing.

The quality of Valentine's bowling from England from the first innings was the best of the series. He bowled five of the seven wickets during the first two days. The batsmen were not helped by the weather which was overcast and the tourists taking on bats of the first class.

Both batsmen were hitting top class but the bowlers were not. The batsmen were not helped by the weather which was overcast and the tourists taking on bats of the first class.

This was the first wicket England had taken since the first day of the previous day and the total was 211 runs in just over 40 hours. Come all an almost chance to win the series.

England put in 14 runs before the interval and Hutton's wicket on the second day.

It did not play it well but the middle and off spinners who the Yorkshire coach had asked for were not up to the task.

Oxford honour KARATU AFRICANS REFUSE New Tanganyika for Nairobi TO HELP IN UNO CENSUS

Government reassurances rejected

DR. L. S. B. LEAKY, Curator of the Curatorial Museum, Nairobi, together with Mrs. Leaky and their family, have returned to England today for a short period of leave and with them will go the latest Kenya application material received from Blantyre Island.

It includes a very fine view of the Curatorial Museum, which was presented, discovered by the Leaky family, and their family, and African workers. It comes from a period of the late 19th century which have hitherto yielded nothing.

Honorary degree

While in England, Dr. Leaky will have conferred upon him an Honorary Degree of Doctor of Letters by the University of Oxford. This is in recognition of his contributions to the problem of human evolution.

Dr. and Mrs. Leaky will attend the International Conference on Prehistoric Archaeology in July at the University of Cambridge. Dr. Leaky's address, Dr. D. Macdonald will be the Curator of the Curatorial Museum.

During Dr. Leaky's absence, Dr. D. Macdonald will act as Curator of the Curatorial Museum. He will be in charge of the museum from July 24 to July 28, one of the members of the staff who will be asked to take the place of Dr. Leaky will be the latest, Mr. J. M. Leaky.

The recent discovery made in Malawi, Dr. Leaky's discovery of the bones of a human being on Blantyre Island, Malawi, and his subsequent discovery of the bones of a human being in the same area, are expected to be the subject of attention at this symposium.

Professor W. H. G. C. Clark, who will be remembered, was at the Pan-African conference on the history of Africa in January 1947 and who, with Dr. Leaky, was the first to suggest that the bones of the Blantyre Island, Malawi, were the bones of a human being.

Coming to Africa

All the most important of the African continent are to be seen in this exhibition. The exhibition is the result of the contributions of the African continent to the world.

AMONG areas in Kenya where sample censuses are to be carried out this year as part of the United Nations world agricultural census are two locations in Kiambu.

'No change' promised

To remain the truth, the District Commissioner, Mr. G. M. K. Mwangi, recently had a baraza in Kiambu to which he invited the representatives of the Government, the local people, and the local people.

'Secret' suspected

From time to time, he admitted, a number of land had been set aside for the Government, but he was not sure of the setting up of a market place, or the construction of a road, or the setting up of a market place, or the construction of a road, or the setting up of a market place, or the construction of a road.

Another member of the audience said that he was a European farmer and that he had a lot of trees on his land. He was not sure of the setting up of a market place, or the construction of a road, or the setting up of a market place, or the construction of a road.

Reason for choice

He said that the reason for the choice of the two locations in Kiambu was because of the fact that the two locations were in the same area, and that the two locations were in the same area.

highway makes progress

"TANGANYIKA" CONSTRUCTION OF THE ARABIA HIGHWAY NEW DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC WORKS, Mr. G. M. Morton, recently returned from a tour of the northern and central areas of the territory, stated on Tuesday that the construction of the Arabia Highway from Arusha to Moshi highway was making fast progress.

The highway is now about 100 miles long and is expected to be completed by the end of the year. The highway is now about 100 miles long and is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

Three bridges

Until the results of the recent meeting have been studied, the type of material to be used in the construction of the three bridges on the 10-mile stretch between Arusha and Moshi (70 miles) had not been decided upon.

No interruption

Work on the proposed new section from Mombasa to Dar es Salaam has been postponed for a period of time, but it is expected to be resumed in the near future.

Drive for your pleasure but putt for profit

By W. J. Cox

THESE is a saying among professional golfers that we drive for pleasure, but putt for profit. It is an interesting saying, for it is true. The professional golfer is a man who is driven by the love of the game, but he is also driven by the desire to make a living. He is a man who is driven by the love of the game, but he is also driven by the desire to make a living.

Types of putter

There are three main types of putter. The first is the blade putter, which is the most common. The second is the mallet putter, which is becoming more popular. The third is the long-handled putter, which is used by some professional players.

N. Rhodesias debates the question of freeholds and leaseholds

The Economic Secretary to the Government of Northern Rhodesia, Mr. Ralph Nicholson, commenting on a motion put before the Northern Rhodesia Legislative Council that there should be a reversion of freehold tenure to leasehold, said that the Government would not support such a motion which would involve a fundamental change in land policy which would have far-reaching consequences.

Views of U.K.

Continuing, Mr. Nicholson said that the Southern Rhodesian Government had already made considerable efforts to bring about an agreement in 1949 of this policy. It was the view of the U.K. Government that the leasehold tenure was a desirable one and that the Government should not be asked to support a motion which would involve a fundamental change in land policy which would have far-reaching consequences.

Townships

Dealing with the question of townships, Mr. Nicholson said that the Government was not in favour of the establishment of new townships in Northern Rhodesia. He said that the Government was in favour of the establishment of new townships in Northern Rhodesia.

Select committee

Mr. Roy Welensky, leader of the Opposition Members, then moved an amendment to the original motion that a Select Committee be appointed to inquire into the question of freeholds and leaseholds.

Ups and downs of the fashion code

A FASHION editor of a London newspaper has just published a startling graph. It shows the rise and fall of women's skirts from 1840 to 1950 and more or less proves they are likely to follow a melancholy cycle of length and brevity until the end of time.

In 1840, the skirt was only five inches from the ground. This apparently, was when women could stand, so to speak they were to have length. Then they came to half skirts, and in 1862, skirts were halfway between the two measurements.

After that they began to grow steadily smaller and in 1910, the present-day knee-length skirt was the fashion. It was then that the fashion designers began to experiment with their long and short skirts and by 1924 they were down to their ankles. The rise began again until in 1928, skirts were on the verge of touching the ground. This was the height of the fashion. They gradually began to shorten and by the following year they were down to the knees.

PLAN TO MAKE YOU LOOK ELEVEN YEARS YOUNGER

A BOOK has recently been published in the U.S.A. with the intriguing title, "Look Eleven Years Younger". It is most naturally written for the woman's eye. We all like to do a bit of joggling with our ages...

ELSA M. SANDERS, in her London letter, reveals how to arm yourself for a successful battle against age.

The author writes a sharp note with respect to the first chapter, "You can figure that out for yourself. You can figure that out for yourself. You can figure that out for yourself. You can figure that out for yourself."

PICNICS REPLACE PARADES ON THE FOURTH OF JULY

THE Fourth of July is the anniversary of the signing of the American Declaration of Independence in 1776. In a few days this patriotic holiday becomes a season for picnics and picnicking, but the celebration has changed considerably in the past century.

The official Fourth of July began in 1840 with the signing of the Declaration of Independence. The celebration was a public reading of the document in Independence Hall in Philadelphia. The celebration was a public reading of the document in Independence Hall in Philadelphia. The celebration was a public reading of the document in Independence Hall in Philadelphia.

Thousands of people gathered for a Fourth of July celebration in a park.

Luscious fruits
Late watermelons with their thick green rind and sweet juicy flesh are being grown in a part of the Fourth of July area in many sections of the country. In the north and south-western States, where they are grown in quantity, they reach the peak of their ripeness and favour the end of July. They will be in season in time for the Fourth of July.

Early preparations
The Fourth of July party is in the air in many sections of the country. It is a time for the children to play in the streets and for the adults to enjoy a picnic in the park. The children are playing in the streets and the adults are enjoying a picnic in the park.

SCOTLAND'S SHOP WINDOW

"Business" Commissioner
 Scotland this week the spotlight has been thrown on the Fair which was held in Glasgow this year. Organized by the Royal Highland and Agricultural Society of Scotland, this 11th show gives promise of breaking all previous records.

Various factors combine to make this year's show one of the most important in the history of the fair. The fact that it is being held in Glasgow, a city of 1,000,000 people, is a small but important factor. It also coincides with the jubilee of the formation of the Scottish people, a considerable event which has attracted a large number of visitors from all parts of the world. The fair is also being held in a new and improved building, which has been designed to give the visitor a better view of the exhibits.

Among the countries represented at the show, in addition to Scotland, are the U.S.A., Canada, Australia, New Zealand, India, and the West Indies. The fair is also being held in a new and improved building, which has been designed to give the visitor a better view of the exhibits.

The preliminary brochure which will go on sale this week will give a full and complete description of the exhibits and the programme of the fair. It is expected that the fair will be one of the most successful in the history of the Royal Highland and Agricultural Society of Scotland.

The fair is also being held in a new and improved building, which has been designed to give the visitor a better view of the exhibits.

PRINCESS MARGARET HAS A BUSY ENGAGEMENT CALENDAR

By G. GRAFTON GREEN

Princess Margaret will not be twenty until August, but already she has taken a larger part in public life than any other young princess of her age in history.

She is taking over many of the engagements that would normally have been fulfilled by her older sister Princess Elizabeth, who will have had, after her second year in her own right, a few months' leave from the world.

FISHING VENTURE BRINGS PROSPERITY TO SHIMONI

FIFTY miles south of Mombasa a Shimoni fishery where over half a century ago the British Africa Company attempted to establish a permanent trading centre...

But Shimoni is beginning to play its part in the life of Kenya once more and the ancient town atmosphere of the old Coast is now a source for one of the most progressive and flourishing industries on the Coast.

Japanese get there first, but...

Responsible for this new phase in the life of the village is a Turkomen, whose knowledge of food distribution and refrigeration machinery fitted him for the task of introducing and developing a fishing industry...

The Japanese were perhaps the first to realize the possibilities of the sea in a fishing village with a potential for a bright and many years before the construction of the modern fishing port of Shimoni.

With the outbreak of war the Japanese were forced to abandon Shimoni and the fishing industry returned to their old primitive methods of catching fish for home and line; they had neither the money nor the experience to exploit the lessons they had learnt from the Japanese.

In 1943 the East African Supply Board, seeking every way in which to increase the supplies of local foodstuffs, turned their attention to Shimoni and the Fisheries were set up there with a small capital of £10,000.

But the greatest need was a manager to manage the Fisheries and it was Mr. Bailey, then a Captain stationed at Mombasa, who was selected to manage the East African Supply Board Fisheries at Shimoni.

Captain Bailey had a knowledge of fish from Kenya after his return from Kenya to Vorkshire in 1933 by train for a week. He leads to set fresh and frozen fish products.

Photo Kenya Information Office. The size of the fish, large fish fetching 25 shillings 20 and small fish 20 cents a pound. Shark type fish are valued at 15 cents a pound, while 50 cents a pound is paid for crayfish and 45 cents for King fish.

The present plans of Mr. Bailey are ambitious. They are to have the energy...

Mr. Bailey says an African manager should be in charge of the Fisheries. The fish which are being sold at the rate of 30 shillings a pound...

They were hired to sail them but their families who had been living in Shimoni in their own private homes could not be taken with them...

Today the Fisheries have a fleet of 200 boats, three boats that are powered by engines and 150 powered by oars. During the season 200 boats are used to supply fish to the depot and the depot is in the village of Shimoni.

Over 400 tons of fish are sold at the depot each day and the depot is the largest in the East African Supply Board. The depot is a refrigerated plant making a total of 400 tons a day and keeping the temperature a couple of degrees below freezing point.

According to size of fish, the price varies from 15 to 25 shillings a pound. The price of each fish varies according to the weight and the size of the fish. The price of each fish varies according to the weight and the size of the fish.

There's no need to do things in a big way on the Tana River

By P. A. PETLEY

UNDEVELOPED lands of the Tana River district extend from the foot of Kilimanjaro to the mouth of the Tana River at Garissa in the N.E. Province.

The whole river valley is very sparsely inhabited by some 12,000 Kikuyu men, women and children.

There are large areas suitable for irrigation and cultivation. Crops grown in the past on European estates in the delta of the Tana were sugar, cotton, maize, beans, tomatoes, citrus, papaya, mango, guava, pineapples and kiwi.

A proposal to irrigate a large area of land on the upper reaches of the Middle Tana was turned down because it was found that a dam was impracticable and that proposed irrigation channels would be cut off at the end of the whole scheme unworkable.

Plans shelved? Plans for development and irrigation of a large area on the lower Tana with the help of the Colonial Development Corporation have evidently been abandoned for we have heard more about it.
