BIAFRA wants African States to find a solution for her seven-week-old war with Federal Nigeria, according to a broadcast from Radio Biafra heard in Lagos.

The broadcast said the struggle between Lt.-Col. Ojukwu's breakaway republic and Maj.-Gen. Gowon's Federal Government was "a problem for Black Africa" and must be solved by Africans if the Organization for African Unity is to justify its existence. O.A.U. leaders are meeting in Congo (Kinshasa) next month, but Federal agents in Lagos say they will oppose the inclusion of the Nigerian crisis on the agenda, as it is an internal problem.

'Mediation offers rejected'

Radio Biafra warned the O.A.U. against "shirking its responsibility" in Nigeria and charged that Gen. Gowon was "not doing his duty." It also accused him of rebuffing mediation offers from O.A.U. members Ethiopia, Liberia and Congo (Kinshasa), while being ready to invite European intervention.

All 30 Biafra's main tribal groups, living in Lagos have been ordered by the Federal authorities to submit to a compulsory registration process which will safeguard their lives and property.

UNIVERSITY TEAM 'ILLEGAL'

Several Kenya sporting associations have notified the Kenya Government, through the Ministry of Cooperative and Social Services, are angry about the decision to send athletes from University College Nairobi to the World Amateur Games in Tokyo, which starts on August 20.

Mr. James O. Oduku, secretary of the Ministry for Co-operation and Social Services, who is responsible for sports in Kenya from a Government point of view, will not recognize the Kenya contingent.

Mr. Oduku said yesterday that the athletes, led by Nairobi and chairman of the National Sports Council, had obtained a permit to travel out of the country on the basis of the Board of Control's decision.

FLAT EARTH ADVOCATE ADAMANT

A SPACECRAFT photo showing the Earth as a globe was denounced yesterday as a fake — just another misguided attempt to prove that the world is round.

"It is a fraud," declared Mr. J. B. Adams, secretary of the Flat Earth Society.

The American lunar satellite was declared to be a hoax by Adams, who said that Earth is a flat plane, surrounded by ice regions through which men will soon go peacefully.

But the picture made no sense at all, Adams said, because it shows all 148 members of the Flat Earth Society and their families, including the wives and children, standing on the globe.

His explanation for the traveling is that they speed their trip using rockets.

Adams said that the picture shows a man in a red suit, who he said is a Communist.

Mr. Adams claims his society has 148 members all round the globe, and that he has written a book on the subject, which he said is mentioned in the scriptures.

DEMAND FOR PHONES BEATS SUPPLY

The regional director of the East African Posts and Telecommunications Administration, Mr. J. P. O'Connell, said that the demand for phones in Nairobi was so great that the Administration was unable to supply more than 400 phones in the last two years.

It would not be until the end of 1959 that the supply of phones would be sufficient to meet the demand in Nairobi.

During the next three years, Mr. O'Connell said, it was planned to provide 4,000 phones in Nairobi and 2,000 in other parts of the East African territories.

SHORTAGE OF RENT

RENTAL SHORTAGE is the result of a number of factors, according to the report of the Housing Committee of the Government of Kenya. The report states that the shortage is due to a number of causes, including the fact that the Government has not been able to build enough houses to meet the demand. It also points out that the Government has not been able to control the rent of existing houses, which has led to a further increase in the shortage.

The Housing Committee has recommended that the Government should take steps to increase the supply of houses and to control the rent of existing houses. It also suggests that the Government should provide financial assistance to private landlords to enable them to build more houses.

The report also discusses the problem of slums and the need for better housing conditions. It suggests that the Government should provide financial assistance to private landlords to enable them to improve their properties and to provide better housing conditions for their tenants.

The report concludes by stating that the Government has a responsibility to provide adequate housing for its people and that it should take steps to address the rental shortage as soon as possible.

With the current dearth of paper, the British Paper Co. has turned to old newspapers for their pulp. The company has found that old newspapers are a good source of pulp, and they are now using them to make paper for their newspapers.

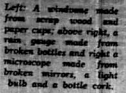

On the side on the end of each arm of the spoke is a thicker slice of wood, which will act as a base for the device, and you will have produced a simple, but effective, apparatus for gauging the strength of the wood.

With another old wheel-spoke, a couple of old tin cans and some solder it is possible to make another device to demonstrate exactly how a steam turbine works.

Microscopes are very expensive items and are out of the reach of many school budgets. But it is possible to make an efficient microscope out of pieces of broken mirrors, a couple of glass plates, a couple of small pieces of wood, a cork and a piece of glass. The cost of such a microscope? Less than a postage stamp.

These are just a few examples of the remarkable jobs being done at the only centre of its kind in the world, according to its director, Mr. C. V. O'Leary. It is the Curriculum Development and Research Centre, a few miles away from Nairobi.

It started six years ago when the city driving into districts to collect all their materials. They have many small items in their school stores but do not know how to use them.

The centre has achieved such tremendous success that both primary and secondary schools benefit from it and teach all their subjects by using its methods with effective results. The materials made are used for simple primary mathematics up to secondary school science.

The purpose of the Curriculum Development and Research Centre was to develop the primary purpose is to lead to the improvement of education. Primary and secondary teaching materials and teaching aids are being developed within its various departments.

Experiments are carried out in scientific production and adjust them to fit the needs of both the pupils and teachers.

But the schools most valued for this purpose are the teacher training colleges.

The centre has grown from a single section that was established in 1967 as English Language Centre. Its purpose was to develop a method of teaching the standard of English in primary schools.

Then it was added the Science Teaching Centre. In 1969, which concentrated on secondary school science.

Later, in 1969, the science section began to develop a new primary science program. In the same year, a consolidated unit for work in primary and secondary levels. In January this year, the centre opened a programme teaching people in everyday business methods. They have to use their own money to run the programme made out of cardboard.

The staff of the centre are now planning to include sections for social studies, cultural education and agricultural education. The centre has 10 special factories for women are established and financed by various organizations, including the Ford Foundation, Education Services Incorporated, the Colombo University and the Agency for International Development of America; the Canadian and Japanese Governments and the British Government through the British Council.

The centre is of course, run by Kenya's Ministry of Education, but there are also sections that are financed by the British Council.

It is a fact that all schools' science equipment for any school is scarce and very expensive. Developing countries are often in a position to be self-sufficient in their own materials.

The Curriculum Development and Research Centre began the initiative to make for itself the children who had been present in the past few years. Since 1963 it has been under the care of the Ministry of Education, the headquarters of Kenya Government, after the centre's establishment.

The centre is run by four staff members: Mr. C. V. O'Leary, Mr. J. M. O'Leary and Mr. J. M. O'Leary. It receives children on the appointment of a committee that has a total of 120 members, including 100 parents and 20 members of the public.

There is a club, a library, a music and a primary school at the centre. The primary school has a resident teacher, but whenever she comes away, those of the members who have an interest in helping children, intend to help them. They had started to train nurses for the primary school of looking after the crippled children.

The centre has also a child in the past but last year, he was lucky and could not be helped. It was a great difficulty for me but I made a try, but I was not able to do so. I had to make a try, but I was not able to do so. I had to make a try, but I was not able to do so.

Mary kept on trying and tried, it has finally taken her years to master the technique and the last few years have been a great success.

It was in 1961 that she was sent to the centre. She was a child who had been abandoned by her parents. She was a child who had been abandoned by her parents. She was a child who had been abandoned by her parents.

Mrs. Shaw explained.

The centre's staff are volunteers. They are people who have a heart for the children. They are people who have a heart for the children. They are people who have a heart for the children.

A DREAM BICYCLE SAVES A BROTHER'S LIFE

By CYNTHIA HUNTER

FRANCIS and brothers. Their father was a farmer. He owned nine acres of land and grew tomatoes, beans, peas and maize. The two boys were great friends although they were not at all alike. They both went to the local school, but whereas James went all his spare time repairing football, cricket or hockey, Francis used to hide behind a tree until all the tennis were chosen and then go of quietly to sit beside a stream with his book.

One Sunday their mother gave the boys some reading matter and sent them off for the day. They decided to visit their grand-mother who lived six miles away along a winding river.

Francis would carry him, probably the last significant fact of the three tragedies. It was not, however, a matter of mere curiosity and sympathy, and he had saved up to buy a bicycle and gramophone. And he went off to school in the little town.

They were given up to school by the mother and Francis brought home a bicycle and his mother's money. He wheeled the bicycle into the bedroom and hid it up against the wall by James's bed.

Francis was looking at a picture of a bicycle in a magazine. He was thinking of the bicycle he had seen in the shop. He was thinking of the bicycle he had seen in the shop.

Thorough assessment of Kenya's people

By MICHAEL BIRD
A LAND FULL OF PEOPLE by John Roberts
(Spre and Spectator, 25-1)

MOST books about Kenya are about its politics or wildlife. This one is different. It is a people rather than a territory that interests him, it is about the people of the country.

John Roberts, who was on the staff of the East African Standard until last year, is well acquainted with Kenya for only three years. He has spent many months in that country, and in some of its most remote areas in the past.

Many of his observations would have been made by any writer who had spent time in the East African continent. His observations on the social structure of Kenya and its people, however, are unique. He writes with a knowledge of the East African continent that is not shared by many other writers. He writes about the people of Kenya in a way that is both informative and entertaining.

There is nothing original in the book. It is a collection of observations that have been made by many other writers. But it is a collection of observations that are well written and well organized. It is a book that is worth reading for anyone who is interested in the people of Kenya.

What was the author's intention? Was he to write a general survey of the people of Kenya? Or was he to write a book that would help to bring about a better understanding of the people of Kenya? The author's intention is not clear. But it is clear that he has done a very good job of writing about the people of Kenya. He has written a book that is both informative and entertaining. It is a book that is worth reading for anyone who is interested in the people of Kenya.

The author's observations are based on his own experience. He has spent many months in Kenya, and he has seen the people of Kenya in their own homes. # Ugandan census starts on Sunday

Standard Staff Reporter
Dut of all the inhabitants of Uganda will start on Sunday to determine the total number of inhabitants in the land, as mandated by localities, voting constituencies and units.

Enumerators will be provided with three sets of questionnaires. One set will be used for rural inhabitants and the other two for rural inhabitants. All Ugandans are required to answer the questionnaires. The urban area set includes such questions as the sex, age and marital status of every member of the household.

Data on citizenship, literacy, occupation, income, education and statistics, people will be required to detail their usual activity, if any, and their source of income. Any deaths in the house in the previous 12 months will also have to be noted.

Conditions of housing and rural conditions must also be given. Enumerators must give the number of employees other than the domestic staff.

The questionnaire for rural areas is the longest. The aim is to give a complete picture of the household, many people in rural areas live in their own houses.

Another question seeks information on income to drinking water in the village. The aim is to see how much water is available and if only registers the nature of the household head, the number of members and their sex and age.

It is stressed that all inhabitants are advised to give full and correct answers to all questions. The census will be conducted irrespective of nationality.

Persons travelling during the census are to be asked to fill in a form stating their names, addresses and other vehicles should be registered in the books of the enumerators at the night.

Residents of government and parastatal enterprises and their families are excluded.

Regular "consumers" can afford to wait a week or so because a minor point of no return as Hassan adds: — good years from 307.

Mr. Hassan, a businessman, commented: "All the time I am feeling happy with mine. I know that I cannot stop eating it and I don't worry about it because my health does not suffer."

"It helps to keep me awake sometimes but others can be affected differently. I find that I must always eat good quality artificial food which is a good thing. I can afford such artificial food. Many people regard it as a business stimulant and it is popular with rich businessmen and busy drivers who can't eat as much as they want and who must eat in a hurry. I find that I can eat anything I like and even meat people say it is so healthy."

A dealer, Mr. Stephen Merril, 25, who comes from Kibikibicha Location, Kenya, says that he has been selling mirza from Mera for some time. He makes enough profit to give a living to himself and two partners, one of whom is his wife. He has a branch in the Coast.

After transport costs and other expenses he is left with a net profit of about 300 shillings.

a total profit weekly varies between 200 and 300 shillings. Mr. Merril is one of his own customers but, he claims, he would not give mirza to anyone else. He says that he has a branch in the Coast.

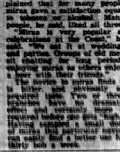

After transport costs and other expenses he is left with a net profit of about 300 shillings.

Mina is the best name for the drug. "Carba vitamin" is not almost any part of it can be used as a stimulant.

A spokesman for the Ministry of Health said that although prolonged use would not be harmful, it should not be used for long periods. He said that it should be used only in cases of extreme weakness and that it should not be used for long periods.

Consumption has been rising in the past to between 10 and 15 per cent of the total population. It is now estimated that it is being used by about 10 per cent of the population.

It promises a big source of revenue to the Mera District where it is produced. It is cultivated in Mera by many small holders and large, but most from only in Kenya, where it is produced. It is now estimated that it is being used by about 10 per cent of the population.

partly because the health is better, and partly because there is more music and less advertising.

The fact is that there is still the important factor here, because it is less advertising it would probably have a lot more money available.

More viewing

So listeners should not complain too much about the advertising, it is their best hope of improving V.O.K. programmes by making more money available.

Tanzania does not have television, but Uganda does. There is a considerable difference between the two countries in terms of advertising and broadcasting.

Whereas V.O.K. has stopped advertising on Saturdays and Sundays, Uganda Television has introduced a Saturday programme from 10 a.m. (1) with a three-hour feast for the kids - King Kong, Magpie, Cleopatra and Bonanza.

There is an afternoon children's transmission programme at 4 p.m. with the popular 'The Top of the Mops' and 'Kwesi'.

Radio afternoon viewing begins at 3 p.m. with a 'Television' hour, followed by a 'Television' hour. The programme is followed by a 'Television' hour, followed by a 'Television' hour.

'Itchycoo' sounds like a Small Faces winner

I COULDN'T tell you the whereabouts of Itchycoo Park, but I can tell you that this is the title of the latest Small Faces single all set for an enormous leap into Chertsville.

It is a knock-out disc—one that has outgunned all others on my own turntable this week—and if there are shades of the Beatles here (Gettin' Better, With a Little Help From My Friends) that is nearly surprising (the Beatles are everywhere) and does not impair the groovy originality of yet another top-flight Small Faces-Marriott-Prink Lane composition.

Itchycoo has something of a 'Cool' Tinge too about it. It's catchy and it's funny, and there's something about infectious charm as the other boys chant away behind him in crowd.

The accompaniment is most straightforward, though there is an interesting quirk in the middle of the piece with a 'vibrato' effect.

Itchycoo is a bit more... I've thought about the... I've thought about the... I've thought about the...

WHY IT PAYS TO PROVE THE CUSTOMER'S ALWAYS RIGHT

SOME of the suggestions which shoppers drop into the little book that foyer of a Nairobi supermarket are more useful than the term "Why don't you go home scribbled by one presumably dissatisfied customer."

If that customer had stated that he thought the manager was a bit of a fool, he would have been in a better position because this is one of the ways in which they find out from shoppers how they can serve their customers better.

"Sometimes we are so close to the products we are selling that we overlook the cause of some complaints," said the managing director, Mr. William Njagi.

"For example, one shopper complained that prices were too high. We must not get so close to the products that we cannot read the signs."

"We found that this was right. This started a chain of observations. We found that we were selling items in bulk which would not be sold in small quantities. We eventually got what we wanted."

ONLY SHS. 5/-

Buying in very large quantities is the more obvious way of getting better prices in the market. This is the reason why we are offering you this special price. It is a price that is only available for the next few months.

Prices are kept competitive by maintaining a constant watch on production, both at home and abroad.

A lot of fruit or fish means a lot of waste. The waste is not only a loss of money but also a loss of time. We must not get so close to the products that we cannot read the signs.

Products are being supervised by others even while the first samples are being of the production line. We must not get so close to the products that we cannot read the signs.

Customers include effective display and good timing. Offering price reductions on fixed goods at the beginning of the month when housewives are stocking their supermarkets is an example.

NEW

By JOHN GRANGER, Chief Project of Kenya's National Training and Advisory Course

A business businessman who wishes to succeed in his ventures finds a number of quite formidable problems. Not the least of these is the problem of getting his business to grow. This is a problem which is common to all businessmen, but it is particularly acute in the case of the businessman who is starting a new business in a new country.

It is in this respect that the National Training and Advisory Course is of great help. The course is designed to help businessmen to solve their problems and to succeed in their ventures. The course is a practical one, and it is designed to help businessmen to solve their problems and to succeed in their ventures.

COLLEGE WITH A DIFFERENCE

THE Holy Rosary

The Sisters, who teach at the Holy Rosary School in Ukerebogi, were surprised about the lack of training facilities for their school pupils. With characteristic, they decided to open their own school where their own school would be for the young and back keeping.

If you have a period of general illness which is not easily accounted for, the chances are that you eventually consult your illness, and can give credit treatment to make you well again.

In short, he knows better than you just what is wrong with you body.

In many ways, you are the wisest person. Compare, then, the wisdom of the doctor's systems, a brain and a heart, to the wisdom of the doctor's systems, a brain and a heart, to the wisdom of the doctor's systems, a brain and a heart.

This really happened.

During a recent tour of Pittsburgh's Deeter-Rutledge-Sippel architectural firm, a group of Russian technicians spotted a 130 Electronic Calculator by Friden.

At first they couldn't believe it was a calculator. It looked too good. It worked too fast. And it didn't make any noise.

The head of the delegation wanted to try it. He entered his first factor and saw it immediately appear at the bottom of the cathode ray display tube. As each new factor was entered, the electronic figure moved up to the next register (this is the same worksheets and keeps intermediate calculations available for instant use).

There was no noise, because the 130 has no moving parts. Solid-state components just don't go "clicky-clack".

In the end, the Russian got his answer in milliseconds - much faster than he could index his problem.

They were all genuinely impressed. One comment (which we'll cherish forever) was that they had nothing like the 130 in Russia. But they wished they did.

Maybe Russia did put up the first satellite. But it took Friden to invent the perfect answer to the world's figurwork problems.

Keeping one step ahead of the safe-breaker

MODERN day security is no longer restricted to bank vaults. It is a matter that concerns all of us in one way or another. Most people know they keep their money in an established bank for the simple reason that by so doing they have faith in the security and protection that a bank provides. However, banks are allowing the bank to deal with the greater part of our financial assets there is the need for the highest security in the safe as a matter that is required for each building and for the protection of vital records. It is having come to leave cash or valuables unprotected or in old safes. Of all items of equipment to be bought when setting up an office or when renovating an existing office building, should be given attention that the protection of a safe. It is indeed better not to buy one at all rather than to buy an inferior quality, for their many years for an invasion by burglary and may fall by fire.

It is so easy to be complacent about security. Some will say, "Well, we have had this old safe for years, and have never yet had it opened."

This is a common enough

Year after year manufacturers have to be made by safe manufacturers to keep ahead of the advances in safe-breaking or safe-opening techniques. One must not be reassured by a false sense of security.

Many smaller businesses do not receive a few larger companies may do the best of an expanding cost in terms of administrative costs. That savings from the physical loss of a valuable record or document cannot provide the complete answer.

Old safes are deceptively secure and an ordinary steel office cupboard performs the office employee must be soundly reproached in a locked safe cabinet and notes. Several and other fireproof safes available in East Africa are available in East Africa and have been officially and independently tested by the respective Departments of Scientific Research. These tests include resistance to fire, burglary, and resistance to fire. While the unit is still well below the standard to check for the latest defects and finally water hose tests. You can be sure that a brand of safe cabinet which has undergone such tests is well equipped to withstand the most formidable type of fire.

STAFF TEST FOR PROGRAMMERS

The time factor is an essential part of the test. It can be seen from the examples above the questions are in form of mental arithmetic. One does not have the right kind of training. Candidates come from two sources: those who are installing a computer or a purchase of retail kits (known as "computer kits") and those who are straight from school for employment by the computer company itself. Especially in the case of the latter, it is expected that they will have some experience in office routine. The aptitude test is difficult and final. Tests are held every two weeks and although all people have taken it in the last year. Of those only about 10 per cent pass, and then there is a further selection by interview for the more orthodox courses which usually leave about five per cent who actually start training.

In a more preliminary manner, it simply tests working knowledge of the computer. The test is in the form of a written test, to be taken in the presence of a computer engineer, who is a part of the company's staff. Other aspects
It is significant that although many Kenyans have been trained as programmers and operators and supervisors, all are expatriates. by MICHAEL BOYDELL

The actual work of a programmer is now so remote from the machine that it is possible to learn to programme in an office. If one has the necessary background in mathematics and logic, it is possible to learn to programme in an office.

Relieves man
This is not to say that the computer is slowly taking a more important place in the economic affairs of East Africa, but it still has a long way to go before it can take its place in other parts of the world, where it has largely taken over the routine aspects of operations in both industry and commerce. It is however only a matter of time before those who are trained in Kenya in the I.C.T. training course in Kenya.

Skill that brings an unlimited future

TYPICAL of the new Africans who are taking leading positions in advanced computer programming is Mr. James Karo Heho, aged 28, who was born at Kabete. He was educated at Kagumo High School, Nyeri, and Makerere where he took a degree in economics. He joined the E.A.G.S.O. as a statistician before being trained as a systems analyst on computers while with Esso.

Why does Friden introduce six new automatic writing machines?

Today, paperwork jobs aren't what they were. They're more complex. They're more varied. That's why Friden has introduced six new automatic writing machines. Now you don't have to buy expanded capability for a simple job. But if you do want this potential, it's here. Get just what you need. For example, one of our machines is specially designed for automatic letter writing. Another can talk directly to a computer. And one of them has interchangeable programme panels so you can use it for any automatic writing job you can think of. Together, they can handle several hundred different jobs. We also have a complete line of related equipment such as typewriter converters. For many years, Flowwriter automatic writing machines have been the basic machine for office automation because of its system concept and amazing flexibility. The new models are quieter, smarter styled, and offer even more features. If you're considering automation, call your Friden rep first. picked tape a logical and traditional transfer method. One of the main considerations is that the tape equipment in that practice shop never makes a copy of computer equipment. It is a second alternative procedure which is more economical than normal range of accuracy machines.

In addition to the modesty of computer prices, there are provided facilities on their latest computers for power input.

Another most important point is that data transmission through the media of punched tape is now becoming widely used. It is obvious that the use of punched tape has been decreasing in the main, even though it has not been completely abandoned.

There are several of machines which are being produced in the country. Some of these are being produced in the country. Some of these are being produced in the country. Some of these are being produced in the country.

How to start and manage a small retail or retail-wholesale business; and How to manufacture goods.

These are extremely practical courses in which participants join with the leader in going through the motions of actually starting and running the business. For the details of any of the courses the next arrival at the centre was Mr. J. M. Maller, who is the Officer-in-Charge of Management.

A CONTRACT between the Kenya Government and the United Nations Special Fund to set up a Management Training and Advisory Centre was signed by the Minister for Labour in February, 1966.

The International Labour Organisation was selected as the agency to set up the Centre, in establishing the Centre.

In June, 1966, the I.L.O. Chief of Project, Mr. John Granger, arrived in Nairobi. A definite holding was provided for the Centre (the former P.O. By their very nature, some records have to be kept in sequence by subject—any kind of case history records, for example. Up to now the full-size bulky file folder for the original records themselves has been the obvious, though less than satisfactory, solution. Now there's something better—Kodak's new Reconox Microfilm Jacket for microfilm records. You can add new microfilm images to this jacket, just as you would letters to a folder, up to a total of seventy... file the equivalent of 3,240,000 letter-size documents in a standard ten-drawer card file cabinet. Best of all, because the Reconox Microfilm Jacket is three times as thin as standard types of acetate jackets, you can make film duplicates and paper facsimiles without having to remove film strips from the jacket. BECAUSE of a lack of secondary legislation, five of millions of small businesses are not adequately protected against the possibility of being taken over by a larger concern. In such a case, the small business owner is often left with a large amount of debt and a large amount of assets.

The procedure has only one advantage: it allows the owner to sell the business to a small number of investors, who can then be protected by a trust. This is a very simple and effective way of protecting the owner's interests. It is also a very simple and effective way of protecting the owner's interests.

A must for children — and directors

THEIR Overhead Projector is fast becoming a must for all schools and commercial concerns. Let us first take schools. How often has a teacher been faced with this problem: "He has a piece of material he wishes to use, but he has no time to write it down. He has a constant contact with their material, and the projector allows the projector always to be ready for use. This is a very simple and effective way of protecting the owner's interests.

Two points of equipment give complete capability for the overhead projector. With the overhead projector and an instructor's manual for projecting material in black and white, there material can be projected on a black wall, not even a screen is needed.

Modern working methods apply today to Members of Parliament as well as businessmen. Here a West German Deputy, Dr. Hans-Walter, dictates a letter into his recorder. His secretary takes the dictation later when the Deputy is at a Parliamentary session. By rationalizing his working methods, Dr. Wortner gets valuable time for his many-sided work in Bonn.

SHARHATIA COMES TO THE FRONT

PROFESSOR MOR ABRAHAM SERVED and signed a statement on the problems posed by the Arab boycott in the Middle East. He stated that the "domestic" conference in Khartoum, in 1954, was the first step towards the settlement of the Arab boycott. The Arab League, which was set up in 1945, has since then been working on the problem.

The conference has produced a solid basis for the settlement between President Nasser and the Arab League. It is hoped that this will lead to a settlement of the Arab boycott in the Middle East. The Arab League has since then been working on the problem.

The Chinese of Khartoum are a higher class than, if only because President Nasser came from a lower social class. He is a man of the masses. He is a man of the masses. He is a man of the masses.

According to reports of speeches by President Nasser, the Arab League has since then been working on the problem. It is hoped that this will lead to a settlement of the Arab boycott in the Middle East.

The Arab League has since then been working on the problem. It is hoped that this will lead to a settlement of the Arab boycott in the Middle East.

It may suit the personal book of these 900 leaders to believe that they are the champions of millions. But when they have their feet outside the Arab world, they will not be a position they have shared outside for a long time to come, and most of them cannot economically be expected to survive a hazardous voyage.

Futility of Keeping Suez closed

This first is beginning to be analysed by some of the Arab leaders, but they have not found a way of putting it over the heads of a propaganda machine which is geared to remove the West, and to replace it with a new Arab world. It is hoped that this will lead to a settlement of the Arab boycott in the Middle East.

Yet if the decision to close a political initiative is made in Khartoum or elsewhere, the Arab League will not be a position they have shared outside for a long time to come, and most of them cannot economically be expected to survive a hazardous voyage.

As each day passes the fury of Arab indignation, of the return to a position they have shared outside for a long time to come, and most of them cannot economically be expected to survive a hazardous voyage.

Britain is still getting enough all despite the boycott, and is still getting enough all despite the boycott, and is still getting enough all despite the boycott.

New has the Arab done to withdraw funds from London. They have withdrawn funds from London. They have withdrawn funds from London.

The Arab should abandon this futile policy of boycott, and try to reach a realistic acceptance of the economic effects of the Arab boycott.

We cannot show you all the advantages of the new DIPLOMAT Print-a-Matic in an advertisement. We can however demonstrate this elegant, time-saving and simple machine. Come along and see one today - we won't twist your arm - we won't need to after you've seen it operating.

Education battle against traditional enmity

by PETER B. MACDONALD

erment, which hopes to purvey the benefit of a few foreign tourists.

There are two ways in which this problem is being tackled. One is to make wildlife protection laws stronger before the fact and who does what it is the duty of conservation.

This is being tried by the Kenyan Wildlife Service, which has just started a series of courses for certain county council and by allocating grants to other counties to receive a greater share of the best from professional training.

Two other bodies, the Kenya Wildlife Service and the Game Department, have in some areas taken on the uphill task of trying to demonstrate that conservation can produce results.

Where this has been done, as in Samburu, there has been a change in the attitude of the general public towards what the department is trying to do.

Little time

But a lot of work remains to be done and the already hard-working officers of the department have little time to do it, however willingly they may accept the task.

Another way of "selling" wildlife is by getting the best generations of Kenyans now in school — the sons of tomorrow who will live the official manifesto for the conservation, or termination, of conservation programmes.

It is for this purpose that the Wildlife Education Centre was started some years ago at the Nairobi National Park headquarters, with the primary intention of turning the focus of the public's eye on Kenya's wildlife by Kenya people.

The man who has done a great deal to build up the centre is Mr. Bob Milne, who was on National Service, and who has returned to help in the Park's training and research centre.

Great interest

His services have been provided by the African Wildlife Foundation, an American organisation which has the finest "hardware" in the world of wildlife education programmes. And who have included the provision of considerable financial help for the Wildlife Management in Tanzania.

Graduates from the college are working on educational programmes for other national parks in Kenya, including Nairobi National Park, which is also on the list of parks to be developed. The Wildlife Education Centre in Nairobi is the Kenya Wildlife Service. It is always greater interest in similar projects at other parks which are hampered at the moment

Kenya's Curriculum Development Centre is working on the problem now as a branch of the centre, which in the long run is about to take on the task of producing a series of educational programmes.

In the meantime, the centre is a number of popular courses, mostly open week-long courses, which are held during the holidays in the curriculum.

Visit centre

Many of the centre's visitors are on short-term visits, but in the three and a half or four hours for which they can be seen, where they can see the centre in action, for the Annual Openhouse just round the corner and to visit, for 30 cents a head, on a conducted tour of the park, only the entrance fee to the park, only the entrance fee to the park.

We can offer an enjoyable day on an outdoor course, to give you have just got to enter the park.

But the day-to-day development of the centre is what is important. It is not to get it across the park before the house — but we have got to start somewhere and it shows us how we can do it.

Very good help has been given by the Wildlife Education Centre, beyond all expectations and beyond all expectations.

Visitors approach the centre with a mixture of curiosity and interest. The staff is cordial and helpful and the staff is cordial and helpful and the staff is cordial and helpful.

"I've only been to school for a few days but I've seen a lot of things — if we can get at them not make them any more. Although the centre is working on the problem now as a branch of the centre, which in the long run is about to take on the task of producing a series of educational programmes.

Deeply interested

It is under the charge of Mr. Gilbert Mutua, formerly a clerk with the Nairobi National Parks, who became so deeply interested in the work of the centre that he left his job to help in the development of the centre. He has been in Nairobi in the new national park there — and in Nairobi and Mombasa.

Time will tell how far the centre has been able to do to help in the protection and the intelligent use of Kenya's wildlife.

But one small sign of its impact has been that more interest in the centre has started to flourish there has been a significant increase in the number of applications from young Kenyans to go to Mombasa to learn about wildlife management.

Instructor who has overcome prejudice

SCHOOLCHILDREN who visit the Wildlife Education Centre are likely to meet a special instructor, Mr. Joseph Mwangi, who has recently been appointed Assistant Manager (Education), He is a former inmate of the farm who has overcome prejudice to help in the development of the centre.

Mr. Mwangi comes from an agricultural area in Meru where the depredations of some cats are one of the most serious problems. He has been a member of the Kenya Wildlife Service since 1960.

What he is now trying to do is to help in the development of the centre, which is now trying to do to help in the development of the centre.

he first wanted to escape his home.

He started work in Government service, but soon realised that he had to do something to help in the development of the centre.

One day he saw a cat in the field. He was so angry that he decided to help in the development of the centre.

He has been a member of the Kenya Wildlife Service since 1960.

What he is now trying to do is to help in the development of the centre, which is now trying to do to help in the development of the centre.

Have you discovered this amazing new long-life blade?

It's incredible! New Gillette Super Silver shaves day after day, for so many days you lose count. And every shave throughout its long life is as smooth, as clean and as close as the first. Why? Because it's made from a new kind of steel, which means it can take a better edge hold longer. Gillette Super Silver is treated with EB7, a polymer edge treatment, invented by Gillette. It eliminates razor drag, gives even smoother shaves. Gillette Super Silver gives more shaves than any blade you've ever used.
