UGANDA GOVERNOR AND THE TAXPAYER

"THE MORE MONEY LEFT IN HIS POCKET THE BETTER"

Address at Manchester

PROTECTORATE'S PROSPERITY SHOULD BE USED IN REDUCING TAXES

All my service in East Africa convinces me that the more money you leave in the taxpayer's pocket the better " and Sir Philip Mitchell, Governor of Uganda, address-ing the Britah Cotton-growing Association, at a luncheon in Manchester recently.

Uganda, he said, was prosperous, and it seemed to them, in a primitive country, that an increase in revenue was something to be used in reducing taxes.

Philip referred to the crop prospects in the United States and the state of affairs in the Far East, which made caution necessary for Uganda, and declared that the line they had to take was to get their financial system to the point, by reducing recurring charges, at which they could "look even four-penny cotton in the face."

able staff was necessary, but they could not import almost everybody from 3,000 miles away. That meant education and training facilities for the Natives.

KENYA'S SPLENDID WORK

PRAISED IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

The Dictates of Humanity

FOR REFUGEES

TASK PERFORMED UNDER CONDITIONS OF GREAT STRESS

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

The Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. Ornsby-tiore, praised the Government of Kenya in the House of Commons yesterday for their splendid work under condi-tions of great stress in booking after the 6,000 Abyssinian refugees who have crossed the frontier into Kenya.

Many of the refugees, he said, were in a very bad state of health when they arrived.

He could not say what their future would be. They could not be accommodated in Kenya—where it would be impossible for them to maintain themselves.

Mr. Ormsby-Gore said there was no foundation what-ever for the suggestion that the Government of Kenya had invited these refugees to the Colony, Government was pre-sented with the problem and dealt with it in accordance with the dictates of humanity.

The refugees were not in a position to engage in any anti-Itahan activities even if they wanted to do so.
