MOTOR NOTES

Carburetor

The carburetor is the part of the engine which regulates the flow of fuel to the cylinders. It is a very important part of the engine and its proper adjustment is essential for the best performance of the engine.

The carburetor is usually located between the air filter and the intake manifold. It consists of a float chamber, a jet, and a needle valve. The float chamber is filled with fuel and the jet is a small hole through which the fuel flows. The needle valve is a valve which opens and closes the jet, thereby regulating the flow of fuel to the cylinders.

The carburetor should be adjusted so that the engine runs smoothly and efficiently. If the carburetor is not properly adjusted, the engine will run poorly and may even be damaged.
