SISAL WASTE IS USED TO MAKE ROADS AND HOUSES

An important new British chemical industry is envisaged as a result of research work carried out by C. P. Chemicals Ltd. of Great Britain. The research has led to the utilization of the valuable chemical substances contained in the solid waste generated in the extraction of the raw sisal. The recoverable loss and fibres represent only about 3 per cent by weight of the total plant. The remaining material has hitherto been regarded as refuse.

The main discovery is that the sisal waste can be used for the production of a concrete which is stronger than the concrete made from ordinary aggregate. The concrete made from sisal waste is stronger than the concrete made from ordinary aggregate. The concrete made from sisal waste is stronger than the concrete made from ordinary aggregate.

After mixing and molding (shown at top), by a simple process the solid waste mixture forms a durable block. Used for any form of construction, it is found that the sisal waste material proves both easy to handle and durable.

Tanganyika sisal creates a record

The sisal industry in Tanganyika has achieved a record in production for the year 1948. The total production for the year was 1,000,000 tons, an increase of 20% over the 1947 production of 833,000 tons.

The increase is due to a number of factors, including a record harvest in the sisal belt, and a record export of sisal to the United Kingdom. The sisal belt, which covers an area of 1,000,000 acres, is the largest sisal belt in the world.

The sisal industry in Tanganyika is one of the most important industries in the country. It provides employment for a large number of people, and is a major source of foreign exchange for the country.

Production

Some of the main points of the sisal industry in Tanganyika are:

- The sisal belt covers an area of 1,000,000 acres.
- The sisal industry provides employment for a large number of people.
- The sisal industry is a major source of foreign exchange for the country.
- The sisal industry has achieved a record in production for the year 1948.

SOUTH AFRICA'S POLICY IN NATIVE LANDS

In the interest of the country, it is undesirable to further extend to the Native States the policy of making beneficial use of the land. The Native States are the only areas in South Africa where the land is not owned by the State.

The Native States are the only areas in South Africa where the land is not owned by the State. The Native States are the only areas in South Africa where the land is not owned by the State.

The sisal report

The sisal industry in Tanganyika has achieved a record in production for the year 1948. The total production for the year was 1,000,000 tons, an increase of 20% over the 1947 production of 833,000 tons.

Wasteful method

It is a waste of time and money to continue to use the old method of sisal production. The new method is more efficient and produces a higher quality sisal.

TESTING TIME

FOR TEA

At the Port of London

Preparing, testing, sampling, and weighing of tea for analysis and maintenance is only one of the specialized services that the Port of London Authority offers its importers. Much experience in the handling and stowage of tea has gained over a long period of years by the staff, and it is in a very real sense the only port in the world where the importers can be sure of the quality of their tea.

Since the organization of the Port of London Authority, the tea trade has grown steadily, and the Port of London Authority has been able to provide the tea trade with the most efficient and economical service.

For more information, contact the Port of London Authority, 10, Abchurch Lane, London, E.C. 4.

Another last chance in Africa

Twenty years ago a then well-known but now almost forgotten white settlement in Kenya, Dr. Noel Leys, wrote a book which he called "A Last Chance in Kenya".

It described what the writer regarded as certain 'unpleasant' conditions which he believed would be the result of the settlement in Kenya. Dr. Noel Leys wrote in a book which he called "A Last Chance in Kenya".

GEDI—THE HOUSE BY THE PALACE

by J. S. Kirkman

VISITORS to Gedi will recall a formidable looking mound opposite the Sultan's Tomb and partly across the blank wall of the Audience Chamber in the Palace.

Private suite
The main feature of the building are the two open rooms on each floor facing the Sultan's Tomb and an enclosed room, entered by a side door, which houses the Reception Room.

Grain stores
Behind the main outer room, are a number of smaller well detached rooms for grain stores and lavatory. The lavatory is situated between the two sides of the grain store as well as a well room, that opens to them on the outside. The long room behind the main outer room with two doors is the main apartment in the building, as activities on both sides are controlled from it.

One of the many tombs that are being engendered and excavated at Gedi.

This is the only evidence of the building and it is used as a kitchen by the occupants of the district. The kitchen is on the east side of the main outer room as well as a well room, that opens to them on the outside. The long room behind the main outer room with two doors is the main apartment in the building, as activities on both sides are controlled from it.

not, with three slightly irregular projections above the rim on which the pot was made at Magadi.

Mystery solved

But what is the House by the Palace? At first I thought it was a pair of steps, back to back, in the intercommunicating room discombs take them. That it is a certain, the open verandah, built on a platform, thus concealing, itself.

Royal business

The end of this room, unembellished by doors, would be suitably stacked with goods, probably rice, and the intercommunicating room would be the office.

"SHOW me a man's library, and I will tell you the kind of man he is," is a remark, which, as a philosopher in particular, never fails to attract a good deal of truth.

LOUIS WULFF, M.V.O., writes of the books which have brought particular pleasure to Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret. These may form a guide for the reading of other young people and those among the interesting personalities of the Princesses.

A guide for others
The books chosen for these two young women are royal books, which are in the possession of the Queen and are the only ones of the kind which are available to the public.

Of other books, it is difficult to say, as they are not in the Princesses' hands. But both she and her sister continue to be avid readers, taking back to the days of early marriage, for books, the Queen's and the Princesses'.

Until then, she had been told, as far as she could, the story of her own life, and the life of her father, and the life of her mother.

Another history book which has been read by the Princesses is the story of the life of King George V, written by the late Sir John Elliott.

Well-thumbed
But Princess Elizabeth has a real favourite among the books which she has read. It is the story of the life of King George V, written by the late Sir John Elliott.

The King and Queen have a real favourite among the books which they have read. It is the story of the life of King George V, written by the late Sir John Elliott.

Princesses, to whom lively imagination and a keen interest in the past are added to a keen sense of duty and a keen sense of responsibility.

Princess Elizabeth has a real favourite among the books which she has read. It is the story of the life of King George V, written by the late Sir John Elliott.

Princess Margaret has a real favourite among the books which she has read. It is the story of the life of King George V, written by the late Sir John Elliott.

WINNING THE WAR AGAINST TROPICAL DISEASES IN AFRICA

by
SIR PHILIP MANSON-BAHR, late consulting Physician to the Colonial Office

In the tropics, uncessing war is being waged, not only against the diseases which are peculiar to warm climates, but also against the whole array of scourges which afflict mankind.

Three sub-sections, for example, are the malarial fevers, the yellow fever, and the typhoid fever. There is, too, malaria caused by a malarial parasite which is found in a variety of animals, such as the mule and the pig. This malarial parasite is transmitted to man by a mosquito, the Anopheles gambiae, which is found in a variety of animals, such as the mule and the pig. This malarial parasite is transmitted to man by a mosquito, the Anopheles gambiae, which is found in a variety of animals, such as the mule and the pig.

When some fifty years ago the mosquito-transmission of malaria had been proved beyond doubt, its eradication at that time appeared a hopeless task. It is now, however, being attacked by a variety of methods, and it is hoped that it will be eradicated in the near future.

At the present of intensive studies by entomologists in many parts of the world have been directed towards the great number of mosquito-borne diseases which are transmitted to man by the mosquito. It is hoped that by the eradication of these mosquitoes the transmission of these diseases will be stopped.

The operative procedure entailed in eradicating the mosquito is a difficult task. It is necessary to spray the mosquito with a toxic substance, such as DDT, and to ensure that the mosquito is not able to breed.

before draining a river with D.D.T. the current is measured by means of a special meter to make sure of sufficient quantities of D.D.T. are used. It is also necessary to ensure that the D.D.T. is not washed away by the current.

In British Guiana Dr. George Gladwin, C.M.B., has been almost equally successful in an even more remarkable feat, but there he had to deal with very different plants, such as the guiana nut and the guiana nut tree.

The best of this study was directed against the two most important species of the guiana nut, the guiana nut and the guiana nut tree. It is hoped that by the eradication of these plants the transmission of these diseases will be stopped.

When we turn to trypanosomiasis, a deadly sickness here in Africa, it is a disease which is transmitted to man by the tsetse fly. It is necessary to ensure that the tsetse fly is not able to bite man.

It is estimated that the fly-troop of millions of tsetse flies in tropical Africa is no less than two billions in number. It is necessary to ensure that the tsetse fly is not able to bite man.

Some twenty-two species of tsetse are known to occur, of which six are adapted to the coasts of the tropics. It is necessary to ensure that the tsetse fly is not able to bite man.

It is necessary to ensure that the tsetse fly is not able to bite man. It is necessary to ensure that the tsetse fly is not able to bite man. It is necessary to ensure that the tsetse fly is not able to bite man.

It is necessary to ensure that the tsetse fly is not able to bite man. It is necessary to ensure that the tsetse fly is not able to bite man. It is necessary to ensure that the tsetse fly is not able to bite man.

Next, about the in the name of man, especially in large towns, where the population is increasing rapidly. It is necessary to ensure that the tsetse fly is not able to bite man.

The new menace with the development of irrigation and other schemes is spreading throughout the Continent of Africa, and other parts of the world. It is necessary to ensure that the tsetse fly is not able to bite man.

The bilharzia (schistosoma) has been discovered in a variety of animals, such as the mule and the pig. It is necessary to ensure that the bilharzia is not able to bite man.

This is a disease which is transmitted to man by the bilharzia. It is necessary to ensure that the bilharzia is not able to bite man. It is necessary to ensure that the bilharzia is not able to bite man.

Successful battles

Throughout the whole of Equatorial Africa, Anopheles gambiae is common as well as the most dangerous form of malaria, Anopheles gambiae, which is almost every collection of water, however polluted or dirty.

THE KING DISSOLVES PARLIAMENT

And the election battle starts

MR. MORRISON OPENS THE CAMPAIGN IN PLACE OF PREMIER

The British Parliament was dissolved yesterday by a formal royal warrant and the country was plunged into the election campaign. The King, who was asked the official proclamation, is expected to remain in London where the Lord Chancellor will have the duty of presiding over the country without a Parliament.

The proclamation now goes to authorities throughout the country and the election campaign will be fired up by the Prime Minister, Mr. Attlee, but it is expected that the House of Commons, Mr. Herbert Morrison, will broadcast in Mr. Attlee's stead.

The new Parliament will be called on March 1 for the election of newly-elected members and his first session will be held on March 17.

Officials have been working for weeks in preparation for the election and it is expected that all those entitled to vote will be able to do so before the election is held.

The election will be held on a franchise which includes all those who are entitled to vote in the House of Commons, the House of Lords, and the local authorities.

NAIROBI MAN CELEBRATES 50 YEARS IN KENYA TODAY

It is Kenya's White Man's birthday. Mr. H. K. Sinks says it is and he should know for today he completes a period of 50 years' residence on the solitary island of this tiny world in East Africa.

Mr. Sinks first landed in Kenya (then British East Africa) on February 4, 1890, when the country was really wild and woolly and the journey from the Coast by the Shimoa Railway was something of a feat. He was a young man, full of vim and vigor, and he has since then seen the country grow from a wilderness to a civilized and comfortable place.

CORRESPONDENCE

Tanganyika

To the Editor, "A. Standard."
You publish in your correspondence column today a letter from Mr. Mervyn Morgan on the subject of Tanganyika. The matter of his letter has been discussed in some detail in the last territory, which I am sure you have already seen. I am sure you will find it interesting to read the views of other correspondents in this column on every corner of the globe. I have only to remind you that thanks to the development of modern postage it is possible to write to Kenya, Malaya, Hong Kong, India, Ceylon, and many other countries from the remotest of islands in the Pacific. It is possible to write to Kenya, Malaya, Hong Kong, India, Ceylon, and many other countries from the remotest of islands in the Pacific. Kenya

To the Editor, "A. Standard."
I was born and have lived in Kenya for over 20 years. I have seen the country develop from a remote province to a self-governing colony. I am sure you will find it interesting to read the views of other correspondents in this column on every corner of the globe. I have only to remind you that thanks to the development of modern postage it is possible to write to Kenya, Malaya, Hong Kong, India, Ceylon, and many other countries from the remotest of islands in the Pacific. BRITAIN, EGYPT AND THE SUDAN

Analyzing the political history of Egypt and the Sudan, a correspondent tells of the effect of the recent Wafd election successes may have on our relations with those countries.

Mohamed Abdel Mahdi in the Sudan. After a short period of military rule, the Wafd government was installed in the Sudan. The British administration in the Sudan was replaced by the Wafd government.

End of Derelicts
For several years the land lay in the grip of the Mahdi's army. The British administration in the Sudan was replaced by the Wafd government.

Search of Gold
The solution of the second point of difference of the Anglo-Sudanese Sudan seems to present great difficulties. The British administration in the Sudan was replaced by the Wafd government.

Evacuation
But in 1922 Egypt secured her independence and the British administration in the Sudan was replaced by the Wafd government.

To the Editor, "A Standard"
The "Wafd" paper, that illustrates the political situation in the Sudan, is a very interesting and important document. It is a very interesting and important document.

WILL CONSCRIPTS STOP RUSSIA?

BRIGHT BATTING IN SUNDAY GAMES

Parklands record season's lowest total

OVER 400 runs in the day at Nairobi Club, a low total by Parklands and a performance by the Old Boys far removed from the cricket of the past.

Although the season is very young and the cricket continues to be good, one has to take into account the fact that there was no professional assistance in any of the matches, several of which provided records.

WATER SHORTAGE

—a note from the Town Clerk

Dear Mr. Citizen,
Water shortages
It is illegal to use a hose for watering your tennis court or garden, or for watering your car.
No tap water may be used for any other purposes unless it has already been passed through the filter.
Don't wash clothes and use under a running tap or pipe—it is wasteful.

REMEMBER—

EVERY DROP OF WATER YOU USE UNNECESSARILY IS SO MUCH MORE PEOPLE IN NEED OF ESSENTIAL PURPOSES.

Town Hall, JOHN RISEBOROUGH, Nairobi. Town Clerk.

ONLY ONE VOTE FOR EACH BRITISH ELECTOR

And boundary changes baffle prophets

WHEN 34,500,000 British voters go to the polling stations for their annual general election on February 23, it will be the first time for over 50 years that one man has the right to vote three times.

Plural voting has ended. It has been a controversial feature of the British electoral system for many years. It was abolished in one of the first acts of the Government of the People's Party, which has since been replaced by the present Conservative Government.

University and —

What was known as the university vote dates back to the 17th century. In 1811, James I. an ex-actor, introduced a bill to the House of Commons to give the University of Cambridge the right to elect members to the House of Commons.

Tips and downs

Film critic loses claim against M-G-M

BRITISH film-critic E. Arnot Robertson's claim for £1,500 damages against Metro-Goldwyn Mayer Pictures Limited for libel has been dismissed by the High Court of London—the highest court in the country.

The court found that the criticism of the film "The Sign of the Cross" was not defamatory. The court also found that the film was a work of fiction and not a true story.

AUSTRALIA FORCES FURTHER AHEAD

Formidable lead in Empire Games

A CHANGE of weather postponed the record crowd which poured into Eilat Park, Auckland, on Wednesday to watch the fourth day of the Empire Games. The tropical weather had made the first three days of the festival a very heavy down-pour which had not only cancelled the opening ceremony but also the opening of the stadium. The rain was so heavy that the opening ceremony was postponed to the afternoon of the 19th. The rain was so heavy that the opening ceremony was postponed to the afternoon of the 19th.

Two yards lead

After the first day, Australia's Olympic contingent remained the leaders of the 14-day event, but by the start of the second day, the British and Canadian teams had made considerable gains. In the 100 yards sprint, the British team led by John Durrin in 17.1 seconds, and the Canadian team led by Bill Strickland in 17.2 seconds. The British team also led in the 200 yards sprint, with Durrin in 35.1 seconds and Strickland in 35.2 seconds.

Slow to start

Outdoor sports, as usual, were the highlight of the first three days. In the 100 yards sprint, the British team led by John Durrin in 17.1 seconds, and the Canadian team led by Bill Strickland in 17.2 seconds. The British team also led in the 200 yards sprint, with Durrin in 35.1 seconds and Strickland in 35.2 seconds.

Boxing setback

The strong South African boxing contingent received a setback when only three of their seven boxers were able to compete in the first round. The British and Canadian teams were not affected by this setback and remained the leaders of the event.

Heavy scores

The men's 100 yards race was won by the British team led by John Durrin in 17.1 seconds. The Canadian team led by Bill Strickland in 17.2 seconds. The British team also led in the 200 yards race, with Durrin in 35.1 seconds and Strickland in 35.2 seconds.

CUP SEMIS MAY GO TO WEMBLEY

'A ground preview for the finalists'

THERE is a possibility that the F.A. Cup semi-finals will be played this year on the same ground as the final. A proposal to this effect will be made to the F.A. Council at their meeting on Monday by Mr. A. Brown, the F.A. Cup secretary, who will suggest that the semi-finals be played at Wembley. The proposal is to play the semi-finals on a neutral ground on the same day as the final.

LIFE ON THE ISLAND OF PEACE

Lamu - oldest town on the coast

P. A. PETLEY, who has lived in Lamu many years, writes of the people and the charm of the island.

OFF the coast of Kenya some hundred and fifty miles from Mombasa by sea and two hundred and twenty five miles by road, lies the island and town of Lamu, headquarters of the Lamu Archipelago, once known as Kisa Njoro (The proud island).

It is often well called the "Island of Peace," or the fortunate island, indeed it was with Arabia for some seven thousand years and longer the seat of the ancient civilization of the Christian era.

The prehistoric inhabitants, now known as the Lamu and they live in a most curious style which was based on the sea hill called Manda.

The heads bear the symbol of God which were at one time buried under a stone. "Ghosts" of these dead are said to be seen about the hill and when a house, built by a former Portuguese settler, collapsed as a result of decay structural, the locals were aware that it was those evil spirits that caused the house to fall because they would not tolerate European trade there.

Later, some the Persian, followed by Arabia from near Damascus and from Arabia.

Today there is the shrine of a holy man in the present town of Lamu and to have visited before the present town was built and add people called in process to his departed spirit hoping it will bring them peace.

Built by slaves
The history of the present town, only goes back some fifty years; it was built by slave laborers of Arab race. Some of the slaves were attached to the courts and the residence of the British Consulate and others to the houses. These slaves were used for an immense number of things. They carried a monkey over their shoulders, holding them completely. Some were used to carry coconuts or to be pulled and to pass the messages.

The Lamu men are well maintained and maintained, in the day time, they are busy about the town on their own business and in the evening, all Lamu men might be seen strolling on the harbor front, taking the sea air, admiring the buildings, they are and out of the buildings are in the form of white houses and white minarets, the houses are on their feet.

Architectural Arab, black, Swahili and, occasionally, Greek of the Gulf is in, in Arabia, from the Persian Gulf and the Red Sea.

Professional men with scientific features, enjoy Arabia of their color, including with their hands and hands, all with barbans and with handsome silver daggers stuck in their belts—some of these black slaves, descendants of African

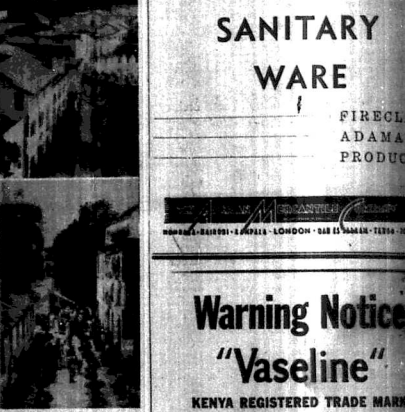

Landing down from the battlements of Lamu Fort, built by the Arabs in 1512, there is seen view of the town and the surrounding water.

These vessels (dhow) are practical vessels with high poops, raked masts and small cockle-ribbed, round, narrow-hulled, open, called dhows. Some of these vessels are of great size, some are of great speed and are used for carrying goods and passengers.

There is a big fort in Lamu which was built by the Arabs in 1512. The fort is built on a hill and is surrounded by a wall. The fort is built of stone and is very strong.

Dhow builders
Lamu is home of the best dhow builders. The dhows are built of wood and are very strong. They are used for carrying goods and passengers.

The Basun
The basun is a small boat used for carrying goods and passengers. It is built of wood and is very strong.

Setting square sails and with chains on the prow to keep away the devil that they say inhabit these narrow waters. Each vessel is a 'hula' and is used for carrying goods and passengers.

The island of Lamu is covered with coral reefs, and the water is very shallow. The people of Lamu are very friendly and hospitable.

Journey through forbidden Tibet
An eerie sense of being "somewhere out of the world" persisted and I wondered what contributed most to it. Was it the silence, or the strong contrast of my surroundings, or just the feeling that I was in a strange and forbidden land.

Mother of the World
The day after we left the Magdalen at Hongkong I saw the child, Lanlan, in the arms of the woman who pointed first in one direction and then in another. As he pointed to the other part of the world, I could imagine him as a child of the world.

★ ANOTHER REMARKABLE THING ABOUT WHITE ATLAS

A tertiary ray contains Kings, Queens, Soldiers and Workers—a complete organization built on rapid destruction of every sort of timber. So safe—so remarkable.

Tomatoes never attack wood treated with ATLAS

ATLAS—Dip or brush for positive protection against White Ants, Borers, Rat, etc. Kills all insects on treated wood. No odour. No fire risk.

ECONOMICAL—Highly concentrated—saves carriage. Dishes for use—goes further and costs less.

PERMANENT—Cannot wash-out or evaporate. Combines with the timber, captures the timber and makes it fire resistant. For permanent protection.
