CORYDALIS IS FAVOURED FOR THE CESAREWITCH

Good year for Tanga Rifle Club

A general meeting of the members of the Tanga Rifle Club this evening was able to report a successful year. The club has been able to recruit members and the financial position is very satisfactory. The members have been well attended.

Roccamare and Tiger Kloof are the best-backed ones

CORYDALIS became the new Cesarewitch favourite at 11-1 at the fifth callover on the "autumn double" in the Victoria Club London on Monday night. Turkey's blood kept his place at the head of the Cesarewitch betting list for his first place in the Phoenician and River Murr (Crescent) and Roccamare and Tiger Kloof (Crescent) were the best-backed horses in the field. The betting was very hotly divided.

Phoenician, offered a week for the Cesarewitch at 10-1, a return for the Phoenician bet, but was not to win 20,000 on Monday. The horse was a good one, but he was not to win. The horse was a good one, but he was not to win.

The closing offers for the Cesarewitch were: Turkey's blood 11-1, Roccamare 10-1, Tiger Kloof 10-1, Phoenician 10-1, River Murr 10-1, and the Cesarewitch 11-1.

British policy on admission of Japan to GATT
 BY J. A. MANNING

BRITISH policy on the admission of Japan to the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs (GATT) is being examined by the House of Commons. The question of Japan's entry into the world's free trade area has been a subject of debate for some time. The British Government has been reluctant to admit Japan to GATT because of its protectionist trade policies. However, the Government has recently announced that it will accept Japan's application to join GATT. This decision has been welcomed by many in the business community, but it has also raised concerns about the impact on British industries. The Government has stated that it will continue to monitor the situation and take any necessary steps to protect British interests.

The photograph is a black and white print and is being shown to the public for the first time.

FIGHTING SOIL EROSION IN TANGANYIKA

A COLLABORATION between the Government and the people of Tanganyika is being undertaken to combat soil erosion. The problem of soil erosion is a major one in the country, and it is causing significant damage to the land. The Government has launched a campaign to educate the people about the importance of soil conservation and to encourage them to take steps to prevent erosion. This includes planting trees, building terraces, and using other methods to hold the soil in place. The Government is also providing financial assistance to farmers to help them with these projects. It is hoped that this collaboration will lead to a more sustainable and productive agricultural sector in Tanganyika.

The picture above is reproduced from an architect's drawing of the Bank's new premises in course of construction at Government Road, Nairobi. This fine new building will provide yet another example of the Bank's policy of development throughout East Africa — a policy which makes possible the provision of still better banking services.

INCREASE IN AFRICAN VILLAGE-BUILDING

Provision of social services easier

ABOUT 270,000 Kikuyu, Mau and Embu people live in villages, according to the latest official figures. The three affected tribes number more than 1,200,000 or 50 per cent of Kenya's population, and the building of villages is a voluntary movement encouraged by the Government and also a measure designed to establish close control over people in Mau Mau areas.

Mr. Michael Elmhurst, Minister without Portfolio, says an new village area has been developed in their position on the Mt. Kenya forest edges which will be visited by the Game Division of Embu last week.

Two missing on world cruise in ketch

The Dutchman-landed boat Walkabout, which set out from Fremantle on August 29, 1954, manned by the Deacock brothers, has not been reported from the Comp. Islands or Mauritius, where they were to call on the way.

Closer control

Under the tribal system, the families usually live on their own holdings, but a major problem has arisen with increasing tribal restrictions. Attempts are being made to consolidate holdings.

Villages were first established to give people protection against terrorists, but it has been found that established centres will also give social services. Villages also give a measure of government control, an important factor in troubled areas.

After Embu, the next highest total has been achieved at Kericho where 45 per cent of the population live in villages. In Kericho 102,000 live in 124 villages. In Port Hill, 42,000 people live in 21 villages, representing 33 per cent of the population. In Meru, 13,000 people live in villages.

CLOSING OF SCHOOLS REGRETTED

Tanga need for training centres

REGRET was expressed at a meeting of the Provincial Advisory Council at Tanga that the old industrial training schools at Tanga and Kiwanda had been closed down. Views were expressed that, although pupils at Tanga were well trained technically, they lacked discipline and the will to work. It was agreed there was a great need to have trade schools in the big centre.

A question, namely whether boys needing work were encouraged to stay in their own villages to build up their own economy and to build up character to fit the people for the future needs of the country.

Teachers in demand

Members also asked what was being done in the way of social development to guide young people away from subversive forces. In reply, the Provincial Education Officer, Mr. C. F. Phelan, pointed out that citizenship was taught in all schools and that local children were taught as far as possible to keep local teachers in their own towns and to encourage them to work in such areas, such as Mpeketia, and the millions also had a number of training schools one of which is at Kiwanda.

When it was possible, teachers from the Zanzibar Training School were obtained—but these were in short supply. Each middle school had a qualified instructor to give basic training in such handicrafts as bookbinding, book-binding and the smithy.

There are more than 200 registered schools for African children in Tanga Province, 10 per cent of which are in the hands of the various National Government institutions. In these schools, instruction is restricted to literacy.

Polio drug released

The anti-polio drug, gamma globulin, may now be brought on factory prescriptions in the United States. Mass tests have indicated that the drug provides at least temporary protection against the disease.

Children who had been vaccinated previously, because of fears it might interfere with more tests, had this summer of a new vaccine, which is expected to be more effective and cheaper than gamma globulin.

By Jonas Salk, who developed the vaccine, is convinced his vaccine would provide long-term immunity against polio if administered at properly spaced intervals. (Reuters)

POLITICAL TRUCE IN KENYA

THE political "truce" conference in Nairobi on Monday reached agreement to hold discussions between the two sides on the views and the constitution of a standing committee to implement the decision.

Members of the Executive Council attended the conference in the Memorial Hall and approved a resolution in favour of the truce.

The steering committee which had the task of preparing for the conference will be a standing committee, with the following terms of reference:

To meet not less than once a month.

To act as the forum in which any case of doubt as to the observance of the agreement will be brought in for the first time.

Consult Ministers and officials and the European Members at home on any matter of administration which may seem in need of consideration and where necessary, to take action.

Appoint working parties including the report of the Executive Council and the Population Commission to be reported from time to time.

The truce was announced by the Earl of Portsmouth, said: "This truce agreement which stipulates that discussions will be held between the two sides in order to try to reach a political settlement acceptable to Kenya."

During the period of the truce, the two sides will hold regular meetings on questions of mutual interest, but no formal proposals or recommendations shall be put forward or accepted.

An ultimatum proposed by the British Government to the Federal Independence Party.

"That if at the end of four months the Government has not reached the constitutional settlement which it has proposed, that time shall be spent in trying to reach a political settlement acceptable to Kenya."
