ANTISEPTICS IN SURGERY

The marvels of medicine would fill many volumes were the sum of their achievements to be told, but among the greatest is the discovery and application of antiseptics in surgery by Lord Lister in Britain less than a century ago.

When peace returns, our British Lister, inventors and discoverers, will again lead the way to greater happiness and well-being for all nations.

TRADITION

THE strict codes of manufacturing excellence and ethical practices which characterize the Boveri papers have been deemed by a deep-seated sense of responsibility to be the national basis. They yield the results of continuous and reliable service during some two half a century. These well-proven standards have even a greater significance than merely to supply reason for endurance and the successful fulfilment of past obligations... they are the necessary preliminary to the progressive programme of development which is so essential to the scientific research and pharmaceutical advance. They represent exactness and dependability. They are the traditions of Boveri.

A Challenge to Faith

We published yesterday an important statement on Kenya issued by the leaders of the Protestant Churches in Kenya. It is designed as a statement of the churches' attitude to specific problems and is intended to serve as a challenge to all those who think and act as a guide to action. Perhaps there is no sphere in which people are greater need of guidance than in their relations with one another. For the second time in the generation we have witnessed a distressing to which human passions can be brought by a single act. In a letter degree we see about us on every side and with scarcely an intermission, in every day's news evidence of the results of varying degrees of friction in human relationships. It would be unrealistic to expect any marked change in the world relationship because of the present situation. Peace and harmony are not to be achieved by suggestion or by the good offices of understanding. In a society troubled world the only way to create those conditions which are the wishes of the people for peace and order is by the use of force. This is the attitude which we see in the Atlantic Charter. This Charter, though not more than a declaration of principles, has become a guiding star in the minds of those who are seeking a better world. It has inspired the people of the world to a new sense of purpose and has given them a new sense of responsibility. It has also given them a new sense of unity and has shown them that they are not alone in their struggle for a better world. It has also given them a new sense of hope and has shown them that they are not alone in their struggle for a better world.

"Horror" films of German atrocities in Germany and the areas of Europe were shown by Italian and German exhibitors at a National cinema in Italy and a German cinema in Germany. It is a shame to see the film and the exhibition. The exhibition was purely voluntary and there was no display of force.
