U.N. talks go on as 1,200 guerillas die

CENTRAL AFRICAN AIRWAYS yesterday halted its scheduled Salisbury-Nairobi flight at Ndola, on the Rhodesia-Congolese border, because of the East African Government's ban on flights to Ndola. The flight had gone on as planned, the aircraft would have flown to Nairobi when the ban came into operation, at midnight last night.

'STANDARD' BUOYS RECORD SALES

MOORE and more people are being attracted to the circle of East African Standard's readers. The magazine's circulation in the East African States has risen to 100,000 copies a month.

Official sources in Lusaka said that moves are being made to ensure that Zambia's air links with East Africa are maintained. The East African countries have given C.A.A. — which is jointly owned by Rhodesia, Zambia and Malawi — notice that its aircraft will no longer be accepted, as a result of the decision of the Organisation for African Unity to cut ties with Rhodesia.

Tells us going on from Zambia and East African officials on whether C.A.A. aircraft would be accepted if they were Salisbury for technical reasons only. The airlines used Tanzania which the sources said could not be serviced in Nairobi for lack of facilities. They also stressed that the Salisbury story would be purely for maintenance and servicing, and that no passengers would be carried from Rhodesia.

WHILE the United States was yesterday celebrating 1,200 guerillas killed by four colonial army officers, private communications were going on in New York between U.N. Security Council delegates to transfer the Vietnamese war to the Cambodian table.

STARS AT A.A.A. CHAMPIONSHIPS

KENYA'S ATHLETES, and especially the fabulous Kipchoge Keino, have gone out into the world and competing in the international events, achieved honours for themselves and their country. Back home, the people have read about their exploits, but that is as far as the admiration public has been able to reach in the experience. Kenya's champions have never been seen in action on their home soil, pitched against the world's best. This deficiency will be set right through an imaginative and generous offer by the Kenya C.A., to make it financially possible for the Amateur Athletics Association to invite six of the outstanding athletes of the day to compete in the National Championships in July. They are Ron Clarke, Jimmy Griffiths, Basil, George May and Maurice Herrick. On all the invitations were called only a day or two ago, there is no news yet of whether all or any can accept; but it is hoped all will do so and be seen in action at the Kenyan Championships in July.

TALE OF A LAZY FARMER

By SUSAN CARROLL

WHEN Farmer Jim broke his leg, friends and neighbors took care of his farm. "Don't you worry about a thing," they said. "We will do all the work for you until you are better." So the farmer lay in bed all the while his work went on. The cows were milked, the hens were fed and the eggs were collected from the hens. The sheep were sheared. The crops were planted. The ducks were fed. I don't know who...

...the doctor said, "and take some medicine to make him feel better." So Farmer Jim lay in bed all the while his work went on. "I don't think I want to work," he said. "I have to be lazy!"

...the farmer said, "I don't want to work." "But you must," said the doctor. "I don't want to work," he said. "I have to be lazy!"

ZAMBIA EXPELS JOURNALISTS

Attitudinal rumour 'pure fiction'

PRESIDENT Kaunda of Zambia yesterday declared two journalists prohibited immigrants a few hours after attacking certain sections of the Press in Salisbury, London and Johannesburg, for writing "stupid fantasies."

Mr. Derek William Lambert of the London Daily Express and Mr. Robert Duncan from Rhodesia, were both ordered out. Mr. Lambert was believed to have been given only seven hours to leave the country.

Dr. Kaunda told a press conference in Lusaka earlier that a report that he had sent a seven-day ultimatum to Britain to stop the Rhodesian broadcast régime was "pure fiction."

The President had been asked to comment on the report which appeared in a London newspaper on Wednesday. He said the seven-day ultimatum exists only in the world of fiction.

Rhodesian papers banned

Discussions were continuing between Zambia and the British Government, and although Zambia was not happy with the way the Rhodesian situation was being allowed to drift on, he also announced that new Rhodesian newspaper regulations, he had banned the circulation of Rhodesian newspapers in Zambia.

Working could save up the contrast more clearly between the old and the new homes for children being run by the Child Welfare Society. In these pictures, left, showing the old makeshift dormitory at the Society's Waiitaka children's home, right, the bright, clean, snugly accommodations at the Ngara Road home.

The contrast between the old Child Welfare Society's Waiitaka Children's Home near Depress and the new premises at Ngara Road which have been taken over for the same purpose, is very marked.

CHILDREN SAVED FROM SQUALOR OF THE STREETS

The new home has cranked up since the old one had no gas and hot water and the old building was in a state of decay and making no use of its facilities, so that a public while on the other hand, the new premises are a credit to the city.

The Waiitaka home was used by the society first for abandoned children which the police and other agencies used according to their orders as well as other children as well as those of the society.

The children taken into the society's care and the new home provide a temporary home for them until their parents can be traced or their parents, if they are the mother and father are in a position to take care of their own children. They may not even know the mother's name, but the society's records are kept for their parents to be traced and their care.

The Child Welfare Society says in their report that in the last year, 1935, they had 1,000 children in their care and that the number of children in the streets has been reduced by 50 per cent.

The children are looked after by the house father and mother, Mr and Mrs Joseph Gashara, who live on the premises. When I arrived at the home Mr. Gashara was inspecting a half-bred hen, which he intended to finish when the children come back from school, so that they could watch him and learn how to construct his home's structure.

THANKS to the hard work of a handful of dedicated people, the Child Welfare Society of Kenya has been able to open a new home for children in Nairobi. The importance of the work of these homes in saving young children from destitution is described in this article.

There has been a big improvement in the health of the new children who have been admitted to the home transferred from the old home at Waiitaka.

But amongst the new home at Ngara Road has alleviated the cramped conditions of Waiitaka the activities of the chairman of the committee which is responsible for running the two homes, Mr. Colin Owen, chairman of the Child

The engaging and sophisticated stars of "The Rogues", a series based on some muddled confidence-tricksters who go about using Robin Hood acts throughout Europe and America, pose in their Paris apartment. The series is proving as popular among Keweenaw television viewers as it has done previously in Britain and America. The stars are (left to right) Charles Dwyer, Guy Young, George Cooper, David Price and Robert Coote.

VIEWERS GIVE THEIR VIEWS

WHAT a pleasant surprise it was to hear, immediately after the General Service news on Wednesday, a background-to-the-news talk on the Mayor's car, in which the sensible suggestion was made that now the matter it should be quietly forgotten. Hear, hear!

By ROGER HOWE

I hope that this up-to-date approach will be kept. As I have written previously in this column, television-viewers have been badly misled on both radio and TV. I have also pointed out that the V.C.G. also sponsors a number of educational features, which is mainly understandable, but not some highly interesting programs with educational content. Last Friday saw the debut of a new television series on television by Dr. Charles, who will be known to viewers as a new member of the staff of the University College lecturer. This is a fascinating business, as it is valuable to the student, and I look forward to future installments.

A similar tribute is due to Engineering Round-up, presented by University, which makes a valuable contribution to the intelligibility of the general public. Of course, the program is most covers to the general interest and viewer and those of more specialized interest, and those of more specialized interest, and those of more specialized interest.

It may be of interest to the V.C.G. planners to learn the opinion of the ordinary customer on this matter — at least it may help to convince them to carry on the series of such interest. I have written to you, saying that they have been very good and "overall, they have been very good."

How far local programs concerned their representative criticism of the local press, suggesting that it would be much better if members of the press were to be invited to the panel, instead of what were "radio and television to progress."

discusses new

CELIA BLACK whose latest and most recent recording, Love's Last Breath (Hearst records at No. 4) and the Blue Chorus is having a revival of success.

The new disc has Celia treated to the charm of the recording studio. The Blue Chorus consists of a couple of waltzes and two ballads. The new disc has been chosen to introduce all over Britain.

But although Celia seems set for one of her best years it seems she has been treated to her latest at the No. 1 spot by the Blue Chorus. It is almost certainly destined to stand on the charts.

The Blue Chorus had a strange title. It is the Blue Chorus. But the waltzes and ballads are new. The new record of Blue Chorus and Blue Chorus is the first of the new disc. The new disc has been chosen to introduce all over Britain.

It is a record which has been chosen to introduce all over Britain. It is a record which has been chosen to introduce all over Britain.

DOLPH BANTORA—and the group accompanying him have some new songs. There can be no shadow of doubt that his White Paper is the best pop disc to come out of an East African recording studio in a very long while—and that is the fact that musical standards have been going up.

His White Paper is in the musical compass of the disc. It is a disc which has been chosen to introduce all over Britain.

LEARNING ABOUT ZEBRAS

By SUSAN CORROLL

MR. KAMAU, the Government's most venerated officer and his young devoted Assistant Commis- sioner were on their way to a lion's den after a long day's work of a week.

"Look at those lovely lions!" said "Oh, could we stop a minute and watch them?" "All right," said Mr. Kamau with a smile. "I will drive a little faster and then stop."

As he did so a family of warthogs ran over. Father warthog was in the lead, with the family straggled out behind him. They ran one after the other in a line.

"What funny noisy animals they are!" laughed Christine. "And aren't they called 'pig'?" "Yes, they are. Did you never see a pig?" "No, but I have seen a pig in a picture."

"That I would never see their ears. They are very large and they are very noisy."

"They may look bright now," said Mr. Kamau, "but when the sun goes down they will be very dark."

"What is the lion's biggest enemy?" asked Christine. "Only the lion," said the officer. "But he is very strong and powerful. He can kill any animal."

From typist to private secretary

By Ann Marshall

A QUIET air of spaciousness greets the visitor or prospective student at the Valley Secretarial College in the Valley Arcade, in Bernard Road, Nairobi, one of the newest institutions for the teaching of secretarial practice and the eventual promotion of the shorthand typist to the status of private secretary. The college, which was opened on January 15, occupies five large classrooms, six office, sitting-rooms and radio where the students can receive lectures, and cater for their education. Next month it is hoped to enroll another teacher and several even larger premises.

U.K. CONCERNED ABOUT OIL, African movements under close watch

REPORTS of all movements from South Africa into Rhodesia are causing concern to Britain, the Foreign Office announced yesterday. A spokesman said: "We are keeping a very close watch on all movements, and we will continue to keep a close watch on it."

High speed point-to-point transport

The latest Westland turbine helicopters provide high speed, point-to-point transport, irrespective of terrain and climatic conditions. They can take off from and land on very small sites and are the ideal means of rapid, point-to-point transport. The Stour is the British Army's most of all work and has proved invaluable for the transport of personnel, communications and light transport. It can carry up to 15 passengers or 1,500 lb of freight to any point within 170 n. miles of its base at a speed of 108 knots. The larger Whirlwind can also turn in a variety of tasks. It can carry up to 10 passengers or 2,000 lb of freight over distances up to 100 n. miles at a speed of 80 knots. Its other possible roles include casualty evacuation, air sea or mountain rescue, pilot training and aerial towing. With still greater lifting capacity, the Wessex can transport up to 16 passengers or 4,000 lb of freight for 200 n. miles at 108 knots. Its own Bristol Siddeley Orpheus turbines, each giving up to 3,300 h.p., provide outstandingly high and engine out performance, with a high degree of safety for night, low altitude and over-water operations. The Scout, Whirlwind and Wessex keep Westland well in front in high speed, point-to-point, transport.

Self-help groups and work in Kiambu to be registered

SELF-HELP groups and their projects in the Kiambu District will have to be registered with the District Community Development Committee.

Proposing the registration, the Community Development Officer, Mr. C. M. Mathias, said this would ensure that projects fall within the general development plan of the country. He said there had been many cases where projects had been completed and their costs financed there or failed to start.

Having a record of the projects would enable the committee to offer advice which he described as the most important of such loans when he spoke at the development conference and later in a letter to the group.

The registration was supported by Mr. Gus Kober, a member of the Kiambu County Council. He claimed that he knew of secondary schools where students could not continue to Form III because the community they had built the schools could no longer raise the money to pay for recurrent expenditure.

He said that the decision would ensure uniformity of projects and help to coordinate the District Council's activities for the advancement of the rural areas.

He also emphasized the need for proper planning and coordination of the projects.

Extending the range of Kenya's VOICE

PROBLEMS IN Mrs. GANDHI'S VISIT TO U.S.

TOURISM CORPORATION

TOURISM DEVELOPMENTS are moving fast in Kenya under Mr. Aggrey's energetic direction. The Executive Assembly having enacted the necessary legislation last November, the newly formed Corporation, headed by the Kenya Tourist Development Corporation, met for its first session on the basis of the all-round comprehensive plan which they have drawn up for the next five years.

One immediate possibility is the conversion of the "stately homes" left vacant by departing colonial officials into comfortable and attractive holiday homes. The Corporation will be left with a large stock of hotels and guest houses, some of which are in excellent condition. The Corporation will be left with a large stock of hotels and guest houses, some of which are in excellent condition.

Sometimes, tourists have complained of delay or frustration. Members of the Corporation might, perhaps, investigate the procedure applied at airports and at other points of contact. Nothing causes such a big psychological impact on visitors as a reception "Make their way smooth" ought to be the motto, not hindrance and petty irritation.

Close liaison with the Hotels Association can help to maintain standards of accommodation, service and food. Contrary to reports in some quarters, Kenya's general standards far surpass those of any other country in the world, ranging from the luxury class of hotels to camping sites.

UGANDA CABINET'S decision to set up a judicial commission of inquiry into the allegations made by Mr. Oduor is a wise and constructive. When Mr. Oduor returned from his Northern tour, his presence in Entebbe at one alleged with remarks being spread in a disturbing manner.

How liquorers guard high quality of Kenya coffee

COFFEE planters in the Kenya of 30 years ago realized the necessity for orderly marketing of coffee and accurate advice to producers by an expert on the value of their coffee. It was for this purpose that the Coffee Board of Kenya was set up.

The first major problem was to get professional, merchant brains led the old trader operating in Mombasa at that time to support an institution of the highest quality of coffee and to ensure serious plans to open up new areas for the purpose of expanding with such high quality coffee.

In 1935 the Coffee Board formed Kenya Coffee Auctioneers Ltd. and from the date of its formation it has been working steadily to improve the quality of coffee and to ensure serious plans to open up new areas for the purpose of expanding with such high quality coffee.

THEY have a system of marking which is now in the world, one of the best of all coffee-producing countries. The functions of the Licensing Department are to issue licences to the Coffee Board and to ensure that the coffee is of the highest quality.

KENYA'S COTTON COAS

COTTON—a crop formerly neglected—is coming into its own in Kenya. The Development Plan calls for a total production from 2,000,000 to 25,000,000 in 1970.

There are a number of reasons why cotton is being introduced into Kenya. The first is that it is a cash crop which readily lends itself to export. The second is that it is a crop which requires little attention after sowing. The third is that it is a crop which is well adapted to the soil and climate of Kenya.

Anthony Hughes describes how a forgotten crop is becoming one of Kenya's biggest money spinners

Others the initial drive comes from that universal stimulus—the desire for education and the need to pay school fees. And eyes, where production gets going the results may be diminished by the activities of itinerant liquor sellers who huddle on to the growers as soon as they leave the production stations with their pay-off.

Nevertheless the production drive is having results. Typical farmers like Mr. J. M. Kibwe, of Kitale District, are showing the way. Both regularly achieve yields over 1,000 lbs. per acre on their farms, which is two times the average.

Two years ago Mr. Palani was awarded the prize for the best cotton grower in Kenya. And that was his first year as a grower.

These results depend upon the efforts of professional officers—men like Mr. Walter Stuart, the Chief Horticulture Officer, who works in the Cotton Development Office, Mr. William Nkomo, Chief Manager of the Kenya Cotton Research Station.

At Mombasa experiments are conducted on such questions as planting time, sowing, fertilizers, varieties and density of plants. Men by the way, agriculture (and without) and fertilizers. Mr. Nkomo has achieved yields of over 2,000 lb. an acre.

Farmers and field staff are brought in for courses and seminars which may last for as long as a week with numerous people will attend courses of 10 to 15 days.

Similar schemes exist at Kitale and Thika and another is planned to serve Central and Eastern Kenya.

Subsidised rates

Meanwhile everything is being done by the Government to encourage production. Seed has been distributed in advance of minimum cost of planting tools and fertilizer to bring made available at subsidised rates to certain farmers.

As a result of these efforts, many families in Kiisi District have one or two acres of cotton. The statistics of the best cotton growers are being made.

After a year's trial in Mombasa, President Kenyatta announced: "I would like to see every farmer at the Coast growing at least one acre of cotton."

which the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting is also participating in to get across a simple message.

For many years planning has been carried out during the "more maize" days of the early 1930's. To fit the times a plan to increase the area of cotton in Kenya was drawn up in March and April.

More nitrogen

Because of its deep root system, cotton is a heavy nitrogen feeder. It is therefore necessary to supply it with nitrogen in the soil.

The cotton is sold by the Government through the Kenya Cotton Board. The Government is also providing a subsidy on the cost of the seed. This is to encourage the growers to plant more cotton.

The paradoxes of theft-proof art

This week a valuable painting by Picasso was missing temporarily on the way from Paris to London. Although there was no suspicion of theft in this case, it did serve to remind that the art world is not immune to the same risks as the rest of the world.

WORRIED by the recent international wave of art theft, agents of the United Nations International Scientific and Cultural Organization are to try to make the world's museums more secure.

A remarkable string of museum thefts in 1935, in a respect by the International Commission on the History and Archaeology of Art, has led to a series of measures to be taken in the summer of 1936.

At the same time, the United Nations International Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) has issued a report on the state of the world's art treasures. The report states that the world's art treasures are in a state of increasing danger.

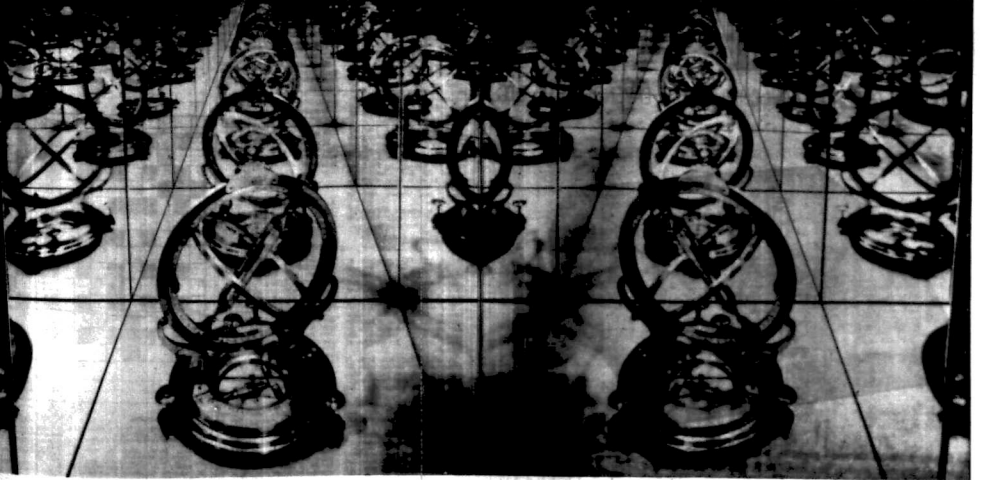

The report also states that the world's art treasures are in a state of increasing danger. It calls for more measures to be taken to protect them.

REDUCE TO PANG

Most detective work takes place in the world of the art world. The art world is a place where the most valuable things are often found.

But it is not only the art world that is in danger. The world's art treasures are in a state of increasing danger. It calls for more measures to be taken to protect them.

PILKINGTONS lead the world in glassmaking With the invention of float glass

In the most searching test of a glass—a mirror—float shows itself the world's finest glass

There's no more searching test of a glass than to float it on a pool of molten tin. The world's finest glass is the one that floats perfectly. Pilkingtons developed this process.

Pilkingtons glass is made or processed in up-to-date plants in nine countries, and follows the same process as the one used in the United States. The process is based on research and development. Pilkingtons research and development is the world's most advanced.

New church recalls arrival of first Europeans

AFTER almost four years of voluntary work, villagers at old Dapunt, 11 miles from Malacca, will reap the fruits of their labour as from Sunday, when Kilmarae Church will be officially opened.

The church, which is due to be the property of Parliament Chief Minister, was begun in 1921, but a long and arduous history had to be traced back to the arrival of the first Europeans at Malacca in 1498.

The grandson of the chief, Mr. T. P. Wajaya, said that Capt. Logan, then Chief Minister, saw the need of a permanent building and expressed the possibility of building a post office at a stopping place on the way to Uganda.

After the discussion, Capt. Logan proposed to let the British to Uganda, and on his return he first gave his permission to build the post office, which was completed in a strong, sturdy structure and by wife and dog tradition.

The old Dapunt was then, called Kilmarae, and the village of the Malacca, to identify it with the name that Capt. Logan and his followers had used.

Mission station

In 1897 a European mission station was built on the site of the old post office. The Rev. W. J. Watson, arrived and attempted to persuade Chief Minister, Parliament Chief Minister, to build a mission station on the ground where the Kilmarae Church now stands.

Chief Minister was reluctant to give that piece of land, but instead gave him another plot.

In 1924 during land nomination, two members of the Malacca family, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Lewis of Malacca, were invited to build a church on the site of the old post office. Each one contributed half to the building of the church.

The work of building the church started early in 1921 with the money to cover the cost. The villagers, however, came forward with contributions of small amounts of money, foodstuffs and gifts.

by SYLVANUS NASIBU

The foodstuffs and gifts... were used to build the church. The money for building the church was raised by the villagers. The first stone is to be laid on the 25th of the month. The building of the church will be completed and will be a fine example of modern work in that part of Malacca.

Mr. and Mrs. Wajaya... will be the first to be seated in the church. The church will be a fine example of modern work in that part of Malacca.

TOO MUCH OF A GOOD TUNE

FOR the sake of those who have not yet found out and who are anxious to rush off to the record shop, the name of that tune is Kenya jingles. No, you would have thought that in one week it could have got the Beatles and Jim Reeves to fight and march straight to the top of V.O.K.'s Hit Parade.

It heralds the News and the weather and the weather forecast part of an afternoon carrying a message in the fifth part of an hour, and is so popular that it has been bought for sale on TV in the Kenya TV market. It is being sold for 10/- a copy. It is a very nice and original record, but it is being sold for so much more than it is worth as a musical single, and that is what is making it so popular. It is a one thing to play it several times a week and drive people to the shop, but it is quite another to have it on the radio all the time. At the same time, the arrangement of the programme is so brilliant and so original that it is a pity that the V.O.K. is not doing it. It is a pity that the V.O.K. is not doing it.

JOHN ROBERTS discusses new African releases

UNTIL a few months ago one had heard of Paul and Barry Ryan. For a long time they were from a back-ground of Show Business — their mother was the famous British singer, Marjorie Ryan — they had been kept well away from the limelight.

But now when the children of famous stars have an instant success critics say it is due to the publicity of their parents. In fact, in the case of Paul and Barry Ryan, it is not so. They have their own talent. In the new film on which they are featured, How to Succeed in Business Without Really Knowing It, they are perfect. In the same picture, which is nothing starting on the star Paul and Barry Ryan have had success and I am sure it will not be long before they enter our own charts.

CRIGAN, Bill. Protectors has been better than the Beatles and just as good as the latter. It is a good film. Protectors is a well-told tale on which Crigan Bill, Peter and Frank in a crime drama. A FEW months ago I reviewed a record by a new group, the Brothers, which was different from most East African offerings in that it was entirely the work of Anglo-American people—a very different matter from money being introduced by them in detail.

That first record, though not a commercial success, was a very good one and the performers were talented. But I am sure that they will not be long before they enter our own charts.

Hospital seeks more patients to ensure survival

by ANN MARSHALL

CHILDRREN Garden Children's Hospital at Malabon has reached a point in its 13 years of history at which it is to continue in its vital work, it must, in some way, attract more patients.

The hospital's survival depends on the cooperation of a large number of people, and the average of 20 patients a day falling below this level would mean the end of the hospital.

It is the desire of the board of directors and other officials of the hospital to attract more patients to ensure its survival. The hospital is now empty, and the board of directors is now trying to attract more patients to ensure its survival.

Home for patients receive, from former patients, their rooms and extra staff quarters were all finished by volunteers added in 1938.

The medicine wards and operating theatre were built with money raised by the hospital's fund-raising and public subscription in 1938 and 1939.

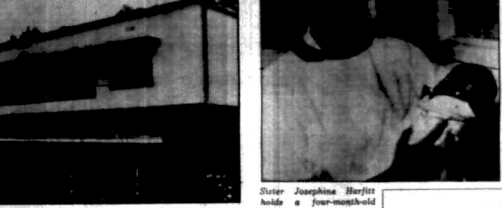

All the patients of the hospital have a full complement of 12 trained nurses, three nursing aides and four student nurses, and there has been a steady increase of 10 since the hospital was founded.

"Our ambition is to raise the standard of our services to lower our standards of maintenance."

Wing said the nation, Miss K. Wines, who has been at Children's Garden since 1933. She said the present and past work on a schedule is essential that new services are needed in the field. That is why the committee have decided that, instead of directly appealing to the public for funds to maintain more children at the hospital, they will appeal to firms to help, at the same time, by giving a health insurance against the loss of their own's business.

The committee feels that the hospital should not only be a hospital of patients, but also a home for children. Through the financial help of the members of their staff, and through the generous contributions of the public, the hospital is able to provide the best care for its patients.

The hospital is now empty, and the board of directors is now trying to attract more patients to ensure its survival.

The latest survey block which cost £21,000, raised through public subscription, was added in 1938. This increased the capacity of the hospital by 25 per cent. New features include eight separate glass-partitioned cubicles for infants and adjoining rooms where mothers can stay overnight if necessary. The block overlooks spacious grounds which the children enjoy when they are convalescing.

These latest extensions mean that the hospital is now fully operative as a children's hospital and it is now essential that all beds are filled.

To this end it is intended to run an intensive scheme whereby firms ensure that their staff families have medical care.

Sacked expatriate looks back on time in Ghana's army

by ERIC MARSH

AFRICAN TIGHTROPE by Major-General H. T. Alexander (Full Page Press, London, 25/-)

It is not surprising that Major-General Alexander's book on his two years as Chief of Staff to President Nkrumah is named in Ghana. Not that the general views is biased or prejudiced—he does not show a great deal of nostalgia for Ghana and its people; and for the old Ghana.

But he writes with the moral authority of the professional soldier training in 20 months, so that his general account is as interesting as it is thoughtful. It is in such thoughts as these that his book is at its best, and that is especially true of those chapters which deal with the period when he was in the Ghana army.

If one allows for a slight overstatement of the importance of the general's role in Africa and of his own influence on the general, the book is an interesting and thought-provoking study of a man and a country.

It is interesting to note that the general's account of his time in Ghana is written in a style which is both readable and informative. He does not shy away from the more controversial aspects of his time in Ghana, and his account of the general's role in Africa and of his own influence on the general is both readable and informative.

With distaste he did so with considerable skill. He writes of the general's role in Africa and of his own influence on the general in a style which is both readable and informative.

are you a good fast driver?

No need to be pedantic. Some say it's originally to be good and fast. We disagree. Good fast drivers aren't only cars, but they are rare. Such people have a natural aptitude for driving, quick reactions and good judgement. Your good fast driver has good judgement too when it comes to insurance. That's why he chooses a Minet's A.A. Policy. He knows our Claim Service is second to none, and that he gets various extra benefits under his A.A. Motor Policy - higher coverage for medical expenses and towing charges, for instance. What also appeals to him is our low premium - under cover at a lower rate, in fact. Yes, Mr. A's man of good judgement all right - are you? Give us a ring or a call. We'll be glad to tell you more.

New words for the late learner

FOR MANY people living in Nairobi and other parts of Kenya, pure enjoyment is a method of passing the evening. In fact, the demand for more purposeful pastimes is so great that the University College in Nairobi, whose evening extension courses are providing new opportunities for enlightenment and advancement for ambitious Kenyans of all ages.

by STEVEN VALENTINE

RIGHTS are burning in the windows of University College in Nairobi, where the under-privileged have put away the books and slide rules. For the night lectures every one of hundreds of participants usually make up for the day's drudgery in school or office when they never find time to read or write. Whether they are students or workers of radio and television stations, they are here to increase their knowledge and to broaden their horizons. They find all the subjects they need.

In two new years and over 100 subjects have been taught about the East African continent. The Department of Education has approved the courses and the University has agreed that the students should be given the same status as those in Kenya with white support. At a recent session in parliament it was agreed that the Government should pay the fees of students from Kenya and Western Rhodesia and that the University should pay the rest. The more the Government pays, the more the students benefit. The big drive is part of a plan to lift the country out of its economic slump through an increase in the number of students and staff. It is also a way of providing a better education for the people of Kenya.

Broaden outlook

One half of all students in the evening classes last year were women. The examinations are being held in order to enable women to better their jobs and the Government is making special arrangements to broaden their outlook. The most unusual subject last year was a course in the history of the world. For instance, there were some 100 students in the course. Learning the structure of design and construction in textiles (shown) proves an absorbing study for a class of 12, under the tutelage of Mrs. E. M. Hughes. Night pupils in the sculpture class are equally masterful the basics, with Francis help from their tutor, Mr. L. Mwasikali.

University College, Nairobi, is the best that ever and the facilities will be held from March 25 to April 7. It is open to all men and women who are interested in serious study and who are willing to accept their own share in the progress of East Africa. Students include civil servants, business executives, factory workers, school teachers, and others from every walk of life. In past years they have gathered from such widespread areas as East Africa, Kenya, Rhodesia and Zambia. The class is that they spend the evenings studying and the afternoons getting to know each other and exchanging knowledge. It is a unique opportunity for the students to meet and talk to the Government. It is also a way of providing a better education for the people of Kenya. It is also a way of providing a better education for the people of Kenya.

Time off

Those taking it are released from their employment one day each week in Africa. The University's staff, including lecturers, book-keepers and accountants, are working hard to give their staff the best possible conditions for their studies. It is this way they are tackling their management problems of the future. It is also a way of providing a better education for the people of Kenya. Angry women protest—so picture has to be moved

A PAINTING of a nude woman, hung in a prominent place at the gallery today, "The painter," said one, "is well meant to go," and the artist had to move it to a less prominent place in the rear of the gallery.

There came an explanation, it is said, that the woman in the painting was a prostitute, and that the artist had painted her in a vulgar manner.

"I am afraid that they are not," she said, "and that the picture will not be taken down."

There were in the gallery a number of women, and they were all looking on with interest.

There will be the picture by the artist, and it will be in the gallery for some time.

GOOD morning, Jack! "Could you please lend me another chair?"

"All right," said Bill, "but you must give me your own chair in return."

"No, no," said Jack, "I'll give you my own chair."

"All right," said Bill, "but you must give me your own chair in return."

"No, no," said Jack, "I'll give you my own chair."

You see, while the girl was sitting on Jack's chair, she was getting on, and would be a high price of the market.

Farmer Jack was all the while on Fat Jack's good and then it disappeared.

"Where's my good?" Farmer Jack asked. "What have you done with my good?"

"I've given it away," said Fat Jack. "I've given it away."

"Where's my good?" Farmer Jack asked. "What have you done with my good?"

"I've given it away," said Fat Jack. "I've given it away."

wouldn't he want the whole chair with legs and chair back so that he could work with all these things?

"No, no," said Jack, "I'll give you my own chair."

"All right," said Bill, "but you must give me your own chair in return."

FOOT BOOTS IN FRUGBY

Greater emphasis on scoring of tries

These players are able to get the scoring system in rugby altered. Letters to the editor are held on the subject of the scoring of the game under the present system. It is thought that the scoring of the game should be altered to make it more exciting and to give very much more emphasis on the scoring of tries.

It is thought that rugby was invented as a handling game, the prime object being to kick the ball across the opposition line. Yet today there is more use of the hand than the hand. Furthermore, it is meant to be a team game for 15 players.

Those taking the first point of view believe most offences for which penalties are given and which frequently result in winning tries are for tactical offences and are more often accidental than intentional.

Those taking the second point of view believe most offences for which penalties are given and which frequently result in winning tries are for tactical offences and are more often accidental than intentional.
