If the tests prove satisfactory, the new suit may be adopted as standard by the Royal Navy.

AN ANSWER FROM NEW ZEALAND

Writing as a farmer, who had ten years ago your enjoyable experience of a few months in the White Highlands like to say that I am glad that you find settlers in the Transvaal district of a settled and happy life.

Mr. Burdick is quoted as saying that such planning is necessary, I am sure, but I am sure that the conditions observed in the Transvaal are not the result of such planning. It is the result of the natural development of the country.

STAFF REPORTS ON COMMUNAL BASIS

Your leader of July 12 on primary elections suggests that if 60 per cent of voters required, the proposal would be equitable. I disagree and say so.

The purpose of the staff reports in the past was given responsibility to the voters. It is now proposed to transfer this responsibility to the Government.

FLUORINE IN WATER WORRIES KARURA

KARURA District Association on Wednesday night unanimously passed a resolution urging the Government to supply fluorine-free water to the Council to make every effort to supply fluorine-free water as soon as possible.

The resolution was passed after the danger of a high-fluorine content in water from local sources was pointed out to the Council.

The resolution requested the Government to prohibit the use of fluorine in water supply for Burakka-Karura. Mr. P. C. Chokwe, who moved the resolution, said the water from the country could contain as much as 100 per cent of fluorine, which is about 100 times the normal amount.

He asked, "Some people do not seem to realize the danger of fluorine can do to children's teeth, but even to adults' teeth."

WEEK-END STANDARD PARASITES MASTERED SCOURGE OF KENYA'S COFFEE INDUSTRY

THE coffee industry in Kenya was threatened with destruction for many years by mealybug. This pest, even in the pre-war days when the price of coffee was only £40 to £70 a ton, destroyed £24,000 of coffee annually. In total it is estimated that the cost to the industry was more than £1,000,000.

Currently, this scourge of the coffee farmer was not brought under control by the discovery of some new wonder insecticide. Research established that the parasitoid which attacked coffee originated in West-Indian Islands where it was apparently not a serious pest.

It was found that certain parasites kept the mealybug population down. It was by the introduction of these parasites to Kenya in 1928 that eventually the mealybug was controlled.

The research cost less than £1000 and the actual introduction of the parasite into coffee-growing areas about 1930. The value of research carried out to date has been estimated at £100,000. The research was carried out in Kenya and the results were published in the Journal of the Entomological Society of Kenya.

PROGRESS in the tea industry was examined in an article last week. Today we turn to coffee and here DAVID GRANT describes the experiments carried out at the Jacaranda Research Station at Ruiri.

entomologist, Mr. T. J. Anderson, was appointed in 1960 and a coffee research team came into being in 1962. The research station at Jacaranda, Ruiri, was not fully established until 1964, but since the beginning, consisting of offices and laboratories, were opened by Mr. Philip Mitchell.

The general aims of the Coffee Research Service is the extension of coffee culture in all parts of the Colony through the assistance of the coffee farmer who requires their advice.

The staff at Jacaranda comprise on a basic research paper than do not depend for growers.

Work is done on the station in well-equipped laboratories and on the experimental plots into which the insects are divided. Insects developed in the laboratory are reared in the field and vice versa.

Research in the laboratories is divided into taxonomy, physiology, entomology and pathology. The entomologist, Mr. Terry Creeve, has a large programme that includes the control of leaf-miner, coffee-syrphid, aphid, scales and anthrax.

CASES CLASSIFIED

In the laboratory he examines in which all the different insects that attack coffee are carefully classified and stored.

Cases containing more than 100 insects are classified as major cases.

Where possible pests attacking coffee are controlled by the introduction of parasites in the case of mealybug.

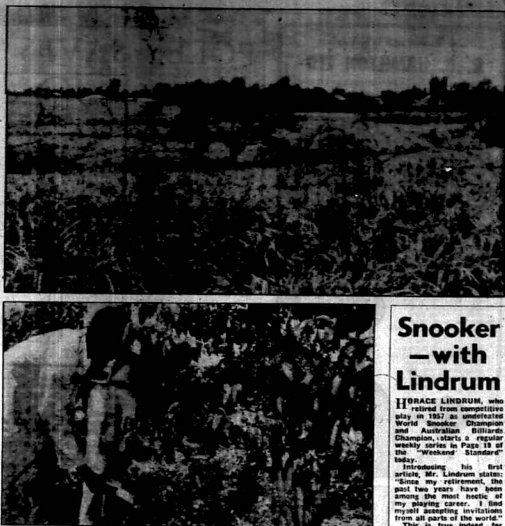

However, insecticides have to be used to a very large extent and so Mr. Creeve is at present trying to control pests such as leaf-miner and mealybug by the use of biological control.

Insecticides have to be tested not only to ensure that they are effective, but for their effect on such things as taste, colour and raising undesirable flavours in the coffee beans.

Mr. Creeve is also examining Mr. K. A. Harcourt's method of spraying with insecticides giving farmers advice.

Because of his experience both in the field and in the laboratory he is in a position to recognise diseases and to give sound advice on insecticides.

It is most important also to use insecticides at the correct time and in the correct way.

Only the VANGUARD has this low-cost story

The conclusions to be drawn from this simple graph are among the most significant ever put to airline operators. It shows that the Vanguard's fuel economy will break even on total route (including costs as taken on) in less than 1000 miles with passenger loads no higher than those actually carried by Vanguards today.

With three tons of freight the passenger break even requirement can be as low as 21 people, falling to only eight passengers when five tons of freight is carried for 500 miles. The Vanguard is a profitable aircraft on today's payloads, yet it has room for the inevitable expansion of traffic which, even at a modest program, makes the Vanguard the biggest potential money-earner ever built.

In addition to its outstanding economy, the Vanguard is fully comparable in speed (433 m.p.h. cruise), and its turbo-prop flexibility will enable it to maintain schedules as good as any, while allowing for realistic trade conditions.

Of all the airliners only the Vanguard has all these features

- 425 m.p.h. cruising
- Full routing and A.T.C. flexibility
- Quick turn-round
- Can use normal existing airfields
- And it's 'Vanguard' quiet

POLEY SAVES THE FAMILY'S NEW PETS

By ROBIINA WRIGHT

"Silly looking things!" properly flabbergasted, remarked Spotty Dog, "they have not any tail."

The friends were discussing the family's new pet—a pair of guinea-pigs and Spotty naturally said a little upset to see two creatures getting attention. Why, even the chairman of the board around and watched them in their pen on the ground.

"How you must not frighten those little animals," said Spotty severely, holding a guinea-pig up to his nose. Spotty turned his eyes the other way and refused to look.

"Willy there," said Spotty, "the family were going out to tea. It seemed a pity to shut the guinea-pigs in their cage so early in the day. I think we can leave them in their pen."

came on. It was too much for Spotty. He dashed to his friend, he turned and ran—and Spotty had his nose thing very hard.

"Thank," barked Poley, "get out of my pen, Spotty! stand and stare at the window. I'm afraid of Poley standing on the jacks. He had the dustbin full of water and he was holding the garden hose with water full on."

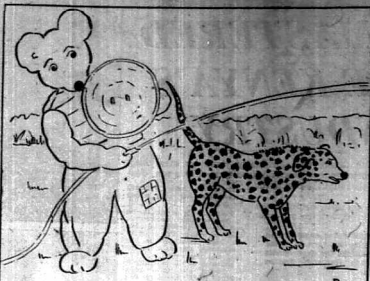

He suggested the hose so that the water came out like a "Jerk there," said Spotty, "Get him!" shouted Poley, dancing with excitement. "Take the water, you brute! And that!" He was getting water on the jacks. He thought that the antirrhinum-of animal soon lapped his dripping tail between his legs and wracked it in the bush.

"Oh, Poley," said Spotty, "you're really a wonderful fellow. You've done it. You've left me to fight alone."

"I'm glad," said Poley, "I had trouble before. This time I'm doing with them. The family name here."

"What are you doing with that hose?" asked the father sternly. But when they heard Poley and Spotty's conversation, he said, "I think you're doing these guinea-pigs very much."

KNARF, the Shadow Boy with the Turned-About Nose, went running down the street. But he ran in into the air and every now and then he bounced in the grass.

"That's what I was bouncing and rolling," said the "red rubber ball," said the Policeman.

BEAT THE CONGO MUTINEERS HELD UP KENYANS AT ROAD BLOCK

THE surprise element in the happenings of the last two weeks in the Congo is attested in Leopoldville. That person, Mrs. Clio Dunbar, of Nairobi, who was scheduled to act as interpreter at a veterinary conference in Leopoldville, was on her way to Kanjo for a similar meeting, writes that she had reached Umuhoira, where it was learned that the Force Publique had retreated in Thythville and was threatening to march on Leopoldville.

The news seemed to come as a complete surprise to everybody and most people totally unprepared. When the Director of the Tropical Diseases at Surgeons Dr. W. G. Beaton, arrived at Leopoldville with Mrs. Dunbar, she was met by the Congo director of veterinary services and other officials, all of whom seemed very apprehensive.

They all seemed to be waiting for some arrangements had been made for the conference and it was about then that rumors started to circulate.

Dr. Beaton met B.E.C. about the conference and it was some of whom told her that she had been beaten up and their goods smashed.

WILD COMEDY AND DEEPEST DESPAIR

Of the dramatists who have become celebrated during the last ten years, Eugene Ionesco is the gayest and the most desperate. His imagination is grotesquely fanciful; he sends minor characters charging down the streets of quiet French towns, creates men and women of endless age, presents a child who cannot add two and two together but who can multiply six billions, and in farces effects as a young man who refuses to marry any girl with less than three noses.

All this is wildly comic, as George Devine and Jean Tardieu say that plays the "The Caretaker," for example, is a masterpiece of the kind of low-willed humor that produces a maximum pleasure through the two brothers.

The plight of the worthless hero in that superb play "The Caretaker," for example, is a masterpiece of the kind of low-willed humor that produces a maximum pleasure through the two brothers.

But in Ionesco there are no positive values at all behind the uproarious laughter. It is the sense of Mr. Ionesco's nihilism that makes his plays so disturbing and so funny. He is neither more nor less than a nihilist who will say anything that is possible behind his teeth.

Such is Mr. Ionesco's opinion of the world of the living for which he writes. He is determined to give his independent and true to his individuality.

He sits in his chair and he kills himself and his mother, and his father and his grandmother, his

COURAGE AND THE REFUGEE BARRIERS

REFUGEE BEER FROM CONGO

This portrait of the heartbroken, hunched refugee from the Congo is distributed by the Congo. It is a picture of a man who has been driven from his home by the war in the Congo.

I HAVE written about the Congo in this story, because I have been at heart of the trouble there. I have seen through this influx of refugees into Uganda from the Congo.

I wanted to, because if I had written the story piece-meal, I might have said more than I ought. Suffice it to say that if I were a Belgian Congo I would change my nationality and live my life in the land of my birth.

Last Sunday as I drove back in Kigenyi from Kampala I had plenty of opportunity to observe and talk to the refugees. My car broke down and I was 11 hours on the journey which normally takes six. While I was stranded my car I talked to those refugees who drove alongside.

They said about their own country that they would drive and go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo.

At the first reason, and the natural fear of men for their women, they men have come from the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo.

I have had a general feeling of the Congo. I have had a general feeling of the Congo. I have had a general feeling of the Congo. I have had a general feeling of the Congo.

There were desperate people coming from an exhausted place. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo.

There was no help for them. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo.

He was not a man. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo.

He was not a man. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo.

He was not a man. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo.

He was not a man. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo.

He was not a man. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo.

He was not a man. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo. They said they would go to the Congo.

There is only for Belgian refugees in Ruanda-Urundi, still in Belgian hands, a Belgian passport and a Belgian visa to search out as they cross the frontier.

THE WEEK'S RADIO

Taking to the air...

By Peter Richards

I LIKED the second of It's a Small World. The subject matter would have been more suitable on television (perhaps that is where the show came from, but even so listeners must have wondered whether the Mafkians had the right idea after all.

Because no matter who lives in the White House they will continue to enjoy the best of two worlds: a luxurious soft interior and plenty of food to enjoy them when the tourists are not around.

I always assume me to be a fan of the radio. I like to hear K.B.S. and the arts and sciences, is an excellent source of news and information. Who knows, they still radio stations might be the only ones I am interested in.

One thing Caroline Green must have been doing when she acquired some sort of professional approach to her radio work. She has been doing it for some time now. She has been doing it for some time now. She has been doing it for some time now.

SOMERSET Maugham's Lawson was another reason for the radio. These short plays are well written and are good to read. I have had the book in my hand for some time now. I have had the book in my hand for some time now.

THE MOVIES

HERACE LINDRUM retired from competitive play in 1957 as undefeated World Snooker Champion. But the past two years have been the most hectic of his playing career. He has found himself accepting invitations from all parts of the world. My latest tour has taken me to Mauritania, South Africa, the Rhodesias, Kenya, and returning to Australia via Malaya and Thailand.

This series of articles will cover positions which have arisen in Lindrum's recent games. In this, the first, he discusses the "screw".

My first tour of the world was in 1957 as undefeated World Snooker Champion. But the past two years have been the most hectic of his playing career. He has found himself accepting invitations from all parts of the world.

RECORD ROUND-ABOUT

FRANK and Ella, king and queen of pop singers, can be heard again in stereo on TAPP. Second thoughts are always useful. No one could deny that Ella's performance of "I Wanna Be Like You" (from South Pacific) was a masterpiece. Her singing was so good that it made me forget that she was a woman.

Local government will finance salaries and terms

U.K. Cabinet line-up after reshuffle

GUARANTEES Mr. Macleod allays civil servants' fear

BRITAIN has decided to cover the increased pay and allowances of overseas civil servants, broadly on the lines of most technical schemes.

The effect of the proposals will be that while local government will bear local rates of salaries and conditions of service, Britain will bear the cost of supplementary pay and allowances necessary for overseas officers.

This was announced in a statement of policy on the evening of yesterday on behalf of the Colonial Secretary, Mr. Macleod.

Undertaking fully observed

Mr. Macleod's statement says: "In 1954 the British Government undertook that when a territory became self-governing and compensation would be sufficient to attract and retain the services of British officers. These undertakings have been fully observed and we have done far to protect existing interests of serving officers. But they do not take effect until self-government, and they afford inadequate inducement to officers to continue to serve."

PREMIER'S ASSURANCE

It is a direct responsibility of the Government to maintain the stability and confidence of the public mind in the face of the changes which are taking place in the territories under its administration. It is the Government's duty to ensure that the rights of the European States will be maintained in Kenya. Mr. Macleod said that he "is glad" in my statement. He said that the Government will continue to support the Federation because it was a step towards self-government. Speaking in Kenya Legislative Assembly on July 28, Mr. Macleod said that the Government will continue to support the Federation because it was a step towards self-government. He said that the Government will continue to support the Federation because it was a step towards self-government.

Plan's effect

The effect of the proposal would be that while local government would continue to bear the cost of salaries and conditions of service, Britain would bear the cost of supplementary pay and allowances necessary for overseas officers. The details of such a scheme and the effect of the proposal would be that while local government would continue to bear the cost of salaries and conditions of service, Britain would bear the cost of supplementary pay and allowances necessary for overseas officers.

One of the Best VENTURE BY CLUBS PROVES A SUCCESS

All but three of a group of 54 African boys saw the sea for the first time when they started a holiday at a temporary camp above the beach at Kambo, near Tewa, north of Mombasa in Kenya, when they first saw the sea and where it was all water.

The Club's Youth Camp, Organiser, Mr. G. W. Griffin, describes the undertaking as successful and says that if other youth clubs, the cost per boy has been less than £10.

The holiday was only made possible through the generosity of various organisations, business firms and individuals who donated the camp site and the land in Mombasa. Capt. G. R. Long, East Africa Command, donated the boys' tall fares and those who donated the boys' fares in the United Kingdom were the British Youth League in National Service, the Royal Air Force Club, the Child Welfare Society (Kenya), the Probation Services in Nairobi (Kenya), the Salvation Army (Kenya).

Free transport
An all company not only provided burials, but also provided the transport for the camp equipment and for the boys to the site. Mr. Griffin assisted in preparing the camp.

Missie M. Griffin and the African youth leaders to run the camp. Mr. Griffin and Mr. Peter Mwangi, aged 20, are volunteers under a Royal Commission scheme to provide aid for underdeveloped countries.

They have been given leave for three months and their employers agreed to accept that Mr. Griffin would return to work in one hour but to be sent from Britain on the same scheme. Mr. Griffin is expected to arrive in Kenya next month.

HIS LORDSHIP OF THE F.O.
NOT for 20 years—since Lord Halifax in 1930—has the British Foreign Secretary led in the House of Lords. By appointing the Earl of Home, the Prime Minister demonstrates his determination to give the House in his own ability to ride the political storm which this body has been subjected to since the outbreak of the war.

Lord Home's transfer from the Commonwealth Relations Office to the Foreign Office is a move which has been widely expected. It is a move which is in the best interests of the country. Lord Home has long been a member of the House of Lords and has been a member of the House of Commons. He has been a member of the House of Commons since 1924 and has been a member of the House of Lords since 1930. CAMPING SITE

Although Mal remains a primitive town because of the rain there are signs that it will soon present less of a seasonal gap and that the holidaymakers will find it increasingly difficult to come down country for their annual spring.

Apart from the rain-curtained fishing boats, some Arab and African fishermen are invited to take visitors for fishing trips inside the forest.

Those who do not have a permit for the area will find it difficult to get a permit. The township's carrying capacity is about 500 people. The density, with charges as low as 20/- a week for each tent and caravan, was 500 a week for each year.

BEHIND FLIGHT BUSTLE

FOR more than two weeks now Nairobi Airport has been the scene of bustle activity of a very special kind—bringing refugees from the Belgian Congo to the continent.

When the planes come in the passengers are met by French-speaking members of the East Africa Women's League and the Red Cross, provided information and caucuses with the most possible details and taken to the transit camp.

It is necessary to provide them with the necessary food and clothing and to ensure that each refugee has a certain lunch or dinner in residence within 30 minutes of his arrival, or 30 people, with a separate kitchen.

It has been a "combined effort" but it appears that as much as it has been expected.

When the crisis started, Mr. East Africa, territorial administrator, was in charge, but Mr. Hayes, acting territorial administrator, now has a plan of carrying out the work of his staff.

Long hours

Mr. Hayes' staff work full-time in the office, while the Nairobi Consulate is working full-time as an acting agent, and the Belgian Government also has a staff.

She also makes out lists of the refugees. One of her staff is in charge of the Belgian Consulate for Brussels with a staff of two.

Mr. Hayes' home job has been to see that the 4 a.m. arrivals are taken care of as far as their first night's accommodation is concerned. Mr. Hayes' staff are working in the airport staff street, and the airport staff are working in the transit camp.

Probably the improvement in the arrival of the refugees from Belgium has been due to the fact that the Belgian Consulate in Nairobi is now working full-time.

Archbishop and Prince's laugh still a mystery

DO you remember this picture? It hit the world's press a little more than 18 months ago and the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, and Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh? When I met the Archbishop in London, I asked him what it was.

He shook his head and said that the picture had caused more trouble than almost anything else it was known of in the Church of England.

COOKED heartily served cold insouciantly enhances the days when you have a plate of cold meats and salads or a simple meal like cheese and eggs.

As one of the easiest recipes to combine and the best for the health.

Given adequate moisture and a little salt, the salads are not too difficult to make.

Salads are best served in a simple bowl, and the dressing should be served in a separate bowl.

UNFORTUNATELY, the scope in the kitchen for the chef is somewhat limited. Apart from cherry, I can think of only one fruit which I hope will take over the role of the traditional centre-piece.

It is called "Cherry Rime" and here is how to make it.

Put the cherries in a small saucepan place over a low heat and simmer for 10 minutes.

Then strain the cherries and add a little sugar and a little lemon juice.

THEATRE SPOTLIGHT TURNS ON THE BACKSTAGE BOYS AND GIRLS

THE excitement of a theatre first night, the dancer in evening dress, chatter and the laughter of the growing of old hands; the sudden hush as lights are dimmed and a smiling back to watch a set show—these are the ingredients on which the theatre manager thrives. He curries favor and the dancers are the increasing story being unfolded for them to raise eye for eye. It is possibly the most important job of the theatre—of the room boys and girls. Just one spotlight centered the leading lady. Who is who has the important job of working the lights?

BEHIND LIGHT

The National Theatre in London, Robert and Joan Armand, and Jack Longford, who has been lighting the stage as well as acting in many shows there since the Who Cares? Quite Modern, Desperate, and Free As A Bird.

He is a peripatetic character from Southern Rhodesia who then to take him on as a manager. He won and his efficiency and enthusiasm have enabled him to make rapid progress in an exacting side of the theatre. He is now the stage manager.

They occasionally play recently as Gull in Lock Up Your Lovers.

Jack Payne joined the Devonian Theatre as stage director in 1938. He has had many years' experience with leading repertory companies such as Dundee, Liverpool and Croydon.

Joan Armand, who is mistress of Nairobi's wardrobe mistress, dresses a point of dress with Kenneth Mason.

Payne is an excellent character actor, but his main ambition is to be a producer. He has produced with Mollie and his Mum several times at the National Theatre, Summer of the Seventeenth Day, in which he also played a leading part, was largely praised by the public.

The scenic artists are Joyce Goldhamer and Anne Knapley-Bell. They have worked on, at the set design and decor the Nairobi productions.

Miss Knapley-Bell came to Kenya in June 1956 and became assistant stage manager under Henry Goodman.

During the period June, 1956, to June 1959, she has worked in that capacity or arranged at practically every play theatre in the British Isles, including several Asian productions staged by Sirva Patel, being sound effects and music for a play in Gujarati, although not understanding one word of the language.

Bill Piggott has been with the theatre since the beginning of 1954. He trained at the Guildford School of Art and worked for the Mercury Theatre in Guildford.

Piggott always manages to capture the essential atmosphere of a play setting. When Geoffrey Winn saw his set for Downer of the Greenleech (Zell) on a recent visit to the theatre, he remarked "Why, it's like the London set."

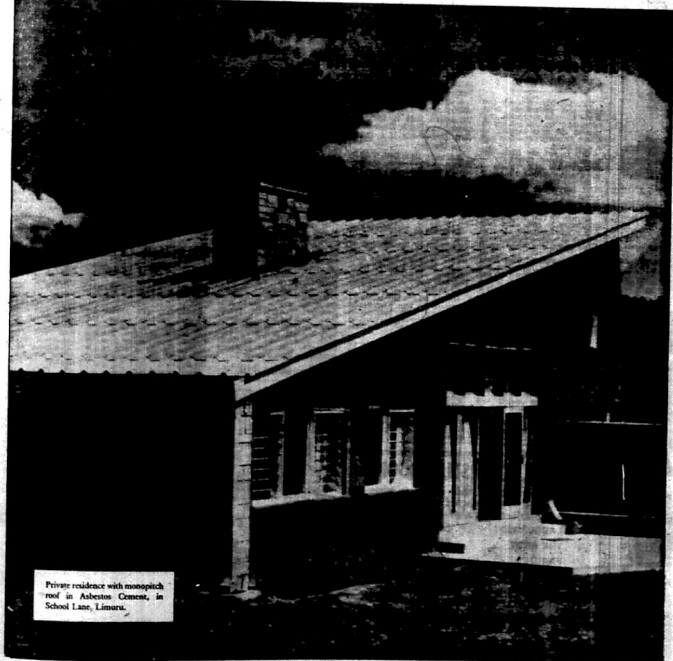

Although there are several other scenic artists, very few use in the theatre world jobs with the scenery, lighting and decor, and it is this combined work that makes Nairobi theatre so spectacular, they are today.

It's a 'dream house'—yet economically built to a sound design with modern materials. One interesting feature of this cool and comfortable chalet at Limuru is its roof construction of Universal Canada Tile Asbestos Cement sheets.

These tiles happily match the style of the house with a result that's harmonious and pleasing. But of equal interest to the prospective house-owner are the other advantages that come with the use of Asbestos Cement:

- * Economy in cost of material
- * The minimum of heat absorption
- * Lightweight and easy construction
- * Choice of five tile colours

Raleigh—most dazzling of courtiers to lose his head

By TIMOTHY BOND

WITHIN a few weeks, two biographies have been published on Sir Walter Raleigh: Both are good ones—a masterpiece by a man who is a man, a courtier, adventurer, scholar and English gentleman.

Of the two, I would give preference to the work of Willard M. Wallace. Raleigh, the author of "The Life of Sir Walter for 30 Years, 1584-1618," justifies his claim to restore honor and real choice of the man who was a man. This is a sharp, meaty, and a new man.

An anecdote of happier times comes from Raleigh's own pen. He was a day, he remarked facetiously, that he could even weigh the wind. This was no joke. Elizabeth, who regarded him as a man, was not a fool. Drawing a portrait of Virginia, he was at the long-suffering silver pipe, he missed the quantity to add.

Afterwards, he weighed the gold which he had had from the weight of the tobacco. The domestic worry the whole while without revealing of him except around the window, his teeth were the front of their heads and he was not a man of the day or of the night.

Retrieved devotion of this man, he is a man of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man.

Under the name of Raleigh, he was a man of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man.

Shard mixture he said in his examination he said in the heart he right, it is no matter which way he said. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man.

Solid figure Unfortunately, for all her skill and enthusiasm, Miss Raleigh does not do as well as she should in the matter of the heart. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man.

'Ice' buyer They are as breathtaking as any that could have been written about the author. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man.

Supreme skill Through the "piano" of the man, Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man. Raleigh's life was a life of a man.

IRISH DESIGNERS GIVE US THE OLD BLARNEY... becomes a new look in London

A new and radical trend has appeared in the autumn and winter collections of the Incorporated Society of London Fashion Designers which opened this morning.

Woolen hosiery... Most of the top 11 couturiers agreed in making silk jackets, dresses, and to a lesser extent, the coats cover to from trousers. It was a trend and a new look.

Unusually, the London couturiers seem to have shown at all times in every collection a touch of the 'Blarney' trend.

Summertime, when the 'Blarney' trend is not so obvious, we have gathered dress with little collars, suits in tweed, draping waist or tightly-fitted jackets, slubbed barrel-neck coats, some with large collars.

With large collars, some silk blouses, some with large collars, some with large collars, some with large collars.

PRINTED SKIRTS... Most chemists suits with vivid colors in printed silk blouses, silk blouses and skirts in plain, brocade and velvet.

John Gavanagh's new 'Blarney' line... The designers of the 'Blarney' line with low-waisted day dresses, and evening gowns falling straight from severe round necklines.

Washed skirts... The 'Blarney' line with high-waisted skirts, long-sleeved jackets, and evening gowns.

Harold's beautifully-cut, hooded raincoat... The 'Blarney' line with hooded raincoats, jackets, and evening gowns.

Michael Sheeran... The 'Blarney' line with slim-fitting suits, jackets, and evening gowns.

Minister... The 'Blarney' line with a startling collection of blouses, jackets, and evening gowns.

Schubert... The 'Blarney' line with a chic collection of blouses, jackets, and evening gowns.

Arya School Tribhuvan Supplement

50 YEARS OF PROGRESS BY INSTITUTION

FIFTY years ago education for Indian girls was still considered by their parents to be an intriguing novelty. Although the difficulties in the way of building up the necessary facilities then prevailed even the great majority of boys have obtained the minimum essential degree of schooling, the desire for imparting literacy to them had become effectively re-kindled and had not ceased to be a block towards enlightened progress.

Accurate records tell us that there was a time during the golden era of Arya civilization when women enjoyed complete equality with men in India. The Aryan did not in the least withhold its benefits from the women of its race. A combination of internal as well as external forces unfortunately thrust a relentless barrier into the entire structure of the society which created the condition of withdrawing the women into the homes, for marrying them off early, and for enforcing the "purdah" system to isolate them against the other sex. Continuous physical domestic labour became the only centre of their interests.

Under such circumstances, the need for education for them had, in the judgment of their Rishis, seemed to have expired.

No wonder therefore that the mental and intellectual faculties thus imposed on the whole of the womanhood accelerated the further collective deterioration of the people.

Eventually a country which had become renowned all over the world for its corporate business sank into the most abject degradation.

DISTINCT SECTS

Even so, from time to time the seeds of the most impressive nature rose out of this deplorable state and made outstanding human beings who were purged their fellow in most cases they were hardly allied to the evils which they had inherited.

In practically every case these great reformers were not allowed to be formed, distill or to be even recognized as decidedly well-meaning persons of extracting as much benefit as possible and to set them on the way of life.

The impact of their noble work has not only been seen among the real truth of the people of the one man, however, who made it his life's purpose to reform the Hindus. He is called "Arya" and was called "from within," with the firm belief that their primitive greatness had sprung from fundamental and eternal truth which had a world-wide significance and which therefore through regeneration was to be restored to the world.

A brief résumé of his work forms one of the most separate articles in this supplement.

To bring into relief a single feature of his work, which he succeeded in accomplishing, we must refer to the real maintenance of the people around him, and the fact that he made the education of the people his chief and only objective.

and the possibility of attending an evening school. In the latter half of the last century when Devraj Das showed his interest on the people around him, his development — the sending of girls to school — was not met with tremendous opposition.

But ultimately not only all the branches of the Hindu, but also of those belonging to the other religions living in India, began to come round to accept the idea.

It was only natural that wherever the people who had become converts to the teaching of the Great Dispensation were, they should try to give practical shape to their tendencies in their new environment.

ACTUAL FOUNDER

It was that, in the year 1910, when Devraj was a near-thoughtful character, that an educational institution, the Kanya Prasad, was founded in the small town of Barabanki in the United Provinces.

The total number of girls who were sent to learn in this institution, was 10.

But slowly the idea began to spread and Mr. Manoj Chandra Prasad provided a room in his city of residence.

The next stage was reached when both the classes were concentrated in the Arya Samaj Mandir, Varanasi, which was then situated in its own place in the city of Varanasi.

Up to this stage, all the expenses of running the school were paid by Mr. Manoj Chandra Prasad, and it was he who was the actual founder of the school.

The original members of this committee were: Manoj Chandra Prasad, Manoj Chandra Prasad, Manoj Chandra Prasad, Manoj Chandra Prasad, Manoj Chandra Prasad.

LIVING SYMBOL OF EQUAL EDUCATION

Indian women's status improved

UP to the beginning of the present century, the education of Indian women was utterly neglected and they had virtually no social status. It was perhaps Swami Dayanand Saraswati who first challenged the inopportune treatment meted out to Indian women.

It was determined that they should have a dignified social status and equal opportunities of education and advancement.

He founded Vedic temples—commonly known as Arya Samaj—all over India. Whichever such institutions were established, provision was made for female education.

The Arya Samajists in East Africa have never failed to establish girls' schools whenever possible.

They have attempted to realize and put into practice the great ideals of Swami Dayanand who is chiefly responsible for the revival and preservation of the Arya Motherhood by his authoritative study of the Vedas.

The Shree Devkanur Arya Girls' School in Dar es Salaam is a living and concrete symbol of such a revival. The school dates back to October 18, 1920, when a village school was opened in Dar es Salaam.

Pioneer of the school was the late Shree Mahabharata Krishna Mehta, and in introduction of his services the school was named after his wife.
