Industrials become firmer in City

INDUSTRIALS developed a firmer tone after a hesitant opening yesterday on the Stock Exchange. Selective buying for next week's account was the reason for this.

Among the industrials, Electrical and Municipal Industries advanced sharply to 40 1/2 on an average. Automation was a firm asset at 40 on an average. The counter-falls in Paris on Wednesday.

Gold shares were more active but copper held steady. Dairies, stores reflected the narrowly creeping rise on Wall Street.

Selling pressure forces prices even lower

ALTHOUGH it was another quiet week on the Nairobi Stock Exchange renewed selling pressure prevented a rise in most sections.

This, in turn, affected prices which tended to ease to even lower levels than those quoted last week. Some selective buying, however, in some of the leading sectors created a certain amount of market activity, but generally was on a restricted scale.

West African Power and Lighting ordinary stock continued to be very actively traded at 167 to 167 1/2, closing for 167 1/2 on the week of 167 1/2.

Death threats to voters in Buganda

ANGRY CROWDS STOP OPENING OF REGISTRATION CENTRES

"Standard" Correspondent, Kampala.
POTENTIAL voters in Buganda have been threatened with death because they have registered for the next Legislative Council election.

Threats of home-burning have been made. Election posters have been torn down and hostile crowds have prevented Government officers from setting up registration centres.

According to one report, threats made against would-be voters in Balewale County have been especially effective by the slaying of coffee trees.

The first official postponement of the postponement campaign came in a Uganda Government Press release, compiled from police reports.

So far, but no further

Having gone so far, the Government would go no further. Mr. J. S. Chapman, Permanent Secretary for Security and External Relations, the man to whom reports of all such incidents were sent, refused to amplify the reports by giving details of the number of cases of intimidation, threats and other incidents which have been reported.

The Minister of the Information Department, Mr. Arthur Siddiqui, said he did not know how many cases or reports of intimidation there had been, but promised to look into the matter.

Later he said: "The Government wishes to encourage on this occasion the number of candidates to be registered in the next Legislative Council election. There has been nothing to suggest that the Government has any intention of postponing the election. It is a matter for the Government to decide whether it should register and that it will do so."

Chiefs in court on polls charges

"Standard" Correspondent, Kampala.
FOUR men arrested in connection with anti-election offences appeared in court on a number of charges. They were a deputy county chief, a member of the Legislative Council, a member of the Uganda National Congress, and a member of the Uganda National Congress.

The charges relate to the alleged use of force and intimidation to prevent voters from registering for the next Legislative Council election.

The men were charged with conspiracy to defraud, with using force to prevent voters from registering, and with using intimidation to prevent voters from registering.

Hostile mob held off by police

"Standard" Correspondent, Kampala.
BUGISI DISTRICT COUNCIL, in Uganda's Province, has protested to the Protectorate Government against the composition of the committee of which was appointed last month to look into the matter in which the council conducts its business, particularly its financial affairs.

The chairman of the committee, Mr. J. S. Chapman, has written to the Minister of Local Government, Mr. C. A. J. Roberts, protesting in the strongest terms possible.

The committee will hold its first meeting on September 15. Mr. Chapman, the Attorney-General, Mr. R. L. D. Dwyer, has written to the Minister of Local Government, Mr. C. A. J. Roberts, protesting in the strongest terms possible.

Mr. Chapman said that the whole nature of the committee is such that it is bound to be biased against the council members. He said that the committee is bound to be biased against the council members because it is composed of members who are not independent of the council.

Not impartial

His council feels that the necessary degree of independence and impartiality will not be attained by the committee because of the bias of its members. He said that the committee is bound to be biased against the council members because it is composed of members who are not independent of the council.

SEEK ID AND STORIES OF KENYA'S PAST IN DANGER OF BEING LOST OR FORGOTTEN

In the twinkling of an eye the prowess, determination and courage of the pioneers, who developed Kenya, will be forgotten.

Books reveal exciting stories like The Man Eaters of Tsavo which describes how lions inflicted a reign of terror on the resolve team struggling to construct a railway from Mombasa to Kisumu, or Mackinder's first ascent of Mount Kenya in 1896, or the remarkable perseverance of Lord Delamere, the Rhodes of East Africa. But the human touch—the little stories of personal endeavour and ingenuity—will disappear.

We can produce special records of the transmuting Kenya. For instance, in the light of the present Government's technical appointments programme of engineering and all we can find tributes to those people, many of whom were already dead, who in those days or another did so much for this country from its barren land ravaged by famine, disease and famine. Some of the most interesting and valuable records of the past are those which are being produced by the Kenya Pioneer Society.

Some do not yet remember the first good coffee, the first good cotton, sheep, horses, or pigs; no one will know how coffee was first successfully grown. No one will stop to think of the pioneer who built the first telegraph to Kenya or the first railway, or the first motor vehicle or how Nairobi became so beautiful a city with a remarkable diversity of buildings.

Without telephones, radio, or motor cars, the pioneer service to other countries, the early pioneers had to be resourceful. When a wagon or other vehicle broke down, somebody had to mend it. When a horse died, somebody had to arrange to transport the carcass to a tannery for hides. When you posted a letter to Nairobi it meant that the "Nairobi Mail" would arrive on Thursday, depending on how often it stops. When the men went away to work the women had to manage their farms and businesses in hardship.

These are the human stories which will give the memory of people facts on the progress of the country. It is a record of these achievements before it is too late.

ANECDOTES WANTED
The East African Pioneer Society plans to create a memorial to those few people who contributed so much. It will take the form of a handsome publication, published and other details of such a family. This book will be limited to published, intended for circulation, and of interest personally concerned. Entries will be accepted on an absolutely non-arranged basis, and one hundred others with a page or more, and one with a "Who Did It" and

"How Was It Done?" Instead of merely a "Who Did It" and "How Was It Done?" and interesting anecdotes... it will have a very comprehensive index. It is surprising that so few gentlemen... the names of Mrs. Gladys... and Mr. H. W. Wardle, Ph.D. (London), and also a member of the Pharmaceutical Society in 1906 near Nairobi, with such a list of growing drugs... drive it up to Nairobi to labour.

Child Colony in 1920

By MAY CULLI
A small child sitting on a farm with its parents, a trip to Nairobi 10 years ago was a great day when everything seemed very mysterious. I found it all so fascinating and we soon realised we would have to see the train when it came to the station. The train was so long that it seemed to be crawling like a caterpillar, or so it seemed to the children.

that "little extra" makes all the difference!

It's the same with petrol too—Shell petrols are the only ones with I.C.A.

Here's why I.C.A. (Ignition Control Additive) makes all the difference: Shell scientists first perfected their amazing chemical "I.C.A." when developing military aircraft. But I.C.A. is equally in modern car engines. Why?—because it greatly reduces the harmful effects of deposit left behind in every petrol-burning engine. I.C.A. makes all our engines more efficient—another economy-saver! In fact, I.C.A. also saves money by giving your engine a new lease of life and greatly increasing the mileage between "de-coke".

DEFENCE STUDENTS MEET G.O.C.

THE residence of the G.O.C. Maj. Gen. Sir Noel Tapscott and Lady Tapscott was again a rendezvous for students from the Imperial Defence College, London, when they met Kibera citizens and officers of East Africa Command.

The 12 students—officers from Colombia, territories and Commonwealth—were accompanied by a Commonwealth Liaison Officer, Major General Sir Noel Tapscott, Commandant of the College.

They left Kenya yesterday for the A.M.S.

No fewer than 24 students appeared at a visit to Kibera as part of their year's activities. The Group Capt. D. W. Kingwell, A.M.S., of the Royal Australian Air Force, had good reason for wishing to make the visit as his lecture was given to the Kibera South team in Kenya.

CHIEF EXPORT, REPORT SAYS

DISPITE political troubles, some strife and much sensational press comment, 1959 was a record year for the East African tourist trade.

More than 64,000 people visited the territories during the year—an increase of ten per cent on the 1958 figure.

U.S. OFFICIAL PRAISED

The number of American visitors increased by 30 per cent over the 1958 figure to 6,623 and the association of South Africa obtained "reasonable results."

The report states that despite the efforts of the publicity association and newly formed local associations, a lack of publicity material for up-country, there is still a need for an advertising campaign.

During the year the individual Government had provided increasing amounts of publicity material.

LUMUMBA U.N. TO Q

Premier wins backing of Senate

LUMUMBA last night called for the withdrawal of all United Nations forces from the Congo. The Prime Minister issued the demand after winning a vote in the Senate of 41 votes to 2. He said the U.N. had militarily occupied the country since August and the radio station. He would continue to ask for technical co-operation and assistance.

The Senate voted earlier to reject the declaration by President Kasavubu dismissing the Premier and several members of the Government. When Mr. Lumumba's speech was made, the result announced he turned round, grinned broadly, and held his hands in the air and exchanged greetings with his supporters. Shouts of "Uhuru" greeted the announcement. The Senate had earlier heard the Foreign Minister, Mr.omboko, and Minister-President in Belgium, Mr. Debuys, defend their decision to countenance Kasavubu's order dismissing Mr. Lumumba and replacing him by the Senate President, M. Joseph Llo.

Asked if he planned to sleep in the Senate today, he replied: "Why should I?" He took a long breath and said: "I am going to sleep at home tonight and not be disturbed."

Mr. Debuys, speaking many of his names appeared to be firm. He said Government policy had been to let him hold power yesterday morning without any right to be disturbed.

T.U.C. faces both ways on H-bomb policy
 This photograph, showing the summit of Kibo on Mount Kilimanjaro and the crater rim, was taken from a South African Airways Boeing 707 aircraft, at a height of 27,000 feet, during a demonstration flight from Nairobi.

DEFENCE BY NUCLEAR THREAT REJECTED

DELEGATES representing more than 8,000,000 trade unionists sat in a stunned silence at Douglas, Isle of Man, yesterday, after taking decisions which leave their movement facing both ways on nuclear defence policy - for and against the hydrogen bomb.

The annual assembly of the Trades Union Congress, first dealt with the official policy of Mr. Hugh Gaitskell, the Labour Party leader, by backing a resolution rejecting any defence policy based on the threat to use nuclear force.

Because of a mistake over vote counting it was at first announced that this had been carried by a majority of only 25,000 votes. But Sir Vincent Tennyson, T.U.C. secretary, later announced that the vote was actually 48,000 in favour and 231,000 against - a majority of 143,000.

HISTORY OF COMMERCE

In the early stages of the world's history, the means of transport were primitive and the means of communication were slow. The invention of the steam engine and the internal combustion engine revolutionized transport and communication. The invention of the telephone and the radio revolutionized communication. The invention of the airplane revolutionized transport. The invention of the computer revolutionized communication.

FIRM UNDERTONE KEPT AT NAIROBI CALL-OVER

London leaders marked down

DESPITE a severe correction last night on Wall Street, the undertone on London Stock Exchange yesterday was satisfactory.

London leaders were marked down slightly at the opening under the influence of the American market. In the absence of any news before the market opened, shares were quietly firm, but the market was not very active.

NAIROBI STOCK MARKET opened the week on a quiet note but rallied under the influence of buying interest in leaders. The most important was East African Airways, which rose 1/2 to 10/16 after a call-over.

BRITAIN CAN LEARN TO COUNT IN TENS

A BRITISH business executive told the British Association meeting in Cardiff that "if other countries can learn to count their money and weight by tens, so can Britain."

Other countries have adopted the metric system, and the British Government is now considering doing so. The advantages of the metric system are many, including simplicity and uniformity.

Governor takes glimpse into history

The Governor and his party were shown around the fort by the curator and warden of Coast Historic Sites, Mr. J. F. Kirkman. This tour was a break from the usual round of duties for Sir Patrick and Lady Renison. Their engagements in the Province have included the opening of a Mission to Seaman premises and visits to hospitals and schools.

LADY RENISON MEETS TOMORROW'S CITIZENS

COME of the younger pupils of the Arab Girls' School, Mombasa, are seen above lined up to greet a very important visitor, and on all such occasions the reactions reflected in the children's faces range from the overwrought and respectful, through the various degrees of curiosity, down to the slightly blasé.

On the left the camera captures a proud moment for five-year-old Muejuna Ali, a patient at the Coast Province General Hospital, Mombasa. Lady Renison stops to talk to the girl on her tour of the hospital accompanied by the Provincial Matron, Miss M. A. Bicknell.

The Governor, too, spends some time with Kenya's citizens. He is seen, above right, watching a geography class during a visit to the Mombasa Institute of Muslim Education.

Kisumu cathedral ready

A VIEW of the interior and the entrance to the new Roman Catholic cathedral at Kisumu, Kenya, and officially opened in October 5.

The Standard's Kenyan Correspondent writes: Probably the most imposing thing about the building is that it is the work of African labour under the supervision of Brother Andrew Shindler of the Mill Hill Mission. Bricks came from the farm near Kisumu, a 12-inch diameter pipe from England, A.R.I.B.A., the cathedral has had a magnifying of 2,500 including 100 in the chancel. Named after St. Theresa, the church has steel-framed windows designed and made by Brother Thomas, of Mill Hill. They are set local scenes including some of Hippopotami and Kilimanjaro's protected forest.

Gifts have come from all over the world to complete the cathedral.

TRAPPIST MONKS LEAD LIFE OF WORK AND PRAYER AT LUMBWA

By Alan White

WORK and prayer. This is the life of a monk. It is, as a matter of fact, the life of 24 monks, living their lives in medieval poverty and silence, participating in a tradition as old as Christianity itself.

The monks are members of the Roman Catholic Order of Cistercians of the Strict Observance, commonly called "Trappists".

Their monastery, one of a hundred scattered over the face of the earth, is nestled high in the remote hills of Nyanza's Kericho District, about ten miles north of the town of Lumbwa. The monks, both African and European, are engaged in agriculture, stock raising, and the making of beer. They are also engaged in the making of paper, and in the making of soap.

The first monks came to Lumbwa in December, 1906, from Thier, Holland, where they had been members of the famous Abbey of Our Lady of Endruve.

IN SILENCE

After an unassisted, bogged and at times a most arduous journey, the monks arrived at Lumbwa. Their first building was an early form built by the monks themselves, and it was the first building in the district. The first building was a simple structure, built of mud and thatched with grass. The monks lived in a simple, austere life. They were engaged in agriculture, stock raising, and the making of beer. They were also engaged in the making of paper, and in the making of soap. They were also engaged in the making of cloth, and in the making of shoes. They were also engaged in the making of furniture, and in the making of other articles of domestic use.

Two African novice monks.

To find the most suitable ones. The emphasis is on the monks' life, and on their work. They are engaged in agriculture, stock raising, and the making of beer. They are also engaged in the making of paper, and in the making of soap. They are also engaged in the making of cloth, and in the making of shoes. They are also engaged in the making of furniture, and in the making of other articles of domestic use.

U.S. URSURGE

Two younger daughters, Cory and Willy, are provided with their schooling by the monks while an older daughter, Gertrude, helps her mother with the household and family concerns.

At Lumbwa is to be found the first foundation of Trappists in Africa. Madagascar, Africa and Portuguese West Africa.

They have a Cistercian foundation. The French Cistercians have the first monastery with an early convent of Trappist nuns.

In the United States there has also been an upsurge in the monastic life, especially since the end of the war. Now there are 17 Trappist monasteries in America. The largest and most famous is the Abbey of Our Lady of Loretto, near Erie, Pa.

ART EMPHASIS

Although his pen is prolific, Thomas Merton is known to his fellow-monks simply as Father Louis. He shares on the same simple farm as the monks, and is a member of the community. He is a writer and a mystic. He is also a poet, and a philosopher. He is also a mystic, and a philosopher.

INNER PURITY

Our Lady of Victory Monastery, the formal title of the religious community is a direct descendant of this sturdy but mobile life. The Lumbwa monks, he they pray, say, meditate or study, work and pray in the Christ-like humility and simplicity of the desert fathers. St. Benedict called the Father of Western Monasticism, based on the customs of the Egyptian hermits with his own private wisdom added in the sixth century.

This is the 19th century of Moleme, in an attempt to revive the simplicity of the primitive Benedictine way of life. Founded, a monastery at Clonfert, in the Shropshire region, in the reign of Edward of Clonfert, the Clonfert was the mother foundation for all the houses of the Cistercian family.

Comet and whisky

NEXT Friday's "Week End Standard" will contain a 12-page supplement to mark the inaugural opening of the Comet service by East African Airways.

Fully illustrated articles which trace the progress of aviation in the three territories and all aspects of modern-day air services will be covered.

Scotch . . .

For Scots, in particular, there will be also a two-page supplement on the noble art of whisky making—and drinking.

Keynote living in the Kitale District will find a two-page feature on their home town—amply illustrated with photographs taken by Peter Heestrich.

Besides all this there will be the regular "Week End Standard" features aimed at providing something for every member of the family.

it's the same with petrol too—Shell petrols are the only ones with I.C.A.

Here's why I.C.A. PASTURELAND CARVED OUT OF THE BUSH

By LESLEY CLAY
SINCE his father died in 1919 Mr. David Brooch, born in Nyoro, has managed Kisumu Estate in a large valley on the Elburgun side of Nyoro for his mother. In addition, he farms 1,100 acres of his own on the plains where his father first started farming.

The farm was purchased in 1944 by the late Mr. T. J. Brooch who had been farming on the Nyoro plains since 1923. At that time only 300 of the 1,112 acres had been cleared, part of small corner, all the land has been cleared, most of it stumped and divided into sixteen 40- to 50-acre fields and 25- to 30-acre paddocks, which are on the steeper slopes and permanently under Kikuyu and star-grass pasture.

PEDIGREE CATTLE
Kisumu Estate is at an altitude of 5,000 ft. The stable fields are under an eight-year rotation, four years crop and four years ley. 150 acres are under maize, 200 under wheat and 50 acres of oats, barley or fodder.

The grazing is utilised by a herd of high-class pedigree Ayrshire cattle, which were graded up from one grade by the use of pedigree bulls over the last 20 years and imported here by the last four years.

DAILY YIELD
There are 150 cows handled daily and giving a total average of two gallons a cow.

Concentrates are only fed to cows giving over two gallons a day to the dry weather and 10 to 15 to the wet weather. In the month of July, he has a daily output of 200 lbs. of milk, which is sold to the Nyoro district.

There is also a flock of 1,000 sheep, which were bred from native ewes, and recently five imported New Zealand ewes were introduced. The flock now stands at 100 breeding ewes.

Every field on the farm now has water piped to it and a water trough. There is an adequate supply of water from

It is through moral and physical well-being that modern nations attain their greatness and stability. The principle of moral well-being is the Christian. They wear sandals without socks and sleep in the same robes that they wear and study by day. Although it keeps them busy on a number of things, the quietness of the monks is so deep on their faces that they are almost in a comatose condition. They are so quiet that they have a habit of their own hands and feet, thus providing him with a medium of prayer.

The day at Lambuja begins at 2 a.m., when the monks rise to begin their litany of prayer and to begin the "Devote Office" which is a series of prayers and "hours", which are prayed at different times throughout the day. The heart of the Devote Office is the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, which each monk offers individually every day, and which is followed by the office called Matins, in which the monks pray for the souls of the dead.

HIGH MASS
After the private prayer, which takes about 30 minutes, the monks go to the Roman Church at dawn and attend the High Mass, a service of praise and thanksgiving, which is the result of the monks' devotion.

VALLEY VIEW
After Lambuja the priest starts his morning work in the forest. Before the last of the Mass, which is a solemn High Mass, the monks are engaged in their morning prayer. Col. Meinertzhagen writes an exciting Army diary

By MAJ. W. ROBERT FORAN

COL. R. MEINERTZHAGEN'S latest book, Army Diary, 1914-1918, follows much the same pattern as his earlier book, Kenya Diary, 1902-1906, which many will have read with interest and enjoyment.

It covers his Army career during 27 years' service in peace, war and on the Staff, but naturally centres in the period of his service with the K.A.S. in British East Africa during the early years of the present century.

This is an interesting autobiographical record in diary form of Army service in home and overseas. It is written with the help of his wife, Mrs. Meinertzhagen, who has assisted him with his illustrations, of the Staff College in Quetzal, Chief of Staff, and of the Staff College in Quetzal, Chief of Staff, and of the Staff College in Quetzal, Chief of Staff.

It is a valuable contribution to the history of the British Army in East Africa, and a valuable record of the life of a distinguished soldier and statesman.

The diary is written in a clear and readable style, and is a valuable record of the life of a distinguished soldier and statesman.

Jewish State survived by courage ISRAEL HAD A DUNKIRK, TOO...

By RICHARD GOOLD ADAMS

IT is terribly easy to take a pace for granted. The world rushes on at such a pace that Israel's Dunkirk in 1948 is all but forgotten.

Both sides of the Hill - Britain and the Palestine, by Don and David Kinloch (Secker and Warburg, 25/-), and No Alternative, by D. R. Eaton (Hutchinson, 25/-), however, convey a vivid sense of the courage and intelligence which alone enabled the Jewish State to survive at all.

Jan and David Kinloch's authoritative analysis is particularly welcome. It covers the events leading up to Britain's withdrawal from Palestine, together with a detailed history of the fighting.

Mr. Eaton, on the other hand, has used his own experience as a newspaper correspondent since 1948 right through to the Soviet campain in 1956, and, unexpectedly, his mass the more readable book.

For experts
The book is written for a little while, since it depends on the reader's writing as it were from the inside, the author's own knowledge of the history, to the Middle East, and to the Jewish state.

Mr. Eaton has tried to tell us all outside what it was like in the front through the period, what the Jews achieved, and how desperate had they become at the end.

On one point, however, the Kinloch authors are in agreement. The Jews were not so much a nation, but a people, and it was this which enabled them to survive.

Abyssinian war starts period of tension PATROLS BEHIND ITALIAN LINES

The Italo-Abyssinian war involved the police in having to shoulder many additional burdens. To cope with them, the strength of the force in the Northern Frontier was considerably increased.

The Manders unit had to patrol the frontier from Moyale to Mandera and from the latter to El Wak. Seven new police posts were established, each being manned by two or more African constables.

A large influx of Abyssinian refugees necessitated the construction of a refugee camp at Indalo, where about 10,000 men, women and children were housed and kept under guard until it was possible for them to return to their own country.

A special unit under the command of the assistant D. M. McCann, which was equipped to this manner and unswerving faith, was formed with great success and efficiency.

ON BORDERS

The Northern Frontier Province never presented a lessening for any length of time, experienced a contraction period of activities and a period of rest from caring for masses of refugees and for the maintenance of the "border" posts.

That night 50 armed Somalis reached their bivouac to find a patrol of 100 men, which was a result of a prolonged search for their trouble-makers. They were in great pain, completely

"Sewing is so easy with a SINGER"

BEFORE WAR
Previously Scotland Yard was mainly a police force of dogs trained to hunt down criminals and to protect the public from the activities of the underworld.

France, Belgium, Germany, Canada and South Africa were the first to employ dogs to assist police forces before the outbreak of the Second World War.

The inspiration proved so successful that it led to similar developments elsewhere. New Zealand imported its first police dogs from Britain four years ago. Now the Dominion Police are equipped with them.

KENYA ARMOUR
Often the work of the dogs is highly important. In the Mau Mau uprising in Kenya, the dogs were used to discover and destroy caches of arms and explosives hidden in the bush.

POSTS MANNED
It was decided in the event of war, all the police within the overall command of the Army and the Air Force, gathering in the Northern Frontier Province, the Southern Frontier of Kenya was transferred to the P.A. Force Squadron and S.A. Engineers.

The results are invaluable for giving warning of an approach which has disappeared into the night.

LONG TRAINING
It is easily understood, therefore, why the training of these dogs is a long and specialized job. It takes between three and four months for a dog to become a police dog.

SCOTLAND YARD BREEDS ITS OWN POLICE DOGS
THE most remarkable development in police methods since the war has been the use of dogs.

JOHN REED tells the story of the part played by dogs throughout the world in the never-ending war against crime.

TIMID BRUCE
Robert Bruce, the hero of every English schoolboy, appears as a half-breed in the play. Bruce is to be King Edward's noblest friend. Wallace himself, though he talks in his own little, and is something of a simpleton. He is caught by a stranger that would not let him leave. Little Red Riding Hood for half a while, of a well's credit. King Marjaret is really very weakly indeed.

MARILYN MONROE FINDS BILLIONAIRE

SINCE Cinderella longed for her prince, Harun-Al-Rasheed listened to the tales of Scheherazade and the story of the mighty prince and the lovely girl was caught in many forms, but never more amusingly than in 20th Century-Fox's "Let's Make Love". The story is of a billionaire who falls in love with a show girl but he would be loved for himself alone and not for his money.

First titled "The Billionaire", the film was originally scheduled as a vehicle for Betty Bryner. When the studio was looking for a suitable script for Marilyn Monroe it was Jerry Wald who laid her out the outline of "The Billionaire".

Marilyn asked the plot and characterizations. Why Bryner was not available, on George Cukor was assigned to the film. Marilyn's husband, playwright Arthur Miller, read the "Let's Make Love" script and suggested that a dropping of would enhance the film's popularity. He readily agreed, whereupon Cukor, without much or at all this time. The picture would not be his part. He would not be his part. He would not be his part. He would not be his part.

TONY BRITTON - restoring Anne Goddard's "The Seagull".

Robert Michael's "The Seagull" is a play of high quality and with some good and a few beautiful things. It is a challenge and difficult part and Peter Hudson makes it remarkably. There is that in his character and mood which is unusual. But in the critical passage of the play, it does not appear as so abundant with the quality of the play as it is.

Three "Incomers" - Marcia Billman and her doll from the new London show. "This Property is Goddamned" - Anne Harwood stars at Greenwood, the play, a bug after it was at the Variety Club's meeting at Sandown Park and Epstein Road and Salford Grove in a film on the "Incomers".

Glitter makes up for lack of new Florence line

THE women of Italy can go around wearing exactly what they please (more or less) because there is no new line. In fact, it is no evidence (even to the designers) that there was no new line, that one and all tried to make up for lack of line with other things like glitters. Anything that shines, gleams or glistens seemed to fascinate the designers. So now we have gilt and metal finishes, pearlized leather, highly polished helmets, shiny brooches, lams, metallic buttons, etc.

Not to mention the most incredible jewelry: Gullina's fairy and pearl brooches passed to the shoulders with chains of small rubies and pearls falling to the waistline. It looked just like something out of a fairy tale. Gullina's collection was more like a fireworks display. Now we have never-before shades of ruby pink and green. There are colors like vibrant yellow, blue, and green and tones.

Brown is also back. Brown is a sad color, and very few people can wear brown in such a way that it does something for them. Mostly, it makes expressions muddy.

ALWAYS THERE

Anyway, brown is back. Anyway, of course, and so is black. But then, does black ever die? The number of "no-line black dresses" now to be seen in stores is not even slight. France shows in light. The last one brought out by Gullina's collection was one about ready to take dark places to say Rome night.

TOP HONOURS FOR IDEAS

WHEN it comes to originality and innovations on ice, the Holiday on Ice shows, which have the added honor of being on ice to contend with.

Year after year she and her associates, Donald Patrick and Chester Hale, come up with numbers that have audience breathless and create the magic feeling that you have just stepped off a stage carpet into a land of make-believe.

But the responsibility of performing these intricate and unusual production numbers falls on the capable and pretty shoulders of 48 talented young ladies who form the Glamour-ice chorus.

These Glamour-ice are as carefully selected as their counterparts on the variety stage. Each line section

East Africa is invited to take a gay 'Holiday on Ice'

By GABRIEL LYON

THE biggest most spectacular and certainly the most expensive show ever to be seen in East Africa will be presented in Nairobi, later this month which has been described in newspapers as only by publicity men, but also by audiences as wide as those of Moscow, New York, London and Delhi in the American Holiday on Ice spectacle.

One single fact of praise emphasizes the quite lavish production. The cost of the show alone costs more than $200,000.

To reward this huge investment the Holiday on Ice company plans an arena which will seat not only 10,000, but 15,000, they have, in fact, hired Nairobi's City Park Stadium.

EXTRA SEATS

Even this though does not provide sufficient accommodation for the audience of 1500 the company's confidence has to attract.

A representative of Holiday on Ice said that about 1,000 extra seats would be installed specially for the show, using existing seats in the stadium which will be let behind at double the normal price.

The expense of bringing such a show to Kenya is of course, enormous. Apart from the cost of 60 artists, the company will be let behind at double the normal price.

And it is doing just this. Seats for the two shows will be sold for 15/- and 10/- for the first and second nights respectively from 7/5 to 12/6. The Governor of Kenya, Sir Philip K. Mitchell, has been invited to open the first show.

By the time the show opens the company's representatives in Nairobi will have been working for some time.

Taking to the air...

By PETER RICHARDS

WITH my frenetic program for local stations, I find a peak listening time which keeps me busy for quite some time.

From the K.B.S. news, which we will read, we heard that Africa. It is a beautiful country which has greatly improved over the last few years.

John Callaghan's description of a potential indigenous political movement around the world seemed all flowers no matter what their race. Generally the delivery and flow was an indication of his moderate feelings from London.

Dorothy Chambers and her band came over very well, and the group is to be congratulated for its musical and related style shows in this weekly news. Miss Chambers of the piano has an excellent sense of rhythm.

Elizabeth Montgomery sang "I may not have pleased everybody because of my choice, but the record of my performance is particularly laudable. And Frank Crocker has evidently the happy knack of putting his victims at ease."

A CORNER OF THEIR OWN FOR CHILDREN

POLEY RUNS FOR KEYVA AT ROME

THE father of the family... Poley was given an Olympic jersey and felt very special himself.

PAINT this picture, send it to the Feature Editor with your age and you may win a prize.

No medals—but a special ticket

"I could go and buy the increases I am willing to pay... When he looked round and saw the policemen were after him as well, Poley felt that there was only one thing for it.

Men were racing on the track and Poley was racing with them. All was so thought, "these policemen won't catch me now."

At last he was free. He began picking up some of the coins and putting them into his little bag. He had collected quite a lot when the children saw what he was doing and called out to him.

Unexpected pleasure as Billy May plays cha-cha-cha-ing jazz

By JOHN MITCHELL IN the past I have never been one of Billy May's great admirers, and it must be confessed that an album called 'Cha Cha' Billy May (Capitol T 1329) lay about for several days before I got round to playing it.

automatically assumed the disc to be of American origin, so smooth and polished that it really surprised me when I listened to it.

The tone itself all involve little or no change of course, but variations in melody are achieved by switching the notes. You're the Cream of the Crop, Yellow Rose of Texas, Orange-Coloured Broomstick, Londoners, I had

'loop' climax of display by R.A.F. team

SOARING through East Africa's skies during the past fortnight, four Hunter FGA 9 single-engine fighters - bombers have been making quite a name for themselves. The high-speed acro pilot them have been officially nominated as the aerobatic team of the British Forces Arabian Peninsula Command, which includes the Royal Air Force in East Africa.

They are led by Sgt. Lt. Bob Kemmer, Commander of No. 209 Squadron, stationed at Salisburi.

TIGHT FORMATION

The team, which also includes P/Os Gwynne, P/Os P. J. Bree, McLennan and P/Lt. Peter Robinson, is to be seen in aerobatic displays throughout Africa and Arabia.

The climax of their displays comes when the pilots, after a series of close formation manoeuvres, put their aircraft through the loop.

QUICK RETURN

Earlier this year the pilot and ground crew of 208 Squadron were flown to the Middle East in England, for two months' intensive training in aerobatics.

The return flight of the squadron to Kenya was made via the East and West coasts of Africa, through Malindi, Cyprus, Malta, Crete, Sicily, the Italian coast, the Straits of Gibraltar and the Azores, the 13 aircraft arriving at Salisburi Airport two and a half days after leaving England, having flown over 7,000 miles.

Eyes for the pilot

HOW instruments give the pilot better "eyes" than his own is evident from the wealth of new electronic equipment now on view at the 1949 Flight Display, being exhibited at the Fairbairn Organized Aviation Society's annual show.

Available by more than 40 aircraft manufacturers, these rugged gadgets enable pilots to "see" bad weather or mountain obstacles many miles ahead and electronic instruments give the pilot a "heads-up" view of the terrain. The new "eyes" are being used by the Royal Air Force's aerobatic team, which created a rift recently at the British Exhibition in London. It enables ground controllers to see an aircraft's position almost instantaneously on a television screen against a map of the surrounding area.

Fig. 1: ASTHMA COUGH

It is very easy and often mistaken to think that a cough is a simple ailment. In fact, it may be a sign of a serious condition. If you have a cough that is persistent, or if it is accompanied by other symptoms such as wheezing, chest pain, or shortness of breath, you should consult your doctor. The following is a list of some of the causes of a cough:

- 1. Asthma: A chronic condition characterized by inflammation and narrowing of the airways.
- 2. Allergies: A reaction to an allergen, such as pollen, dust, or mold.
- 3. Infections: A viral or bacterial infection of the respiratory tract.
- 4. Acid reflux: Stomach acid flowing back into the esophagus and irritating the throat.
- 5. Smoking: Irritation of the airways by cigarette smoke.

Bill Fritschy writes about NAIROBI TO SALISBURY

In 45 Hours

A few weeks ago Mr. John Hildrew, a Design and Development engineer of a well-known engineering firm, received a cable requesting him to Salisburi for a commission to be started in three days. The instant receipt of the report, naturally, would have been by air, but Mr. Hildrew wanted to take some time to make the journey alone and to see the country. He decided to leave Nairobi by road. In his stead, to make the journey alone and to see the country, he decided to leave Nairobi by road. In his stead, to make the journey alone and to see the country, he decided to leave Nairobi by road.

CITY TO CITY BY 'COPTER

By JAMES CARTER

MORE than 600 Britons are taking to the air in 1950 as the nation streamlines its ways to meet international trade competition and give its people an even higher standard of living.

More executive flying, consolidation of the aircraft industry for larger and speedier production, cheaper air fares, revolutionary technical developments — all point to a new era of greater air-landings.

Mr. Alan Gray recently inaugurated Massey's new executive helicopter service, which will enable the firm to transport a member of staff to another plant in a matter of minutes. The firm's new route is a four-hour round-trip by car — and returning in time for lunch.

BANANA TANK

Meanwhile plans for large-scale manufacture of air-cushioned hovercraft are under way. The hovercraft, which are used for the sea and inland waterways, are being developed by the Admiralty. They are being used for the sea and inland waterways, and are being developed by the Admiralty.

BUG LINK

And now comes news from the Admiralty that a qualified engineer will be in the time and money of a qualified engineer? I can't say. The hovercraft, which are used for the sea and inland waterways, are being developed by the Admiralty.

'SOFT-AIR' TUNNEL HELPS SOLVE SPACE TRAVEL PROBLEMS

A 'SOFT-AIR' tunnel has been installed in Maryland Hall at Johns Hopkins University where scientists from various American universities will conduct experiments on the effect of turbulence in air-water gas and other media. The tunnel, which is 100 feet long and 10 feet in diameter, will be used for the study of air flow around objects. It is the first of its kind in the world.

It is the movement seen in a soft air tunnel that causes a smoke stack when the fast-moving air is forced through a water tunnel from the fast-moving air. The tunnel, which is 100 feet long and 10 feet in diameter, will be used for the study of air flow around objects. It is the first of its kind in the world.

Blades, a metal grid screen, avoid making total waves. The blades, which are made of metal, are used to reduce the turbulence in the air flow. They are used in the study of air flow around objects.

In the air which then passes through the screen and is eliminated any noise. The blades, which are made of metal, are used to reduce the turbulence in the air flow. They are used in the study of air flow around objects.

SECOND GOLD MEDAL FOR BRITAIN

Thompson walks his way into Olympic honours

BRITAIN won their second gold medal of the 1956 Olympics when, after a marathon walk, quickly to the Thompson, who had walked the 50 kilometers walk, showing an excellent exhibition for the long legs, Thompson stands like the statues to win a prize from the Sports King (Lambert), who had matched pace for years for the 50 kilometers.

His time of 4 hours 25 minutes 27 seconds, was three times the time taken by the 1956 winner, Norman Reed of New Zealand. Reed, who had walked the 50 kilometers in 14 hours 45 minutes, had dropped out through exhaustion after 30 kilometers and returned to the stadium in an ambulance. Highlight of the sporting events was the 400 metres relay.

The British team, consisting of William Hudson, in their 400 metres relay heat, had a very good start, but were overtaken by the United States team, who were led by the American sprinter, James H. Ray. The British team finished 20th, with Hudson leading.

Denmark, from Russia, with the 400 metres relay team, were the only team to finish the 400 metres relay heat.

Temper fray in fight

In the Olympic final today, Kenyan marksman Curtis was probably during the final average 80 or better for 100, and for 100 or better for 100 of each of four targets, an 85 or better for 100.

Everyone likes to do his best, but only a few do it. Curtis was probably during the final average 80 or better for 100, and for 100 or better for 100 of each of four targets, an 85 or better for 100.

AIRPORT EXTENSIONS OPEN NEW ERA

The Governor of Kenya, the Patrick Renison, yesterday afternoon opened Mombasa Airport's new runway, at the end of his tour of Kenya's Coast Province.

He said the additional length and strength of the runway would enable East African Airways to operate its four-engine Canadian aircraft on a new inter-city route in East Africa from October 1.

Paying tribute to E.A.A.'s fine record of achievement, he said the corporation, owned jointly by the three East African Governments, was "a striking example of successful inter-territorial co-operation."

The Governor recalled that the agreement for the building of the oil refinery on the Chan-der-Berwiling of the Governor said that in 1948 there was a daily service by a single Dornier aircraft providing 100 seats. This was followed by the Lockheed L-4 and later by the Lockheed L-1049 Super Constellation which later increased to 1,000 seats, but this was now inadequate and the construction of the Canadians would mean an increase of 50 per cent.

"The corporation has moved its strength to strength in recent years, and not only has it very efficient internal services but has also expanded and expanded into the field of international services to the East and South Africa and internal local services to British East India."

Regular services with its two new Constellation will fly in all the top flight on the route between British East Africa and South Africa.

"This is a fine record of achievement in the short space of 12 years."

Sir Patrick's main tribute to all who were concerned with the planning and construction of the new runway.

PROMPT WORK

"The Minister for Commerce and Industry, who is responsible for civil aviation in Kenya has told me of the willing and prompt co-operation and assistance which his Ministry has received throughout from the port facilities."

The Governor and Lady Renison board the Government launch Pelican for their voyage down the Tana River.

Russian aid for Guinea railway

The Soviet Union is to help Guinea reconstruct a railway from Conakry, the capital, to Kankan, about 410 miles inland, said the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

At the present narrow gauge line will be rebuilt on a wider gauge and after reconstruction will increase two and a half times and subsequently five times above its present capacity. Tass said, quoting the Soviet railway newspaper, Gorodskoye (The Whistler),

The weekly seating capacity was increased to 1,000 seats, but this was now inadequate and the construction of the Canadians would mean an increase of 50 per cent.

Ministry of Works, which later the making and vital part in all matters of airport construction.

"Great credit is due to Sir Alexander Gurney, and Patricia, who have been our consultants, and to Sirling Atieno (Africa) who has carried out the construction work with the promptness and efficiency the work of this fine railway for the Government."

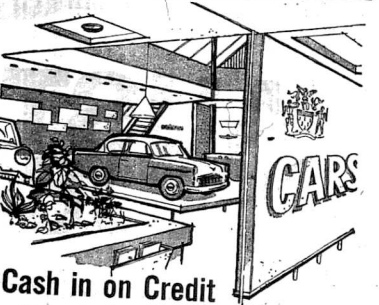

Work would soon start on some improvements to the existing terminal facilities to make them more suitable for the ever-increasing passenger and freight traffic. Improvements would also be made to the control tower.

Sir Patrick added: "The completion of this new railway is part of a logical pattern of development of our East African air-

PAT McFARLANE WRITES ON THE "NEATEST, CLEANEST LITTLE TOWN" SET IN THE HEART OF SOME OF KENYA'S MOST BEAUTIFUL COUNTRY. PICTURES BY PETER MEATHOOTE.

THE STORY OF A TOWN — AND HUB OF A PROUD FARMING COMMUNITY

THIRTY or forty years ago when the railway ended at Londiani, one or two intrepid folk looking for pastures new trekked across the plains and finally arrived at a spot, now known as Kitale. The wonderful slopes of Mount Elgon on the one hand, and the beauty of the unfolding hills of the Cherangani on the other with the fertile valley in between must have caught their imagination. There was nothing here except the Wanderer, and they, we are told by almost the first man to reach here, J. B. Sears, fell out of their trees at the sight of the White man, and ran. Slowly through the years Kitale has risen until today there stands, as one of the visiting travel agents from Britain said, "the neatest, cleanest little town in all Africa, according to English standards, a small market town, but since it forms the hub of the agricultural area of the Trans-Victoria it is never likely to be anything else except the pride of the people who live in it and the farmers and their families who live near it."

An old tree forms a pleasant frame for the modern council offices at Kitale.

Entering the town from the newly abandoned road peases Kitale School and brings one to the Kitale Club, with a very beautiful course, opposite which is a well-known golf course, opposite which is the Theatre Club, for which great prospects are held.

Kitale's own architect has already designed a new theatre for the entertainment future. As it stands at present with small outbuildings, it is a disappointing sight until one realizes that it was the original hotel.

In fact it was the original Kitale, only when the arrival of the railway at Kitale reached behind the Theatre Club and away to the left lies the residential area of the town, locally known as "Stony Corner." The King George VI Avenue, with green trees on either side, leads to the District Office, the centre of local culture. Kitale. (Cont. on Page 12 Col. 3.)

THREE photographs which show to good effect the pleasing vista which Kitale provides for visitor and resident. Trees form a natural background to the town which nestles in the shadow of Mount Elgon. Commissioner Mr. A. B. Simpson, who more frequently wears his bow tie in his plane, often pictured by his wife.

Beyond the road swings right over the level crossing and here the other residential area begins, with the R.A.S.C. shown ground on the right and to the left the public church of St. John.

The vicar, the Rev. Cribb, has spent the greater part of his life in seclusion, retiring in many parts of the globe. He came out of retirement four years ago to fill this office.

The road goes past the Shrove-ton House on the right and the D.C.'s offices on the left and then, after a short halt, enters the main residential area on the right, down the hill and only a few feet above the main road, explains King George VI Avenue at the entrance of the town.

Here one's eye is greeted by a carpet of bougainvilleas through the canopy of the street.

The hillside of the street and above grows Kitale the appearance of a boy's coat set by some head tie.

Further up the hill stands the Kitale Hotel, where many days for farmers sold their wares from all over the Western

CUT LAWS

Across the hillside cut across the walls of the hotel, give up many blocks of the Maitland Hotel built with a glimpse of Mount Elgon behind.

The hotel's lawns are bright and the flower beds brilliant; the pond well stocked with fish, and the trees trim and the road work of the building, which have been left to the ground for a number of at least two pairs of matching figures, all of them with skeletons and well known to the residents of the town.

All these in the pride shown in the town, some more so than Mr. B. Harris, the chairman of the town council, Mr. A. B. Simpson, the town engineer, Mr. Engineer, Mr. Dennis Mungai.

The town's lawns are bright and above grows Kitale the appearance of a boy's coat set by some head tie.

Writer of 22 has passage in India

BY RAYMOND BONTJNER

DOM MORIAS is an Indian with a Portuguese name, his family having originated in Goa. His grandfather and his father (Editor of The Times of India) were at Oxford; English is his mother-tongue; and two years ago he was the Hawthornden Prize-winning novelist before going up to Oxford himself. He is obviously a born writer.

Last autumn he spent four months in Bombay, Delhi, Kathmandu, Calcutta and Sikkim. Great Adventure, Journal, he tells us, is not really a travel-book, nor is it a fiction. It is a journal of what he did and felt during this trip, written for the eyes of his beloved whom he had left in England.

It is sad, however, in several places, and much of it seems designed for publication in magazines.

Mr. Morias' excellent illustrations, which are his own, are found in the Daily News, The Review, The British High Commission, and so on.

He gives lively sketches also of the most noted revenue from the East India Company and the colonial States of America, which he describes in a way which is not without interest, although it is not very original.

The publication, more civilized in tone than the first States of America, will be found in the last of the series of books, but it is not without interest, although it is not very original.

BY ROSINA WRIGHT
BROOKLYN Grouse-pig is tired all by himself, only went out at night, and he was a shy little creature he knew hardly any one but he was burrowing under the grass. Grouse-pig was very nervous and did not like to show his tail, little white tuft, to any one. "What are you nervous of?" "The sight of the grass," Grouse-pig said. "The grass makes me nervous." "Why?" "I am afraid of it," he said. "I have seen you many times," Grouse-pig said. "I have seen you many times," Grouse-pig said. "I have seen you many times," Grouse-pig said.

How to Cook to Save

If you want to know how to cook, the 'secret' is to read the instructions. It will tell you that you get a quarter of a pound of meat for every pound of vegetables. You can save a lot of money by following these simple rules.

HELPFUL HINTS

A TEASPOON of soda to a pint of hot water will keep it from becoming too thick. It will also keep it from becoming too thin.

WASH before you wash. This means that you should wash the clothes first, then the water, and then the clothes again.

WHISKY - old Scottish craft with world-wide reputation

By DENNIS BARDEWS

TODAY the drinking of alcoholic beverages is primarily a social affair. People in all countries drink from necessity, habit or equal and "Let's forget our cares and be cheerful together."

That is why Britain boasts that unique institution, the "pub," for which there is no counterpart anywhere. Evolving from the old pub-house and tavern, where stagecoaches were accustomed to halt, it is at once a club, a refreshment center, a social focus to its neighborhood and a place of entertainment.

The two great national drinks are, undoubtedly, WHISKY and beer. Both have been popular drinks for centuries, but of the two whisky is considered more of a luxury. It is considered mainly a man's drink, being taken usually with a little water or a splash of soda though the reverse is true since 1890.

During the war years and after the war, for a long period, most of it was exported.

The 1934 British exports reached the record figure of 13,700,715 gallons, earning the useful sum of £24,800,000. More than half this quantity was bought by America.

Whisky distilling is an ancient Scottish craft and originally a by-product of farming. The spirit was made in the Highlands and Lowlands of Scotland, and on the islands, even in the 19th century, and Scotch whisky was in high repute in England in the days of Queen Elizabeth I.

TWO MAIN TYPES
In these names indicate its origin. It is derived from Scotland, in which the name of the national beverage is whisky, and from the Highlands and Lowlands of Scotland, and on the islands, even in the 19th century, and Scotch whisky was in high repute in England in the days of Queen Elizabeth I.

There are two main types of whisky, malt and grain. Methods of production have generalised. Malt whisky is the Highland Lowland, Campbeltown and Islay — are named after the localities that produce them, amidst scenery which has inspired poets and dramatists.

Grain whisky is produced by patented 19th century methods. It allows continued production and one standard system as well as malted barley.

UNIQUE PRODUCT
The three main processes involved in whisky-making are distillation, fermentation and maturation. Barley is selected and dried over peat, or smoky (barley) if it is spread, weighed and ground, for 12 to 18 months, thoroughly stirred.

The heavier grains, usually, is then dried over peat and distilled in copper pot stills heated by coal fires. The first distillation is run through condenser pipes into a smaller still which distills to a higher concentration and strength.

The second distillation is run through condenser pipes into a smaller still which distills to a higher concentration and strength. The second distillation is run through condenser pipes into a smaller still which distills to a higher concentration and strength.

The shape of a good scotch

People who know scotch by experience know that above all its mystic process of evolution cannot be hurried — refuses to lead itself to mass production techniques. They like their scotch made the old, slow way — like it made by a small family concern to whom time and productivity mean no more now than a hundred years ago — you'll like

BLENDING MORE THAN A MATTER OF MERE MIXING

Whisky flows into the spirit into where it is distilled for gravity by a representative. Like every other distillery the fitting room are locked on before they are put into storage.

Whisky is bottled in a distillery laboratory. It is formed in the fermentation from the protein of the grain, continues in the course of the present many of which are produced by installation of some meters in the distillation.

CRITICS OF K.S. AIRLIFT ANSWERED

RE are the facts. Even if this means using what I have before, I feel that deliberate attempt discredit the airlift must be avoided. I have once again had a consideration of the programme. Perhaps people might connect it with the selection of sponsorship and the fact that it is never done in such a haphazard manner as this. Therefore there is a great deal of the quality of the airlift. It is not a matter of who is doing it, but of how it is done.

In view of the public interest in the spirit of students in the United States, the "East African Students' Union" has the pleasure to announce the departure of the "East African Students' Union" to Nairobi, to be based in the "East African Students' Union" building, Nairobi, Kenya.

The students, perhaps Mr. Muliro has not received such material on their return to Kenya. We are to be pleased because whereas some have effectively used the money to supplement whatever they may receive from the Government, some have not. We are to be pleased because some have not. We are to be pleased because some have not.

I am very happy to see that the students have not only received the money but have also used it to supplement whatever they may receive from the Government. We are to be pleased because some have not. We are to be pleased because some have not. We are to be pleased because some have not.

President's lion

Does Mr. Muliro forget that he was first to cheer the students in America and that nobody was to be seen in the streets of Nairobi? We are to be pleased because some have not. We are to be pleased because some have not. We are to be pleased because some have not.

Now we deal with the other aspect of the issue, that the Kenya Education Trust, for the purpose of raising money to supplement whatever they may receive from the Government, some have not. We are to be pleased because some have not. We are to be pleased because some have not.

Encouragement needed

If Mr. Muliro's friends have chosen to become inactive members of the trust, who is to be blamed? It is to be blamed. It is to be blamed. It is to be blamed. It is to be blamed. It is to be blamed.

Other factors

One may disagree with the approach but any formula would be subject to criticism for one to leave out a student who has had done about his own money but had secured admission by a bribe and raised for himself £500 meeting only another £100, in favour of a graduate Certificate who had done nothing for himself and others.

Alternative lacked

It is regrettable that American students in Kenya have not been able to find the alternative that would fill the gap if it did not exist. We are to be pleased because some have not. We are to be pleased because some have not. We are to be pleased because some have not.

Target passed

The truth is that despite Mr. Muliro's and Mr. Ken's failure to help, some students from their own pockets have received more than £100 awarded by the Committee on some of the most high school students who have to be sponsored by American parents and send no money to Kenya. Intensive training and coaching is future essential

GIVE East African athletes better training and coaching, let them have more systematic and intensive training, and they will gain Olympic medals from Tokyo in their own years' time. This is my impression after seeing the few performances put up by the Olympic Games in Rome, Italy, and Uganda. They impressed me considerably.

They showed wonderful natural talent, the physical qualities of speed and spring. They also revealed the fine fighting spirit that stamps the African.

Add points and an enhanced technical skill to such valuable inherent attributes and East Africans could become a real force in future Olympic Games, and even track a mark as early as the 1964 Games, scheduled to be held in Tokyo.

It was a thrill to see Harbottle Boshu, of Kenya, better fit into the semi-final of the 400 metres race than I was ever in the extreme for my own part. It was a thrill to see the semi-finalist of the 110 metres high hurdles.

These athletics ignore African challenges, the more best barriers and best way of their speed and spring. But when it comes to handling technique and speed, the natives.

They jumped where their opponents hurried smoothly and

The accompanying criticism of East African athletic potential has been copied especially in the 'East African Standard' by Stanley Tomlin, Editor of the English paper 'Modern Athletics', who carried the Olympic Games in Rome.

In consequence, just time in the process.

It was this imperfect technique that prevented both Harbottle Boshu and Kenyan runner, who had a 100 metres hurdles race - it was even covered American of course.

It was worth the same with the Kenyan runner, who had a 100 metres hurdles race - it was even covered American of course.

Both showed great natural speed, but lacked stamina and correct running technique.

Kenya's runner cleared his starting blocks with the grace and ease that shows to the Sherman champion, Amiri. A place in the final, possibly a medal would probably have been his reward in Rome. In his race Amiri was running on the heels of a Kenyan runner, who had a 100 metres hurdles race - it was even covered American of course.

Africa's own airline

Centers et age

BY BASIL DEAKIN

BY night a silver, white and dark De Havilland Comet 4 will speed down the runways of London Airport and then sweep away, over the horizon of West on its 12-hour flight to Nairobi.

Passengers will be "flying among friends" on the first scheduled flight of an East African Comet 4 from London to East Africa—a flight opens an exciting new chapter in the history of the airline industry in East Africa.

The Comet 4—the most tested of all jet airliners—East African Airways securely in the ranks of international airlines.

They will be used initially on the London-East Africa route, and later on the Nairobi-Khartoum, Khartoum-Addis Ababa and Addis Ababa-Nairobi-Cairo and South Africa routes.

During the past months experienced E.A.A. pilots and their crews have been getting to know the Comet 4 in theory and in practice. Through concentrated and conscientious study they have become proficient in its handling and flight.

BIG INVESTMENT

Already familiar with the East African Airways fleet, the national airline of Kenya, Uganda, Tanganyika and Zanzibar, the two Comets represent an investment of £2,750,000.

With the permission of the territorial Governments the corporation has been able to finance this investment from outside sources and has not relied upon the Governments for any financial help.

The Corporation, which has made a profit on its operations for the past seven years, is confident that it will be able to discharge this considerable commitment out of its operating revenue from the Comets.

THREE CAPITALS

Three Comets services will be operated from Nairobi. One of them will start—on and off—on the Nairobi and Addis Ababa route by the first jet air service to be established in East Africa.

This particular service will start on the Nairobi-Addis Ababa route by straight to Khartoum, Rome and London. The other two services will start and end at Nairobi, but will include Nairobi, Thika and East African capitals.

It will be served by the Comets 4. It has been over seven years since the first East African Airways jet in its category was built—little more than a bush airline at its inception. It has since grown to a firmly established international jet airline in 1960, based as it is by the sound organization of a dependable, international and regional airline system.

SPEEDY CLIMB TO WORLD STATURE

In few areas in the world has air transport made greater strides than in East Africa. In the international field the Region benefited in pre-war years from its position on the high road between Britain and South Africa, when biplanes and flying-boats of imperial Airways made their leisurely way across the African sky.

In this period, in the 1930s, Wilson Airways, a small private company, pioneered commercial air transport in East and Central Africa and continued until the outbreak of the Second World War.

Then, after a period of near-sterility, just in January 1, 1946, East African Airways Corporation was formed as the national airline of East Africa, charged with the task of developing air transport over an area of nearly 20,000 sq miles containing the largest lakes and highest mountains in Africa.

BUSH AIRFIELDS

Six small De Havilland Dominie biplanes comprised the East African Airways fleet at the start of operations.

Most of the time they were engaged on flying on coastal routes. They had to operate from primitive airfields and air strips at high altitudes.

While the big air lines serving East, Central and South Africa were largely confined to low level flights of convenience, much of it bush.

But developments within East Africa were to keep pace with that taking place on the international air routes of the world.

Flying among friends

ADVERTISING slogan... spend for their effect... on alliteration than... the liberal truth of the message.

East African Airways' most effective slogan... flying among friends with East African Airways... is based on a truth. And that truth is that it is a born necessity.

WISE COUNSELS

After East African Airways had consolidated its position with the air services of the East African Territories, the first service undertaken to other parts of Africa were those to the Central African Federation and South Africa. In these services it came into direct competition with Continental Airways.

This competition became a serious factor when C.A.F. introduced Viscounts—larger, faster and more modern than the veteran Dakotas of E.A.A.

FAIR SHARE

There were suggestions that it had aircraft which could compare more favorably with the Viscounts of Dakotas. E.A.A. should withdraw its services to Central and South Africa. Fortunately wise counsels prevailed.

Dakotas of E.A.A.—and so equally Canada—continued to show the East African flying line and E.A.A. continued to have a fair share of the inter-regional traffic.

While Central African Airways had the advantage of more modern equipment, East African Airways determined to draw its services to Central and South Africa. Fortunately wise counsels prevailed.

SPUR TO CREW

With this to spur its crew and cabin crews a tradition was established of attention and consideration for passengers. That might be considered the "real" reason for the success of the airline.

That tradition has been built up and maintained since the pioneers days, and there is no reason to believe that superlative equipment at the facilities of Comets detract from it in any way.

The superb lines of the Comet 4 immediately suggest the elegance and comfort to be enjoyed while flying at eight miles a minute.

With the introduction of the Comet, the East African Airways Corporation has reached the limit of its expansion in the intercontinental field.

It reaches out to Britain, India and Pakistan, Central and South Africa. Since the introduction of four-engined, pressurized Canadian airliners, some proportion of East African money spent on air passages to and from these areas has been coming back into East Africa, helping both the airline itself and the economy of the region.

This process was extended with the acquisition on charter of two fast Briston jet aircraft from B.O.A.C. and will be further extended by the Comets.

Still doing the "bread and butter" work for E.A.A. and carrying the greater aggregate of passengers are the company's DC3s—or "Dakotas", as they are better known to the public.

Only 14 years ago East African Airways fleet consisted of six small biplanes. This article describes how the airline has since gained a major place on the international air routes.

Isolated townships and communities have vast flights of convenience, much of it bush.

30 years of flying in East Africa

MY first visit to Kenya was in 1929 as a pilot of the combined R.A.F./S.A.A.F. annual flight from Cape Town to Cairo, where we landed at Kisumu with our Fairey III Fs and DH Impalas.

These annual flights were, in fact, the pioneering flight paving the way for the civil scheduled services on the Nile Valley routes from the Cape to Cairo and on to points in Britain and Europe.

Kisumu in the early stages of aviation development attracted every prominent pilot who it was thought desirable that the development of long-range land-planes the flying-

These subsequent operations carried out by small aircraft were the forerunners of the present extensive network of African services in the East African territories.

Much has happened in the development of aviation since the early days of 1930, when the occasional charter flight was carried out with a single-engine and single passenger "Gypsy Moth".

While the bulk of Wilson Airways activities were confined to Kenya, a programme for carrying 20 passengers at 500

Tanganyika was being carried out by the Survey Department. In a comparatively short space of time quite a large number of landing strips and aerodromes were made available, which enabled the aviation companies to expand their activities.

During these early days considerable interest was shown by people who wanted to learn to fly, some of them as a hobby, others as a means of earning their own money.

Shortly after the introduction of the Comet service in 1952, the need for air services on other internal routes became apparent.

One of the first to follow was the Gold Field Service from Nairobi to Geeta, passing through Amara, Missona and Kisumu. This came the

With these increases in flying activities in East Africa and the acquisition of a new aircraft at the Pine Moth, there was obvious scope for scheduled services on certain internal routes.

EAST AFRICAN AIRWAYS

Passengers disembark from the Comet at Nairobi Airport after a pre-inaugural flight in East Africa.

'Partnership' benefits the traveller of the immediate post-war years look insignificant. But here again, a policy of building up on a sound basic organization has been followed with very satisfactory results. The post-war aviation pattern has, in the main, developed into three types of services: internal scheduled services and charter regional services and international services.

East African Airways has concentrated on the operation of internal scheduled services in the East African territories, and is carrying out this function the best way to improve several changes.

The Dominions and Dependencies were replaced by India, which, from 1949, were gradually replaced by the DC 3A and then Constellation operated on some of the DC 3 routes. The regional services to and from the East African territories are mostly operated by airlines based in the neighbouring territories such as Central African Airways, Sudan Airways, Sabena from the Congo, Kibintop Airlines and Aden Airways.

There is usually a convenient commercial arrangement between the airlines for sharing routes and co-ordinating air services to meet public requirements.

The international pattern of service has in the case of East Africa, vastly increased in the number of services and that of aircraft capacity.

Here again, a partnership arrangement between I.O.A.C., Central African Airways, South African Airways and East African Airways has been established for providing services on the route from Johannesburg to the United Kingdom and Europe.

This partnership provides 18 services a week in both directions, using Comets, Britannias and Boeing 707s.

There is, in addition, a cheap fare service from East Africa to the United Kingdom every fortnight.

Several other European airlines, such as Air France, Scandinavian Airlines System and Alitalia, operate scheduled services to East Africa.

East African Airways first entered into the system of international operation in 1957, when the Constellation services were started to England,

SCHEDULED FLIGHTS TO 32 AIRFIELDS IN EAST AFRICA

Pakistan, India and South Africa.

These operations have been so successful that it was decided some two years ago to replace the Constellation on the international routes with Comet 4s.

The Comet, with a cruising speed of 500 m.p.h. is equipped to carry 20 first-class and 50 economy passengers.

It has the range to fly non-stop with maximum load from Kiboko to Rome, a distance of 4,700 miles, in a little more than seven hours.

Recently, East African Airways had the pleasure of carrying its inaugural passenger, but the passenger service is only part of our function.

There is a great variety in the traffic carried on the internal service.

The cargo loads consist of Post Office mail, newspapers, spare parts, piece goods, fresh vegetables, eggs, meat, fish, etc.

HELPS TOURISM

More than 1,800 staff are employed by E.A.A.C., 470 Europeans, 421 Africans and 295 Africans.

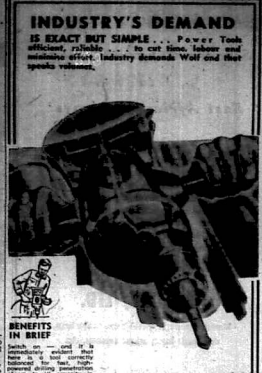

Thirty-two aerodromes are served by scheduled services in the East African territories, and the most important aerodromes are staffed by East African Airways.

East African Airways is playing a very important role in tourism and the development of the tourist trade in this territory.

CARGO INCREASE

It is of interest to note that in 1947, 30,500 passengers were carried and in 1959, 130,422. The cargo tonnage increased from 25,000 tons in 1947 to 1959.

While the flying activities were spreading all over the territories an industry was being built up on the ground. International airports have been constructed at Entebbe, Nairobi and Dar es Salaam and have just now been opened. The reconstruction of one at Mombasa has just been commenced. These airports are all equipped further provision a scope for

RENOVON IN PEACE AND WAR

JOHN CUMMINGHAM, Chief Pilot of the De Havilland Aircraft Co. since October 1946 when he succeeded his friend Geoffrey de Havilland.

He has been responsible for the flight development of the De Havilland aircraft, civil and military. From that time, and is responsible for his outstanding work in relation to flying from its inception and through all its stages the world's first jet airliner the Comet.

NIGHT FIGHTER
Mobilized with his squadron just before the outbreak of war in 1939 he was once engaged in night-fighter work, at first on converted Blenheim, later on Beaufighters and Mosquitos.

He became the leading night-fighter pilot of the R.A.F., and the flight development of the radar technique which brought such remarkable results in the defence of Britain.

He was awarded the D.S.O. with two bars and the D.F.C. with one bar, and by March 1944, when he was 29, he had been promoted to Squadron Leader in the Royal Air Force.

RECORDS SET
He gained the 100 km. closed-circuit record in a Vampire (Goblin engine) in August 1945, and the world height record 54,447 ft. in a Comet in the same month of 1946.

He was appointed an O.B.E. in 1951 and in that year was awarded the British Silver Medal for Services to the Royal Aeronautical Society for his outstanding work as a test pilot, jet astutee, and as the world's first jet astutee since the world's first jet in December 1955.

Mr. Cummingham joined the Board of Directors at De Havilland, on December 1, 1954.

Comet's performance tailored for Africa run

By JOHN CUMMINGHAM

Too many engineers and pilots who have worked their way to East and South Africa on the tropical trials of the Comet 4 is gratifying to have seen two Comet 4 aircraft leave the assembly line at the Chester factory in the colours of East African Airways.

It remains a joy of pleasant times that we have known at home, Kinshasa, Kampala and elsewhere, and of the kind and hospitably extended to us in brief visits to gene reserves, Lake Victoria and the attractive coastline of East Africa.

IDEAL FOR TESTS
The reason why it has been the custom to conduct tests in that part of the world is highly practical one. We need to measure the fuel-burn, take-off and landing characteristics of any new aircraft in extreme tropical temperatures, and know that we are not likely to be disappointed in the results. Kinshasa in the Congo is the most ideal for this.

We finally proposed to Kinshasa that a high-altitude airport near the Equator, 3,000 ft. from the sea, with its own 10,000 ft. runway, be ideal for this case.

Then we flew on to Johannesburg where the Jan Smuts Airport at 5,000 ft. with a 13,000 ft. runway, provides a further check.

RIGHT RANGE
Indeed we might be forgiven for feeling that the Comet's operations from straight-through routes in Africa through East Africa to the East.

All of us who have been since the war called for a few routes on its comfort and relief to be better appreciated than the routes over Australasia.

Instead of plugging along all day in the hum of the inter-tropical front, with vibration and noise, we fly smoothly along in the calmer upper air and get there in about half the time.

It is true that in 1955, when B.O.A.C. were discussing with the British Overseas Airways Corporation the new Comet, much emphasis was placed upon the airfield requirements along this route to be treated as a goal standard to set an airliner intended to serve the other routes to the Far East to Australia and South Africa. They were equally concerned to have an aircraft with the right amount of passenger accommodation and the right range to serve the requirements of the general routes over the period of the next 10 years or more.

Too small an aircraft would mean too frequent halts for refuelling, also undoubtedly cramped passenger accommodation.

Too large an aircraft would mean that the service would have to be relatively infrequent. Its aim would be attractive to passengers and it would be able to fly to Europe with even fewer halts, but the inevitable infrequency of departures would be most unpopular with the travelling public, and the covering of important traffic centres would reduce the usefulness of the service.

TAKE-OFF WEIGHT
The practical need, on the airline's judgment of the likely traffic growth over the years appeared to be a medium-sized liner which could fly between Johannesburg and London stopping, at the minimum, twice for refuelling, and up to about five times for passengers, according to the changing need. East African Airways were, of course, closely concerned in these considerations.

It was most important that the aircraft should be generally powered and have a moderate wing loading so that there should be no serious restrictions on its take-off weight from high-altitude fields.

Such restriction would entail extra cutting down the payload on departures made in the heat of the noisiest sun —

MORE POWER

The Comet 4 aircraft which East African Airways will be putting into service this summer, will weigh in at a weight of 100,000 lbs. and will have a thrust of 10,000 lbs. It is the very highest temperature and even then the restriction is not a serious one.

It has been well understood why all of our airlines have been looking for the Comet 4 type and design for Africa. The fact that it is the plane taking the longest time to get to the E.A.A.C. with the usual conditions of temperature and the Eastern African Federation and the East African States.

It is a reward to many people who have been discussing on its progress and development of the Comet 4 for these routes through the tropics, that it is a moderate density and altitude.

OLD TIMES
It gave us great promise a year or two ago to open the Wilson and talk over the old times when the Comet 4 was being introduced on to the routes of East African Airways.

It was the main traffic route from the main traffic routes of East African Airways to the East African States.

We recalled how Cape de Havilland, and the Geoffrey Airways Republic of the East African States, were taking holidays into the new routes.

All of us in East African Airways and the other airlines of the East African States were the best of service with the spirit and best enjoyment of the world's first jet service which certainly should make a welcome improvement to the life and health.

Brake heat at 500 degrees

A S airliners increase in size and weight, and as their landing speed increases, the strain is placed on the aircraft's undercarriage tyre and brakes. The Comet 4 has two four-wheel bogies underneath, together with twin nose wheels. The main undercarriage wheels are smaller than those on two-wheel bogies which were fitted on the Comet 1 and 2. To fit into the same fuselage, the ability to dissipate heat generated during a stop, when the brake plate temperature can be expected to reach about 500 deg. C.

MUCH CARE GIVEN TO CABIN SERVICE

All international airlines provide for their passengers many types of amenities. Many airlines groups under the main heading of cabin services. The passengers judge and pass comment on the type of services they receive whilst in flight.

The main in-flight services, which cover meals, refreshments, bar service and the many and various passenger amenities which are provided on board are controlled whilst in flight by the chief steward who has under his direction two or more cabin attendants, who are either flight stewards or stewardesses.

D. J. MORAVEC,
Cabin Service Manager,
discusses the special attention that will be given to passengers on the E.A.A. Comet IVB

standard set out in company
Airline "A" De Luxe standard with Airline "B" Tourist standard.

The standard of service provided for Tourist, Economy and Coach Class passengers, and the same will be maintained when travelling in the new E.A.A. Comet IVB. Some limitations are imposed on all classes of service due to restricted space and weight and baggage allowances. Cabin attendants are trained to give the best service possible, and to ensure that the flying time between departure and the local customs of passengers is not exceeded.

Every effort is made to offer the most pleasant service, but comfort and convenience are the main factors in the new service.

The time of the meal for the main meals served in E.A.A. Comet IVB is subject to attention offered to their being passengers and to the weight and relations on one aircraft and according to the weight of whether or not on that flight.

MENU PATTERNS

All services are planned and co-ordinated to take into consideration the weight aspect of the flight. Menus must conform to a set weight pattern and a particular cycle, therefore giving us a wide variety as possible.

On medium set aircraft the menu is approximately six courses. Consideration is given to the storage and packing of all the special requirements which will be included on one aircraft to cover the various services which are provided.

It is interesting to note that some of the aircraft carrying passengers, which are not used for scheduled services, will be loaded to provide one meal and one snack.

TWO SECTIONS

Arrangements must be made with other stations along the route which the aircraft will be serving items and changes in "equipment".

At the ground time for an aircraft, for example 30 to 45 minutes, the cabin attendants must be removed from the aircraft and replaced by clean sets of equipment.

All methods of handling and maintaining this equipment must be worked out to give the maximum efficiency and ensure that each item is stored in the correct place.

The Cabin Service Department is divided into two main sections: the in-flight service and the ground service. The ground service units who are responsible for the preparation, cooking and provision of meals services at cabins.

The Head Steward, Mr. A. Street, assists an East African Airways stewardess (above) to serve a dainty and appetizing meal on the Comet IVB.

With modern methods of refrigeration, menus can be planned well in advance and items in the menu deep-frozen, and either carried on the aircraft or supplied to main stations.

These items can be stored in deep-freeze units which ensure that any meat packed to be such a station will maintain its standard required.

Specialistic crews are employed to ensure that the aircraft is designed to operate the entire length of the flight, and to ensure that it is in a very good condition at the end of every operation.

In readiness for the introduction of East African Airways' new aircraft, the services to be provided in flight will be provided by First Class and Tourist passengers will be comparable to those of all other international airlines.

1954 and 1959, is already in danger of becoming obsolete, not because of the speed of jet planes.

Communications experts are attempting to find solutions to the problems which will arise when the main-line aircraft cut the North Atlantic crossing at about two hours.

Sub-sonic airlines are already crossing the North Atlantic in under an hour, so the day when the passenger E.A.A. aircraft at 9 a.m. in M.T.A. in London and lands in New York in 1 1/2 hours is little more than two hours away.

At the same time, the telephone will be used to speed up the booking process. B.D.A.C. Comets are reaching Nairobi from Salisbury about 10 or at about the same time as teleprinter messages give details of their progress and messages.

As the sub-sonic Comet enters it is little more than two hours away from the time when the telephone will be used to speed up the booking process. B.D.A.C. Comets are reaching Nairobi from Salisbury about 10 or at about the same time as teleprinter messages give details of their progress and messages.

CARD SYSTEM

At one end of the E.A.A. reservation system is the South House. It is high blackboards on which are written the names indicating date and the number of seats being reserved. The clerks are marking the names of flights. The details are written in the booking card which is fully or partially filled in by the booking clerks sitting at desks facing the boards on which the availability at a glance.

When East African Airways started operating in 1946, four of five people were indifferent to the airline's work.

Now, for international and East African routes there is a reservations staff of more than 100 people in a room which is appearance and basic soundings.

It takes between six months and a year to train to full competency the clerks who are the reservation room.

ELECTRIC BRAIN

They are kept fully employed and it is already in sight when the reservation room is partially overgrown even such a small reservation room.

British Overseas Airways has already introduced a new degree of automation, and the reservation room will be the first to be automated. The reservation room will be the first to be automated. The reservation room will be the first to be automated.

printer stands about reservations sent on E.A.A.'s central circuit. Nairobi-Mombasa-Farge - Dar es Salaam. The flight for January, 1950, was a 100 per cent increase on that for January, 1949, and the load was 42 per cent higher than the same month last year. The percentage increase for month to month compares with 1958 ranged from 30 to 40.

The central circuit was set up in 1952 and the Nairobi-Mombasa-Farge route was established three years later. Presumably the central circuit is a cable with the inevitable resultant delay.

AIRPORT OFFICE

Working with the reservations department in Salisbury is the Nairobi Airport Office. It is a move to move more convenient routes in the Nairobi Airport Office. It is a move to move more convenient routes in the Nairobi Airport Office.

All transit passengers who change aircraft at Nairobi are contacted by this department. They are advised of the latest flight times, and their luggage is checked in. They are also advised of the latest flight times, and their luggage is checked in.

The service of passenger aircraft increases on the Nairobi-Mombasa-Farge route (including tickets) which is a considerable improvement in comfort and speed over the Nairobi-Mombasa-Farge route.

and bought from B.O.A.C. who used them to transport world routes as "Argonauts" for several years. The Comet service is now operated from London. One service a week goes to Pakistan and India via Aden, another goes to Bahrain and there is one weekly service to South Africa. There is also a weekly "Comet" service to the Copper Belt.

It is interesting to note that in 1947, East African Airways carried 13,000 passengers. By 1950 almost ten times this number—130,000—was carried. Other comparative figures are: freight—20 tons and 27½ tons; revenue miles flown 29,210 and 448,272.

LONDON FLIGHTS

In October, 1950, E.A.A. started a weekly service between London and Nairobi. The aircraft used was a Comet with a Britannia 312 on loan from B.O.A.C., operating in E.A.A. livery.

Later this service was increased to twice-a-week. East African Airways had approached the jet age with

HARD WORK

All four girls told me they felt privileged to have been chosen to work on the Comet and seemed to have no doubts about the hard work entailed. It was harder work on the Comet than on the other aircraft, and the use of stairs had to cope with the teachers and care passengers too.

During the 11 hours, 20 minutes the flight attendants and lunch and light refreshment to breakfast is served from Nairobi, Johannesburg and Durban to London and Nairobi.

And so to the Comet 4, which because of its speed—able to maintain more frequent services than any of the other five-engine aircraft operated by East African Airways.

The purchase of two Comets and their crews—amounting to about 20,000 items, including spare engines—is a capital investment of considerable magnitude for an organization only 14 years old.

But the three East African airlines which the Comets will serve, and which have a financial stake in their purchase, are certain to be well served by these aircraft which are undoubtedly the most thoroughly tested and refined of any to be introduced on the world's air lines.

But this is not the whole story of E.A.A.'s climb from bush airstrips to the pathways of international airports.

ACTS AS AGENTS

In addition to its own operations, E.A.A. acts as general agent for B.O.A.C. and general sales agents for many other air lines, including such as British and D. A. which have no regular services to East Africa.

For B.O.A.C., S.A.A., S.A.S., C.A.A., A.S.I.A., Aden Airways, Sabena and the newly formed British United Airways E.A.A. also acts as traffic handling agent.

NAIROBI TECHNICIANS READY TO SERVICE

NEW JETS

TECHNICIANS at Nairobi Airport are no strangers to the Comet 4. Since B.O.A.C. introduced the aircraft on the London - Johannesburg routes several months ago, Comets have been landing regularly at Nairobi, where they have been refuelled and, when necessary, serviced.

Before the E.A.A. technicians and engineers spent some time in England on a special Comet course, so that E.A.A. Comets will be coming into experienced hands at the airport here.

MAIN ASPECT

East African Airways Chief Technical Officer, Mr. J. G. Johnston, has this to say of the Comet:

"The most outstanding aspect of the Comet is the complete confidence with which an engineer can approach the aircraft, knowing something of the history of the theoretical and practical testing which has gone into the proving of its structural integrity."

"One of the greatest worries in modern aviation has been the incidence of fatigue. Although an old subject, the importance of this has been appreciated only with the introduction of modern high-speed aircraft."

"The most intensive research programme has been carried out on it by some of the best brains and organizations available to the industry."

SET A RECORD

"The net result of all this is that we now have an aircraft which has been thoroughly assimilated flight conditions to a life well in excess of any envisaged life of the aircraft in service."

"Failures have been produced synthetically and crews' propagation developed under test conditions, so that detailed designs could be brought to the fore before they had a future which was not so bright as it did it would be of a safe nature."

Mr. Johnston remarks that B.O.A.C. has had more than 18 months of operation with Comets, which have achieved quite remarkable results. There have been very few recurring and minor defects with the aircraft's many complex systems, and the Rolls-Royce engines have set a record of reliability which is unsurpassed.

ROUTINE CHECKS

"It is interesting to note that these aircraft are averaging about 12.80 hours each every 24 hours, covering a distance of about 5,800 miles," he says. "It is not uncommon to find a B.O.A.C. Comet leaving London for Nairobi on its way to Johannesburg, having the previous day left Melbourne for London, and so on, in London," he said.

East African Airways Comets will get a major inspection after each 1,000 hours of flying, while there will be minor routine overhauls after every 500 hours.
