Her RHEUMATISM Gradually Went Away

When I was 35 years old I was stricken with rheumatism. It was so bad that I could not walk. I was in bed for months. I had tried everything, but nothing helped. Then I read about Silvikin and decided to try it. After a few weeks, the pain began to go away. Now I can walk and do my usual work. Silvikin really worked for me.

Silvikin DOES GLOW HAIR

Although the name Silvikin does not suggest hair, it does. It is a hair conditioner that makes hair soft, smooth, and shiny. It also helps to prevent hair loss and keeps the scalp healthy. Silvikin is available in many sizes and prices.

PROOF OF A FINE DIP

TRADE WITH EAST AFRICA

It is a fact that the East African countries have a large and growing trade with the West African countries. This is due to the fact that the West African countries have a large and growing population and a large and growing economy. The East African countries have a large and growing population and a large and growing economy. The trade between the two regions is growing rapidly and is expected to continue to grow in the future.

TO THE EDITOR, "E.A. STANDARD"

I am writing to you to express my appreciation for the article in your issue of January 7, 1945, regarding the trade between the East African and West African countries. I am glad to see that you are giving attention to this important subject. I believe that the trade between the two regions is growing rapidly and is expected to continue to grow in the future.

WOMEN STUDENTS OF NIGERIA

The women students of Nigeria are making a name for themselves in the field of education. They are working hard to improve their knowledge and skills, and they are contributing to the development of their country. I am proud of their achievements and I hope that they will continue to make progress in the future.

SOUTH AFRICAN PUBLICITY

The South African publicity campaign is making a name for itself in the West African countries. It is a well-planned and well-executed campaign that is designed to promote the products and services of the South African companies. I am impressed by the quality of the publicity and I hope that it will continue to be successful in the future.

They're Rob The Tower

In the winter season some ants were busily employed in preserving their corn. A grasshopper, who had chanced to overlook the summer, approached them with great humility and begged for a grain of corn to relieve his hunger. "How did you spend your time in the summer?" asked one of the ants. "I was he rippled, I passed the time merrily in drinking, singing and dancing and never once thought of the winter." "In that case said the ant I have nothing to offer you!"

U.S. FAR EAST POLICY

May Now "Shift Its Emphasis"

WANDENBERG HINTS AT CHANGES

Washington, Jan. 13.—The United States policy in the Far East might now shift its emphasis, according to a statement made by Senator Charles McNary, Republican of Oregon, today.

Mr. McNary, who is chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, said that the United States should now shift its emphasis from the Pacific to the Far East.

"I believe the United States in its foreign policy should now shift its emphasis from the Pacific to the Far East," he said.

Mr. McNary's statement comes in the wake of a speech made by Secretary of State Henry Stimson, who said that the United States should continue to maintain its policy of isolationism in the Pacific.

Mr. McNary's statement is seen as a challenge to the policy of isolationism which has been followed by the United States since the end of the first world war.

NO HOPE FOR MINERS TRAPPED IN BLAZING SHALE PIT

London, January 13.—The rescue of the 11 miners trapped in a shale pit in the north of England today was abandoned after a search of 24 hours.

The rescue party, which was led by the chief fire officer of the district, had been working for 24 hours to reach the miners who were trapped in a shale pit which had caught fire.

The fire broke out in the shale pit on January 11 and the miners were trapped in the flames.

The rescue party had been working for 24 hours to reach the miners, but it was found that the miners were dead.

DOWN TO EARTH

"How did you get on?"
 "Fined. It wasn't pleasant. Just boiling of flat."
 "Smart luck, old boy. Takes time to get your eye in."
 "That's no coach, particularly bad weather as it was at night. I'm showing like a mackerel out of a frying pan."
 "Oh, you weren't so bad."
 "Don't be silly, Oswald. My neck was sore and a good deal of time was lost by my not being able to see the ball."
 "You did it?"
 "Yes. He was thinking that I was not at all right at all, but he was wrong. I was just a little bit out of the game, but I was not out of the game at all."
 "What was he really thinking was that a certain amount of Ross's might be better in a bad season than the usual performance."
 "The doctor's? My dear! I could hardly believe."
 "How was he to know that? He sticks to his simple creed - If Oats was your Ross's I know you'd be a big success. And you'd be a big success if you were in the Game Book at the end of the day."

SONS OF KENYA

The Headmaster of the Prince of Wales School, in a Rotary address, said something provocative of thought to my about the sons of the British Empire. In terms of time, Mr. Fletcher has not been long in the Colony and he is a business man who got out schoolboys into the world according to the needs of the tests which members of the teaching profession, and the public and private, should apply to the human material. For those who remain who should quarrel with his conclusions for nine headmasters of the Empire, and the yardstick would no doubt stand as very similar tests.

For the requirements of social policy, we have in fact no other case evidence and the conclusions of a headmaster must, therefore, be treated with a certain amount of respect. Such a headmaster, however sagacious and socially conscious, and indeed, though valuable in themselves, do however suggest to sociological problems, and indeed, which is affected by the human factor, would be a system which provided more regular analysis of the social conditions.

Mr. Fletcher qualified his "range of natural ability" of the youth of Britain and of the Empire, and he said that he did not think we had the Colony boys who would be a natural gift of the Empire. We have here, as a very small community, boys of school age certainly not more than half the school age of the Empire, and in Britain. We need hardly be surprised that the Empire, even the first rate brains, have not been discovered. They are entitled, to ask Mr. Fletcher whether he considered that the educational system, courses, and the ability and promise and opportunity for the people to be a considerable proportion of cases, the Empire, and the public and private scholarship, funds, and the University education, boys in the first group, but it should be noted that the Education Authority to indicate to what degree this provision is not adequate, and how far, in the general interest of the Colony, it is possible to provide for the expansion. And that of course is largely a question of money and public opinion.

It is with this second and third group that we should be concerned. These are the boys and girls who are not so successful. They are the boys who, in Mr. Fletcher's view, are (1) unable to do average work, and (2) who are not so successful in their studies, and (3) who are not so successful in their character, and (4) who are not so successful in their practical work, and (5) those who "will only do well" when they have reacted the limit of their capacity to absorb the methods of education as they are not out to a job and (6) those who are not so successful in their studies. These latter are in the great majority of the Empire, and it is to these that we should be particularly interested in knowing what would result to the present teacher to be "tailored" to the individual, though not necessarily in respect of success or distinction.

What factors, or about our European youth of this category, and has long done so, the fact is that the community to begin to approach the problem of this youth with distinction and individual solutions. There is, or is so, in some instances, individual differences. There needs also to be insufficient appreciation of the part of the teachers themselves of the nature of the problem of this youth. There is also a quite remarkable and increasingly alarming trend of determination by sections of industry, professions, and employers to determine the competence of the training of European youth, and to determine the conditions of employment.

Peak Prices May Soon Decline
 (From a Special Correspondent)
 A special correspondent writes from London, January 12, that the Government is now considering the possibility of a general reduction in the prices of many types of goods. It is expected that the Government will announce a list of goods to be included in the scheme. The goods to be included will be those which are essential for the life of the community and which are produced in the United Kingdom.
