Big Vitamin Doses Can Be Unsafe

Information on the recommended dosage to indicate that the feeding of post-war children by the Special Children, with vitamin injections, may be attended by dangerous results, according to the research group of the Department of Pediatrics at the University of the Witwatersrand.

The group presented a paper on the subject on nutrition and diet before the Science Congress in Johannesburg.

Dr. Joseph Gillman said observations indicated that the feeding of large doses of synthetic and natural vitamins in excess moderation in children, could be very dangerous.

In spite of the use of vitamins, the death-rate in children suffering from malnutrition was still about 50 per cent, indicating that vitamins could not completely save the lives of children, as was widely claimed.

They Took Up Wingate's Torch

I HAVE already recorded in columns elsewhere the story of the day the Kikuyu War broke out in the African area. It was the day when the British Government, in its effort to maintain its 'General Policy' in the East, decided to send a force of 10,000 men to the African continent to suppress the 'insurrection'.

It was at the time of the outbreak of the war that Wingate's name became known to the British public. It was at the time that Wingate's name became known to the British public. It was at the time that Wingate's name became known to the British public.

S.E.C. in war — as in peace at the service of the Empire

The correct combination of ducts and hardware is an indispensable field in which the G.E.C. the largest British electrical manufacturing organization in the Empire, has specialized. In the days before the war "G.E.C." was a name which was always in the minds of engineers when complex electrical schemes were being considered. A G.E.C. installation is always an example of British enterprise and thoroughness. Just how the Company's vast research and manufacturing resources are applied to providing equipment to help the war effort. With peace comes, however, the big industrial advances made by the Company in all applications of electricity, including the important new developments in the use of electricity for power production. Old Habits in New Houses

WE are all interested here in the new houses being built in Kenya. These houses are being built in the same old-fashioned way as the houses built in the past. of NATIONAL IMPORTANCE

Keeping the family fit is work of national importance for the housewife. Advertisements in her magazines are not easy now as it was in peacetime. But look for these advertisements every Friday. They will give you facts about food which will help you to cook on well on your ration card, and will show you how to make the best use of them.

In Britain, the health of the nation is better today than it was before the war in spite of food reductions and stress and strain. And Britain has found that the success of her food rationing scheme has depended on the whole-hearted co-operation of all her people.

Here are three suggestions. Co-operate all you can with your Rationing Officers—their job is not an easy one. Watch for these food-rationing advertisements every Friday. Remember that keeping the family fit is a job of national importance.

This is a ration period "42" from 26th July to 20th August, 1942.

The following are the K.F.A. notes and market report for the week ended August 11.

The Director of P.A. Production in the United Kingdom has stated that the most important factor for the time being will be large and well equipped factories in Britain, including the rubber and leather industries, given assurance of continuation for a fixed period of at least 18 months.

RECONQUEST OF ALL BURMA MAY NOT BE NECESSARY

(From Our Correspondent's Column)

IN the second article in this series, I suggested that the reconquest of all Burma may not be necessary. This view is based on the fact that the Japanese have already captured the most valuable parts of the country, and that the British have been unable to recapture them. The Japanese have captured the most valuable parts of the country, and the British have been unable to recapture them. The Japanese have captured the most valuable parts of the country, and the British have been unable to recapture them.

JET PROPULSION FOR AIRCRAFT

MANY inventions and discoveries of enormous benefit to mankind were originated within the British Commonwealth. The principle of jet propulsion has fair to revolutionise air transport and, perhaps, land and ocean travel as well.

Amongst other notable achievements to the credit of Britain is the development of rayon by Courtauld. This remarkable textile with its innumerable uses in war and peace, has been brought to its present standard of perfection in great measure by sustained research and patient endeavour on the part of this British Company.

Courtauld's rayon yarn, and the lovely fabrics made from it, have improved standards of life amongst millions of people and have been the means of founding vast new industries in England, the United States, Canada and elsewhere.

The necessities of the war have restricted the available supply of Courtauld's rayon, but when victory is won, the fruits of research and experiment during the war years will be translated into even more beautiful rayon fabrics. In the post-war, the British Commonwealth will demonstrate that in the future, as in the past, British brains and industry will gain the world towards fresh achievements for the benefit of the human race.

WHITHER ARE WE GOING! —SOME KENYA PROBLEMS

By S. V. COOKE, M.L.C.

I am afraid days ahead hints have been given by leading colonists here of the United States to the effect that the War is drawing to a close and, if circumstances are as they are believed to be, the closing task of many Germans captured as prisoners. It is however in the last few days of the war that the most serious problems will be those of the immediate future. It is in order to solve these that I put what I believe to be the most serious of them before you.

These three are:—

1. How to solve the East African problem of the immediate future as an expression of the effect on problems facing the Colony.

2. How to solve the East African problem of the immediate future as a series of six services by the E. A. C. Co. members of the C.O. C.

3. How to solve the East African problem of the immediate future as a series of six services by the E. A. C. Co. members of the C.O. C.

The first of these is the most important. It is the one that we are most likely to be asked to solve. It is the one that we are most likely to be asked to solve. It is the one that we are most likely to be asked to solve.
