SYRIA RECALLS ALL FORCES S.I.N. DEBATES CRISIS

Strong reply by Mr. Dulles to Soviet U.S. READY TO ACT

AMID a brightening atmosphere of crisis, the United Nations General Assembly yesterday faced the task of averting a new armed conflict in the Middle East. It had before it an appeal by Syria for a debate on threats to her security and to international peace.

The President of the Assembly, Sir Leslie Munro, of New Zealand, has called the 15-member Steering Committee into session today to consider this plea.

Arms for 'resistance groups'

He had also received a letter from the Soviet Foreign Minister, Mr. Gromyko, asserting that the United States was "prodding Turkey to commit aggression against Syria" and urging U.N. member States to prevent this.

From the Middle East there were reports that a range of emergency had been declared in Syria and that all leave had been stopped for officers and men. A Cairo message said that arms were being distributed to "popular resistance groups" Aleppo and Hama in North Syria.

The blunt tone of Mr. Khrushchev in his warning note to the Soviet Union was echoed yesterday in a forthright declaration by the United States Secretary of State, Mr. Dulles, that if Russia attacked Turkey, the United States would "aid the attack."

Delegates of West European Socialist parties are to meet in Strasbourg on Sunday to consider a joint reply to Mr. Khrushchev's letter.

'No sanctuary' for Russia in war

WARNING that if Russia attacked Turkey the United States would "aid the attack" was given by the American Secretary of State, Mr. Dulles, at his regular Press conference in Washington. The Soviet Union could not hope to launch an offensive from a privileged sanctuary, he said.

Mr. Dulles said he was fearful that recent Soviet threats to attack Turkey might be a smokescreen for a much more serious move against the Middle East. He said he was confident that the United States would not be taken in by any such move.

He said the United States might feel it was in its interest to aid Turkey in such a case. He said he was confident that the United States would not be taken in by any such move.

Read... mark... learn... (and be completely bewildered)

Some motorists are never happier than when poring over mechanical details. Their hearts warm to thoughts of king-pins, swivel, grass-nipples and the like. Others (and who can blame them?) are either baffled by such things or just can't be bothered with them.

But someone must bother. There are between 35 and 40 parts of a motor car which need regular checking, greasing or lubricating. The car won't fall apart if they are neglected, but it will run much more sweetly, economically and safely if they are properly looked after.

The answer lies in one word—Shell-lubrication.

This is a complete system of every care, using special oils and greases. It ensures that every part of your car, whatever the make, has the right amount of the right grease or lubricant. It takes the whole matter of your mind.

Shell-lubrication is a big help to the busy motorist. It is another example of Shell planning in action—supplying the products and the service to meet the needs of the time.

Rift police switched to 'peace' footing

ANTI-CRIME DRIVE

STEPS to reorganize the Rift Valley police from an Enforcement force to that of a strong, modern "peace-keeping" force are being taken by the Assistant Commissioner in charge as has been made necessary by the virtual end of the terrorism in the Province this year.

It entails a reduction in the establishment of the Province and other officers, a suspension of recruitment for a period of six months to allow existing personnel to be trained in modern methods of dealing with crime and to be equipped with modern equipment and to be given more extensive training in the Province.

The Assistant Commissioner has been ordered to submit a report on the progress of these operations, which for three weeks have been carried out in the Kenya Province and in the Rift Valley, to the Home Office in London.

Mr. Shabini ordered the reorganization of the Rift Valley police, which for three weeks have been carried out in the Kenya Province and in the Rift Valley, to the Home Office in London.

EVEN when the dry season is at its height and the country appears almost devoid of game poachers can average one animal in every snare each month. At more favourable times the average is four a month and during the migration at least ten.

The 1,600 mats collected on the last operation probably represent 21,000 dead animals for the six-month period ending on 31.09.03. These mats are valued at £1,600. From 1.10.03 to 31.03.04, 2,000 mats were taken, at an average of one a month, and about 25,000 animals were killed. This is a very high figure for the country as a whole.

Together with the poisoned arrow, a snare that goes on north of the equator, the animal traps are the most common method of killing animals in the country.

No longer sport
How has the park game survived this slaughter? Numbers alone have ensured survival in the past, from generations of poachers, game warden, and sportsmen.

Of recent years, however, the introduction of steel wire snares has caused a sharp decline in the number of animals taken. This is due to the fact that the snares are so well hidden that the animals are often killed before they are discovered.

At 7/6 a pair, the demand for snares has increased. The profit to a poacher is £100 for a snare on the line for ten weeks. This is a very high figure for the country as a whole.

A BAN on the use of poisoned arrows and wire snares and a clause of strictness to poaching offences magistrates are urgently needed if the wholesale slaughter of game in the Western Territories is to be checked.

This view is expressed by Lt-Col. P. G. Metcalfe, Director of National Parks, who has been investigating poaching in the area. He writes:

From September 1st to 31st I took part in an undercover operation in the area. The results were as follows:

The importance of this area to the Park is not only in the deer and the antelope, but also in the game which is taken in the area.

STANDARD PORT

NO RISK OF MONOTONY IN HARBOUR POLICE

The many-sided work of the Railways and Harbours Police is described by REDVEYS HAINS, who also takes the pictures.

It happened quickly. The family—father, mother, child—and a friend were happily fishing from a small craft off Flora Point in Mombasa Harbour when a squall sliced across the bay whipping the placid waters into white-capped turbulence. The boat was swamped in a heavy sea.

The anglers floundered in shark-infested waters. Rescue seemed unlikely until a message was flashed to the Railways and Harbours Police. A police launch—Sgt. Sita Mkuamba in charge—sped through the dark and began to search the area. The struggling and exhausted visitors were picked out by the vessel's searchlight.

Sgt. Sita dove into the sea, rescued first the child, then the wife and husband and finally the fourth man. For his gallantry he was awarded the Royal Humane Society medal. This incident happened some time ago but it serves to illustrate one of the many facets of the work of the Railways and Harbours Section of the Kenya Police and the type of iron-swinging it entails.

The police of the Mombasa harbour area have in their care and custody all property belonging to the Railways and Harbours Department. There, too, is the job of preventing any unauthorised entry to the port of Kilindini. The police also come to the marshalling yards, the railway stations, harbours and the protection of administrative property as far as Mombasa and the main Mombasa-Nairobi railway line as well as a branch line to Tanga.

In the port area the police work closely with all East African Railways and Harbours officials, the Customs Department and the Landing and Shipping Office which is agent for East African Railways and Harbours.

They see to the ship repairs to the white-uniformed crew of the Kenya Police.

This is where individual personality comes into play. The police officer in uniform, a s.a.s.t. (s.a.s.t.) is patient and with a sense of humour.

GOODS GUARDED

The harbour police also have to attend the passengers and Customs officials to prevent any unauthorised entry of goods. The police are also in charge of the business in Kilindini. Hence the low figure of thefts from ships' cabins.

Most imports for Kenya and Uganda and some for Tanganyika go through the port of Mombasa. Total imports amount to about 100,000 tons.

It is the duty of the police to guard and to inspect goods from passengers, theft, muggings there have been 271 cases on the serious charge.

BUILD YOUR OWN POOL

Many people never think of building their own swimming pool because they presume the cost is prohibitive. But it is not necessary to be fabulously rich, as a Nairobi businessman will show in next week's feature section when he will share the secret he has just built a pool for a comparatively modest sum.

This week's feature is instead an account by a young Australian of how he hitchhiked from Pretoria to Mombasa on a budget of £4 and a stack of pictures which shows that animals are well able to look after themselves.

FROM PRETORIA TO NAIROBI ON A BUDGET OF £4

MEREDITH CUTLACK, a 25-year-old Australian journalist, describes his adventures after he set off from Pretoria to Nairobi with only £4 in his pocket. Since his arrival he has been making a living in the city company.

I WAVED goodbye to friends, family and business in Pretoria three meals a day and a soft bed and walked out along the main North Road for Nairobi. I packed up sleeping bags, my tent and just £4 in my pocket. I faced a 3,000-mile trip back that throughout the next five weeks. My one consolation was that I was capable of carrying carts and trucks and of travelling really slowly, a packladen pedestrian.

I was and was to be. I had a car and had wanted over the driver and the car. But this time by the thumb, with a few shillings, I was able to get a car and driver. The car was a 1948 Ford and the driver was a young man named John. I would not accept responsible baggage, given in the open hospital, but otherwise I would be independent. I had a small suitcase and a bag of clothes. I had a small suitcase and a bag of clothes. I had a small suitcase and a bag of clothes.

Bombard turns his attention to cure for travel sickness

By RALPH MIDDLETON

Each month himself aboard the Ark with a number of other passengers have been treated by the company. It is strange to relate that today's ailments of seasickness, which is the cause of several deaths every year, scientists are still unable to cure.

There are about six million "cures" for the malady, but these are assumed to be of no value. Travel sickness is the most common ailment of the sea. It is caused by the motion of the ship, which is not steady. The motion of the ship is caused by the waves of the sea, which are not steady. 'AROUND AND ABOUT' SHOWS THAT OUR ANIMAL FRIENDS ARE NOT SO DUMB

The theme of today's "Around and About" feature could be George Orwell's celebrated piece on animals: "All animals are equal, but some animals are more equal than others". Or, at least, it seems a good enough subject as a point of comparison of animals which could show human beings a trick or two.

The clump below, for instance, constitutes a brave threat to Left-Bank Dr. Even Salvador Dali will have to look to his laurels. When it comes to self-help, too, we can learn from animals.

The picture on the right illustrates Shakespeare's words in Coriolanus that "Nature teaches beasts to know their friends". Or Edgar Allan Poe's contention that the self-sacrificing love of animals "goes directly to the heart of him who has had to test the petty friendship and gossamer fidelity of mere Man".

It shows Peggy, a fox terrier, leading Flash, a blind greyhound, across a road at Southampton. Peggy's owners adopted the greyhound after it had been found abandoned and ever since Peggy has kept a maternal eye on him.

This pictorial animal farm does, in fact, reinforce the claim of the cynic who said: "The ability to make love freely is only the chief characteristic which distinguishes human beings from beasts."

WHY CAT DIESEL TRACTORS STAY ON THE JOB LONGER

One reason is the outfit of the oil stick. In larger crawler tractors, the heat and abrasion resulting from frequent use of the flywheel clutch can result in slippage or adjustments. In the replacement. To save the costs of these delays and replacements, the oil sticks in the No. 1 Transaxle.

The oil sticks in the No. 1 Transaxle are contained in an oil-tight, dust-proof housing. A gear-type pump draws the oil through a strainer and circulates it through the clutch mechanism. The clutch discs are cooled and protected by a constant stream of lubricant. So effective is the lubrication that few clutch adjustments and disc replacements are needed.

You can expect that clutch repairs will not be required before engine overhaul. And, the Caterpillar Diesel Engine is famous for its ability to operate for a long time before requiring an overhaul.

Visit our store and see the many features, from engine to tracks, that keep Caterpillar Diesel Tractors on the job longer!

GAP BETWEEN AUSTRALIA'S TENNIS TWINS WILL SHRINK

says John Cottrell

THE 1937 London Professional Tennis Championships will always be remembered for the fact that the Frenchmen, the two-and-a-quarter hour semi-final singles struggle between the Franco-Argentine "Panche" Pancho, and the Australian "Panche" Gonzalez, the American who has dominated the tennis world for the past seven years.

FEATURING SPORT

Matthews still the attraction

STANLEY MATTHEWS

He has been invited to lead a British Soccer team of his own choice on a tour of Australia next year.

"There is no limit to what I would expect to get Matthews out here," Jack Donohue, official tour promoter of the Australia Soccer Association, said before flying to Britain in an effort to win the tour.

"I have had offers from teams from Spain, Italy, Germany and Belgium. Australia and New Zealand would be more interested in a team led by Matthews than in all the other teams put together."

"It is quite indeed," said Stanley Matthews had said he is "definitely interested."

"The trouble is that already he has offers to go to Jamaica and Ghana. He would also have got permission from his club (Liverpool) and the F.A."

And yet, by no means, had he not the most significant of the most interesting aspects of the Wimbledon story, was the important, I think, was the interest in the two 20-year-old Australians from their sister States—their sister Stan Howard and their sister Rosewall and their sister Howard.

Howard and Rosewall had won the Wimbledon 1934, only 21 days Rosewall became the first woman to win the Wimbledon in 1961 and again in 1962; Howard won the title in 1963 and again in 1964 and 1965.

By winning the singles and the doubles (with Howard), Rosewall helped Howard to £225,000, the highest prize money in tennis history and he was guaranteed £2,000 for each of the 1939 Wimbledon matches.

Now the question is: Can Rosewall and Howard match the record set by the two Australian twins? Rosewall has already had all the success Howard has had in the past few years.

At Wimbledon, Howard has been in the first round in 1937 and 1938, and in 1939 he was in the second round.

NEW AIRPORT, ACADEMIC ANGUISH AND CITY EXPANSION

POINTS from leaders which have appeared in the East African Standard during the past week are given below for up-to-date reference.

Nairobi airport

By all accounts, the new Nairobi airport will be the best in Africa. Through the initiative of the Directorate of Civil Aviation and the help of contractors, the Ministry for Transport has done a very good job. Now the time comes for aircraft to be switched to the other circuit, East Africa. This has been discussed almost overnight. The successful introduction of the long runs is not only important for the East African airlines operating between London and East Africa at present, but has significance for the whole continent. Emphasis has rightly been placed on getting the airport working as soon as possible to capitalize its opening in a way which will capture the imagination of the world.

The Kenya Airlines Corporation is to open a service throughout 1956. It is a glorious beginning and a credit to the imagination and organization of the Government. It is a great step towards the opening of the continent to air services. The East African Airlines Corporation is to open a service to Dar es Salaam, Entebbe and Dar es Salaam. This will be a big step towards bigger transport.

The opening of this airport will be a great step towards the opening of a new era of advancement and vigour in national life. The West Bank Colonial Settlement is to open the Town planned area. Both were during troubled times—one in the future of a country and the other of a city. A year ahead is not too soon to start planning on such a scale.

To enlist the support of the aviation and popular daily newspapers, why not charter a plane to bring out a Press party, which might also look at Kenya's tourist attractions? Publicity planning is important, yet by no means all that matters. Air lines, at any rate those with landing rights, might be asked to fly in an air program of the latest planes, the R.A.F. bombers, and also Kenya R.A.F. army to exhibit collectors. Approached in good time, travel agencies could popularize the double bill in the heart of Africa with immense possibilities. On the flying charts of the world, East Africa means nothing, or a mere ink smudge, on calling the new airport—Nairobi.

KILIMANJARO - PART TWO

YOUTH'S VIEWPOINT

At Jipen-old Kilimanjaro school, Mr. J. G. O'Connell, describes his climb of Kilimanjaro. He talks about the challenges and the beauty of the mountain.

At Kilimanjaro we had an interesting course of 14 days. This covered most of the difficulties of the climb. It was a great experience and a challenge to our physical and mental strength.

We had to perform the drill, and we were very tired. But we were determined to reach the top. We were very lucky to have the support of our guides and porters.

When we were at the top, we were very happy. We had reached our goal. We were very proud of our achievement. We were very lucky to have the support of our guides and porters.

SPECTACLE UNDER YOUTHFUL STUDY: INSTALLATION OF THE AGA KHAN

WITH 15,000 people in the grounds of the Aga Khan Club, Nairobi, on Tuesday afternoon, it was difficult sometimes for a small boy to see everything going on every; a limited number of binoculars were on sale—2/1 a pair—and this boy was fortunate enough to get one. His attention seemed to be attracted by the photographs a temporary distraction from the proceedings.

In his speech from the dais, the Aga Khan, wearing his ceremonial turban, stressed the importance of the various races in Kenya working together to overcome the problems facing them.

BELOW a section of the crowd which waited patiently for the ceremony to begin. The first spectators were allowed into the club grounds at 11.30 a.m., although the Aga Khan was not due to arrive until 5 p.m. The spirits of the crowd were always high, despite the threatening sky and a slight drizzle of rain.

COMMUNITY CENTRE—The Aga Khan prepares to lay the foundation stone of the new Muslim community centre to be built at Pumwani. The ceremony, which was watched by thousands of Asian and African Muslims, took place on Monday.

Income of Africans in Uganda doubled SIX-YEAR PERIOD

UGANDA'S progress from £7,700,000 in 1951 to £14,600,000 in 1956 is an average rise of nine per cent. African enterprises accounted for £11,000,000 of the 1956 figure. Another £18,500,000 was derived from private business, statutory marketing boards, and public enterprises. £25,500,000 was received of salaries and wages and £23,500,000 was attributed to African subsistence income.

Tables published in a Statistical Department Uganda, until report covering the six-year period, disclose that the African money income shows the following:

The cost-of-living index for all groups rose by 23 per cent between 1951 and 1956.

The East African exports index, which starts with seven generally used articles, shows that the price level of these articles in 1956 was only one per cent more than in 1951. They had risen by 18 per cent in 1952 and 26 per cent in 1953, but dropped to one per cent and then rose to increase in 1954 and 1955.

Decline in prices. Textiles and clothing jumped 28 per cent in 1951 but since then their price level has fluctuated. Sugar last year stood only 78 per cent higher than in 1951.

Raw metals and other minerals higher in 1956 than in 1951. Machinery prices were up to 40 per cent and building materials to 38 per cent.

A similar rise in prices is apparent in the exports index. In 1956 it was 10 per cent higher than in the previous year. Prices dropped to only five per cent higher than in 1951 last year.

Full in demand. Movements of cotton and coffee prices and changes in the volume of production of these two important crops showed how sensitive Uganda's economy is to these changes.

Almost one-third of the total cash income came from the two crops. A price fall last year caused a decline in the Government's income. A goods and services tax which is now affected the revenue contributed to a general slowing down of economic activity in the country.

It was also necessary to allow the Government to increase its income derived from African enterprises amounted for £11,000,000 of the 1956 figure. Another £18,500,000 was derived from private business, statutory marketing boards, and public enterprises.

NAKURU County Council has decided to call a public meeting in Nakuru to discuss the proposed creation of a bird sanctuary on the shores of Lake Nakuru.

STAIRS AND PULPIT TO ## BUILD YOUR OWN POOL —IT NEED NOT COST TOO MUCH

MANY people believe that the cost of building a private swimming pool is prohibitive but if the man of the house is prepared to supervise the work personally it can cost less than £500.

E. ROBSON describes how he built his own swimming pool without having to dig his heavily into his bank balance. His design has been successfully copied by several of his friends.

When I built the pool in my garden about ten years ago it cost me about £120. The cost today would be at least three times that amount.

About £150 must be allowed for concrete, stone and other materials and labour and about £100 for the filter machinery. There are not so many attractive if funds are short these can be added later as we did. The present cost of the tiles would be about £160. If you decide to go ahead and build your own pool I offer the following advice:

1. Build above ground level. Water from rain, seepage, drains, water from car, leaves, dust, etc. are from existing pool drains. Use the rising main.

2. Use a reinforced concrete floor with stone walls.
3. Put stone steps at the corners.

4. Limit the depth to five feet. A well proportioned pool of popular size is 40 by 20 feet.

5. Use a continuous filtration system with chlorination as a germicide.

Filter ensures clear water

This sand filter, with a small electric pump to push the water through it, ensures that the water is crystal clear. A diagram showing the working of the filter in Page 18.

EASY ON FEET

Stone steps are comfortable and easy on the feet and do not rust like iron steps. They also strengthen the concrete. Each step averages only 10 to 12 lb. A 40 foot by 20 foot pool, mainly 200,000 gallons of water, may cost £100 for the filter, £100 for the pump, £100 for the filter, £100 for the pump, £100 for the filter, £100 for the pump.

ing the bath to merely open the door and step into the bath as if it were a platform. The use of a portable pump is the simplest and most economical method of raising the water to the level of the bath. The use of a portable pump is the simplest and most economical method of raising the water to the level of the bath.

Reinforce builders' rubble and close up the surrounding district of stone and old bricks, such as strap beds and leads, and of necessary a few yards and run it.

Finish off the level about 18 in. below the surface of the bath and smooth off with a few loads of "house grit". Our slope was one in 40 which helped to give a depth of four feet at one end and five feet at the other. These "depths" are not meant, of course, to be "collected" deep into the bath, setting, thick with sand and stones on the top of this surface and wired together. The stones were used to raise this metal, galvanneal, on a bed of two above the surface.

CONCRETE LAID

We then enlisted the aid of a contractor to mix all the concrete (4" to 6") and put it all down in one continuous job. This took 80 hours of hard work, with a gang of 12 men, and two female who were kept busy cleaning the concrete as they went. The concrete was laid in a slight tilt the other, as far as the concrete was poured.

After two weeks the floor was set and ready for the plaster and that this was built into the walls. As the layers of stone and wire were interwoven into and were interwoven into the concrete. These select stones to the walls and they are more pleasant to use than the usual iron ladders. The walls then stood out of the ground about 4 ft at one end and 4 ft at the other and the concrete.

The total cost of the pool was £150. (Continued in Page 18)

A diagram of the pool which should be fitted on a slope. This allows for varying depths of water and drainage of the bath by merely turning a tap.

BARCLAYS BANK D.C.O. (Incorporated in Great Britain)

TRUSTEE BRANCH BOX 902, NAIROBI

It is not often that I get the opportunity of visiting Gogo so with the purpose of writing about a well-known beauty spot—in the first instance, Mrs. Hyden's famous house on Lake Elhihi, near Arusha, and, more recently, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. E. Sims' 40-acre estate, Mawingo, some miles outside Mombasa.

Having surveyed the figure of the Ash-Nyanga Road and turned off in the direction of the Sinar's estate, I still had some miles of difficult terrain to negotiate. But on arrival at the house, all thoughts of bad roads in Mawingo disappeared for the impression of rolling green lawns and ornamental lakes takes one straight back to thoughts of the English countryside.

Mr. Sims told me that he formerly owned the Kikuyu Estate at Solihull and, when he decided he would like to live at the Coast, the life of a farmer however, recalled him up-country and he bought Mawingo Estate, about three years ago.

Fresh appearance

Since then, he has made extensive alterations to both house and grounds. Mawingo gets more than its fair share of rain, hence its verdant appearance when I saw it. It rains through a few miles away in Mombasa, dry and dusty conditions prevailed. I took me up a short climb and into the imposing figs of palm into the courtyard that the outside of the house is the arch of the driveway, looking fig, so smooth and sleek. Above the door is a bell house.

Banana-leaf roof

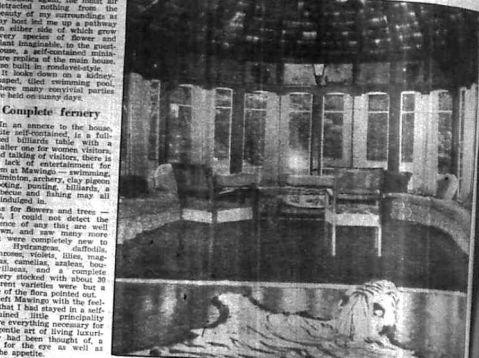

The house is built of local stone with the roof made from Mombasa (Banana leaf) thatched. The Mr. Sims' house is 24 ft. wide—there is a big bay window with wide veranda running the length of its verandah. A marvel Chinese table complements the exquisite Chinese carpet on the floor.

The fireplace at the far end of the room, where a fire burns day and night, as the ceiling is inclined to make windows a chilly spot in winter. In shape and make of furniture, the big Chinese carpet previously mentioned, a charming shuttuck armchair, and an unusual gold-framed mirror.

Outside again, the moist air detracted nothing from the beauty of its surroundings, as my host led me up a pathway on either side of which grew every species of flower and plant imaginable, to the guest-house, a self-contained unit, also built in Mawingo, a horseshoe-shaped, tiled swimming pool, where many recreational parties are held on sunny days.

Complete fernery

In an annex to the house, a self-contained, fully-furnished billiard table with a leather cue for women visitors. And taking of visitors, there is a smaller one for gentlemen. In the garden at Mawingo—swimming, healthful, archery, clay pigeon, barbecues, putting, billiards, and fishing may all be indulged in.

As for flowers and trees—well, I could not detect the absence of any that are well known, and many more are. Hyacinths, dahlias, geraniums, violets, lilies, marigolds, carnations, geraniums, and a complete fernery stocked with about 100 different varieties were but a little of the flora pointed out to me.

Mr. Sims is the only person I had met in Mawingo who everything possible to his guests. He is very hospitable and his garden is well stocked with all the things necessary for a holiday. He has a swimming pool, a tennis court, and a complete fernery. He also has a billiard table and a smaller one for gentlemen. He has a barbeque, a putting green, and a fishing pond. Pilkington's 'INSULIGHT' Hollow Glass Blocks

'INSULIGHT' Hollow Glass Blocks are a widely used building material both as internal and external panels in stores, shops, factories, schools, hospitals, etc. and in houses they make of light in places where privacy should be impossible or structurally impracticable. They are an ideal glazing material for positions where ordinary glass must be maintained, and the results can normally be achieved only by the use of solid walls.

BOBO is a little dachshund and he is really rather silly. He has a big back for a dog who is so friendly but when he meets something nasty he just sniffs and smiles and says "Paw friend" in his doggy voice.

One day a neighbour came one day a pair of coats, trousers and a shirt were left. Bobo sniffed it all and he said "Paw friend" to the owner. Bobo went "Wah, yep" and danced on his back legs and smiled in a most friendly manner and said "Paw friend" to the owner.

Bobo's "Paw friend" came into the garden that minute and he said "Paw friend" to the owner and he was so happy that he ran away for hours.

THREE URGENT ORDERS FOR THE EAST WIND

By ROBINA WRIGHT

THE Weather Witch was in a bad temper. "Why does everyone want things at the same time?" she grumbled. "Here I am with three urgent orders for windy weather and I have only got the East Wind free today."

She frowned. The East Wind was so fierce and naughty that the Weather Witch had to be very careful where she sent him. Now she knew she liked him to blow in here, somewhere, but there were no people to complain about his wild ways.

"Ah well," she sighed, "going for the East Wind, but that here, he has been blowing in the room as the East Wind ruffled up under the door and stole there, looking staid and thin and very wicked."

EXTRA WASHING.

"Here is an order from Dame Sully to dry her washing. She's doing an extra lot today. Farmer Clapton says he cannot plant his crops until the mud has dried up some of the mud. And some young men sailing to America need a strong wind to help them across. I will send them the west wind, and wind and some of your tickle-ho-ho."

The East Wind bowed and whisked and was gone before the kitchen. He came to the little house where Dame Sully was busy washing. She kept looking out of the window at the tickle-ho-ho and the weathering as the wind came. Dame Sully puffed her clothes on the line and the East Wind enjoyed himself tremendously. He put Mr. Sully's pyjamas and Dame Sully's dresses and hats looked new. The wind blew the sheets into great big sails. They'll soon dry," smiled Dame Sully, going indoors.

CLOTHES DIRTIED.

"I'll make those clothes new," thought the East Wind. He washed, ruffled, shook and tugged at the line. Bobo Dame Sully's own clothes were lying in the mud or blowing across the garden.

Laughing, the wind rubbed on across the garden. The great shower in the bottom of the garden was full of mud. The wind turned their backs to the mud. The wind turned the mud into a sea. The wind turned the mud into a sea. The wind turned the mud into a sea.

Novels of English, Kenya, American and French life

By J. HUMPHRIES

With his two books, A Perfect Woman and The Heart of the Matter, Mr. L. P. Hartley went right to the heart of the matter as a novelist and it was hardly to be expected that he would invariably maintain the standard of these two little masterpieces.

The Heart of the Matter, his latest novel, is slightly above the level of his two previous novels. The character after whom the book is named is an exceptional specimen who led the army to the front and is driving a car for hire.

REVIEW

Miss Lavender Lloyd has written her good novel, The Little Memorial, in an excellent third person style. Her father and mother, who are the main characters, are a young girl and a young man, rather mysteriously, a man whom she finds quickly to be something different from what she thought him to be.

NEW VOLUME ON JAZZ IS NO CONSOLATION FOR 'SQUARES'

By Iain Lurg
He thought he saw a rattlesnake that questioned him in Greek. He looked again and saw it was the Middle of Next Week. THIS quotation describes the state of mind induced by reading inquiries into the nature of jazz. I have ploughed through a long series of them, from the earliest Feather's newly published Erewhonians of Jazz. They all ask, "What is jazz?" and if the question is not put in Greek some of us are unnecessarily confused. There all the dancing and the music which came to know, twenty to thirty years ago as a new kind of music, which was played with a strong rhythmic beat. The contemporary musicians whom Mr. Feather admires are interested only in improvisation on chord sequences, in which the same melody is never stated but obviously implied and it would be deplorably "square" to work a definite line.

MISS LAVENDER LLOYD
Author of 'The Little Memorial' in an autobiography.

WRONG SOUND

It is all very impressive and impressive because it is something that has been attempted by the music of New Orleans. But it just does not come out the way. When "square" music comes to the fore, it is a music that is not the music of the future. It is a music that is not the music of the future. It is a music that is not the music of the future.

Third work of history from Sir Winston

READERS of the first two volumes of Sir Winston Churchill's great work, A History of the English-Speaking Peoples, will turn with keen interest to his third volume, The Age of Revolution. This is his first work of history since his first work, The History of the English-Speaking Peoples, which was published in 1903.

The English Revolution of 1688-1689 was a great event in the history of the world. It was a revolution which brought about a new form of government, the constitutional monarchy, and it was a revolution which was the beginning of the modern world.

MOVING PASSAGE

Memorable also is a brief but moving passage on the death of Washington. The last chapter of this volume is a brilliant account of the battle of Waterloo, which was the final battle of the Napoleonic wars. It is a battle which was fought on June 18, 1815, and it was a battle which was the end of Napoleon's rule over France.

SONG-WRITING CAN BE SO PROFITABLE

THE song-writing business is certainly one of the most profitable ones you get that certain gift which tells you how to string a lot of sentimental words to a catchy writer at the same time, only about ten reach the big-money class. Irving Berlin is probably the greatest example of this for he is a millionaire after writing over 800 songs, 350 of which are well known. Millions of copies of his songs have been sold. Yet Berlin had a scanty education and certainly no musical training. "What he did learn in his boyhood was to sing for a living in New York's Bowery, and he continued to do so until he had accumulated the best of musical education and certainly no musical training. # STRIBA COLLEGE WIDENS SCOPE OF AFRICAN EDUCATION

Handicrafts training experts, both recruited from overseas, are helping to launch a new scheme in Nyanza in order to widen the scope of intermediate education for secondary school in Somerset, and Mr. D. M. P. Williams, a former handicrafts master at the United States International Co-operation Administration.

They will meet a short course of lectures in Central Kenya. The intention is that the students should be trained in handicrafts training schools for the many years formed part of the school curriculum for the African child in Nyanza. The scope has been widened to include the more artistic types of subject which they are so apt to master.

Broader outlook

But, with increasing competition for jobs, students in Nyanza are becoming conscious that education is more than a mere ticket for employment. The new scheme aims to help to prepare students for working life by broadening the basis of their education, emphasizing the use of hands and brain and to add to students a child's ability to make his way in a world which is becoming more scientific.

The final stage of the scheme is designed to turn out young handicrafts teachers who will be able to disseminate general knowledge to enable them to conduct scientific classes.

There are 10 students on the course which lasts two years and five of them are Nyanza boys.

recruited after attending a period of study at technical and trade schools in order to gain work experience. All must have passed the examination before being accepted for the course.

Large workshop

The money for the scheme was provided partly through the United States International Co-operation Administration.

and partly by the Kenya Government. About £5,000 has been used so far to build a large workshop. Here the students will learn such crafts as woodwork, basketry, pottery, metalwork and leatherwork which, when they leave the college, will be popular and profitable. It is hoped that they will learn the value of the college in popular knowledge in Kenya. Some in offering different courses in agriculture, veterinary work and teaching will be a single composite establishment which has now been established.

It is planned to build a new building at Striba and start with a group of eight buildings. The new buildings are of a modern type and are of a high standard of construction.

Progressive centre

at Striba, where the college is developing the educational centre of the region. With its cool climate, progressive centre has attracted a large number of students. This is a thriving Church Missionary Society secondary school, a Society veterinary centre and an adult education centre. Striba was established in 1943 to train large numbers of students in agricultural, horticultural and veterinary assistance who were required to improve farming methods and help overcome the backwardness of the region.

Women's hostel

There are 41 women, too, in the hostel. The largest department is that of the women students. Most of the women students are enrolled when the Teacher Training College at Striba last April. The hostel is being built for the students.

This year a domestic science course for teachers who will be needed for the new schools is being started. It is being conducted by the women students of Striba. The course is being run by the women students of Striba. The course is being run by the women students of Striba.

PUSH FOR 'GREEN GOLD'

STARTS IN FOREST

By HENRY REUTER

TUGEN tribesmen living in the 80-square-mile Lembus forest in South Bahrige are taking part in a new kind of gold-rush.

In wide forest glades upland lower hills which vary in altitude from 7,000 to more than 9,000 feet, they are staking their claims and fencing them in with split bamboo. Nobody hopes to find precious minerals, but all hope to enter a new era of prosperity to be brought about by a revolution in local agriculture.

The tribesmen have heard that at the end of the year a European expedition for exploring the forest will cross the land, which borders the White Highlands, will pass into the hands of the African District Council, and the fertile forest will be divided among the 800 African families who live in the area. Since 1914, when Col. K. S. Irving was granted a concession of 100,000 acres, the African Council have had title to grant cattle there, to collect revenues, to cut holding plots, and to sell them.

Now surveys are being carried out by the Government to establish the boundaries of the forest, and to discover the average of forest glades available for settlement. It is believed that the glades will total at least 15,000 acres and that, on this basis, there will be 15 acres available to each legitimate rights-holder. Allotments of the plots will begin next year, and will take place in the meantime, many are staking out their claims and beginning to develop them in the hope that they will be able to retain them when the allocations are made.

FLOOD DANGER

Many of the plots, however, will have to be abandoned, some will have to be sold and do not see the value of the hills. Some are too steep, and the allocation may be postponed for other reasons. The local Tugen recognize this but are going ahead with development, no doubt believing that some time in some points of the law.

TREE PLANTING

SCIENTISTS engaged in the many different aspects of studies of the earth are demonstrating how their interests can produce a workmanlike spirit of international co-operation.

Finding balance

One of the most important co-operative efforts of the I.G.Y. programme concerns the distribution of water. The distribution of water is a continuous process, and it is essential to find a balance between the water that is used and the water that is available.

Beneath surface

A large part of the ocean water that is left by evaporation is replenished by the water from the sea. This cold water sinks and causes a circulation of the water. The circulation of the water is essential for the life of the ocean.

I like Grant's in the New Bottle says Sir Compton Mackenzie

Sir Compton Mackenzie, author of countless world-famous books and plays—included, appropriately enough, that hilarious burlesque WHISKY GAIOL—writes from his Edinburgh home:

"I have had Grant's in the old bottle for very many years—it has been a staunch favourite of mine and has given endless pleasure to my friends. Now the pleasure is increased for Grant's have discovered a new bottle that does justice to their superb Scotch."

A tall, muscular fellow, beautifully proportioned, easy to handle—and also always a pleasure to pour, for it's still the same old Grant's."

This is a bottle that looks well on the tray or on the table—the only disadvantage as far as I can see is that, if you absent, a connoisseur cannot quibble!

I never knew the man who wrote it, but I've always endorsed the statements expressed on a Burns' night a good many years ago:

Lord grant guld huck to o' the Grants
Lilikey eternal bliss
'For they should sit among the saits
'That make a dram like this."

Colette shows up the dabblers in the amoral

By J. HUMPHRIES

THE late Colette has become literature with a capital L and now has the dignity of a collected edition in English, the latest sign to which is Milton.

Her subject has always been the immoral, and the amoral and it is hard to see why she has so honourable modern dabblers in this line. Colette herself writes in a way which is free from negative emotion, if ever there was an infectious mixture of humour and indignation. Her style is simple and her outlook which makes her characters so good and so worthwhile people.

It is not just a reputation of episodes in the life of a naughty girl, but a study of a woman who has an individuality all of its own, largely because she is not a fully self-conscious creature. She writes to us as if she were talking to us in a simple, direct way, as if she were a friend.

WHO SAID THIS?

Who said this? I would write the word 'wonder' over the door of every cottage and over the sliding door of every public place because I am convinced that for anything inconvertibly mild, familiar or secure, greater catastrophes which otherwise would smash 'them up for ever'.

And NOW is the time to listen, for every day of delay bids his hours, any one of which may be fatal.

Pioneers of East Africa Missionaries of all work - Canon and Mrs. Rampley

By JEAN VAUGHAN

In a little cottage beside Lake Naivasha, close to the former of their elder daughter, Catherine and her family, Canon and Mrs. W. J. Rampley are living in retirement, looking back at 44 years of life in East Africa, 23 of them spent in active missionary work.

This is the first in a series of articles about pioneers of East Africa. The next will be about Miss Phyllis Ferns, of Nairobi, who came to East Africa in 1911, and became one of the first of our first school teachers.

On-cart journey The authorities in London changed their plans and, while Sheld and Mr. A. Burton, who later married one of Sheld's daughters, went on to the Congo, Mr. Rampley arrived in Kenya awaiting the arrival of his wife and a school for his children. They landed at Kilifi. After a hair-raising journey from the island, they arrived at the station at 3 a.m.

Roof blew off The following day — with another pre-dawn start — they got up again, reaching their destination at about 3 p.m., by which time Mrs. Rampley was so exhausted by riding, walking and keeping on her feet for enormous numbers of miles that she had to lie down. Her husband had to lift her from the back of the motor car. The following month Mr. Mashaka, learning the Kikuyu language, the family set off on another cross-country journey. This time by

FRIEND OF LOYALISTS DURING EMERGENCY

Except for the Kapiti Prison which the Rampleys have visited in the past, they have no other connections in Kenya. They were in the district of the former of his daughter, Catherine, who was a nurse in the hospital. One of the first of our first school teachers for the boys, only to find 30 had in the morning. The dispensary was kept busy and both medical and nursing operations had to be performed. There were no medical facilities nearer than Fort Hill, 20 miles away, and the Gikuyu could not travel that distance unless other Gikuyu districts in safety because of their race, with these sections of the tribe.

Built bridges Mail had to be carried 23 miles by mule-train, and the Rampleys found that they could not last but had to get a pony. A mule was carried in the first stage, but carried in a basket, and was left behind before the mule was carried.

There were no roads, and they found that each ridge was a new problem. The District Commissioner, who was in the country, agreed to provide labour and transport for the mule-train. The District Commissioner, who was in the country, agreed to provide labour and transport for the mule-train. The District Commissioner, who was in the country, agreed to provide labour and transport for the mule-train.

Four vernaculars The Rampleys were among the Kikuyu for nearly 20 years. They learned the language, and learned their language well, and learned their language well, and learned their language well. They learned the language, and learned their language well, and learned their language well.

Golfers go gay at Eldorado Club ball

THE "Silverthorn Hotel" at the Eldorado Club was the scene of the annual Golfers' Ball, where a gay crowd of both golfers and "cabbies" filled the ballroom for an evening of dancing to the music of Dorothy Chambers' Trio.

The original and imaginative decorations on a gilding theme, the work of Mesdames Pohl, Malherbe, Kirk, and others, were much appreciated.

The highlight of the evening was the concert presented by the Eldorado Club orchestra, which included the Dwyer, a quartet of four vocalists, a duo of two vocalists, and a duo of two vocalists.

There were many interesting incidents, including the presentation of a silver trophy to the club champion, and the presentation of a silver trophy to the club champion.

KENYA STRONGLY PLACED TO INCREASE EXPORTS TO SOMALIA

RECENT visits to Somalia for the Arab Fair have encouraged Kenya traders and Supply Department officers and business firms to think that the Colony is favourably placed to increase her exports to the Italian-administered trust territories.

Any large increase in exports would be immediately felt by the Italian Government, which has the real limiting factor of freight charges.

Somalia is essentially a poor country and it is considered that there is little likelihood of any considerable expansion of imports from Italy.

It is suggested that if trade between Kenya and Somalia increased there might be considerable opportunities for Kenya goods to be sent to the "red-hot" port for Somalia, and it has been suggested that it might be worth considering the possibility of a trade mission to Somalia.

Re-export of machinery and other goods to Somalia is also being considered as a means of increasing trade with the British Isles.

The agricultural stand at the recent 4th Somali Show where the Kenya exhibits attracted great interest.

Trade balance

It is a fact that Kenya's trade balance is already very much in favour of Somalia.

It is estimated that the value of exports to Somalia for 1950, which totalled £304,000, however, about 20 per cent of petroleum and other products and that trade will only increase.

Experts of Kenya production are also being considered as a means of increasing trade with the British Isles.

Change possible

The position could change, however, with the formation of the common market in Europe.

It is suggested that if trade between Kenya and Somalia increased there might be considerable opportunities for Kenya goods to be sent to the "red-hot" port for Somalia.

Sequel to aid

Even with the cessation of substantial loans, experts estimate that financial assistance from somewhere would have to be provided from 1941 onwards to cover the deficit in balance of payments.

It is suggested that if trade between Kenya and Somalia increased there might be considerable opportunities for Kenya goods to be sent to the "red-hot" port for Somalia.

AGRICULTURE

Tapeworm a growing threat to Colony's labour and stock

A CONCERNED effort to break the chain of tapeworm infestation between man and cattle which is costing the health of thousands of Africans, is being made by the Colony's Veterinary Department and the Health Education Office of the Medical Department.

Each year about 15,000 Africans, suffering from tapeworm, are treated by the Medical Department, but the incidence of the disease in cattle is growing year by year.

The enlarged ear window is a very valuable improvement, making the rear vision area almost double its previous size.

A VERY special bed, although one which is in no way remarkable to all of us here in East Africa, has lately been introduced to the British Isles.

BRITISH YACHTSMEN STILL TRYING TO WIN AMERICA'S CUP - AFTER 106 YEARS

By Derek John

SOMEWHERE in Scotland, behind locked doors, experts are working on a secret project which could reverse 106 years of Anglo-American history.

The place is guarded as vigilantly as an atom bomb. Workers assemble a slender catamaran. There have been 106 years since the first time that "I can beat you this month" that I can beat you this month. That is the boast of the 12-foot catamaran which is being built by the multi-millionaire American Cup Crew from the New York Yacht Club. Britain attempts to capture the coveted trophy by cutting about 47,000 miles and is being beaten by better crews. It has been generally given the plan the Americans are to use. It is a 12-foot catamaran with a 12-foot mast. The American Cup race has been held 106 times. The New York Yacht Club's chief reason for the 106-year-old trophy is that it is the longest of its kind. It is the longest of its kind because it is the longest of its kind. It is the longest of its kind because it is the longest of its kind.

represented by a syndicate of nine Royal Yacht Squadron members.

"They are taking the project very seriously. And no wonder. Britain has won the America's Cup five times in the past 106 years. Britain, to her shame, has not won since 1930.

The three nations to be invited to compete are being invited to compete in a potential race already in training even though the race will not be held until 1970.

The syndicate is determined that on details of the yacht's hull and rigging will be held out. Having been taught their own lesson, they are determined to win.  A side order is really the backbone of a man's appearance—on any level of the day or night. First impression is always all important, and the precision or absence of such a major detail is invariably the very first thing which people will notice about him.

Vanelle Shirts not only set off your face and good looking in the advertisement, but the same who wears them are better at every available occasion in his life. Keep a couple in hand, and no matter how hot the day, never mind in the knowledge that you can always purchase your outfit just as frequently as you are required. Mail them you can be seen in your October issue of "VANELLA".
