The Anglo-German Naval Agreement

GREAT BENEFIT TO CAUSE OF WORLD PEACE

A Definite Starting Point

FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY EXPLAINS THE POSITION

During the course of a broadcast speech, the First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Bolton Eyles-Moncell, explained the position in regard to the Anglo-German naval agreement which was concluded this week.

He announced that Germany had agreed to adhere to the 35 per cent. ratio to British strength, notwithstanding any naval construction that might be undertaken by other Powers.

Sir Bolton Eyles-Moncell declared that the agreement conferred a great benefit to the cause of world peace, and was a contribution of the greatest importance to future naval limitation.

The Submarine Question

[BY WIRELESS.]

Rugby, June 20.

The Anglo-German naval agreement was the subject of a broadcast speech last night by the First Lord of the Admiralty, Sir Bolton Eyles-Moncell, who stated that it conferred a great benefit on the cause of world peace. It was the government's confidence that the agreement would be able to forward to other nations the same confidence which they possess with a view to reach agreements upon formal and decided naval limitation for the future.

International treaties at present prevent restrictions in naval armaments and various expenditures which they involved, for upon them the governments of the past few years had been based. But these treaties expired at the end of the year, and the British Government were anxious to bring about a new general limitation treaty. The intention to limit naval strength voluntarily to 35 per cent of that of the British Empire, offered a definite and concrete starting point, and was considered a progressive scheme the proposal as soon as possible.

Position Clarified

Early in the discussion the confusion was reached that the proposal was a contribution of the

Denomin and Argentine Interests

Rugby, June 20.

The Government's meat policy was again under discussion at a meeting yesterday between the United Kingdom's Minister of Agriculture and Forestry and the Argentine representative of the Dominion. Earlier in the day the United Kingdom's Minister of Agriculture and Forestry reported the views of his Government on certain proposals which had been submitted to him.

The position was again referred to experts and the newspapers state it is hoped that it will be satisfactory to both sides. It is believed that the Dominion's representatives, before the end of next week, will be able to accept the British Official Wireless Service.

VICAR APOSTOLIC OF KISUMU

Sudden Passing of Bishop Brandama

38 YEARS IN E. AFRICA

The death occurred in the European Hospital early yesterday morning of Bishop Georginius Brandama, Vicar Apostolic of Kisumu, at the age of 61 years, after a long illness.

The death of Bishop Brandama was tragically sudden as he appeared to be in his usual health on Tuesday, when he was motored down from Kisumu to Nairobi. On Wednesday morning he attended a meeting of the Advisory Council on Education and afterwards took luncheon with the Director of Education and Mrs. Morris. While returning to a school he was immediately attended by the Rev. Fr. Antonio Kibuku, who was present, and later Dr. Cornack attended him. He was removed to the European Hospital shortly afterwards, but died at 4.0 a.m. the next morning. Father Flynn of the Church of the Holy Family, who was present with him until he died.

The late Monsignor Brandama, Vicar Apostolic of Kisumu, was born in Prissalad and was educated at the Sacred Heart School and Rosendal and afterwards studied Divinity at the Mill Hill Mission, London, founded by the late Cardinal Vaughan. He was ordained priest in 1896 and at the end of that year arrived in Kenya (then British East Africa) and after proceeding to Nairobi by rail entered thence into Uganda, where he served until 1914.

Founder of Missions

During that time he founded a number of missions and took a prominent part in building and improving the various mission stations of the Mill Hill Mission. He also came down to what is now the Kenya and Uganda Provinces and founded mission stations at Mumbasa and Kakamega. In recognition of his work in the mission field he was appointed Prefect Apostolic of the Congo and later up to Simonsville in 1914. He remained there until 1927 and again returned to the Congo and was made that he accomplished in a country that had been considered, until then, a literal "grave" for Europeans. He improved the buildings, made immense strides in the introduction of hygiene, reorganization of the food supply, medical services and the introduction of sound loans in addition to making invaluable contributions to native welfare.

In Kavirondo

In 1927 he was appointed to Kisumu as Prefect Apostolic of Kavirondo and continued his good work in that province. A particular feature of his educational work for the Africans was his practical nature. While he trained a number of teachers and indicated their progress, he gave them a certain amount of training; he insisted on practice going hand in hand with theory, and his brilliant pupils were taught useful trades, such as blacksmith's work, carpentry and masonry. In 1933 a Vicar Apostolic, separate from the Nile, Nile and Victoria Nyanza Vicar Apostolic, was constituted and he was transferred to the first Vicar Apostolic of Kisumu.

A man of robust physical appearance, the late Bishop Brandama had a natural air of authority and leadership that endeared him to all with whom he came in contact, regardless of whatever race, colour, or creed. Among his friends and immediate associates he was held in the utmost esteem and affection and the natives loved him with reverence, love and devotion.

CHILDREN'S FUND COMPLETES THE FIRST LAP

FOUR MORE TO GO

PRINCE OF WALES SCHOOLBOYS TO HELP TO-MORROW

The week has closed with the aim—£100—realised.

The Fund has, therefore, advanced about one-fifth of the long way to be travelled before all the children can be sure of their holiday.

Twenty people during the past week contributed in all Fifty Pounds. If that respectable average can be maintained, the Appeal will succeed.

Can another twenty be depended upon to give the Fund another push forward this week?

The subscriptions so far have come mainly from Nairobi but there is an encouraging increase in the response from the country districts.

Nairobi firms have not yet followed the example of past years by sending donations in the firm's name but no doubt they will not ignore the opportunity. They have always shown a competitive generosity in the children's cause.

To-morrow night the boys of the Prince of Wales School are doing their bit for the Fund. It is due to them that their good spirit should be encouraged by the public and that "Oliver Cromwell" at the Theatre Royal should play to a good and appreciative audience. The booking already discloses growing interest. There will be dancing afterwards at the "Karibu" Restaurant to the music of Zeigler's Band—free to holders of 5/- tickets.

Last week's total 1,162 50.

Labourer: I am fully conscious of that work and the courage, enthusiasm, and devotion which has characterised it," wrote His Excellency.

Goldfields Bishop.

In an interview in Rome at the time of his appointment as Vicar Apostolic of Kisumu Bishop Brandama was asked: "How does it feel to be called a goldfields Bishop?" He replied: "It could have a very unpleasant appearance. Here great natural wealth has been discovered in the form of gold. It has ruined the native. Happily, the Kenya Colony Government has taken measures to avoid this at Kakamega. A commission has been appointed and given authority to protect the native, to which committee, incidentally, I have been named. Our station at Kakamega flourished for some years before the discovery of gold and we were very concerned for one people when the same was discovered."

The funeral took place at St. Antonio's graves were at 4.00 p.m. The service was held in the utmost esteem and affection and the natives loved him with reverence, love and devotion.

Governor's Tributes

In 1930 on the conclusion of thirty years' work Bishop Brandama received a personal letter from Sir Edward George Governor of the country, paying tribute to the Bishop's record of courage and devotion to the African people. "Your long years of service have been marked by great courage and devotion to the African people," the letter stated. The Bishop's work in the field of education was held in the utmost esteem and affection and the natives loved him with reverence, love and devotion.

PRISON MUTINY IN U.S.A.

Fierce Fighting in Coal Mine

Convicts Smoked Out

VENTILATORS REVERSED AFTER FIRE STARTED

[MEMPHIS NEWS-HERALD.]

Lansing, Michigan, June 19.

Eighty-three convicts who mutinied in the 730 foot level of the prison coal mine to-day were smoked out, after a struggle of resistance, during which they seized 11 guards as hostages.

During the course of the fighting the convicts were repulsed by gas and guns, when they attempted to capture the cage manned by officials.

They actually started a fire in the mine, but ventilator fans were reversed, causing the mutineers to inhale the smoke from the fire. Armed wardens, wearing gas masks, then advanced and overcame them.

Taxation Increases in the United States

SURPRISE REQUEST BY THE PRESIDENT

Message to Congress

LARGE PERSONAL INCOMES AND INHERITANCES TO BE AFFECTED

[MEMPHIS NEWS-HERALD.]

Washington, June 20.

A general increase in taxes, especially on very large personal incomes, imposts on larger inheritances and gifts, and a graduated tax on corporations starting at 10 per cent, and rising to 14 per cent in lieu of the present flat rate of 12 1/2 per cent., have been requested by President Roosevelt in a special surprise message to Congress.

The President declares that the tax increase on big private incomes is necessary in order to cope with the disturbing effects on American life occasioned by great inheritances of wealth and power.

TEXACO

COMPRESSOR OILS HAVE THESE ADVANTAGES

It's a comfortable thing for a compressor engineer to have that the lubricant he uses will safely protect every bearing surface with the very minimum of oil loss.

But it's still more comfortable to have the assurance that this particular lubricant is characteristic for its remarkable low carbon-forming tendency, and that it is always of the same high quality. Texaco Compressor Lubricants give you these advantages.

Demonstrated by laboratory test or by actual performance, Texaco compressor oils are unequalled for their uniformly low carbon-forming tendency and exact adherence to the ideal qualities in every compressor requirement. GOLD PRICE The price of bar gold was quoted in London yesterday at 141/10q, an increase of 1ld. on the previous day.

THE SHARE MARKET Kentan and Kimingini Make Steady Progress THE WATKENS SPURT

THE feature of the week has been the rise in the price of shares which, after touching 10/9 on Monday, eased to 10/11 on Tuesday and closed in London yesterday at 10/6 1/2. Local holders of the shares are reported to be getting out at a nice profit and should be expected to sell shortly at a price very much below the figure at which they were sold. Opinions are given in these notes and investors who get in when they were first recommended to do so should be congratulated. With Kentan and Kimingini, the price of these shares should advance considerably before the end of August. With regard to Kentan reports continue to be favourable regarding the reef. The prospecting operations on which shares were sold last October are being prosecuted it is believed that these shares should be held as an investment. The prospecting in London leads one to believe that a decision has already been reached that the reef is a good one. Contrary to expectations Eborata failed to maintain their position and eased considerably touching 7/12 middle on the 14th, but closed yesterday at 8/9. This weakening should not be regarded seriously by holders as the shares are usually eventually met in sympathy with Kimingini.

A Good Word for Kenya Mines CAPTAIN MOREING'S TOUR IMPRESSIONS Lessons Optimism

INTERESTING references to the progress of mining in Kenya were made recently at the annual meeting of the Leonard Corporation by Captain A. H. Moreing, the Chairman, following a visit to East Africa. The accounts have been prepared in a very clear form, and it is a matter of satisfaction that the few notes in which the corporation has been carrying on business in the past few months, and which are the property of Messrs. Bewick, Morison and Co., are the property of Messrs. Bewick, Morison and Co. It is always a word of a preliminary nature to do so, usually uncommensurate, and we are only now getting into the stride. The value of the shares is £10,000,000, the paid up of which the accounts were prepared. The foundation of our gold mining interests in the Tanganyika Gold Mines Limited, The Taniam Syndicate holds a one-quarter interest in Rosterman, and also an interest in the Pakenusi Prospecting and Development Company, which holds an exclusive prospecting licence over the ground reserved by the Government in the No. 2 Area. This reservation contains the well-known Government reef, which is being actively prospecting and developed under the supervision of Messrs. Bewick, Morison and Co. I made a very careful inspection of the mine, and formed the opinion that the mine is a very fine one and one that should prove most remunerative. To me, the fact that the mine is not yet started, and that while Kenya Mines had a very fine reef, it was not yet started, was a matter of surprise. It is a matter of surprise that the reef was not yet started. It is a matter of surprise that the reef was not yet started. It is a matter of surprise that the reef was not yet started.

TANGANYIKA GOLD 6142 ozs. (35,504) April Export

THE Mining section of the Tanganyika Trade report for April states that gold occupies second place in the list of domestic exports. The April output exceeded the output in any month since 1914 by 1,497 ounces, and the average of 6,000 ounces is being well maintained. The Commissioner of Mines reported during the month that an export of 61,422 ounces of gold, valued at £25,304, and 9,985 of diamonds, valued at £1,000, were exported in 1914 of tin and exports of salt. All these figures are preliminary, and a preliminary report on gold showed a decrease on April 1934. The gold was obtained from the following districts—Mbera (free), 75 ounces, valued at £434; do. (bond), 4,221 ounces (£23,860); Musoma (free), 874 ounces (£3,670); do. (bond), 200 ounces (£4,300); Dodoma (alluvial), eight ounces (£46).

Notes from the Field GROWING INTEREST IN FIVE APPLICATIONS FOR EXCLUSIVE P.R.P.

THE production of gold in Kenya, for the month of May, exceeded 2,000 tons, the third month in succession to which this figure has been reached or exceeded. Several new mills are in process of erection and a number of existing ones have been replaced with better and more up-to-date plants.

The steady increase in output promises to be maintained and prospects are considered to be good. Production of gold has now grown to 20,000 tons in the past year, but the latter part of the year is not yet over. Mining houses appear to be surprised with regard to the possibilities of the gold industry in Kenya. It is understood that five applications were received for the Exclusive Prospecting Licence to be granted in connexion with the Edwara River, mostly from regions in the north-western part of the Colony. It is understood that five applications were received for the Exclusive Prospecting Licence to be granted in connexion with the Edwara River, mostly from regions in the north-western part of the Colony.

A LETTER FROM LONDON E.A. GOLDFIELDS' PROGRESS IN SAZA AREA Lupa Exploration Syndicate's Future

THE East African Goldfields issued the following cable from its General Manager, Mr. J. H. G. "Diamond drill-hole No. 9 has cut three quartz reefs giving the following results: 20 ft. reef cut at 500 ft. vertical depth assays 18.9 dwts. gold per ton over 17 ft. horizontal quartz width. "At 300 ft. vertical depth a second reef was cut assaying 4.4 dwts. gold per ton over 17 ft. horizontal quartz width. "At 200 ft. horizontal depth Saza No. 3 reef was cut assaying 2.4 dwts. over 17 ft. horizontal quartz width. "It is officially explained that the significance of the news is that drill-hole No. 9 is the deepest hole drilled up to date in the Lupa Goldfield. Diamond drill-hole No. 8 cut the Saza reef at 200 ft. vertical depth averaging 18.9 dwts. gold per ton over 18 ft. width. Dr. 170 ft. vertically below Diamond drill-hole No. 8 the Saza main reef was cut assaying 18.9 dwts. gold per ton. These results are claimed to indicate continuity of the ore body in depth and a continuation of high values.

It is understood that the parties principally interested in the Kenya Consolidated Goldfields are now in the Colony with a view to forming a syndicate for the purpose of two of their properties, on which of natives, several concerns being stated to have engaged staffs of between 20 and 30 men. European employment also, appears to be increasing. The problem of the goldfields has prevented, in no small measure, the problem of European employment in the Colony from becoming a serious problem. To sum up, the present prospects appear to be good and those in close touch with the reports and programmes consider that so many need be entertained of the soundness of the majority of the important concerns now operating. Some of the smaller companies may go through a difficult period before the whole position clarifies and stabilizes, but this is to be expected.

NYANZA GOLDFIELDS THE Secretaries of the Central Diamond Drill ordered by Nyanza Goldfields Ltd., was shipped on the 16th inst. and it is hoped that it will arrive about a month's time.

Mr. Gallow-Fenzi writes as follows:-

Excepting for the coastal area which has been dry since the fall rains have fallen practically all over East Africa, the western areas being the western section of Uganda and the western section in Tanganyika, the Lumbara plain in Northern Kenya and the Fort Hall Maragou district.

In Kenya the heaviest rainfall this week was at Keru with 4 1/2 inches followed by Mwasit and Maragou four inches, then Fort Hall Makuyu and Retru 3 1/2 inches, Molen and Hilderet and Fort Ternan 3 1/2 inches, Luswaa 3 1/2 inches and Kakole and Thika nearly two inches. All roads are in good to fair condition, but chains should be taken on the showery weather looks like continuing for the present. A week yesterday from Mombasa and stated that the road is in excellent condition the whole way.

Tanganyika is still very dry with the exception of Kilimanjaro which has had nearly two inches. The rest of the country is dry and roads are in fair to good condition. A considerable amount of work has been put on the Great North road and it is so good, that a number motored through from Mbera to Nairobi a distance of 800 miles in three days.

In Uganda there have been fairly heavy storms both in the central and western provinces, but roads are in excellent condition.

A GOOD ATTENDANCE

(STANDARD - continuation.)

Nanyuki, June 18.

On Saturday the meeting was well attended and the racing very interesting, and the totalisator well patronised. An unusual selling party was held on the Kwabari Race, and this holiday was witnessed.

KISUMU OBJECTIONS TO TIME TABLE CHANGE

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard," Sir.—In your daily issue of 7th Inst. I read with great amusement the reply by the Railway Administration to my letter which appeared in your daily issue of 1st Inst. regarding the alteration in the existing train service as from July 1.

The reply by the Railway Administration is contradictory. In one paragraph of the reply the Railway says that the time of the arrival of the train at Kisumu has been altered from morning to evening so as to connect with the 12.15 p.m. train for Mombasa, avoiding a long wait at the station ports, while in another paragraph it states that no alteration is made to give adequate time for loading at lake ports! In my opinion if the train does not arrive at Kisumu in the morning as usual it will have an effect in the slightest the afternoon train from Mombasa, Nairobi and other stations which usually arrive by train through Saturday morning train.

According to the old time table, the train from Mombasa to Kisumu, leaving Kisumu on Saturday morning, will arrive back by Monday's train but the new time table will force the incoming visitors to wait till Thursday's train which means a waiting of five days for a passenger train. Is this the time table which will reduce traffic, encourage users of the railway?

Since the completion of the Railway to Kampala, very few Uganda passengers travel by the lake route, mainly in connection with the Mombasa and Kisumu travel by lake steamer. Their average number in the case of such passengers does not exceed six at any one time. Compacting passengers for Kisumu the number of lake steamer passengers is negligible.

Even if the Railway run a Bulera branch train on Sunday, it will not relieve the hardship of the Native passengers because several of the native passengers arriving by Saturday morning's train are for different destinations, such as for Arambou, Upenja, Genji, Siakha, Alago, Maragoli, Kiakia, etc.

According to the new time table all these passengers will be forced to stay unnecessarily at Nairobi for 10 hours and a further 10 hours in Kisumu until they can find out other conveyances on Sunday morning to take them to their respective destinations with the total delay of 20 hours, the hardship can be judged by your readers. Even the question of night accommodation is going to be a problem.

The Railway reply in connection with the down train leaving on Monday morning from Kisumu is misleading. The proposed alteration, as the Railway authorities contend, is made for the Kisumu passengers to connect at Nakuru to the up-passenger train for Uganda. It is a known fact that there are hardly any passengers travelling to Uganda from Kisumu via Nakuru. Almost 90 per cent. of the passengers travelling to Uganda from the port do so by joining at Kisumu which station is only 65 miles away from Kisumu by road and about 275 miles via Nakuru by the Railway Administration in their annual report greatly deplore the falling off of a passenger train but the could only be recaptured by introducing a suitable time table and reduced fares. It is no secret.

It must be borne in mind that Nyanza Province has a quarter of a million of native population and thousands of European and Indian population and growing gold mine activities and that Kisumu is a very important commercial centre. It is therefore the duty of the Railway Administration to maintain at least one up and one down through passenger train service each week.

By the time of this letter appearing in your correspondence the following the Railway Authorities may have received several letters of opposition from different institutions and ethical persons.

TREES IN TOWN

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard," Sir.—Now that the Jubilee tree planting is over, it is to be hoped that the trees which are being planted will be properly cared for.

A few years ago a number of English trees were planted on the grounds of the Government House. Several of them are now well grown with a vigorous wood structure and the life of the tree is long.

I trust this will catch the eye of those responsible for this work. Yours etc.,

COFFEE PRICES

WORKING GIRLS IN KENYA

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard," Sir.—The charmingly beautiful display of dancing that was staged last night in aid of the Lady Northey Home has suggested to me a possible solution of a problem that for some months has been exercising the minds of a good many people.

Not long ago there was a novel which is bound to spread, to give to the solution of the problem of the young girls to figure far below the wage level. Girls who are living with relations may possibly be able to keep their heads above water; but what of those who are called on to pay, in order to keep body and soul together, more than they earn? There is practically no hope for them; they must sink.

It seems to me, Sir, that you might help in this crying emergency with the powerful influence of the "East African Standard." Why should not the Lady Northey Home, or some other Institution, be given the opportunity to enter the lives of activists? If the great Indian of the land, the Churches, the Salvation Army and the charitable societies of the community all worked together to increase the financial resources of some Institute which would it not be possible, as a temporary measure, to arrange with the Government of the larger Floating Homes to take in such girls for a sum that they could afford out of their inadequate means and to subsidize the Floating Homes from the income of the Institution?

It would be necessary at the same time, of course, for determined efforts to be made to force through the Legislature, with the least possible delay, the Minimum Wage Ordinance to ensure for the future a living wage for every working girl and man in the country, of whatever race, in accordance with the standard of living of each race.

Once such an Ordinance came into operation, the call on the charitable for this particular evil would automatically cease. Yours etc.,
G. W. GAYER,
Nairobi,
June 10, 1935.

THE MONETARY FACTOR IN DEPRESSION

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard," Sir.—In my letter appearing in your issue of 12th Inst. I have shown Mr. Marshall and Tansig are the recommended text books for students entering on a course of Economics at London University and I should suggest to "Bryce" that he reads "Myths" and "Lead" before he attempts to pass judgment on the views of the writer. Bryce is a substitute for logical reasoning. He first informs us that the factors governing supply and demand have nothing to do with the general price level and then demands some factors to the winds and the tides. Personally, I should think the winds and the tides affect the navigation of a ship quite a lot, but then I am a poor sailor. "Bryce" is probably a better natural expert than he is an economist. His own authorities, e.g. the Macmillan Report, Keynes, Irving Fisher, and Cassel are naturally selected to fit in with his own views, but I certainly would not recommend a study of Fisher's theory of the cost-price theory, or Keynes' "Treatise on Money" to a person without any previous knowledge of the principles of economics as enunciated by Marshall, Tansig, Henry Clay, J. H. Jones, Pigou, etc. "Bryce" with his usual facility can probably supply the dates of the publications of the last three.

"M.W.S." whose contributions, like those of Mr. Hogan, are always characterized by good sense and restraint, in today's issue raises the most important point in the monetary discussion, the replacement of the Gold Standard by an expansionist system of currency.

There are many of these expansionist theories being put forward at the present time, but it would surprise many people to learn that most of the theories were advanced by economists at the beginning of the 19th century. The one to which "M.W.S." draws attention is the view held by Mr. Hawtrey except that "M.W.S." thinks that by having currency paid pass with production of goods, stability of prices will thereby be ensured. Before offering any criticism of this I should like to hear "M.W.S." say further. Mr. Hawtrey's theory as expressed in "Trade and Credit" is that by increasing credit indefinitely there will be an inflationary boom which can be indefinitely raised by an abundance of "M.W.S." points out, an abandonment of the Gold Standard. This view was expressed by the Birmingham economist more than 100 years ago as Professor T. E. Gregory has shown, the point overlooked by "Bryce" is that the willingness to hold money at a time when the value is falling daily and every hour. The demand expansion of 1923 should be an object lesson to a future floating home. The Bourbons, we can learn nothing from experience.

The last paragraph of "M.W.S." text creates a dilemma from which he can see no way out. My own view is that the present system of close co-operation between Government (which is the elected voice of the nation) and experts who know their own job better than their critics do, together with an early return to the Gold Standard, is the only possible solution to the difficulty. It may not be the ideal one but it is infinitely better than attempting to put into practice any of the expansionist theories not one of which, as far as the fundamental law and therefore unworkable in practice.

The Forests of Kenya

A Valuable Asset Being Lost

Reaching The Limit Of Safety

A burnt forest, the cause of the drying up of the stream shown in another picture on this page.

VIGOROUS PROTECTION POLICY NEEDED

BY Mrs. R. WARD

FROM the earliest dawn of history, Africa has been the scene of the wanderings of primitive tribes, seeking always for new pastures for their herds and new ground to break for cultivation. The floods and herbs, by which tribal and individual health has been reduced, demoralized and laid waste the country; the cultivation, clearing and burning of patches of forest and bush to grow their crops, destroyed the humus which gave the soil its richness, and gradually exhausted the fertility of the land. Thus the herdsman, finding the grazing impoverished and the cultivation, finding their soils becoming more and more unproductive, moved on, and the process of destruction began anew. Thus did the nomadic herdsman and the equally nomadic cultivator make the forests of Africa.

The first comprehensive picture of the forests of Kenya which we get is that given by Sir David Hutchins' reports on the Forests of East Africa which was made in 1907. He describes first the tropical forests of the coast, with their in a very emphatic manner, about the terrible destruction wrought in them. He speaks of "the complete and appalling destruction of forests" in the Kiikuyu country. The average thickness of the forest-belt had "diminished at a rate of about half a mile yearly."

When Sir David Hutchins made his report, the chief forest area of the Colony had already been partitioned into reserves, and a Forest Department had recently been created to protect the Government forests and to work them profitably. The records made by forest-crews and by cultivation were then checked, but they were not ended, and the forest was not yet immune from danger, which still threatened it from many sides.

Every year, in the dry season, the grass-trees of the Masai, the Lambeis, the Wakasbas, and many other pastoral tribes sweep across the country, and all too often the Kiikuyu herdsman, cutting trees from hollow trees with smoke, destroyed thousands of acres of forest by fire.

There is little forest round Nairobi today, but to the Karuru and Nyiro forests, or their neighbourhood, all the trees in the forest are of the same species, the lower and the upper, and as a type of the lower, describes the forests round Nairobi. This is the little forest round Nairobi today, but to the Karuru and Nyiro forests, or their neighbourhood, all the trees in the forest are of the same species, the lower and the upper, and as a type of the lower, describes the forests round Nairobi.

The settler in the early days was little less inimical to forest than the African, for he too was guilty of clearing valuable forest in order to cultivate. The Government also cannot be exempted from blame, for though it did up to a point preserve forest, it was not always with wisdom or foresight for timber concessions were sometimes granted without any date of termination fixed to them. One of the major pests of Africa, continuous to devour millions of ground trees every year; thus, by clearing and burning the forest area was steadily reduced, and great efforts were necessary for its preservation.

The Limit of Safety
In 1922 another eminent forestry expert, Professor R. S. Trapp visited Kenya and duly presented his report to the Government. His views were decided, and he expressed them in the following words: "From the point of view of production" he wrote "the forest area of the Colony has been reduced to the utmost limit of safety from the point of view of the timber supply." He also pointed out that legislation is advisable for the protection of the forest.

It is very specially important in Kenya that the pace of production of timber should not be slackened, for, finally, the only fuel in general use in the Colony, with the exception of over three million tons of wood, and, secondly, as the African's standard of living rises, so will the demand for building materials increase. With proper management the Government forests can produce, as has been seen, excellent building and furniture-making timbers.

Terrible Destruction
Sir David Hutchins reports too much to say about the value of the Kenya forests, and much also, mangroves in the coast swamps, their ebony and copal and rubber trees, and their value for the Fana River forest, and recommends that it should be cleared and turned into cultivable land, and he suggests methods for turning the "barren lands" into a forest. He describes his own visit to the "barren lands" in 1885. Of the Kiikuyu country he says "No corner has been able to penetrate into the heart of the country, so dense was the forest." He describes his own visit to the "barren lands" in 1885.

This Week's Puzzle.

Ten companions went on their annual day trip to the coast, carrying a car for themselves. Budget and Green suffer dreadfully if compelled to sit facing the engine, while Brown simply loathes travelling with his back to it.

ANSWER TO LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE—As Tom provided it and Budget and Green suffer dreadfully if compelled to sit facing the engine, while Brown simply loathes travelling with his back to it. If the compartment seats five on either side, in how many ways is it possible for the problem-solver to seat themselves, letting Brown, Green and Brown sit in the position which they find most comfortable?

South Africa, having ruthlessly cleared their mountains to be replanted, is now planting new ones—and very expensive—schemes of re-forestation.

Kenya Policy Needed
Kenya might well profit by the experience of other countries, and adopt a vigorous forest policy in these, the early days of her history. What, it may be asked, would such a policy entail? It would entail first and foremost, a change in the attitude towards the forests; they would not be looked upon only as a source of immediate revenue but as the guardians of the country's fertility. It would entail a strong

Forest Department, with extended activities, both in fire-protection and planting. It would entail a great increase in tree-planting and determined preventive measures against fires, both in the settled areas and in Native Reserve. It would entail, above all, the fostering in the younger generation of all races, an increased understanding and appreciation of trees and forests.

HOW GREAT MEN BEGAN

FEDOR CHALIAPIN

THIRTY three years ago, a ten-year-old shepherd's apprentice covered daily in four of the thickest straps which his master wielded. His father was a Russian peasant, too poor to give him an education. There was nothing to mark the boy as different from the others of his village. But the boy was the Chaliapin of today, whose golden voice has earned him £1,000 in an evening—a sum which his father perhaps could not have earned in twenty years of toil.

The boy sang in the village choir, and although his voice was not remarkable, the experience fret him. Inside him he felt what he was singing, and his ambition was to escape from the terrible drudgery of village life, and the shoemaker in particular. Good handwriting, and not singing, gave him his chance. He was offered a post as a clerk in the railway station at Ufa in the Urals.

But his ambition to sing and to act remained. One day he threw up his job and joined a troupe of William Shakespear— in England, three hundred years before, still playing Shakespeare.

But there remained many difficulties and hardships. Chaliapin had a good voice, but that was not enough. In those days the life of a Russian touring company was a ruinous touring life of the holder's again, he showed that he had the old stage and fire. At 47 he started his acting—and today, because he has suffered more, perhaps, is a greater artist—more than in Imperial Russia.

When the revolution came, Chaliapin had to begin again. What he had built up in thirty years was swept away in three. But though he was at the bottom of the ladder again, he showed that he had the old stage and fire. At 47 he started his acting—and today, because he has suffered more, perhaps, is a greater artist—more than in Imperial Russia.

1935 EDITION OF HER GRANDMOTHER

Crinoline Effects In The New Hipline

MAIZE IN THE COLOUR SCHEME

NEEDS TO GO

BRIGHT blues and vivid reds are the fashion in the mid-summer collections, due to the influence of the Silver Jubilee. They are cleverly used, so that they are little, if any, suggestion of a Union Jack about the frock into which they are introduced. But there is so much of these that the sartorial board, eventually, to create a reaction, and buyers of materials are already on the look-out for other tones which are in contrast to these bright, clear colours. One famous designer is recommending on the wide range of soft pink tints. A crinoline is absolutely making a place for itself; so that the rich butterfly wing of the field flowers. Amber in a variety of tones comes next, and then the range soft to strong colour, and, so, inevitably, to beige. Will there be a general revival of a range of large tints in the colour cards? There are some lovely novelties to go with the yellows, but for the most part they are used as accessories rather than central garments—brown shawl, for instance, with maize yellow frock; a dark brown, lace or crepe, all-ones blouse with an amber coat and skirt; and a brown ribbon on a pale yellow hat. Brown buttons, too, and little brown pockets are smart on rich looking yellow sports frocks.

WIDER SKIRTS

SOME new party frocks are made with full, wide skirts which are ankle length—in some cases they quite touch the floor. They are the nearest thing to a crinoline we have seen about for a long time, for they consist of quite little light-weight bodices drawn into slender waists, whose yards of material are regulated for an ample, flowing, and graceful hanging, and then flow out as they need to do in our Victorian days. There is a considerable effect about the line which suggests the crinoline in the most delicate way, and, in fact, with the long, in little curls at the back, the girl of to-day can very easily look like a 1915 edition of her grandmother.

... and flannel fabrics for evenings and smart occasions. Here is a dainty, flowered, white chiffon evening gown with a pink and yellow pocket which is popular at shoulders and waist, for giving more to have kept into popularity in a matter of weeks.

PRESTIGE....

No bus in sight. On the footpath in front of me is a girl of 16 or 17, a Kikuyu woman. They had varying loads on their heads—anything up to a hundred pounds. I should think—of potatoes, onions, beans, yams, etc. They kept up a regular quacking, shuffling, and an incessant giggling and chattering. "This won't do," I thought. "I can't let them walk faster than I do, with those loads on their heads. I would wait. There was a murmur of astonishment as I passed them. Then I heard the determined "ah-ah-ah-ah" of bare feet close behind me. One danced, very fat, and short, and merry, with quite a poundweight of potatoes and a silver, sodium baby on her back, was talking up the challenges. Her friends encouraged her with loud shouts. She passed me and they laughed loudly at me. It would have been childish not to "joke." We passed each other four times on the way to market. At last I took a man advantage of a steep little hill, and in my desperate spirit, left them behind. Their cries of "Ahi! Ahi!" and their laughter followed me. I had vindicated my white skin. But, I wonder? Unhindered, with legs that were twice as long! And, I wasn't giggling and chattering as they were. I was panting, and longing for a bag of malleo colic to my head—give me an ounce to beat double too, and mend that shirt!

FOR SMARTNESS, FOR VARIETY, FOR REAL HARD WEAR

If you're thinking of wash frocks, cool and dainty; if you want a smart, hand-wearing drill suit; if you have handkerchief drawer needs replenishing, then go to the Store that stocks Tootal products. In the varied Tootal range you'll find something for everyone. Tobarico, Bunny Velle, Terantulle, Lisette and Pyramid Handkerchiefs, all offer a delightful choice of colours and designs. Every fabric, and every handkerchief carries the full Tootal guarantee. They'll wash and wash—and keep their lovely colours through amazingly long wear.

BROWN BOOTS — AND A BOWLER!

At the Clifton Flower Show on Monday, May 21, the King completely shattered one of the chief national illusions—that it was incorrect to wear brown shoes with a bowler. With an almost bright blue suit, he wore a grey overcoat with a white carnation, a tie with a zig-zag pattern, a bowler hat, a bowler hat with a curly brim, and he carried a Malacca walking stick with a gold band. In the matter of dress, it is evident that His Majesty has the courage of his convictions.

A Distinguished Visitor

COLONEL Philippe Buman-Varela, G.O., Legion of Honour, arrived by the s.s. "Gratitude" and is staying with his daughter, Mrs. M. Bocco, of Nairobi. Colonel Buman-Varela was chief engineer under Count Ferdinand de Lesseps when the first effort was made to construct the Panama Canal; he is one of the proprietors of "Le Matin," the famous Paris newspaper and is the inventor of the process of water purification, on which subject he has written a valuable scientific treatise. "Quid Trique et Pratique de la Ventilation," Colonel Buman-Varela is only making a stay of a few weeks in this country.

At Wedding

TO-MORROW, in the Cathedral of the Highlands, Captain Khindoh Casparatus of Imperial Airways, it is to be married to Miss Phoebe Moore, whom you see on this page's daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Moore of Nairobi, and on Tuesday morning, he leaves with his bride by the south-bound plane. In October, 1934, at the exact time of the Kivu disaster, Captain Casparatus was being the Deacon of Bedford's record from England to the Cape in three days, three months, and he was also the pioneer of gliding in South Africa. Altogether, to-morrow's wedding will be as "air-minded" as the keenest air enthusiast could wish.

To Be Married

THIS engagement is announced in the London Press of Andrew Grant, Oliver, of American, Buckinghamshire, to Miss Audrey Denton Scholes of Salisbury, Wiltshire, and Kenya. The marriage is to take place shortly.

To Visit Nairobi

MAJOR Dutton, formerly Private Secretary to Sir Edward Grey and Sir Robert Coryndon, the author of "Kevya Mountain," arrives by air from Northern Rhodesia at the end of this month. Major Dutton will be the guest of Lady Delamere when he first arrives and intends afterwards to pay a series of visits in Nairobi and the neighbourhood.

On Holiday

MR. Kenneth Gosh of Nairobi left for England, on a visit of three or four months, by air mail last Monday.

Arriving by Air

LADY Francis Scott is expected to arrive by air mail from England on Monday July 8.

Back to Tanganyika

SIR WILLIAM Laid, Leader of the Unaffiliated Members of the Tanganyika Legislative Council, is passing through Nairobi today on the South-bound air mail en route for Dodoma.

Lost to Nakuru

CAPTAIN and Mrs. Selve of Nakuru are sailing for England on the "Panama Castle" which is due to leave Mombasa to-morrow. For health reasons, Captain Selve has been obliged to give up his post on the Nakuru Municipal Board and he will be greatly missed, not only on that score, but for his kind and indefatigable work for the Church and St. George's Societies. As the Librarian of the Nakuru European Library, Mrs. Selve's office work has been greatly valued. It is good to learn that Captain and Mrs. Selve, after a much-needed rest and change overseas, hope to come out again and make their home in Nakuru.

To the Coast

COLONEL R. B. Turner, Commissioner for South Africa, left Nairobi on Sunday with Mrs. Turner, President of the Nairobi Branch of the E.A.W.L. on route for Mombasa. Mrs. Turner will be at the Coast for some weeks.

MEAT half an ounce of butter in a pan, set in a desiccated pot, and gradually add a pinch and a half of cayenne, stirring all the time. Season, mix, and simmer slowly for ten minutes, stirring occasionally. Beat together a gill of cream and an egg yolk and stir into the sauce. It is best to left after this addition. Have ready two tablespoons of hot milk and add gradually into very small holes. Stir into the soup together with a few desiccated of chopped parsley—last, and serve with small squares of fried bread.

WETBREAD PATTIES

BLANCH the sweetbread, put into a pan, cover with water, season with salt and pepper, and cook slowly for twenty minutes. Take up and trim off skin and fat. Fry half a dozen good sized mushrooms. Cut both sweetbreads and mushrooms into small pieces. Heat a gill of oil, white sauce, mix in sweetbreads, mushrooms, half a teaspoonful of chopped parsley, and seasonings to taste. Roll half a pound of puff paste, cut it into rounds about four inches across, divide the sweetbread mixture on to the rounds, misten the edges. Roll over, press firmly, and paint the tops with egg white. Cook in a hot oven until rich golden brown.

Another instalment of Gordon Shaw's Stirring Ranch Story for Boys.

A Wild West ROBIN HOOD

(Synopsis of the earlier instalments.)

The How and Arrow Ranch, owned by Old Man Goddard, was by a thirty mile journey for hospital. On the way they were suddenly held up by Ohio Ollie who emptied his pistol at the party but without effect.

They managed to overpower Ollie, who was thrown from his horse. They tied him up and took him with them. On arrival at the hospital they were arrested by a deputy sheriff.

They were removed to the local prison but during the night Mary Ann, who had been absent at the time of the arrest, arrived riding the dapple-grey. He rescues his companions by tying a rope to the handle of the cell window and pulling one out by the aid of the horse. The hand on him crawled out and captured the wagon. They then set off back to their camp.

While discussing their future plans Lincoln Greene and the Sheriff of Green Jacket Country, Grant Groutley, suddenly entered the farmhouse and announced that "Robin Hood was called upon to explain the incident."

After telling his story of the affair, he was called by Old Man Goddard, who was on the point of death, and was informed that the farm had been left by will to him. After Old Man Goddard's death however, the former proprietor of the will which made him the owner of the ranch. The other will could not be found, and the foreman announced his intention of dismissing the hand.

When discussing their future plans Lincoln Greene and the Sheriff of Green Jacket Country, Grant Groutley, suddenly entered the farmhouse and announced that "Robin Hood was called upon to explain the incident."

They rode into the western hills which they made their headquarters. They soon after saw an elderly prospector attached by a band of claim jumpers. They rescued the old man, who was arrested by Bob and Bill, set off after the fugitives.

Bob and Bill tracked the gang to their lair and while watching them saw Lincoln Greene join the robbers, while Bob recognized one of the party as one of the two masked men who killed Old Man Goddard.

This man, Ohio Ollie and Greene later led the gang for a quiet talk, during which Bob and Bill overpowered and captured them and took them to the boys' camp.

Unfortunately after the boys had secured Greene and Ohio Ollie and had attended to the wounded prospector, Sheriff Groutley suddenly appeared on the scene and announced that he was still on Bob's track and again arrested him for the murder of Old Man Goddard. He then recognized Ohio Ollie as a badly wanted man. Ollie, however, suddenly made a dash for liberty and was riding off fast as the Sheriff's lieutenant and a serious head wound.

returning to the camp took the wounded men on board and set out on a thirty mile journey for hospital. On the way they were suddenly held up by Ohio Ollie who emptied his pistol at the party but without effect.

They then set off back to their camp.

While discussing their future plans Lincoln Greene and the Sheriff of Green Jacket Country, Grant Groutley, suddenly entered the farmhouse and announced that "Robin Hood was called upon to explain the incident."

After telling his story of the affair, he was called by Old Man Goddard, who was on the point of death, and was informed that the farm had been left by will to him. After Old Man Goddard's death however, the former proprietor of the will which made him the owner of the ranch. The other will could not be found, and the foreman announced his intention of dismissing the hand.

When discussing their future plans Lincoln Greene and the Sheriff of Green Jacket Country, Grant Groutley, suddenly entered the farmhouse and announced that "Robin Hood was called upon to explain the incident."

They rode into the western hills which they made their headquarters. They soon after saw an elderly prospector attached by a band of claim jumpers. They rescued the old man, who was arrested by Bob and Bill, set off after the fugitives.

Bob and Bill tracked the gang to their lair and while watching them saw Lincoln Greene join the robbers, while Bob recognized one of the party as one of the two masked men who killed Old Man Goddard.

This man, Ohio Ollie and Greene later led the gang for a quiet talk, during which Bob and Bill overpowered and captured them and took them to the boys' camp.

Unfortunately after the boys had secured Greene and Ohio Ollie and had attended to the wounded prospector, Sheriff Groutley suddenly appeared on the scene and announced that he was still on Bob's track and again arrested him for the murder of Old Man Goddard. He then recognized Ohio Ollie as a badly wanted man. Ollie, however, suddenly made a dash for liberty and was riding off fast as the Sheriff's lieutenant and a serious head wound.

the more hopeless the prospect seemed to grow. Bob was glad when, at length, they began to pack up their belongings preparatory to making a move from their present camp. To stay where they had pitched on first taking to the hills would not be safe.

Sheriff Groutley might recover consciousness and for his deputy, and tell him all he knew about the whereabouts of the How-and-Arrow gang. Then Deputy Jones would gather together a posse, as the law would allow him to do, and he would ride straight there and effect an arrest.

So at length they prepared to move. They knew of another part of the hills, off of broken track. The hand on him crawled out and captured the wagon. They then set off back to their camp.

Bill Scarlett knew the way best, and he took the lead. The others followed on horseback riding behind the spring wagon, which Bob Hood drove. In the wagon lay the two bound figures of their prisoners and the wounded prospector, who grumbled heartily at being taken farther away from the claim that Ohio Ollie's gang had jumped. But they could not pay much attention to the old prospector's grumblings. They could not leave him where he was, and they could not take him back to his claim, for the jumpers would still be there.

They wondered what the jumpers were thinking about the disappearance of their leader. But it was obvious that they were not scouring the hills very thoroughly to find Ohio Ollie. Perhaps they were assuming that the law had got him, or that he had had to "skip" out of the district in a hurry.

It was a journey of ten miles to their new camp, and it had to be taken slowly, because the country they rode through was of the wildest and roughest nature. It was again getting on towards evening when they met with the worst chain of all they had experienced on the journey.

A Ducking

Bob forced the team down into the water. They were even more unwilling to face the crossing than they were not so well used to this form of travelling as the ordinary cow-boys. They were light-footed, good enough in harness when on solid roads. But now they started and began to prance as the water washed about their legs.

The wagon followed them grunting and jolting. And the three passengers inside it added their protesting voices to the general excitement that followed it.

"Ye plumb darn fool!" roared He pointed upstream. Bob looked, and then began again to urge the halting horses forward. For coming down upon him at a rapid pace was trouble enough to be recognized.

"Now come along, all of you," ordered Harry in his best Monday morning voice. "I want those hodge clipped and all the leaves swept up."

"What shriek!" exclaimed Toddy Tick, as he and Tock got busy among the fallen leaves, while Bunny busied himself clipping the hodge.

Some time later back comes old Harry in no better mood. "What do you call that?" he asked Bunny gruffly; "this is not finished. Give me the clippers, I'll show you how to cut this off."

And away he went at it, cutting all the odd pieces along the top of the last hedge. But he did have a shock when he found he'd mistaken his broom for part of the hedge!

against many rocks that jutted upwards.

"There's a feed, though," said Bill Scarlett, who was now the undisputed guide to the party. "I'm sure I crossed it along with Old Man Goddard, when he was hunting for strays. Say, I guess I'll ride first and show you the way."

He forced his horse to enter the water. It was a good, well-trained horse, and Bill Scarlett was a rider of the very first class. But even then the horse showed unwillingness to face the crossing, and he snorted and blew down at the water that swept past his knees the moment he entered it.

But Bill urged the animal farther away from the bank, and he went unerringly, seeming to know by some sense of feel, exactly which way to ride. And at length the horse decided that his rider knew more about the job than he himself did. Gingerly feeling his way, he got across, and hastily waded his saddle girths. On the other side, Bill gave a yell and waved his hand.

"You come across now, Bob, with the wagon," Bill directed. "And drive just as I tell you to."

The wounded prospector and the two grumblers were still in the wagon. It never occurred to any of the young outlaws to take them across the creek any other way. They would probably get rather wet, for the water would be sure to enter the body of the wagon. But a wetting to outdoor men means nothing especially in the summer time.

THREE LITTLE PIGS QUILT. Pattern No. 10. THE HAY HOUSE.

This jolly little house stood for such a short time in the story that it was hardly worth the bother to build it. It is a right latherome quilt block to make, too, with all of these straw stitches, unless you happen to be using crayons or paints with only an outline of thread. The chimney and the front door with its giddy welcome may be appliqued, or the whole house could be. Here's an idea; three nursery pillows, each cut 12-inches square with three pigs on the fronts and their houses on the backs! They might be felt, velveteen with silk appliques, linen or gingham.

GINGER DICK

The Toad he swelled, the Toad he bulged, he blushed a yellow blush. And all the Winter Wood seemed still a horrid, waiting back. Then all at once the Toad let fly. "Take that, rash Dick!" he hissed. And Ginger Dick just ducked in time to miss the slinky fist.

A FIGHT:

"Oh, Ginger Dick," cried Edward George. "I'll help you in the fray!" But, "No you won't!" growled Ginger Dick, and waved his friend away. "For two to one against a pig is not how 'Britons fight'!" So Edward George stood back and watched. He knew his dog was right.

...on Cow & Gate

The Smile is generally an index of Health, the outward sign of an inward happiness both mental and physical. And you want your baby to smile! Then above all things feed him correctly and see that he has fresh, wholesome and digestible Food, rich in home making material and body building nutrition. How successfully Cow & Gate suits these requirements in India can be judged from its ever-increasing popularity and the splendid virile growth of thousands of children who are being fed on it.

NOTES OF THE WEEK

THE Ayrshire bull "Green Apollo," bred by Mr. Quinn Dunlop, Greenan, Ayr, has been sold for Liverpool by the 4s. 6d. to the order of Captain J. J. Long, Horn on October 24, 1933. This bull is a son of "Leasnooth Atlantic" out of "Greenish Gold," whose milk records were as follows:—1005 gallons at 4.50 per lb. in 30 weeks; 1005 gallons at 4.15 per cent B.F. in 41 weeks; 800 gallons at 3.98 per cent B.F. in 24 weeks, and 1006 gallons at 4.50 per cent B.F. in 40 weeks.

THE Royal Agricultural and Horticultural Society of Kenya announces that an additional 300 Jumping Trials will be held under the Programme of Classes for the Nairobi Show. For this special class the jumping trials will be similar to the course previously announced for the other jumping classes, except that a triple bar will be substituted for the water jump. The jumps will be more than 4 feet 6 inches high. The first prize in this special class will be a silver cup of value £10, donated by the Kenya Stephenson Club; the second prize, a silver vase of value £5, donated by the Kenya Stephenson Club; the third prize £4. The prize money will be £100. The entries for this class will be Shs. 7, and the closing date will be the 15th of August. The prize class will take place at 4.00 p.m. on the first day of the Show, August 10th.

MR. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, has announced the existing price of Dominion and Empire sugar with Dominion representative in London. Mr. Chamberlain said that it was difficult to stipulate the future, therefore he could not promise the fixation of the price of sugar. He said that the Dominion representative would expire in August 1937, and that the Dominion representative would be changed until after August 1937. FOR 20 years, bull calves were selected from good dairy cows in a systematic manner by breeders, and were such used for the next generation. This practice was continued until the late 19th century. Since 1921, however, bull calves have been selected from leading herds by special committees to the progeny of their immediate ancestors.

A week ago we referred to the inevitable results of the greatly increased attention which has been paid by agricultural scientists, during recent years, to the binomial of grazing. Bulletin, reports and treatises from all over the world stress the importance of the dairy cow as a source of a valuable crop. The conservation of pastures and the artificial drying of grass, the extension of more milk or beef or wool from a grazing, occupy a prominent place in the agricultural policy of many lands. The dairy cow is a source of wealth to whom, give pride of place to the production of consistent milk, even prices, more interest has been taken in dairying by Kenya farmers. The monthly cheque for butter fat, even though small, presents a definite attraction. The presence of a dairy herd is a constant aid to the farmer's maintenance of soil fertility. But if the dairy industry of Kenya is to become firmly established as a profitable branch of farming—rather than a mere hobby for a few farmers—it is essential that methods of production be adopted which are not only profitable but also efficient. It is essential that the dairy farmer should be able to produce a surplus of milk over and above the requirements of his own household. This is a task which is not only profitable but also efficient. It is essential that the dairy farmer should be able to produce a surplus of milk over and above the requirements of his own household.

IV. Bricks Without Straw
There remains the question that the progress of the dairy industry rests in the hands of the dairy farmer themselves. They are the riders upon the horse. The dairy farmer is sick and tired of this constant aid to the farmer's maintenance of soil fertility. But if the dairy industry of Kenya is to become firmly established as a profitable branch of farming—rather than a mere hobby for a few farmers—it is essential that methods of production be adopted which are not only profitable but also efficient. It is essential that the dairy farmer should be able to produce a surplus of milk over and above the requirements of his own household. This is a task which is not only profitable but also efficient. It is essential that the dairy farmer should be able to produce a surplus of milk over and above the requirements of his own household.

II. A Decreasing Benefit
From time to time criticisms are levelled against the technical effort of the Dairy Cooperative Creameries. The majority of the critics have not proved the force of their views, and the reputation of the Creameries has been vindicated. It is a fact that improvement is not possible but it can be fairly certain that, within the limits of the available resources, the Creameries are doing their best. It is evident that the directors and staff of the Creameries are doing their best. It is evident that the directors and staff of the Creameries are doing their best.

III. Inertia and Lack of Initiative
Once we admit the premise that the Kenya dairy industry is dependent for expansion on the export trade, we must recognize the necessity for development on the basis of the export price. Last week we pointed out that it is a conclusion that the price of butter in the United Kingdom is a factor in the expansion of the industry. It is admitted possible that unforeseen circumstances, but you cannot plan for an industry on an unsteady market. We are faced with two basic factors. The first is that the world price of butter is likely to increase. The second is that increased consumption is likely to increase the price of butter remains low.

It is no easy and so foolish to overlook the effect of price on consumption. In many previous articles reference has been made to the search for alternate markets for the United Kingdom. It is doubtful if there are alternate markets available to Kenya dairy farmers. The search for new markets should not be abandoned by Kenya until the hope of discovery is proved to be illusory. The search for new markets should not be abandoned by Kenya until the hope of discovery is proved to be illusory.

Halves and Canisters
Methods
In the Section of the Journal of the Royal Agricultural Society of England which deals with Farm Implements and Machinery, Mr. S. J. Wright of the Technical Department, University of Oxford, has written an interesting review of the development of Cultivating Machinery. He states that the introduction of steam ploughing in the middle of the 19th century was a good deal of land which was originally laid out in straight rows. The introduction of steam ploughing in the middle of the 19th century was a good deal of land which was originally laid out in straight rows.

Ridging the Sub-Soil Surface
In this system, which depends for its success on the use of a special plough, the surface of the soil is ridged very like our own. The soil surface of the Italian model, however, is ridged at any rate, it is the surface of the subsoil which is ridged and not the surface of the soil. The ridging of the subsoil is a process which is not only profitable but also efficient. It is essential that the dairy farmer should be able to produce a surplus of milk over and above the requirements of his own household.

Novel Tractor Plough
A recent article describes a novel motorized tractor plough designed to overcome the difficulties of the plough which are sometimes experienced when ploughing in land which is covered with a heavy growth of vegetation. Its special feature is that the horizontal distance between the front and the back of the plough is the same as the height of the front. This arrangement has the advantage that the normal size of clearance, this construction results in a very long plough, but in order to avoid turning difficulties the plough is arranged as to steer on the back wheel or well as on its front wheels. This feature in turn makes the use of a mechanical wheelbarrow impracticable and an alternative power lift is provided. It is claimed that the latter feature has special advantages of its own. The plough can be lifted without moving the tractor, which, if required, can be lowered to the ground by ploughing by admitting a little air to the cylinder which normally works the lift of water.

Deep Furrow Drilling
The proceedings of the World Grain Congress held at Regina in 1933 contain some interesting papers on the cultivation of grain in the Canadian Great Plains. Two papers in particular, dealing with the use of the "deep furrow drill," may be of interest to farmers in other lands. The principle of the method is that the grain is sown in the hollows of deep furrows which have been laid up between the rows. In the first drill described small later-planted ploughs were used to make a series of furrows from 6 to 7 inches wide, over the bottom of which the seed was broadcast. The ploughs were so designed that all the top soil is pushed into rough ridges on either side of the furrow, while about 1 1/2 inches of the moist silt is allowed to drop back to the seed. A memorandum prepared by the Committee representative of the (Continued in previous column).

WIDE RANGE OF SUBJECTS
The Department of Agriculture has published a booklet on Subjects dealt with by the Board of Agriculture at the 21st Meeting of the Board of Agriculture in Kenya. It is also the practical experience of many leading breeders for several of the most famous dairy bulls and cows have been the result of very close inbreeding and this fact in itself should be sufficient to show that there is even merit in the practice. The evidence shows that inbreeding tends to promote uniformity in character, but without rigid selection there is the danger of its accentuating harmful factors.

Pyrethrum Legislation
The Board has previously recommended that the pyrethrum industry, and at this meeting in favour of the present Bill (No. 10) published in the Official Gazette. The Board is also in favour of the present Bill (No. 10) published in the Official Gazette. The Board is also in favour of the present Bill (No. 10) published in the Official Gazette.

Control and Marketing of Maize
The Board has reported it as necessary that the maize industry in its broadest sense the term implies breeding between the related strains of the maize industry. It is essential that the dairy farmer should be able to produce a surplus of milk over and above the requirements of his own household.

Establishment of Condensed Milk Factories
As considerable quantities of condensed milk are imported into Kenya, the Government is establishing a condensed milk factory in Nairobi. The factory will be established in Nairobi. The factory will be established in Nairobi. The factory will be established in Nairobi.

United recently the majority of Dairy Farmers have been prone to believe that the practice of inbreeding was a most undesirable practice. The evidence shows that inbreeding tends to promote uniformity in character, but without rigid selection there is the danger of its accentuating harmful factors.

The Proven Sire
Unfortunately many dairy farmers and breeders dispense of their bull when the progeny become fit for service, and secure another. They do not "retain" the animal sufficiently long to determine its value, which can be done only by records on the bull's pedigree. Bakewell's success was directly attributable to his retaining his sires until he proved a better. This was no doubt a more simple matter for determination of the value of stock than dairy cattle, but there is a lesson to be learnt from his practice.

How many dairymen and breeders have wished they could again secure some sire after their best sire has proved a failure? He has disposed of him? In his "sheep-breeding operations" Bakewell would not sell his sires until he proved a better to farmers, and thus retained the right to bring home again those that were not of the kind of stock he desired. The practice of selecting successive sires from his own herd was continued throughout his lifetime. One of his sires was at least 12 or 13 years old before he was disposed of. This meant that his stock was very nearly self-perpetuating.

Individuals, and as there are varying degrees of reliability. The experience of inbreeding is breeding. If the animals are very closely related it constitutes intensive inbreeding, but if the animals are more distantly related the practice is regarded as line-breeding. The experience of all leading breeders shows that a continuing practice of inbreeding is necessary if uniformly in type is to be attained.

Probably one of the earliest breeders to recognize that "what Robert Bakewell of Leisestonshire, Here is generally regarded as the originator of modern breeding practice. He was born in 1720 and died in 1793. Bakewell's success was directly attributable to his retaining his sires until he proved a better. This was no doubt a more simple matter for determination of the value of stock than dairy cattle, but there is a lesson to be learnt from his practice.

MARKETING PRODUCTS VALUE OF ACCOUNTS IN FARM MANAGEMENT

The Neglect of Educational Publicity
FIGHTING IGNORANCE AND INDIFFERENCE
THE COURT OF LAST RESORT

(By Douglas Woodruff, secretary of the Empire Marketing Board, in "The Empire Producer.")

The English visitor to Holland is not there for very long without being struck with the intense pride of the Netherlands in their East India trade. In the East Indies, Amsterdam, is not only the centre of their business to Java that the well-being of the Colonial Empire is an eager and frequent subject of conversation. The contrast is marked between their interest and the vagueness of the English public about the colonies of Great Britain.

It is not only the Netherlands that are so proud of their trade in the East Indies, but the Dutch Government is working on it with increased vigour. In the Netherlands, the Ministry of Agriculture, but of a recognition that the framework of economic policy, in the Dominions first and now in England as well, leaves little scope for joint action in the field of agriculture, the natural field for public attention.

As already observed, one set of opinion to ordinary farming accounts from a management point of view is that they merely record what has happened; they tell you how much you have produced (generally year by year) and how much you have spent on wages or on, but they give little or no indication as to whether the expenditure in any of these items is higher than it has been in the past or whether it is likely to be so in the future.

APR 15—

In the face then of this diffidence—and the fact that not only the Netherlands but also the way the Dominions have both occupied the front rank of the world, and in a sense quartered the pitch, which are the tasks most worth attempting on the publicity of the Empire Marketing Board?

Place Competition
The experience of the Empire Marketing Board was decisive on the existence of much of this. The idea of the Board was to make progress as to what places would be very well able to help the Dominions, which are the first of our colonies. The desire to help the Dominions was the desire to help the Dominions, which are the first of our colonies. The desire to help the Dominions was the desire to help the Dominions, which are the first of our colonies.

THE BRITISH NAVAL REVIEW

His Majesty to Visit His Fleet on July 16

ENORMOUS ASSEMBLY OF SHIPS AT SPITHEAD

COMMENTARY TO BE BROADCAST FROM DECK OF H.M.S. "ROYAL SOVEREIGN"

Cruisers, aircraft carriers, destroyers, sloops, submarines, coast guard ships, auxiliary vessels, torpedo boats, picket boats, ships of the mercantile marine, trawlers, in every type which forms the Royal fleet representative of the British Navy, will be assembled at Spithead on July 16, to be reviewed by His Majesty the King. This will be the third time that His Majesty has reviewed his navy, the first being at the coronation and the second in July 1914.

His Majesty's review will be a "flourishing" review, the "Victoria and Albert" will steam out of Portsmouth Harbour and as it approaches the lines formed by 100 odd men of war, will be greeted by the Royal Salutes fired from the ship's guns and played by the ship's bands. As the royal yacht proceeds between the lines the crew, standing at attention, will dress ship. The "Victoria" bands will render the national honours and the crews will give His Majesty a tremendous cheer.

Not the least important feature in this review is His Majesty's eye will be the review fleet, that absolute formation which, manned by rowers, can proceed into being at 48 hours' notice.

The King's yacht will be preceded by the "Trinity House" yacht "Puritan" and followed by the Admiralty ship "Eucharestine".

At the conclusion of the review, which will take some two hours, the fleet's air arm will fly past. At night all the ships will be illuminated and will give a searchlight display between 10 o'clock and midnight. Next

Relay from North Wales

"North Wales" Night" will take the form of short relays over Transmission 4 on Friday, June 26, at 8.0 p.m. G.M.T. from various Welsh resorts—resorts which in the summer-time are always filled with Northern holiday makers, particularly Llanberis people. Full details are not yet available, but contributions will include an excerpt from the Arwenia Ynion concert party dance at the Pier Pavilion, Colwyn Bay; music by Jan Baldwin's (Llan) Band, relayed from Rhyl; an excerpt from the "Bright Times" concert party at the Pier Pavilion, Llandudno; and, possibly, a single variety act relayed from the Winter Garden, Llandudno.

Relayed from Bathpenny

The above picture is given as a guide to listeners who will be hearing the commentary on this great naval occasion, to be relayed from the decks of H.M.S. "Royal Sovereign". The B.B.C. outside broadcast engineers have established a receiving station close to the light house at Southsea. Approximately four microphones along the "Royal Sovereign" will pick up the Royal Salutes fired by the guns, the music of the bands, the cheers of the fleet, and the commentary to be given by Commander-in-Chief, R.N., and Lt-Commander B. Woodroffe, R.N. The presence of the Royal Yacht will be judged by the various noises, such as the cheers and the music of the bands, fading or getting noisier the microphone. About the "Royal Sovereign" will be the transmitter used in broadcasting the Boat Race.

The transmission will be picked up ashore by an aerial straddling the bathhouse near Southsea Castle and an obsolete transmitter there. The relay will then go by land line from Bath-sea Castle to Broadcasting House. The control of the broadcast is being maintained by wireless link. In order that the engineers at Southsea Castle may speak with the "Royal Sovereign", a small portable transmitter has been erected on the boat, establishing control between ship and shore.

Preparations for the broadcast will begin two weeks ahead of the review date. Possibly practical tests will change many of the present arrangements, but listeners are promised a very interesting first broadcast of a naval review.

In the case of moving coil speakers they are almost invariably equipped with a tapped transformer, and through the agency of this device which acts as a kind of electrical gearbox, the current coupling can be obtained.

For simplicity's sake we will take the case of a triode output valve which is to be matched with a m.c. speaker the coil impedance of which the makers state is 8 ohms, and which has a transformer giving four ratios of 20:1, 10:1 and 5:1 to one. The first step is to ascertain the make and type of the output valve in question, and reference to the makers' list a figure under the heading "optimum load" will be obtained. In some cases this figure is 2000 ohms. The problem then is to see whether the speaker presents an average load to the valve in this figure.

One would think that the required step down ratio for the valve should be 3700 divided by five, giving a ratio of 740 ohms, or one, but fortunately owing to theoretical considerations concerned with the transformer, it is only actually the square root of this or about 27 to one. The simple formula which is used in all such cases being that the step down ratio should be equal to the square root of the optimum load of the valve divided by the impedance of the speaker. The impedance figures are given by the makers. The loudspeaker impedance is not a constant figure as it depends on the frequency of the alternating current which flows through the coil. In reality it varies from note to power of the genie was properly controlled and directed and used for the service of all classes from the Sultan to the slave.

This story might well serve as an allegory for that of the electrical storage battery. Those responsible for the discovery and development of the storage battery have enabled the great and miraculous power that is electricity to be controlled, stored and applied for the benefit of mankind. It has been applied to such divergent duties as starting and lighting motor cars, operating wireless sets, lighting and emergency lighting of buildings, ships and trains, driving submarines and electric vehicles, operating telephones, switchgear and signals, and there are only some of its uses.

MORE ABOUT THE LOUDSPEAKER

Frequent Cause of Disappointing Results

MISMATCHING WITH PREVIOUS STAGE

(By "Aerial")

It has been shown that with an output stage of given size, the efficiency of the loudspeaker, which can vary very considerably, is the determining factor in the volume level which can be maintained. The actual efficiency of the speaker is however not the whole story. A speaker may be an efficient load in itself, but its use will be spoiled by incorrect matching with the stage which precedes it. No doubt this mismatching is the root cause of the disappointing results sometimes experienced when a modern type is substituted for an older one, but there is a comparison between their performances under proper conditions.

Though the numbers and combinations of valves with different characteristics which one meets for the final stage are almost legion, the loudspeaker manufacturer has here a choice in the majority of cases there is a considerable degree of mismatching.

In the case of moving coil speakers they are almost invariably equipped with a tapped transformer, and through the agency of this device which acts as a kind of electrical gearbox, the current coupling can be obtained.

For simplicity's sake we will take the case of a triode output valve which is to be matched with a m.c. speaker the coil impedance of which the makers state is 8 ohms, and which has a transformer giving four ratios of 20:1, 10:1 and 5:1 to one. The first step is to ascertain the make and type of the output valve in question, and reference to the makers' list a figure under the heading "optimum load" will be obtained. In some cases this figure is 2000 ohms. The problem then is to see whether the speaker presents an average load to the valve in this figure.

One would think that the required step down ratio for the valve should be 3700 divided by five, giving a ratio of 740 ohms, or one, but fortunately owing to theoretical considerations concerned with the transformer, it is only actually the square root of this or about 27 to one. The simple formula which is used in all such cases being that the step down ratio should be equal to the square root of the optimum load of the valve divided by the impedance of the speaker. RCA VICTOR

Battery operated 7 tube Radio Short Wave, Standard Broadcast.

Efficient, Economical Operation. In the Model 155-B the "A" battery drain is only 0.88 ampere; the "B" battery drain is only 2.5 milliamperes and no drain on the "C" batteries. Through the use of Class "H" audio amplification, the current in the "B" battery is at all times equal only to the minimum requirement of the signal being received. Thus, the RCA Victor battery-operated G5000 Transistor model shows maximum performance with a minimum battery drain, in other words, economical, efficient operation.

point of view of quality and output volume level, it is a matter of some importance. Particular care should be taken either after the output stage of their receivers or are using a different make or type of speaker than that originally supplied is a matter worthy of close attention.

As it is comparatively unusual even with output transformers having as many as four or five ratios to be able to obtain the best matching, the two ratios on either side of it should be tried.

In the majority of cases one will give a more individually pleasing tone than the other. In the event of the purchaser of a new speaker being under consideration and the choice has narrowed down to two or three, all which seem equally good, the final decision might well be based on whether or not they can be matched to the existing output stage to within a few per cent.

The Magna Carta

COMMORATION OF GREAT EVENT

Service in Eggham Parish Church

The Bournemouth Commemorations Service related on Transmission 4 on Sunday, June 20, at 2.0 p.m. G.M.T. and on Transmission 4 on Monday, June 21, at 7.0 p.m. G.M.P. from Eggham Parish Church, Surrey, is of unusual interest. On June 15, 1215, in this parish, King John was laid out and the great document known as Magna Carta, which secured for England the recognition of the rights of the common man and gave to the world the document which inspired and proved all down the centuries, has remained to this day. And this incident, marking the birth of modern democracy, is celebrated by the erection of the monument, which stands on the site of the old castle at Eggham, whose foundations still remain.

In the course of the service, the Right Hon. the Lord Hanworth, Master of the Bench and President of the Magna Carta Society, will read clauses from Magna Carta.

Turning to more recent times, it is interesting to recall that the great hymn writer, Dr. Moussell, author of "Fight the Good Fight" was a native of Eggham from 1859 to 1870. Another point of interest about the Parish Church of Eggham is its tower, which is almost unique in England.

THE GENIE IN THE JAR

IN the "Arabian Nights" there is a story of a fisherman who, while fishing in the sea, hauled up a strange jar stamped with the seal ring of Solomon. Prompted by curiosity he removed the cap, whereupon there issued a vast column of smoke. Bewildered, he watched grow out of the smoke a figure, a genie of tremendous size and miraculous power.

Unfortunately for the fisherman it turned out that the genie had sworn an oath, while he was at the bottom of the sea, that he would kill his discoverer. "By what manner of death wilt thou die?" said the genie.

With a wisdom that would have done credit to the seal ring of Solomon, the fisherman expressed disbelief that such a mighty genie could have compressed himself into such a small jar. So back went the genie to convince him. Back went the lid, too, and the fisherman refused to release the genie until he had promised to spare his life and be his servant. And so the great power of the genie was properly controlled and directed and used for the service of all classes from the Sultan to the slave.

MOTORING TOPICS

COMMENTS OF THE WEEK

(By the Motoring Editor.)

The Civil Service club, I understand, are preparing to hold an annual motor cycle race meeting and exhibition on the 17th and 18th of September. Their last "promotion" was a great success, and some very interesting riding was witnessed. There must be regular meetings of this type if the sport is to keep alive. A feature of a year is little good. What is wanted is something like five or six meetings in the year, and I feel sure the members of our clubs would more than warrant the move. Quite a few have spoken of this last feature, so that it need without doubt be enjoyed by most, if not everyone who attended.

Personal touch is rightly appreciated as being essential for the fullest development of overseas trade connections, and extensive tours have, come to be recognised as part and parcel of a director's job. This hardly one big concern to-day which does not have one or more of its principals constantly touring abroad. He can then study the local conditions and provide an authoritative report to the chief. At the same time, to obtain contact with the representatives in these particular parts, and can obtain a first hand of the difficulties to which they have to overcome.

It is little short of astonishing the growth of the "One-make" car club in Great Britain since 1919. Few of the lighter makes of cars but do not have their own organisations, and such organisations as there are are arranged for their members. Just how far this type of organisation has advanced is indicated by the tour arranged by the "Standard" Car Club. The body arranged a tour through France and Switzerland recently. So complete was the tour in details that a service van from the firm's works was included in the convoy.

I wonder how long it will be before some such organisations are brought into being in Kenya. There are a good many cars to be found in the Colony today which could make their own club. It may be expected that the "One-make" car club will come into force as no far distant date. These clubs must do much to popularise the particular make which is represented. Over and above that they intercommiserate together from all over the country. Reliability trials, and organised runs are unknown in Kenya. Several years ago a number of these were run but they soon died out, on no reason why they should not be resurrected. While anything in the way of speed trials and races are disbarred in this country, they trials are sanctioned by the law because they do not involve anything in the nature of racing.

Reliability trials and such like events require a great deal of organisation, and it would have to be a particularly enthusiastic body of officials if they were to be run with success, and at the same time maintain the interest and enthusiasm of the members. It only requires a start with a really keen set of officials to achieve success, and once that is done the movements would soon spread to other makes.

It is strange how antiquated and unscientific the methods of testing are in towns, but outside in the country, such a degree of exactness can be attained. Recently a number of instances have come to my notice where a driver has scraped and dented wings when entering or leaving a parking ground. The last thing in his mind was to find a point of trying to find out the nature of the damaged car and informing him so soon as possible. The car's feelings are a necessary consideration, but if the boot is on the other foot there is no need to the growing. They forget the old saying "by unto others." Only a few days ago, however, there was the other side to the picture when a friend of mine had his rear lamp torn away. He received a kindly little note the following morning informing him of the accident, and asking him to have it repaired and to send the bill into him. It was a small amount, a matter of a few shillings only, but here was consideration and thoughtfulness. The same was taken in that the owner was a matter of a few shillings, and only a minute or so was required to drive the car out of the parking place. Would that there were a good many others of this kind.

CYCLING AS A MEANS TO HEALTH AND STRENGTH

The Economic Factor

GROWING USE BEING MADE OF THE PEDAL BICYCLE

It is curious to note that in the development of the busy world during the last quarter century—a development particularly noticeable in transport—the simple unassuming and beautiful creation of the Victorian era has more than held its own. The bicycle was to have been supplanted by the motor cycle and the motor car. It was, in fact, of date and outworn. There was no longer any room for it on the crowded highways. It was too slow, too laborious and "lugged superfluous" on the stage.

So spoke the false prophet. The bicycle, however, has gone from strength to strength and the practice of cycling for health, pleasure, business and economy have become a part of the life of the modern man. It has always done since that happy day when the first bicycle was made. It is the most economical mode of transport, and the most economical mode of transport, and the most economical mode of transport. It is the most economical mode of transport, and the most economical mode of transport.

The bicycle is the modern edition of the magic carpet of old. It is the key to the pleasure and the treasure of the country-side. It constitutes at once the most economical mode of transport, and the most economical mode of transport. It is the most economical mode of transport, and the most economical mode of transport.

By far the greater part of the world's "All-Steel" bicycles are made in Nottingham. It is the most economical mode of transport, and the most economical mode of transport. It is the most economical mode of transport, and the most economical mode of transport.

The policy behind the Raleigh at the great works in Nottingham and every Raleigh bicycle is produced with this idea in mind—to give the greatest measure of value in its own representation of life and long life. To this end only the finest materials, the most modern machinery, the cleverest brains and the most painstaking workmanship are employed in its making.

Accessories

Lighting Equipment for the Cyclist

A growing use is being made of the pedal cycle in these days. Shaded corners, narrow roads, and a demand for efficient and efficient lighting. Kamin Kanji and Son, Government Road Nairobi, carry a stock of "Lumen" lamps for bicycles. A special lamp is the "Lumen (Cable)" sensitive type. It is easy to work and gives a very bright beam. The lamp has a cylindrical front which allows of the changing, and has also additional advantage of a quick action type of double contact frame, over a non-detachable wire fitting. It is also possessed of a powerful "burner cleaner" which is useful in case of dirt. The lamp is made of glass. It is enough made into very durable.

To the most modest of means, there is the old lamp manufactured by the same firm, which is, admittedly, are the largest firm of its kind in the world, continuing as they do "C.A.V." and "Hovis". The oil lamp has been on the market for many years, and is, in fact, the most popular type long before the motor lamp came into being. Kamin Kanji and Son have a stock of this type, which is a double contact type, and is of the most improved design for obtaining light.

For the motor cyclist the "Lumen" range of accessories is without doubt one of the largest. Kamin Kanji and Son carry a stock of batteries which can be used in any type of motor car, and are fitted to the machine which is now possessed of a "Majesty" type of motor. The batteries are of the latest and most up to date design.

Another German Demand for Return of Colonies

LAND NEEDED FOR PRODUCTION OF RAW MATERIALS

Ability to Govern Native Tribes

VIGOROUS SPEECHES AT CONVENTION OF COLONIAL SOCIETY

Further demands for the restoration to Germany of her lost colonies were made at Friburg by speakers at the annual convention of the German Colonial Society. Amongst those who attended were Dr. Schue, General von Lettow-Vorbeck, and Dr. von Lindquist.

Dr. Schue emphasized that Germany badly needed land for settlement and for the production of raw materials. He also said it was absurd to talk of Germany's inability to govern native tribes.

Dr. von Lindquist declared that German schools in Mandated Territories were the foundation of Germany's strength.

ECONOMIC PROBLEM OF KENYA

2. THE MONETARY AUTHORITY

IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT'S RESPONSIBILITY

In the second of the series of special articles on the economic problem of Kenya, Major Grogan deals with the Monetary Authority.

It points out that the final and inescapable responsibility for policy rests upon the Imperial Government.

(By Major E. S. Grogan, D.S.O.)

WE have, I trust, made it clear that a money unit (be it the English £, the Australian £, the mark, the franc or the East African shilling) is no longer a self-contained thing. It is an abstraction of the term "value" which we do not see as being any more based on any "value" measure being made of platinum and every ton weight being made of alabaster. The monetary unit is a unit of account, not of value. It is a unit of account which is used to measure the value of things. It is a unit of account which is used to measure the value of things. It is a unit of account which is used to measure the value of things. It is a unit of account which is used to measure the value of things.

THE "CASH BASIS"

The abolition of the credit structure is only restricted by what I have called the "cash basis" of the economy. It is a unit of account which is used to measure the value of things. It is a unit of account which is used to measure the value of things. It is a unit of account which is used to measure the value of things. It is a unit of account which is used to measure the value of things.

INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY

The important point to remember is that the control of the credit structure vests absolutely in the Monetary Authority, and in a centrally-controlled banking system such as that of England, the commercial banks and the rest of the credit-distributing machinery are not as rigidly in the toils as the husband would be grover of the world's wheat.

All the current criticism of the Banks and even of the Bank of England is entirely beside the mark. The whole individual and corporate responsibility for policy rests upon the Imperial Government, whose function it is to decide that policy, and not upon the Central Bank as the nucleus and the commercial banks as the main pillars of the system as it is often alleged.

THE CUNLIFFE COMMITTEE

The initial responsibility for post-war monetary chaos lies with Mr. Lloyd George's Government in the appointment (1918) of the Cunliffe Committee. The Committee consisted of eleven distinguished Bankers, one Professor of Economics and the Secretary to the Treasury. They only reported upon the steps necessary to restore "an effective gold standard" and stated "It is probable that after the War world money will stand for many years, if not permanently, at a level far below the level of the gold standard."

THE BANKER'S FUNCTION

Apparently these eminent practitioners of the formula of banking do not realise that the money unit is the only thing which is not a thing. It is a unit of account which is used to measure the value of things. It is a unit of account which is used to measure the value of things. It is a unit of account which is used to measure the value of things. It is a unit of account which is used to measure the value of things.

First Cricket Test Match at Nottingham

SOUTH AFRICANS FORCED TO FOLLOW ON

Dismissed for 220 on Monday

MATCH DRAWN OWING TO RAIN ON THIRD DAY

Wyatt and Sutcliffe gave England a great lead in the first test match against the South Africans at Trent Bridge, Nottingham, on Saturday. Fine weather prevailed, and a big crowd witnessed the opening day's play.

The English skipper, after winning the toss, played a great innings for his country. Along with Sutcliffe the first wicket added 118 before a separation was made. Later, in company with Leyland, he helped to make a new fourth wicket stand in a test against South Africa.

England established herself in a strong position by declaring on Monday morning, and then forced the South Africans to follow on.

Nichols was the hero of Monday's play, when he took six wickets for 35 runs, and played a big part in obtaining the advantage for England. It was an auspicious first test match debut on the part of the Essex man, who was deadly after the tea interval on Monday.

Siedle and Cameron were the big men in the Springboks batting, each topping the half century. That latter when the wicket fell to Robert Taylor, who was the Middlesex man completely off his length, so that Wyatt had to take him off.

Nichols' Fine Bowling

The game became rather dull as the South Africans were regarded as favourites for the rest of the match. The teams selected were as follows:

England: Wyatt (captain), Robinson, Mitchell, Siedle, Hammond, Ailes, Nichols and Vincent. South Africa: Wade (captain), Cameron, Crisp, Langston, Mitchell, Thomas, Vincent, Tomlinson, Viljoen and Vincent.

Crisp, suffering from a sore heel, was temporarily retired. Mitchell-Innes scored five, while Tomlinson was out for 20. The score then stood at 118 for two.

Wyatt played a sterling innings, but was missed by Tomlinson in the second over. The score then stood at 118 for two.

Wade's captaincy was excellent. He was out for 20. The score then stood at 118 for two.

The batting was quickly off-set by the strong new batsmen. The score then stood at 118 for two.

Leyland's Contribution

Leyland, beginning to hit after he had scored 30, was caught at first ball, and after a few minutes more he was out.

South Africans' Innings, and... Match abandoned

Rain came to the rescue of the South Africans at Trent Bridge, Nottingham, today, when it was found impossible to resume play on the second day.

With no improvement in the conditions, the day progressed and it was eventually decided to abandon the game.

The first test ended in a draw. England were in a strong position, and they were forced to follow on.

Big Prospects for Pyrethrum Growing

KENYA AS WORLD'S CHIEF SOURCE OF SUPPLY?

Experts' Views and Advice

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING ESSENTIAL IN COMPETITION WITH JAPAN

There is no reason why Kenya should not become the world's chief source of pyrethrum supply.

This is the considered opinion of an expert who is at present visiting East Africa and who at a big meeting of pyrethrum growers at Limuru on Thursday dealt comprehensively with the problems of production and marketing.

The Colony's only serious competitor is Japan and it was emphasized that the advantages which Kenya enjoyed could only be turned to account by co-operative marketing.

The view was expressed that prospects justified the planting of a really considerable acreage in the country with pyrethrum.

Increased Planting Advocated

There was a large and representative attendance of Limuru pyrethrum growers at Brakenstein Hotel on Thursday evening, when Mr. E. W. Bovill, a director of Messrs. R. C. Treast & Co. Ltd., the overseas selling agents for the Kenya Pyrethrum Growers' Association, delivered an instructive and interesting address on the production and marketing of pyrethrum.

Mr. Bovill said that the market for pyrethrum was continuing to expand. He stated that the demand for pyrethrum was increasing in the United States, and that the price was rising. He advised the growers to increase their production and to market their pyrethrum through co-operative organizations.

Mr. Bovill said that the quality of pyrethrum was of great importance. He advised the growers to use good cultivation methods and to harvest the pyrethrum at the right time. He also advised them to use good drying and storage methods to preserve the quality of the pyrethrum.

Co-operative Marketing

Mr. Bovill said that co-operative marketing was essential for the success of the pyrethrum industry in Kenya. He advised the growers to form co-operative societies and to market their pyrethrum through these societies. He said that co-operative marketing would enable the growers to get a better price for their pyrethrum and to reduce their costs of production and marketing.

Mr. Bovill said that the future of the pyrethrum industry in Kenya was bright. He predicted that the demand for pyrethrum would continue to increase and that Kenya would become the world's chief source of pyrethrum supply. He advised the growers to continue to improve their production and marketing methods and to work together in co-operative organizations.

Mr. Bovill said that the pyrethrum industry in Kenya was still in its infancy. He advised the growers to continue to experiment with different cultivation and marketing methods. He said that the industry would only succeed if the growers worked together and supported each other. He ended his address by saying that he was confident that the future of the pyrethrum industry in Kenya was bright.

Limiting the Use of Prunias at Meetings

Important Resolution

Proposal to Introduce a Shop Hours Bill

The Kenya Pyrethrum Growers' Association has passed a resolution limiting the use of prunias at meetings. The resolution states that the use of prunias should be limited to the time of the meeting and that they should not be used for any other purpose. This resolution was passed in order to reduce the cost of the meetings and to ensure that the prunias were used for their intended purpose.

Mr. Bovill said that the prunias were an important part of the pyrethrum industry. He advised the growers to use them carefully and to ensure that they were used for their intended purpose. He said that the prunias were a valuable resource and that they should be used wisely. He also advised the growers to work together and to support each other in their efforts to improve the pyrethrum industry.

LEGION WOMEN TOO DONATIONS FROM SOUTH AFRICAN SOCIETY AND JEWISH GUILD

The management of the Capitol Theatre had offered, to provide a special programme of films suitable for children at a nominal charge and Rotarians were invited to purchase books of admission tickets, containing ten vouchers for Shs. 10/- each.

Two objects would thus be achieved—the children would be provided with entertainment and the Holiday Fund would benefit.

The list this week opened with a donation from His Excellency the Acting Governor and Mrs. Wade, always quick in their support of worthy objects.

The South African Society has set a good example by offering "national" bodies in the Colony by contributing from the limited funds of its Funds.

One subscriber, attracted by the suggestion that there should be a self-denial movement in the interests of the children, sent in a donation with a suggestion that it did not represent so much a denial of self as a Thanksgiving Offer for survival through a period of unexampled depression.

The women's interest in the Appeal is happily illustrated today by a handsome cheque from the Women's Section of the British Legion. The E.A.W.L. is also working hard for the cause.

Cheques should be made out to the "Children's Holiday Fund" and sent to the Hon. Treasurer, c/o The Education Department, or to the "East African Standard."

The full list of subscriptions received during the week appears elsewhere in this issue.

Germany's Future Naval Strength

EFFECT OF AGREEMENT WITH GREAT BRITAIN

Limit of Total Tonnage

CONSIDERABLE MARGIN FOR BUILDING PROGRAMME

It is estimated that, under the terms of the Anglo-German naval agreement the total strength of the future German navy will be 421,000 tons. This leaves a very large margin for future construction in all categories over present strength.

A German newspaper in reviewing the position pays a tribute to Britain which "has been fair and generous enough to drop the war mentality."

Mr. Anthony Eden, during the course of his discussions on European affairs with M. Laval will endeavor to remove French hostility to the Anglo-German naval agreement.

Minister's Visit to Paris

[REPRODUCED BY THE AGENCY.]
Paris, June 22.—In an examination of Germany's future naval position, the Anglo-German agreement, which examines the details of the "London" and "Paris" treaties, states that the total strength of the German navy will be 421,000 tons, including 100,000 tons of submarines, 100,000 tons of surface vessels, 100,000 tons of auxiliary vessels, 100,000 tons of auxiliary vessels, and 100,000 tons of auxiliary vessels. It is estimated that Germany will be permitted to build 100,000 tons of auxiliary vessels, 100,000 tons of auxiliary vessels, and 100,000 tons of auxiliary vessels. It is estimated that Germany will be permitted to build 100,000 tons of auxiliary vessels, 100,000 tons of auxiliary vessels, and 100,000 tons of auxiliary vessels.

Tribute to Britain

The "Volkische Beobachter" writes that the Anglo-German agreement is a landmark in the history of the world. It is a tribute to the wisdom and generosity of the British Government, which has shown a willingness to accept a limitation on the German navy, a step which has been long overdue. The agreement is a sign of a new era of peace and cooperation between the two nations.

Reply to Criticisms

The First Lord announced that the agreement provides a fixed point of departure for further discussion with other powers, which should be based on the same principles. The agreement is a landmark in the history of the world. It is a tribute to the wisdom and generosity of the British Government, which has shown a willingness to accept a limitation on the German navy, a step which has been long overdue.

First Lord Explains the Position

[BY WIRELESS.]
London, June 22.—The First Lord of the Admiralty, Mr. Anthony Eden, today explained the position of the British Government regarding the Anglo-German naval agreement. He stated that the agreement was a landmark in the history of the world, and that it was a tribute to the wisdom and generosity of the British Government.

114 APPLICATIONS FOR SEASIDE HOLIDAY

90 CHILDREN TO GO: 50 REQUIRE HELP

THE COMMITTEE'S TASK

The Children's Holiday Fund has closed the first fortnight with the encouraging amount of £100 public subscribed.

It is obvious, of course, that in view of the present difficult conditions in Kenya, and the increasing frequency of calls upon the generosity of the people, there must be a limit to the response.

Business firms throughout the country, and particularly in Nairobi, find as a matter of course that the burden falls heavily upon them and that an astonishingly small group of firms and private people have to dip into their pockets time after time to make these appeals a success.

The commercial houses of Nairobi, and many throughout the Colony, have been unvaryingly generous. Numbers of good causes have their support and only a few of these acts of generosity come into the limelight. Naturally, some causes are more in need of support than others and one of the neediest cases is that of the Children. However difficult the times, no one who is able to make a sacrifice will see the children suffer—the hard-pressed commercial community least of all.

Here is the position. The Committee in charge of the arrangements for the annual holiday to the seaside, received this week a total of 114 applications.

The accommodation at the camp is limited and it is proposed to send about 90.

Of the applications favourably considered, it is understood that between 30 and 40 will be able to pay the full charges, and thus reduce the general burden.

This leaves approximately 50 children (probably more whose circumstances are such that unless the public are generous, they cannot get a holiday at all.

Some of these children have never seen the sea and their state of health demands an early change, whatever may be the condition of their parents' pockets.

There are some cases where the physical condition of the children is due to mal-nutrition, which is a polite word for something very near starvation.

It is for a cause such as this that the Committee, having very limited funds, has asked the country every year to spare a little to meet the cost, which is approximately Five Pounds per child.

In addition, the camp equipment is needing repair and replacement and there are recurrent costs of upkeep.

Hence the nature of the appeal this year and the hope of a more than usually generous response.

Next week's list will begin on Monday. All donations will be acknowledged in the "East African Standard."

NEW NOTE FROM ETHIOPIA

"Situation from Bad to Worse"

A Proposal

THAT LEAGUE ESTABLISH ANOTHER COMMISSION

[REPRODUCED BY THE AGENCY.]
Geneva, June 20.—

"Since the Ethiopian appeal to the League the situation has gone from bad to worse and aggression upon the independence and integrity of Ethiopia seems imminent," declares an Ethiopian Government Note transmitted to the League by the Abyssinian Minister in Paris.

Abyssinia proposes that the League Council should establish a Commission of neutral observers to go to the Ethiopian-Italian Somaliland frontier where it could make an enquiry into all the alleged or real incidents and report direct to the Council.

[An article dealing with Italian intentions in regard to Abyssinia will be found on page five.]

KISUMU ROAD

Mr. Gallow-Ferris writes as follows: Owing to the torrential rains at Kisumu, the Kisumu-Kilgorok road which runs along the coast, is partially under water, and it is possible to get through with chains the journey should not be attempted at night. Members wishing to go to Kisumu would be well advised to launch off at Luolani to Timboera and then take the Kisumu-Kilgorok road. This makes a considerable detour, but is far better than getting stuck in the Kilgorok road.

BANK OF FRANCE

Big Increase in the Gold Reserve

[REPRODUCED BY THE AGENCY.]
Paris, June 20.—

The Bank of France has reduced the discount rate from 6 to 5 per cent.

Financial quarters are of the opinion that the Laval Government has now restored confidence sufficiently to justify the alleviation of the hardship which dear money is causing trade and industry.

The balance sheet of the Bank of France for the week ending June 14 shows that its gold reserve had increased by 20,000,000 francs.

'Black-out' to be Held Over Portsmouth

[REPRODUCED BY THE AGENCY.]
London, June 10.—

Portsmouth Corporation have been asked by the Admiralty and War Office to consent to the holding of a test "black-out" over the Portsmouth area sometime during August.

The test is being organized in conjunction with the new Air Raid Prevention Department and will follow the same lines as that carried out last week at Chatham, Rochester and Gillingham.

THE RIOTS IN N. RHODESIA

Bolsheviks Behind Outbreak

Serious Allegations

ORGANISATION FINANCED BY RUSSIA

[REPRODUCED BY THE AGENCY.]
Durban, June 17.—

Bolshevik propaganda is alleged to have been behind the recent outbreak of rioting among the native workers in the copper mining areas of Northern Rhodesia.

Information has been obtained from natives and also from a young Rhodesian, who was recently in the disaffected area, and whose enthusiasm, it is stated, certainly has been admitted, in connection with a possible revolt, that he was an emissary of the Bolsheviki movement. He is at present a student at the Witwatersrand University.

On the strength of the information obtained from various sources it is now alleged that there is an organisation financed by Russia in Northern Rhodesia, whose object is the formation of trouble-shooters as well as the copper belt. Encouraged by access in India this organisation anticipated similar access in Northern Rhodesia through the medium of the native population.

Finding the ground, owing to its control by the South African Dutch, somewhat difficult in the Union, its policy, while retaining its headquarters in Johannesburg, is to concentrate its chief activities in the British territories outside the Union, where the ground has been prepared for them through other agencies. If other agencies reach discontented sections while suppressing the Bolsheviki organisation will eventually follow and control the discontent into the direction that it wishes to go.

It is declared that unofficial Italian suggestions envisage anything between a conquest of Abyssinia as a whole and the annexation of certain districts together with the imposition of terms which would enable Italy to pursue there a policy of economic and cultural penetration.

LIKE WASHED AWAY

[STANDARD CORRESPONDENT.]

Durban, June 9.

As a result of the severe storm in Natal which disorganised the railway traffic, a stagnation occurred in the coal trade in Durban during the week-end.

There were a number of vessels in harbour for bunkering purposes, and altogether some 50,000 tons, but only 6,000 tons were available.

Strategic "rationing" was carried out in the coal industry, and they would have to wait for their coal until further supplies are available. This was done by holding up, but their orders called for other ports for their coal.

After working night and day the railway engineers were able to repair, to some extent, the line and trains which had been held up since Thursday, began to arrive on Saturday night, but owing to the damage to the line, the rail line, no large quantities of coal can be brought to Durban until Monday.

TASK FOR ELECTED MEMBERS

Major Grogan tells in this, the fourth article in the series, the tragic story of the burden imposed on East Africa by the currency fixation which altered the money unit of the Territories from £s to the £ sterling to 10.

During the war and repeatedly afterwards he urged the Kenya Government, the Secretary of State and even the Chancellor of the Exchequer to restore the equilibrium destroyed by the rupee fixation and subsequent currency fluctuations.

Nothing has been done. The Government answer to all suggestions has always been "No." and the burden remains.

The first task of the Legislative Councillors, he considers, is to insist upon a full and reasoned exposition of the grounds on which the relief sought by almost every other part of the world has been denied to Kenya.

(By Major E. S. Grogan.)

DRIVING COMMERCE OVER THE BORDER

[STANDARD CORRESPONDENT.]

Development of trade with the Northern Frontier District, and with Southern Abyssinia via Lamu will be hampered, or diverted, should a recent order under the Road Protection Ordinance be enforced. The order, which appears in Government Notice No. 378, issued May 15, includes the prohibition of the use of lorries having licensed carrying capacities of more than 12 tons on the 40 miles at the Lamu end of this important trade route.

The notice does not prohibit the use of heavier lorries in the rest of the N.F.D. and, as a matter of fact, employment in that District by both the administration as well as by traders, who have long by long experience that lorries of 12 tons capacity are uneconomical and are being replaced by tractor types.

The effect of the ban will be that commercial motor vehicles which Lamu must either (1) employ uneconomical mixed lorries, or (2) transport their goods on one lorry to another at a remote point in the N.F.D., or (3) abandon the idea of trading with the interior by long haul, and concentrate on the short hauler trade, which is not profitable for their custom; more probably the rival Italian port of Kisumu.

The latter is by far the most profitable trade route, not only for other British trade but by rail from the coast to the land and the former is not only a more certain destination of the goods. This trade is controlled by the N.F.D. traders who have long been known to be a powerful and influential group. They are known to be a powerful and influential group.

MODEL TYPIST

£2,000 Request by Her Employer

[STANDARD CORRESPONDENT.]

London, June 9.

When she opened her pay envelope last week, Miss Jenny Smith, 21, St. Paul's Church, London, was a little to be surprised to find inside a cheque for £2,000. It was a tribute to a model typist, who has been employed by the Government for several years. Her employer, the Ministry of Public Health, has been very satisfied with her work.

Anglo-French Clouds Dispersed. FRANK DISCUSSIONS BY MR. EDEN AND M. LAVAL. Ready for Air Pact? ITALY'S UNBENDING ATTITUDE WITH REGARD TO ABYSSINIA.

The strained feeling caused between Britain and France as a result of the Anglo-German Naval Agreement has been removed as a result of Mr. Anthony Eden's talks with M. Laval.

The way is thought to be clear now for consideration of the best steps to be taken to implement the proposed Western Air Convention and Mr. Eden has forwarded suggestions to the British Cabinet which it is thought will be approved.

Meanwhile Abyssinia continues to be a big problem and the Italian Government has given a hint, on the eve of Mr. Eden's visit to Rome, that "unjustified pressure" will result in Italy's withdrawal from the League of Nations.

Eden has forwarded suggestions to the London which will require the Cabinet's sanction. The Cabinet's decision will be taken in time for Mr. Eden to communicate the reply to M. Laval by his return from Rome on Thursday.

The fact that the suggestions have not been rejected outright by the Foreign Office augurs well for Cabinet approval of them.

On the naval question, Mr. Eden gave M. Laval to understand that the Anglo-German Agreement leaves France a completely free hand as she chooses. On the other hand M. Laval gave a hint of some justification on the part of France.

Both British and French seem to be agreed that France and England must remain faithful to the League of Nations and must collaborate for European peace and for the organization of collective security.

On the last afternoon of his life he ate a most sumptuous dinner of C. O. salmon trout for 14 separate courses.

Spada's execution was held in the public square of Bastia.

£126-3-6! K.U.R. CONCESSIONS TO THE CHILDREN. A GENEROUS OFFER. FUND MAKES SPLENDID START ON THIRD WEEK.

On Friday the Editor of the "East African Standard" approached the Kenya and Uganda Railway Administration and pleaded the cause of the children, as Railway fares met at reduced rates).

The answer was prompt and pleasant. In a letter on Saturday morning the General Manager, Sir G. D. Rhodes, replied that the K. U. R., in the special circumstances, would allow the following privileges on this occasion:

- 1. All children, irrespective of age, one-quarter of the single fare for the return journey.
2. Camp officers, teachers and instructors, return tickets at single fare.
3. Camp equipment, one-quarter of ordinary public rates.
4. Meals for the children, one half of the public rates.
5. Bedding will be supplied free.

The appeal met with a fine response during the week-end and the list for the third week (ending to-day) shows an excellent start, with some very generous amounts. The aim again this week is to add another £50, raising the fund by Friday to £150.

FOUR CHILDREN SHOT. Terrible Naini Tragedy. Midnight Discovery.

A terrible tragedy involving the deaths of four European children occurred in Nairobi in the early hours of Saturday morning.

Shortly after midnight nursing sisters on duty at the Eskotene Nursing Home heard a number of shots being fired in quick succession. A few minutes later a woman staggered into the home, suffering from a gunshot wound in the head.

The police were commissioned and the police officers went to Mrs. Mercur's house. In one of the rooms stretched side by side a mattress and four children, all apparently having been shot with a revolver through the left temple. They were:

- Richard Mercur, aged 10.
Barry Thomas Mercur, aged 8.
Patricia Mercur, aged 7.
Jean Mercur, aged 5.

18 MINUTES - IN LION'S CAGE

COMEDIAN MONTY BANKS DIRECTS GREAT CIRCUS DRAMA

The "East African Standard" London film critic picks "18 Minutes" as the best of the week—a circus romance of high quality.

"18 Minutes" (Lidolet Square). The British film, about which singularly little has been made, is far and away the best newcomer of the week.

The intelligent use of the sound, which should appeal to the discerning, the director having concentrated on a naturalness seldom heard on the screen.

Gregory Koffel, also a comedian, who has apparently repeated, about in this tale of a lion-tamer who married the girl he has courted in the cage she walks for him—18 minutes—under the clock, and during that time she has her one regular release from the cage: to smile at him.

"Boiler-tom" (Regal)—Another "Pau" Main's clever characterization, this time of a Madras boiler-tom riddled with gambling and playboys.

"The Case of Gabriel Perry" (Castrol)—Henry Oscar, Marjorie Lockwood, and Olga Lindo, in a film version of the stage play "Wild Justice" is so good a good thriller with a sound thriller trial climax.

A legal play, full of dramatic moments and unexpected developments, played by a first rate amateur company which includes some of Nairobi's leading legal lights, and a scene set in a conventional court, present features so unusual that the success of "Lal" is almost a foregone conclusion. The play, which was successful, is being produced by Captain Schwartz and Mr. Tom Blankin, in Nairobi, well-known and most successful combination and both gentlemen play leading parts. The season opens at the Empire Theatre on Wednesday, July 3, and will continue until Saturday, July 6.

Screen Personalities Wide Choice for Film Fans this Week

THEIR week's "prog" talking of their unabashed personalities is well noted, and most people will find a favourite at one or other of the Nairobi theatres. "Mixed" is scarcely the word to describe the variety of stars at Harold Lloyd, or Ann Harding, with her almost partitioned face and girlish, somewhat hair, and Bert Wheeler and Bert Woodley. Could any other play present so personal a personality?

It is for Nairobi film fans to decide which picture, and what artist they will see at the Empire and Capitol Theatres. Then, at Princess Theatre, there is grave Godfrey Teale, with his strong and compelling personality, and, of course, Kathleen O'Connell, Olga Lindo and Ann Casper.

Norma Shearer Norma Shearer, who plays the lead in "Egipcian," showing at the Capitol Theatre, later in the evening, around her first money (every message pass) as a prima in a short play, which she shares with the deadly monotony of the job, for exactly three days, and then, playing an instinct which, in her case was true, set out to make her fortune on the stage. To be a studio-production actress, the actress is the only of having no one to speak. "The Girl who met her best friend" on the road to the famous which is now here. "Egipcian" is a fine picture, and Miss Shearer who supported by Robert Montgomery, and Herbert Marshall, plays what is probably the star of her career. Born at 12 Harold Lloyd who stars in "Morio Olay" at the Empire this week, began his career as a boy of twelve in "Toss of the D'Urberville," and it has then made up his mind that serious drama was not for him. Ever since then, Harold Lloyd, of the dark brown eyes, bespectacled, dark hair, and bushy beard, has been busy making people laugh, first in silent pictures, and now in the sound picture, and now in the picture which has deserved many admirers who will follow his antics with pleasure in a film the life of which seems to have been created especially for him.

Ann Harding, who in Hollywood is described as "an intellectual" is recently by McGoldwyn's "Who's Who in the Theatre." Here is a legitimate drama artist who has played many serious parts in serious plays, and for whom, however many career years ago, and the picture which has been produced by the Capitol Theatre, "The Woman in his House" was made completely recently by McGoldwyn's Mavor. Myrna Loy, who plays a strongly contrasting role as a creation little lady who is a lady's lady, surely singing to the front. Her photograph appears elsewhere on this page.

A qualified artist from Mr. W. Leonard, both of whom are on a concert in Nairobi, will constitute groups of songs. The proceeds of the Recital are to be devoted to the "A.F.S.C." Bursary and Best Boys Funds and admission will be by program. The music played by Miss Spencer Palmer is a very pretty girl, Thelma Todd and Dorothy Lamour. The picture is so good that the two comedians attract the crowd with their lip-tick and fast talk.

Government's Liability to Local Authority

STRONG PROTEST AGAINST AN AMENDING BILL

Exemption from Rating

DANGER OF ADDITIONAL BURDEN ON THE RATEPAYERS

A proposal by Government to introduce an amending Bill to the Local Government (Municipalities) Ordinance, was the subject of considerable discussion by the Nairobi Chamber of Commerce on Thursday, when it was decided strongly to oppose certain of the clauses.

Resolution was unanimously adopted protesting against the clauses in the proposed Bill authorizing the Governor-in-Council to exempt any Crown land from payment of contribution in lieu of rates. It was contended that this would be inequitable and inflict too serious a hardship on ratepayers.

Clause in the proposed Bill providing for the claims by the local authority for unpaid rates to have preference over the first mortgage, was opposed by a majority vote.

Claim for Rates

A strong protest expressed in the form of a unanimous protest, was registered at Friday's meeting of the Nairobi Chamber of Commerce with respect to section 3 and 4 of the Local Government (Municipalities) Ordinance, 1935, which, on a majority vote, it was resolved that the proposed amendments should be rejected as being undesirable and unnecessary.

Section 2 and 3 of the Ordinance, which were amended, were discussed in the meeting and the Chamber of Commerce as a gathering of important ratepayers.

The object of the proposed amendments was to allow the local authority to claim for rates on any land which was not used for agricultural purposes.

It was stated that the proposed amendments would be a serious burden on the ratepayers and would be a hardship on the ratepayers.

fact that generally speaking he was controlled by a written Contract. The difficulty was overcome and the sanctity of the Contract undisturbed by granting what is called a War Bonus to meet the increased cost of living. It was intended for a limited time, but I believe it is correct to say that the bonus was equivalent to one-third of the substantive salary. No one can disagree with the justice of this arrangement, having regard to the facts of the time. Very much the same sort of thing was in practice at Home, but there the bonus was adjusted from time to time in accordance with the rise or fall in the cost of living, as compared with what was known as the index figure. This index figure of one hundred represented the average of costs of living. I think, in July, 1924.

Anyone who chooses to fructify, as we reduced in Colony 4 Budget, say from 1920 to 1925, that the time when a War Bonus was introduced into this territory was imposed on the country specifically to meet a temporary increased cost of living. It will be better to the Civil Servants, that the Country is being subjected to a financial.

authority might earn some income from so valuable a franchise. Government had already leased a portion of this area, claimed as exempt owing to being a school site for a War Bonus, and if land was going to be so set out by the argument that it was intended for a school, or other rate-free institution, could not be advanced.

An Alternative In seconding Mr. Wood's resolution, Mr. A. C. Tumball stated that Section 4 of the Bill would not exempt itself from rating, and should be strenuously opposed.

The Government point, he said, could be met by amending the definition of rateable property in Section 2, so as to include in the exemptions the terms referred to in the objects and reasons. The speaker suggested an additional sub-clause: (f) Notwithstanding anything contained in Section 28 of the principal Ordinance, any land for the use of the Government or for the use of the High Commissioner for Trusts or for the use of any other authority for the purpose of: (a) Hospitals, dispensaries, clinics or other charitable establishments for the treatment of the sick; (b) educational institutions; (c) the use of any land for the purpose of the treatment of the sick; (d) the use of any land for the purpose of the treatment of the sick; (e) veterinary quarantine areas; (f) abattoirs; (g) houses and buildings for the use of the Government; (h) railway running tracks; (i) land on either side thereof of a total width not exceeding 100 feet, limited to the area of the running tracks.

Unshakable Proposition Mr. Tumball stated that the suggestion that Government could exempt any land they desired to tax, was not a proposition to be taken from Hansard of a portion of a speech in Legislative Council by the Commissioner for Trusts, Mr. J. G. Lumsden, in 1920, with the result that salaries were increased to the tune of 10 per cent. It was pointed out that the increase to 10 per cent was not the result of the increase in the cost of living, but was the result of the fact that the Government had decided to increase the salaries of its employees. SEA SCOUT MOVEMENT (Continued from page 5) two-thirds are in the Mercantile Marine and the other third in the Navy. It is easy to appreciate what a useful organization this is. Primarily, it is a purely voluntary organization of the ideas of loyalty and usefulness that are the basis of the entire movement and, also, it brings to scouting an added first-hand knowledge of world conditions, which is unobtainable in whatever form they may be lying. The Deep Sea Scouts, being to them a wider knowledge of affairs and all the sailor's passion for neatness, handiness and thoroughness.

Both in work and at play, they bring to the Scouts they meet overseas a freshness and enthusiasm that only a life on the sea can invigorate. Both the Land and Sea Scouts are in the forefront of the movement. Both are in the forefront of the movement. Both are in the forefront of the movement. Both are in the forefront of the movement. Both are in the forefront of the movement.

In the East Indies Rover Mate Allen stated that the East Indies Squadron Troop had suffered serious losses owing to transfers of personnel. H.M.S. "Hector" on 12th July 1927, 22 Deep Sea Scouts, had been paid off and the members have been transferred down to the H.M.S. "Colombo" two on H.M.S. "Emerald" and three on the new vessel of the Squadron, H.M.S. "Narvik".

The excellent work done by Rover Scouts is being demonstrated during the terrible malaria epidemic in Cyren. Rover Scouts have been sent into the hands of volunteer helpers and worked sixteen hour shifts, 1.0 a.m. to 1.0 p.m. and 1.0 p.m. to 1.0 a.m. of first-aid was invaluable. They would have done more, but they were given great assistance to the nursing staff in their treatment of the malaria victims and carried messages. They were all young men who had undergone efficiency, discipline and courtesy. They were in the hands of the Rover Scouts as a member of "B-P's" bodyguard during the epidemic of November 1924. The "bodyguard" was a necessity owing to the intense enthusiasm displayed by all Scouts for their beloved Chief, an enthusiasm that would have surrounded him with an impetuous hail of devoted admirers. Rover Mate Allen intends to stay in Nairobi until recovery and hopes to get in touch with all those interested in order to give them the assurance that they are not "out of sight and out of mind" of Headquarters. Forfeiture is not a characteristic of the organizers of this world-wide movement inaugurated in England. The "dream" whose dreams came true"—Lord Bales-Powell.

It is human nature for vested interests to fight tooth and nail to retain advantage once gained, but in the long run it is futile to resist fundamental factors which result in disequilibrium. There is only one remedy, namely, readjustment in the cost of the affected either by an all-round reduction or the enhancement of value. The former is obviously preferable.

The Country appreciates fully all that has been said and supports an organisation built up on the most advanced and most eminently desirable personnel, but if the country and the Administration are sensible they will hesitatingly retain only that which they can afford. Corporations act in no way benefit the Civil Servant no less than the country, taking the long view.

PASSENGERS BY AIR The Imperial Airways firm R.M.A. (Cannes), commanded by Capt. Cambesher arrived at Nairobi at 9.45 p.m. on Thursday, June 30, and left again the following morning for London. The flight was commanded by Capt. Gunn, as a gun. The following were the passengers carried: Captain Messing, London; Lady Chapman, Mr. Bouthaker, and Mr. H. J. Burgess, Nairobi; Mr. A. Schaeffer, Dolans-London; Lord Chesham and Mr. J. H. Elliott, Nairobi; Mr. Walker and Capt. Harrington, Nairobi-London, Sir Edward Buck.

That this Chamber of Commerce comprises most of the largest ratepayers in Nairobi offer the strongest possible protest against the petition to amend Section 2 and 3 of the Bill (Rating Ordinance, 1926, authorising the Local Government to raise and improve the Government in Council) and the Crown land from exempt any contribution in lieu of rates, on the ground that this would be inequitable and inflict too serious a burden on the rest of the ratepayers community. After the passing of this resolution...

It is my opinion, it is seriously and detrimentally affects the security of investments and mortgages and as such will affect the investing public. Apparently the Municipal Council will not take any action before the end of the year. The Municipality has sufficient funds to meet the cost of destroying the sanctity of existing conditions and reducing the value of the objects and reasons.

On a point of explanation, Mr. Ekeleyer stated that the suggestion that Government could exempt any land they desired to tax, was not a proposition to be taken from Hansard of a portion of a speech in Legislative Council by the Commissioner for Trusts, Mr. J. G. Lumsden, in 1920, with the result that salaries were increased to the tune of 10 per cent. The Future of Tanganyika

To the Editor, "E.A. Standard," Sir—There were several replies to my previous letters to you from which I have drawn some kind of resume, some questions have been raised to which I am anxious to reply.

To begin with, permit me to revert to the point we started from. It was your article in the Standard of the 29th April on the subject of "Tanganyika" which prompted me. You maintained that it would be best for Tanganyika to remain under British rule, your opinion being identical with the opinion of the majority of its white population, irrespective of nationality. I contended this giving you some reasons why.

As I already remarked, there were several replies to my letter, one or otherwise, then the Standard, both separately and jointly, which were characteristic of the spirit prevailing among a certain section of the mandated territory of our country. Although these letters support all I said in criticism of Government, and even greatly extend my own criticism of national policy, I contended this giving you some reasons why.

Sir, you have good reason to be displeas'd of your efforts to create a universal feeling of comradeship among the Europeans in this country. It is a hopeless cause; there exists no such feeling for all I am perfectly aware that the correspondents referred to are not true representatives of the British type of man, a white race whose disarming intelligence to foreign opinion and custom went far in building each a wonderful fancy. Unfortunately however, in this territory the exceptions prevail; they are not in this country, the spirit of a country wrongfully taken from its owners, an all-round feeling of unenamoured dislike does pervade the entire country.

Let me remind this and the country will be a political economy. Germany mutilated, her boundaries fixed by the "Peace" Treaty, millions of her nationals forced to live on the same soil her borders through this desert waste, with a large surplus population in a world full of refugees and hangers against trade and navigation, a world of nations trying all to be well-dependent must have an outlet for her manpower and her commodities. Trying to deny it her is calling for mischief and to promote serious European war. The most hated portion of the sparsely populated spaces in the world, this which Providence set aside for virile nations with power to expand. It amounts to arrogation to assume that all of it should have been reserved to a selected few who have so much of it that they cannot handle it properly. An illustration of this is that the Colonies was one of the premises on which Germany had down business in November 1918. From her former Colonies, Germany could get most of her requirements and raw material also needs from overseas such as steel, coffee, tea, rubber, cotton, rice, maize, cereals, vegetables, oils, mica, etc., and pay for it in her own currency, pay for it in marks. Over two milliards of marks flow from her annually to Germany in November 1918. stood that Mr. Tunstall, being British diagnoses with the view of "Tibetana." But it is obvious to quote history or at least take the trouble of looking up a text book before quoting.

The Danish King is said (not 1900, Mr. Tunstall) was the successful "German" invasion against the interests of Christian VIII in 1800, Frederic VIII in 1820 and Christian X in 1902, to incorporate the German Duchies of Schleswig, Holstein and Lauenburg into the Kingdom of Denmark.

In the Franco-German War of 1900, Germany recognized the German conquests of Alsace and Lorraine. With regard to the study of the history of Louis XIV, especially of the years 1698-1704, to incorporate the German Duchies of Schleswig, Holstein and Lauenburg into the Kingdom of Denmark.

In the conquest of Algeria in 1900 Germany gave up to France certain interests. In Morocco against a portion of French territory on the Congo.

These are historical facts, which to look up Mr. Tunstall has not the trouble of looking up a text book before quoting.

TANGA-NAIROBI BY RAIL - A LONG DELAY

To the Editor "E.A. Standard," Sir—The Tanga line is inevitable as the Tanga Railway line has to go to Arusha and hence so that Arusha passengers and freight can proceed to Vo. However, it appears to me that so long a wait, with a little thought, be avoided. The train for Arusha from Mocha starts every four hours before setting off, and it cannot possibly take the remaining twenty-four odd hours to go to the hundred and four miles to Arusha and back.

I do not want to appear desirous in my criticism, and I should like to make it clear that the service offered by both railways, during the actual travelling, is very good; but this very long wait causes a definite loss of revenue to the Government, and when ever they can, for a ship to Mombasa, and join the railway there.

It appears to me that this ventilation is a waste of money, and view will, at the very least, cause the matter to be enquired into.

Nonscripts Win a Poor Game

MUTHAIGA LOSE 23-6. In striking contrast to the conditions prevailing generally throughout the week, today saw a heat wave, with a temperature of 92 degrees.

Nonscripts defended the road end with Muthaiga taking the kickoff. Nonscripts worked their way up field and from a scrum Milligan got his three going, but Rose-Munro knocking on a promising movement.

From a loose scrum Gledhill secured and dodging his way through open the scoring after five minutes play by scoring and netting the try (5-0).

From the drop Gledhill secured a drop-at-goal but missed. Ellis broke and kicked ahead. Nonscripts were penalised for obstructing.

Second Half. Muthaiga in the second half started off with a rush and instead of one out took scrum and from one of these Sutherland broke through to score.

Nonscripts got the ball from a scrum but Gledhill knocked on. From a Mithaiga movement Westrota got over and Ellis converted. (12-6).

Isle of Man T.T. Races

Stanley Woods Wins Amazing Race

Lap Record Smashed in Fight with Gaultier. [STANLEY WOODS' ABSTRACT.] Douglas, I.O.M. June 22. An unprecedented stop was taken by the officials of the T.T. races when they postponed the display if they are to go far in this season's racing until today.

Stanley Woods, who had a narrow squeak, was second, his time being 8 hours 7 minutes 14 seconds, and average speed was 84.08 miles per hour.

Hectic Bidding. This was the greatest race in the history of the Isle of Man. Excitement was at fever pitch throughout the race. Gaultier, who had held the lead throughout, had a lead of 20 seconds from Woods at the start of the race.
